New Regime in Libya Lines Up with Nasser

British Worry Over Arms Sale

LONDON (AP) — The army coup in Libya raised strong concern here today for the future of British military bases, oil supplies and rich contracts for arms sales in that country.

Newspaper commentaries tended toward the view that the Libyan coup would shift the Middle East power balance against Israel and toward Egypt and perhaps Russia. Officials refused to speculate.

But British officials were keeping an unusually close watch on developments in Tripoli for any sign that could effect Britain's important defence and commercial interests. They said so far there is no evidence the Libyan coup was instigated from outside.

One key question for Britain was whether the new Libyan regime would turn toward closer ties with President Nasser's government in neighboring Egypt. It was generally agreed here that such a move would jeopardize Britain's remaining military bases in Libya and its contracts for arms sales there totalling more than £200,000,000 ($520,000,000).

Included in the arms deals were controversial Libyan orders for Chieftain tanks, Britain's newest weapon, which can outshoot the Egytian Army's Russian-built T-55 tanks. Israel wanted to buy Chieftains as well, but Britain refused.

The policy of selling to Libya and refusing Israel raised a parliamentary storm in June. The government justified its stand at the time on grounds that Libya was not involved in the Middle East war and wanted the tanks for self-defence.

The Sun suggests Arab militants in Libya now may be tempted to lend out Chieftains for use against the Israelis. Britain, however, has not yet delivered any of these tanks to Libya.

Newspaper commentaries differed on the probable long-term effects of the coup. Both The Daily Mail and The Daily Express suggest the Russians may seek to replace Britain as an arms supplier to Libya in return for influence on that nation's board. But The Guardian predicted there would be no change in the real power balance in the Middle East, only one more propaganda voice against Israel.

U.S. Won't Dictate Says Nixon

COLORADO SPRINGS (Reuters) — President Nixon in a speech to U.S. governors committed himself more firmly than ever to reducing Washington's overpowering role in domestic and international affairs.

While concentrating mainly on increasing state and local control of internal affairs, Nixon Monday night made it clear he also intends to prune the country's foreign commitments.

"Washington will no longer try to go it alone," he said. "Washington will no longer dictate without consulting."

The president described as a failure the efforts of the federal government in the last five years to solve domestic problems.

Commenting on federal spending, he said: "Far fom solving our problems . . . these expenditures . . . reaped a harvest of dissatisfaction, frustration and bitter division."

"Never in human history has so much been spent by so many for such a negative result," he told the annual governors conference.

The president warned there were both budget and tax decisions ahead.

It "is clear that many hard choices will have to be made.

"Dreams of unlimited billions of dollars being released once the war in Vietnam ends are just that—dreams." In order to find money for new programs, "we will have to trim it out of old ones."

World is in Dark About Junta's Plans

By Michael Goldsmith

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Libya's new military rulers left much of the world guessing today about their future policies toward the West and Israel. But there was general expectation that the West's huge stake in Libyan oil was not endangered.

Indications pointed to a closer alignment with Egyptian President Nasser and the more militant Arab nations. And the end may be in sight for the U.S. Air Force's big Wheelus base outside Tripoli and the small British bases at Tobruk and El Adem.

The junta headed by Col. Saad Eddine Abbout Chouireb, which seized power early Monday from King Idris I, proclaimed "the Libyan Arab Republic," a name echoing those adopted by such revolutionary Arab nations as Egypt, Syria and Yemen. Iraq and Egypt were the first nations to recognize the new regime.

Broadcasts by the Tripoli radio stressed the "socialist" nature of the new regime and said the revolution stands for "Arab unity, socialism and freedom," the slogan of the Baath Socialist radicals in power in Iraq and Syria.

But broadcast statements also gave assurances that foreign policy would remain unchanged, and foreign nationals and their property would be protected.

Informed sources in Paris said the junta called in representatives of the U.S., Britain, France and the Soviet Union and told them all international agreements would be respected, including contracts for the North American and West European oil concessions, which have made Libya the world's fourth-largest oil producer.

The Occidental Petroleum Corp., which has one of the biggest North American, oil holdings, said its tankers reported that loading of Libyan oil was proceeding normally.

Occidental said from its Los Angeles headquarters that it believed its operations will not be affected because the new government will need the oil revenues and did not have trained personnel to take over the wells.

There was speculation, however, that the new regime would renew demands on the U.S. and Britain to close their military bases in the country.

Contracts to buy some $500,000,000 worth of arms from Britain also appeared in danger of cancellation, although British officials in London expressed confidence the new regime would honor them.

Broadcasts after the coup also repeatedly voiced support of Arab nationalism and the "Arab nation," expressions which are mandatory for any new Arab regime but which, together with the apparent leaning of the junta toward Egypt, indicated that Libyan propaganda at least would be more stridently anti-Israel.

The Libyan monarchy gave only lukewarm backing to calls from the Arab militants for the destruction of Israel and was a member of a moderate group that also included Morocco, Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon and Kuwait. Tunisian officials feared that the new regime would swing the balance within the Arab League in favor of Nasser's policies.

Libya's airports, ports and borders meanwhile remained closed to all outsiders, and there was no indication when they would be opened.

Airline Pilots Seek to Free Hijacked Men

From AP-Reuters

Two Israeli men who were aboard a hijacked American airliner remained in Syrian custody today, and the international airline pilots' organization threatened a 24-hour strike if they are not freed by next Monday.

The plane's four other Israeli passengers, three women and a teen-age girl, returned to Tel Aviv Monday after 64 hours in Damascus. Ninety-five passengers of other nationalities and the airliner's crew of 12 were released Saturday.

The executive committee of the 44,000-member International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations met in Paris Monday and drafted a statement calling on the United Nations to take immediate action to free the passengers and ensure the hijackers would be punished.

Ole Forsberg, Finnish president of the organization, said he had cabled the membership asking for a strike authorization, and he expected overwhelming approval.

Schools Re-open

After Labor Day Splurge, Canadians Back at Daily Grind

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was back to school today for kids a day after Canadians celebrated Labor Day.

Labor marched the day with parades and speeches and special programs.

Ideal holiday weather drew thousands to beaches, cottages, lakes and picnic spots. Others attended a variety of sports spectacles. A football game in Montreal was marred by evening showers.

Attendance was down as exhibitions closed at Toronto and Ottawa but Man and His World at Montreal enjoyed its best day with 266,550 visitors.

One black cloud over the day was a high accidental death toll of 106, including 70 highway fatalities in the crush of traffic.

The total exceeded by far the 60 to 70 predicted for the weekend by the Canada Safety Council. The traffic toll compared with 68 in the 1968 Labor Day weekend, also three days.

Labor Day key notes were struck at Toronto by Senator David Croll, chairman of the Senate committee on poverty, and at Winnipeg by Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Senator Croll, speaking to the Canadian National Exhibition directors' luncheon, called on organized labor to bring the unorganized worker into the labor union movement as labor's contribution to the elimination of poverty in Canada.

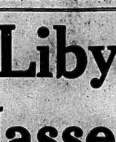
Mr. MacDonald, speaking to a dinner marking the 30th anniversary of the Winnipeg general strike of 1919, said unions are being threatened by the growth of conglomerates which made companies employing thousands only minor parts of enormous enterprises.

Amidst heavy traffic conditions Ontario Provincial police began enforcing new speeding regulations with fines of $5 for every mile an hour over the posted limit to a high of $250.

In Toronto a parade of 14,930 workers attended the closing day of the CNE. Total attendance at the exhibition was 3,208,500, about 64,000 short of last year. General Manager L. C. Powell predicted the fair will end up with a small profit.

At Ottawa the 10-day Central Canada Exhibition attracted a total of 658,550, down from 681,334 last year. President Jules Morin blamed the drop on higher admission prices.

In Sudbury more than 3,500 turned out for a parade, a combined effort of two unions on strike against two local nickel companies. The two groups joined forces in a show of unity.



At Orangeville, 40 miles northwest of Toronto, about 30 young persons suffered the effects of drugs when more than 4,000 gathered for a pop music festival.

Wiretaps Assailed By Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — All forms of wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping "must be expressly prohibited and made the subject of a criminal offence," Justice Minister John Turner said today.

Mr. Turner, speaking to the Canadian Bar Association, excepted electronic eavesdropping for purposes of national security, or detecting syndicated crime and certain serious criminal offences.

He said such exceptions should be granted only when a police chief applies to an attorney general.

Bears on Warpath

Jasper Visitors Chased and Mauled

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — A San Francisco man made a vain attempt to save his two sons from being mauled by a grizzly bear Sunday by attracting the animal to himself.

Ken Rogers, 49, and his two sons, Ken, 17, and James, 14, were taken to Jasper Hospital after the attack suffering skin punctures, scratches and abrasions.

In an interview, Mr. Rogers said he and his sons came upon the bear suddenly while hiking toward the Signal Mountain lookout in Jasper National Park, about 200 miles west of Edmonton.

As the animal moved towards them, Mr. Rogers waved his arms to attract its attention and shouted at his boys to run.

"I thought by getting the bear to notice me, my sons would have a chance to get away," said Mr. Rogers, a teacher and biologist.

The bear attacked Mr. Rogers, knocking him to the ground, mauling him and scratching and biting his back.

Mr. Rogers said he thought he was going to be killed, but the bear, apparently attracted by the sounds of the boys running away, suddenly left him.

He said he watched as the bear ran down one of the boys, knocked him to the ground, mauled him for a few seconds and then continued on the second boy and knocked him to the ground.

"After mauling both Ken and James, the bear ambled away. None of us was seriously injured."

Two Men Escape By Playing Dead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilfred Lulu, 44, of Ashcroft, B.C., says he is alive because he beat a mauling grizzly to the punch.

Mr. Lulu, in a telephone interview from Whitehorse, Monday described his battle Friday in a glacier-fed creek 100 miles west of the Yukon city. Whitehorse is about 1,000 miles north of Vancouver.

"I was with a young fellow, Gordon Wood, 19, of Clarkson, Ont., he said from his hospital bed. "We work for the Alwin Mining Co. as part of a crew seeking new mining properties. We were walking up this creek between the bank and the water to check on a survey line when we came to this sharp bend in the creek.

"I guess the bear was sleeping or we disturbed him. Anyway, he came charging around the bend without warning.

"I put up my right arm to protect myself. He grabbed it, and I fell into the creek with him still hanging on. I'd heard about people playing dead in similar situations, and that's just what I did.

"I went under the water several times like I was really dead, but he continued to attack."

Mr. Lulu said his companion stood for several moments then began running downstream with the bear in hot pursuit.

The grizzly grabbed the youth by the leg and dragged him until the youth also played dead.

School Buses Travel Many Thousands Of Miles Each Year

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The yellow school buses wheeled out on county roads again this morning, ending their summer lay-up.

A routine occurrence on the first day of school perhaps.

But behind the bus mobilization this fall lies a $900 000 budget, about 9,500 students, 108 operators and a feat of logistics that would baffle most transportation companies.

Contributing to the smooth operation of the school transportation system are people with talents pressed into service in unexpected ways. Among them are a kindergarten pupil with an unusual knowledge of his neighborhood and an assistant area superintendent who talks to dogs.

In former years, 13 individual boards in the county handled their own transportation needs. With the advent of the county board, all busing came under the central control of John Bancroft, the Hastings' board's manager of transportation.

Complicating his task this year was the re-arrangement of routes made necessary by closure of eight one - room country schools and institution of kindergartens throughout the county.

Although Mr. Bancroft has yet to work out the total number of miles school buses will travel in the county this year, some idea of the magnitude of the operation can be gathered from the figures for north Hastings.

Buses serving only the elementary schools in that area will drive 400,000 miles this year.

"Our job is to plan the routes so each bus carries the largest number of children it can hold to their school in the shortest possible time," Mr. Bancroft said.

"According to board policy, no elementary school child is asked to walk more than one-half mile to catch his bus. Where circumstances demand it, we can ask second a r y school students to walk three quarters of a mile."

Many township roads are too narrow and dangerous for big buses to negotiate safely in winter weather. On these routes, cars, station wagons and small buses are used to feed the pupils into central pickup points where they transfer to large highway-buses.

Sidney township, where all one-room schools were closed this year, and kindergarten services were instituted, presented special problems.

Mr. Bancroft and J. M. Cousins, assistant area superintendent for south west Hastings, visited the parents of each child who would be taking a bus for the first time this year.

This involved interviewing each set of parents in the barns, fields, kitchens and machine sheds where they were working.

"We met every dog on the 8th of Sidney," commented Mr. Cousins. "On one day, out of the 34 farms we visited, we were met at the gates by 23 dogs. But I took time to talk to each dog first before we went on to meet its master, and we weren't bitten once!"

In one Sidney township area Mr. Cousins pressed a young ster elated to begin kindergarten this fall into service as conducting officer. He was the only person available who knew the location of homes of pupils in his area ready to begin kindergarten this year.

Before he set out on his conducting trip with the board officials, the youngster insisted on wearing the tag, with name, school and route number, issued to each beginning pupil this year.

His mother will be glad to see school start today.

"I can't get that tag off him now for long enough to give him a bath," she confessed to Mr. Cousins.

Some school buses complete their routes shortly after 8 a.m. and plans have to be made for adequate supervision at the schools for those arriving early.

The co-operation of the county and township public works department is remarkable," said Mr. Bancroft. "They have graded turning spots for buses for us, arranged priorities in plowing roads and in leaving sand piles near hills in case our drivers get into trouble and have to press senior pupils into service to sand the incline."

The longest route in the county covers 53 miles. But many pupils must travel fairly long distances by feeder routes or private transportation to reach the main bus.

On the the Hill route for instance, one pupil is transported by his father for three miles on a snowmobile in winter to reach the highway and his school bus.

In all, the county board manages 260 bus routes, served by 225 vehicles of all types.

Mr. Bancroft's department is responsible for transporting pupils out of the county also. Deseronto secondary school students are sent to Napanee where the board has purchased education rights at the high school there. County pupils are also bused to four schools for retarded children in Campbellford, Brighton, Napanee and Tory Hill in Haliburton county.

Despite all the care and personal attention that has gone into planning bus routes this year, Mr. Bancroft's problems won't be over for another week.

"Every September we lose a few pupils," he said. "During the first week of school we can expect frantic calls from parents and principals as pupils get lost in the shuffle and have to be re - connected with their assigned routes."

Shoots Self in Chest By Accident

PICTON — A Bloomfield resident, Francis Stacey, 62, is in critical condition in Kingston General Hospital following an accidental shooting Monday morning.

Mr. Stacey had gotten out of his car in the driveway of his home and reached back in to get his rifle when it discharged into his chest. He was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and then was transferred to Kingston for treatment.

Off to School for the First Time

Wearing their name tags and shining morning faces, a group of kindergarten pupils line up after getting off their bus at King George School this morning. The pupils from Marsh Hill and Foxboro will be bused to Belleville to begin their school careers, under the watchful eye of their driver, whose duties end only when he sees them shepherded safely into their classroom.

Excavation Paves Way for Erection of Seven Storey Apartment Building

They are digging deep at the top of Bridge Street Hill for the foundations of a seven-storey, 82-unit apartment building to be erected by Bay of Quinte Towers Ltd. Excavation contractor Jack Leavitt of Bloomfield has taken out thousands of cubic yards of earth as well as huge tree roots in preparing for the foundation and is now down to bedrock. Pictures show bulldozer uprooting a tree root and float truck taking it away. Tarpaulins in background are to prevent stone dust from blowing on to adjacent lawns during rock drilling process. New apartment will offer underground parking. It will be the first building of its kind in Belleville and construction is being hurried to ease rental squeeze.

Drifting Start

A mirror calm bay and heavy mist marked the start of Saturday's Katie Gray race from Belleville to Picton. Part of the 17-yacht fleet drifts towards the starting line off Government Dock in the second annual running of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club event.

Katie Gray Winner

Varuna First Yacht in Picton

A Trenton yacht sailed home from Picton this weekend with the Katie Gray trophy aboard — emblematic of the winner in the second running of the annual Bay of Quinte Yacht Club sponsored Belleville-to-Picton race.

Grant Rathbun, owner skipper of the Corvette class sloop Varuna, carried two generations of nautical tradition in Quinte waters with him to his win.

His father, Capt. Jacob Rathbun, skippered the well-known steamer Varuna, which operated, daily between Trenton and Picton from 1885 to 1915.

Her namesake sailed the 25 miles Saturday from Government Dock in Belleville to Picton harbor in a corrected time of six hours and 18 minutes.

"The first Varuna covered the same distance in three hours and 45 minutes." Mr. Rathbun said as he accepted the Katie Gray Cup from BQYC Vice-commodore Richard Bird, at Prince Edward Yacht Club Saturday night.

He presented the Bay of Quinte club with an original sailing schedule of the old Varuna as a momento of the second running of the Katie Gray race.

Seventeen yachts entered the race, open to all boats sailing from Bay of Quinte based yacht clubs.

First over the finishing line was Varuna, which carried, in addition to Mr. Rathbun, a crew of William and Donald McDonald, Dr. James Rathbun and Dr. Arnis Freiberg.

She was followed by Temperaire of BQYC skippered by Freeman Burrows of Belleville. Last year's winner of the event, Serendipity, skippered by Dr. K. M. Douglas of Belleville, finished third.

The Katie Gray race was initiated last year to commemorate one of the first boats in the BQYC fleet. A trophy won by the Katie Gray in 1879, came to light two years ago at a county auction sale and was purchased by the club. The silver teapot, mounted on a new base, is presented annually to the winner of the race, but remains in the possession of BQYC.

Radiator Steam Burns Driver

The driver of a panel truck was severely scalded as he checked an overheated radiator on his vehicle on the Macdonald - Cartier Freeway north of Trenton Sunday night.

Robert Scott, 34, of Huntonville, suffered first and second degree burns to his chest and arm when sprayed by steam as he removed the radiator cap.

He was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital.

City Hall Is Entered

Belleville city police are investigating a weekend breakin at city hall, deputy chief Harold Reid said this morning.

He said the break in was reported yesterday leading police to believe the entry was made some time between Sunday night and yesterday morning.

Mr. Reid said thieves entered by cutting the screen out of a window enabling them to get into the welfare office in city hall.

The thieves forced a filing cabinet and a cashbox, but police do not know as yet what, if anything, is missing.

Churches Help Biafra

The Right Rev. Ralph Dean's gloomy predictions of the church's demise, as an institution if not as a mystical body, within a decade has its other side — that of an active, practical and influential body trying to bring relief to those in need.

Biafra is a case in point. Churches and religious organizations are deeply involved in getting aid to the starving people of this eastern region of Nigeria with which it is at war.

For example a delegation from Canairelief to Ottawa last week was headed by Dr. E. H. Johnson, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The Moderator pointed out moreover that foundings by the Joint Church Aid, the international relief consortium, showed that "many nations are interested in a peaceful settlement, but they are all waiting for someone else to take the initiative . . ." He felt Canada should be the country to give such a lead because it enjoyed good relations with both Nigeria and secessionist Biafra.

The situation in Biafra meanwhile seems to be getting progressively worse. CBC newscaster Stanley Burke, a member of the Canairelief delegation, was in Biafra recently and he learned that deaths from starvation number between 1,000 and 2,000 a day, most of them children.

Mr. Burke noted that aid from the Canadian public, as distinct from the federal government, compares unfavorably with that of other countries. Canadians have contributed about $467,000, since the relief appeals began. By comparison Denmark had raised $150,000 by public appeal in a month. The Netherlands $8 million in three months, and Germany a total of $23 million.

The Biafran situation may not have any great bearing on the international situation, but it does have much to do with human suffering. In Vietnam people at least seem to have enough to eat, not so in West Africa where the war has brought all semblance of social order to a standstill, and with it the terrible spectre of starvation.

Toward Reform

British Home Secretary James Callaghan's tough approach to the problems of Northern Ireland appear to be having some effect.

Emphasizing that reforms give equal rights to all sections of the population, Mr. Callaghans' mission is expected to result in the early recall of the Ulster Parliament.

Specifically, reforms are expected in local government with the one-man, one-vote principle being enacted by the end of the year.

The Home Secretary is also reported to have called for the appointment of a community relations minister, or ombudsman, to investigate complaints by the Roman Catholic minority who say they are victims of discrimination.

Meanwhile Attorney-General Basil Kelly, Q.C., who incidentally is a Catholic, has announced the release of 12 suspected subversives arrested under the Special Powers Act, which permits detention without trial. They were the last of 24 held in connection with the recent riots.

On his three-day visit Mr. Callaghan saw much evidence of gunfire, some of it from automatic weapons and said it was time such arms were brought under control. The controversial police force, the B Specials, are a case in point. The mainly Protestant force are under orders from the British army commander to turn in their arms while off duty. Initial response to the order was slow but it was reported later the men were willing to comply.

This is a significant first step toward restoring order in the province. With the political reforms already mentioned it offers some hope of a better future for the people of Northern Ireland.

Vietnam

It may seem like an example of sending coals to Newcastle, but there is an acute shortage of rice in South Vietnam and the United States is shipping 110,000 tons there. Rice is the country's staple food, as it is in Asia at large.

Meanwhile the war drags on. The Paris peace talks are nothing but a farce and the war itself is a war of attrition which neither side has much chance of winning. Some time back in history there was a 30 years war. Vietnam has gone on for about a decade. How much longer before the fighting ends?

Ottawa Offbeat

Austerity and 'Jobs for the Boys' Don't Go Together

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The operative word is "restraint."

And Prime Minister Trudeau says he is backing it up with such strong supporting words as cut - back," "hold - down," "phase - out" and other such bureaucratic phrases peculiar to the federal governments own tribal dialect.

It means they will be saving money like mad.

Or at least trying to.

Your money.

So, as the prime minister says, they will not have to raise taxes in the next budget — which they are committed to balance for the first time in 13 years — and hit you for even more money.

You have it then, on the prime ministers own word, they will be spending less money on a lot of things so as to be able to spend more on a few others — but always doing it with agonizing dollar-pinching care and only where absolutely and unavoidably necessary.

Sounds good, doesn't it?

And then what happens?

Even while the prime minister is making like the greatest economy-minded political leader to come down Ottawa's free-spending pike since Mackenzie King was wringing the government dollar for every last nickel's worth under the pressure of wartime emergency, some pretty odd announcements keep coming out.

One is the appointment of J. Watson MacNaught, through as chairman of the Dominion Coal Board, as "special adviser" to Deputy Energy Mines and Resources Minister C. M. Isbister.

At $22,000 a year.

Not a big salary as the Ottawa payroll merrily rolls along, but not a small one, either.

But it is an entirely new job.

And the well-founded suspicion is that it was created for Mr. MacNaught's comfort and convenience.

He is finished as Coal Board chairman.

The board itself is being dissolved.

And Watson MacNaught is 65, when, normally, any civil servant goes out to well-pensioned pasture.

But while he has been a provincial and federal servant for a good part of his working life, he by no means has been just "any" government employee.

What makes him different is that he is a former Liberal member of Parliament — 10 years in the commons, three of them in former Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet — and so, is "special."

In fact, "special" enough that like a dozen other former — and unemployed — Liberal members, a federal job must be provided for him.

The wildly ironical thing about it is that he got the job the very day the prime minister, in the name of nailing every nickel to the floor, was saying that 25,000 other government jobs had to go down the drain.

But perhaps the weird timing of the two announcements, coming in tantalizing tandem, is the government's idea of public relations.

The McNaught appointment maybe was supposed to be the clincher, the convincer that Prime Minister Trudeau was not kidding about holding down, cutting back and phasing out?

Hah!

Except for its terrible timing, this feather-bedding of a tired old politician might have been just a small gulp in the cups of the enormously complicated machine of the federal administration.

But it was not. For it has happened so often before as to be almost accepted practice.

Not just with the Trudeau government, but the Pearson, the Diefenbaker, the St. Laurent and the Mackenzie King regimes.

What made it different this time though, was that while the prime minister was saying one thing, his government was doing exactly the opposite.

Among the better jobs that have gone this past year to former — by way of defeat — Liberal parliamentarians:

Ex-Hamilton MP Joe Macaluso with a $24,000-a-year appointment as director of Chairman Jack Pickersgill's federal Transport Commission.

Ex-Nova Scotia MP John Stewart (only recently resigned) as Privy Council legislative adviser at $24,000.

Ex-BC MP Jimmy Byrne at $19,000 on the federal immigration appeal board.

And there are others — nine of them — with more, very likely, still to be given their secure, well-paid reward, austerity or no austerity.

Former Prime Minister Diefenbaker has added his own distinctive touch to the prime minister's solemn committal to "cut-back," "hold-down," and "phase-out."

The prime minister, grumped Dief, was spending $50,000 primping, manicuring and polishing the Harrington Lake summer weekend hideaway.

When the Diefenbakers occupied the same lakeside luxury "cottage" in the nearby Gatineau Hills, the idea, recalled Dief, was to "make do."

"We were so careful about spending the taxpayers' money on the place," he related, "my wife Olive even ran up her own curtains on the sewing machine."

Czechs an Enslaved People

Quebec L'Action

The actions of people in Czechoslovakia will enable world opinion to see more clearly than ever the true face of communism, but they will not, at least in the short run, bring them any relief. Quite the contrary. As soon as the situation is "regularized," as soon as the crowds have calmed down, either voluntarily or under force, we shall see new political purges, mass arrests, courtroom farces, condemnations, deportations, and even executions or mysterious disappearances. Punitive measures will rain down upon the heads of this enslaved people.

Whatever the course of events, the Western nations will not budge this year any more than they did last year. Some countries will formulate timid protests, discreet warnings of reprisals will be buried, and certain countries will express pious hopes, as Canada did last year, that the situation will not be allowed to spoil East-West relations, but that will be the limit of solidarity with a people who demand in vain the recognition of certain fundamental liberties.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the most remarkable feats of seamanship in history ended when Capt. J. C. Voss of Victoria arrived in England 65 years ago today—in 1904—after circumnavigating the world in an Indian dugout canoe. Voss took three years, three months and 12 days to cover 40,000 miles in the 38-foot craft for which he paid $75. It had been carved 50 years previously by a Nootka Indian using an axe and fire on the west coast of Vancouver Island. The canoe carried no auxiliary motor but sailed under three masts carrying 234 square feet of canvas. Voss died in 1922 in California.

Gun Menace in States

Regina Leader - Post

The United States National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, in a well-documented report to President Nixon on Firearms and Violence in American Life, has urged that the U.S. government confiscate, with compensation, virtually all of the 24 million handguns in the country, some 80 per cent of which are in private hands.

The chances are practically non-existent that Congress or the people will approve (at an estimated cost of $500 million) such an approach to the problem of crime, violence—a decree that only the law-abiding would obey. Some anti-gun spokesmen, in fact, have expressed alarm that the drastic recommendation may actually have harmed the campaign for stiffer gun laws.

Nevertheless, the Commission's findings ought to be required reading for those millions of Americans or Canadians who have owned, or contemplate arming, themselves and their homes against the real or imagined menace of crime.

In exceedingly few burglary and robbery cases, reports the commission, does a householder have any chance to use his gun to kill, injure or scare off an intruder.

In Detroit, for example, there were 18,000 home burglaries in 1967, but only 150,000 burglars were killed by householders in Detroit York where there are more than 20 burglaries per decade between 1958 and

Shades of De Gaulle in Budgetary Squeeze

France Set for More Austerity in Wake of Devaluation

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A newspaper cartoon showing Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France dressed as an undertaker and mournfully pointing at what the caption calls a new government computer reflects fiscal forebodings of Frenchmen as they head home for September's post holiday resumption of normal life.

The cartoon's "computer" is in fact a guillotine, symbolizing the way many austerity-minded French officials plar to follow the Aug. 8 devaluation of the franc with a tough budgetary squeeze, added to extra backing from the International Monetary Fund.

Gaullist President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas seem braced for rugged reaction to their belt-tightening programs, due to be announced in full early next month.

There has been grumbling in advance from trade unions and small businessmen.

With Frenchmen generally already wincing in the face of toughened controls on consumer credit, government popularity also must stand the test of mixed feelings about Pompidou's policies in the president's own Gaullist camp.

Prospects for the continuation of civil order, restored after last year's strikes and riots, depend on how the Pompidou administration fares in its attempts to control prices against the inflationary effects of the 12½-percent devaluation of the franc.

There is standing pressure for higher wages, as well as working-class opposition to any increase in the tax load on lower-paid Frenchmen.

But the alternative austerity approach of cooling cuts in government spending with a credit squeeze could give a critical boost to the chronic discontents of the small businessmen.

The mounting verbal din generated by conflicting lobby groups compounds the somewhat-confusing note produced by the publicity given this week to new anti-riot equipment being adopted by Paris police.

The possibility of subconstructions or other forced direct-action protest is believed to the radical left.

It also is freely discussed by the more extreme wing of the small-business camp.

There, a major target is controls on investment funds seen as a blow to modernization efforts, which in the long term their only chance of surviving the pulverizing flow of big commercial

Earlier this year, many exasperation with complex taxation procedures and the deal given them under being social-welfare arrangements produced violence in areas of France and business shutdowns across the country.

The non-Communist left contends that free-spending France needs a thorough dose of austerity.

But the leftists also want far-reaching reforms of the economic system, while the powerful communist camp calls devaluation a trick to grind down workers.

Meanwhile Pompidou has been voicing pointed praise of former president Charles de Gaulle in an apparent bid to rally all sections of the governing party to austerity.

And next month, the suave president will join Chaban-Delmas in a concerted campaign to persuade Frenchmen that the bitter medicine is worth taking.

CNIB Appeal Workers

Past chairman of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Maurice Stotesbury, discusses the upcoming United Appeal Campaign, to begin on Sept. 15, with United Appeal professional division chairman, Joe Demeza.

Chief Source

Blind Depend on United Appeal Fund

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

Last year more than 126,000 blind Canadians joined in saluting the organization which has been devoted to serving them for 50 years — the CNIB.

Everyone knows what CNIB stands for: the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. What many don't realize is the tremendous service this organization brings to the sightless in Canada.

Maurice Stotesbury, has been associated with the Belleville Branch of the CNIB for about 15 years.

As the past chairman, Mr. Stotesbury related several pertinent facts about the CNIB on a local and national scale.

"Here in our own area, Hastings County, there are 141 blind people, and 66 of these are in and around the city of Belleville."

Blind persons become eligible to use the CNIB services through their doctor, who sends a copy of their eye examination report to the CNIB.

Mr. Stotesbury described several of the services which are open to sightless individuals.

Most obvious are the training centres and the eye bank. Not so obvious are the special appliances for blind housewives who, because of their handicap, face very unique problems at home.

Another section of the CNIB is channelled towards the prevention of eye disease, particularly glaucoma. "National service, on a compulsion basis are also available," added Mr. Stotesbury," and these consist mainly of vocational training centres and adjustment centres for the newly blinded."

In addition, supportive service for the visually handicapped are also another feature in the CNIB's long list of aid. The CNIB also runs a job placement service, placing sightless in industry in larger centres.

"On the local level," Mr. Stotesbury explained, "we have a home teacher who visits the blind on a regular basis, to help them cope with any particular problem they may have."

"Working in conjunction with the home teacher is the field secretary, who visits individuals, but on an administrative basis. Both the home teacher and the field secretary work out of Kingston."

But the biggest problem, not only locally, but nationally, is getting enough money to keep providing these services.

That's where the United Appeal come in.

"We do receive grants from the provincial government and the city but this does not cover all the expenses we have."

"We depend very heavily on donations given by people in this community. Ninety per cent of our "income" is out of United Appeal funds."

People do not realize how much their contribution to the United Appeal means. So many organizations depend on donations to this fund," Mr. Stotesbury emphasized.

"If the CNIB does not receive adequate money from the United Appeal because it could not meet its goal, we must approach the province and then the federal government."

"What it amounts to is that the lack of local support means loss of services. The well eventually runs dry."

For the current year, United Appeal Funds for the CNIB have accounted for more than $13,700.

"We are looking forward to the United Appeal topping their goal again this year," said Mr. Stotesbury, "and I have a feeling they will."

Skeleton Found In Weslemkoon

MADOC — Provincial police today were searching 14-year-old records hoping to identify a male skeleton found during the weekend in Weslemkoon Lake, 40 miles northeast of here.

They are checking the likelihood that the discovery marks the scene of a 14-year-old tragedy in which a Frankford-area father and son drowned during a hunting trip.

Clayton Appleby, 59, and his son Gerald, 33, who lived on Sidney township's 5th concession, drowned when their boat swamped in the West Bay area of the big lake Nov. 17, 1955.

The younger Appleby was never found.

The skeleton was discovered by an American tourist skin-diving in the lake some time late Friday or early Saturday.

OPP and Belleville city police skin divers went into the area — bustling with holiday-weekend visitors — to check out the report Sunday.

Yesterday after a two-day search of the lake bed they found the skeleton and some clothing, including a pair of rubber boots.

Today, police officers say they intend to remove the skeleton while old police files on the 1955 double-drowning are being checked at OPP headquarters in Toronto.

A third man, Jack Nicol, of Toronto, was in the Appleby boat when it was swamped in rough weather. He clung to the overturned boat for two hours until he drifted ashore.

Inland he broke into the cottage of Belleville lawyer Ralph Graham and started a fire to warm himself. Exhausted, he fell asleep and awoke to find the building burning down.

Kitten Tied, Hanged

Talk about man's cruelty to animals.

An incident was reported in the Park-Dale district over the weekend in which a five month old kitten was deliberately hanged to a tree by persons who apparently watched the animal slowly strangle to death.

The incident was reported today by the kitten's owner, Mrs. J. McKenna Jr. of 123 Lemoine Street who said she believed children may have been responsible for the act.

The kitten was later found hanging by its neck to a tree limb with its four-feet tied together.

Mrs. McKenna said the grass under the tree was trampled as if whoever was responsible had lain in the grass and watched the kitten die.

Read Ties Series 2-2

Read has tied Shannonville at two games apiece in their championship playoff series, thanks to Carm Milligan.

Milligan's heavy hitting sparked Read to a pair of weekend victories — 19-8 Sunday in Read and 16-11 Monday in Shannonville.

Sunday Milligan's two - run eighth inning homer which provided Read with its winning margin, was just one of his three hits.

Monday Milligan exceeded Sunday's performance when he drove in seven runs with a pair of three-run homers and a brace of singles.

Pete Enright and Steve White collected four hits for Read in the weekend series, while teammate Harold Pascoe slammed a two-run homer and a pair of singles.

Clint Green and Lary Marshall paced Shannonville's attack. Green had a triple and four singles while Marshall had a home run, double and two singles in the pair of weekend games. Dave and Lary Lewis got three hits each for Shannonville while Doug Dafoe and Bill Barberstock rapped solo homers.

Frank Farell picked up the win for Read Sunday with relief help from Harold Pascoe in the ninth while Pascoe got the win Monday with relief assistance from Larry Coffey.

In the two games the Read hurlers gave up 26 hits, struck out 17 and fanned 15.

Two brother combinations shared the weekend round chores for the pennant winning Shannonville squad. Dave and Larry Lewis and Bill and Glen Barberstock surrendered 23 hits and 13 free passes while striking out 18 in the two weekend losses.

The best-four-out-of-seven final series resumes Wednesday night in Read at 6 p.m. The sixth game will be played Saturday in Shannonville at 4 p.m.

Hotel Manager Robbed of $650

KALADAR — Provincial police here today reported they are looking for three men after the manager of the Kaladar Hotel was drugged and robbed of $650.

James Andrews, 49, said three men checked into the hotel Sunday. Later he took them to his cottage for part of the day. He returned to the hotel later in the day.

He said he had "a couple of beers" and dozed off. When he awoke the money and men were gone.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD GRANT BRAMPTON

Brampton – Loney

Rev. A. Laurie Sutherland officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, on Saturday August 23, at 2 p.m., when Beverley Joan Loney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Loney of Belleville was united in marriage to Richard Grant Brampton, Toronto, son of Mr.and Mrs. Fred Brampton of Verdun, Quebec. Mr. Martin, the church organist presided and accompanied the soloist, Julian Ritchie of Scarborough.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of crepe peau de soie over taffeta with the bodice featuring a jewel neckline outlined with flowered appliques as well as the sleeves. A small bow accented the waist and a cathedral train extended from the shoulders. Her shoulder length French veiling was caught to a rose fabric headdress and she carried a sheaf of orange and yellow roses.

Miss Connie Loney, sister of the bride was maid of honor wearing a full length dress of aqua chiffon featuring ruffles at the neck and sleeves and accented at the empire waist with a dark satin band and bow at back. She wore a large picture hat with flowers at the crown, and carried a sheaf of yellow gladioli. The bridesmaids Miss Margo Rodgers and Miss Wanda Dickey were maid of honor. The little flower girl Miss Melanie Shepherd niece of the bridegroom wore a dress fashioned similarly to the other attendants but in a polka dot material with short sleeves. She carried a basket of yellow shasta daisies.

Kenneth Morgan was groomsman, while the ushers were Richard Millar and Jack Fletcher. Ring-bearer was Ricky Steel, cousin of the bride.

A reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a light aqua coat and dress ensemble with white and blue accessories and a corsage of pink tinted mums. The bridegroom's mother attired, wearing a pink dress and matching jacket, pink and white accessories and a corsage of white mums.

For the wedding trip to points east in Ontario and Quebec the bride donned a light green dress and coat ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of orange roses.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Brampton will reside in Toronto.

WEDDING

MORROW — MEHARG

Avondale United Church in Tillsonburg was the scene of the recent wedding of Carol Meharg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William George Meharg, of RR2, Glen Meyer, and Norman Morrow, son of Mrs. Lester Webb of RR2, Cloyne (Myers Cave) and the late Norman W. Morrow. Rev. Arthur Hencher officiated at the double-ring cereneony. Mrs. Ann Colebourne of Belleville was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length, white crepe gown with empire styling. A chapel length train fell from her shoulders. Her gown had a stand-up rolled collar and lily point sleeves and was trimmed with hand-appliqued peau de sange lace. A mantilla of French illusion embroidered with lace to match her dress, was held in place by a crown of white organza daisies, and flowed into a chapel train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and golden daisies.

Maid of honor was Sandra Gorman of Toronto. Bridesmaids were Madelon Meharg, only sister of the bride and Mrs. Ruth Cangney of London, Ontario, cousin of the bride. They were all dressed identically in floor - length, sleeveless gowns of aqua gold crystalette over satin with a lace train, empire styling and a scoop neckline.

They wore matching headpieces of gold crystalette and lace and carried white chrysanthemums and gold daisies.

Best man was Dennis Allard of Toronto, a cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Fred Perry of Georgetown, and Douglas Cordain, of Scarborough, a cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother received the guests in a street-length, three piece ensemble. The dress and hat were of figured sheer in tones of white, shrimp and aqua and the coat was of aqua peau de soie, with white accessories. She wore a corsage of sweetheart roses in shrimp tones. The bridegroom's mother wore a street-length robin's egg blue bouclé-knit suit with white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Calgary, Banff, Jasper and the west coast, the bride changed into a co-ordinated linen dress and coat ensemble in beige and brown shades with white accessories. She wore a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

Upon their return they will reside in Cloyne, Ont.

Junior Girls Enjoy Camp

There was lots of activity at Camp Hyanto, in the Lyndhurst district, for the second camp of the season for junior girls ranging in age from eight to 12 years.

One of the highlights of the camp was a circus, with costumes, acts, posters, decorations, and each cabin putting on their special acts.

The director for this camp was Mrs. David Mitchell, of Brockville; assistant director, Mrs. Graham Beebe, of Belleville; Miss Elaine Bryan, of Lyndhurst; chaplain, Rev. James Rilaberry, Cardinal; nurse, Mrs. R. Brewer of Trenton; waterfront director, Miss Sally Bleecker, of Marmora; handicraft, Miss Marion Sheppard, of Kingston.

Eight girls from different parts of the diocese were counsellors.

Family Reunions

KELLER CLAN

The annual Keller reunion was held recently at Riverside Park when a large number sat down to a bountiful dinner.

Following the meal a business meeting was called to order by the president, Herb Keller and a moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. John Wannamaker (Eva) and David Keller who, recently lost his life in Vietnam. The secretary-treasurer Sadie Keller read the minutes of last year's reunion.

An election of officers for the coming year was held and resulted as follows: president, Gordon Keller; vice-president, Bill Scott; secretary-treasurer, June Colton; adult committee, Faye Switzer and for the children's committee, Linda Keller.

It was also decided to hold next year's reunion at the same place, and following the adjournment of the meeting the children enjoyed a swim, after which a number of prizes were awarded.

Most Would Rather Be Reprimanded Than Pitied

By DORIS CLARK

It is suggested in "Canada's Mental Health," that most of us would rather be reprimanded as bad than pitied as mad. Psychiatrists can tell us about mentally unbalanced people who have committed trivial crimes, and then rejected the suggestion that they might be out of their minds. They would far rather be labelled as criminal.

It does seem that most people have more respect (if that is the word for it) for a person who violates a law than a person who is neurotic or definitely a mental case. Somehow it would appear that the person who is emotionally sick has lost control of things. We pity him.

In contrast, Dr. Henry A. Davidson suggests that the criminal is seen as someone who has made his own choice about his behavior. Apparently we can better respect the person who can make his own decisions, even if they are the wrong ones.

We don't stop to think that the criminal probably chose to go in the wrong direction because of wrong guidance in the home, wrong early impressions of what life is all about, and not enough love.

Surely this adds up to emotional sickness.

Dear Doris: I'm 18 and going with a guy 22 for two years. Now he says he loves me and wants to marry me but he wants to go out with another girl once more. I tried to tell him there might be another girl again after her, but he says he doesn't think so.

He usually has been faithful. I believe him. But do you think he doesn't want to go steady any more? I love him very much, and I don't want to let him go.

I know this girl and she knows we are about to get married. I don't want to lose him. What should I do? — Troubled

Dear Troubled: A man in love is through shopping around. Yours simply isn't sure.

Better let him loose for a while; and break loose yourself. Waiting around while he plays around isn't good sense. If he deigns to come back later, and you give him the courtesy of a date, he may be reader to pop the question again and show he means it.

Dear Doris: I should like include Canada in our project of opening up offices to find jobs for retired people. So many of your readers are writing to us!

I should mention that the name has changed to Retirement Jobs, Inc. Also, the does have been changed to a nominal sum of $5 per year, payable on joining, regardless of how many references are made for any one individual.

Opening up offices takes considerable planning and follow up. Please let your readers know we are interested, and to await developments here.

- C. L. Churchman

Dear Mr. Churchman: There is no doubt about the need for such a service. Any leadership you can give in this direction will be welcome. I have a pile of letters here to prove it.

Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Teen-agers Enjoy Wacky Cake

By MARY MOORE

My Jil-C group keeps popping up in this column because they make such good copy — and some are good cooks.

Doug presided as we planned a picnic and offered to make a cake. I said "What kind of a cake?"

Doug's answer: "I can make it up in about four seconds. That's as long as it takes and it just uses one pan.

"You throw it all into a pan and mix it up. Then you've got to dig three holes in it. Then you've got to put some vinegar and vanilla and cooking oil in the holes — one in each hole. Pour a cup of water on top, then you just sort of slop around in it and mix it up. Then put it in the oven.

"With the icing you just sort of mix it and dump it on the cake and spread it around."

Well Doug made Wacky Cake his way and brought it to the picnic and it was great.

Would you like to know the amounts so your teen-agers can "sort of slop it around!"

DOUG'S WACKY CAKE
(8 x 8" pan)

Sift into ungreased pan 8x8" 1½ cups flour, 3 tbsps. cocoa, 1 cup sugar, 1 tsp. baking soda, ½ tsp. salt. Level off and punch three holes in it.

Into one hole pour 1 tsp. vanilla; into second hole pour 1 tbsp. vinegar; into third hole pour 6 tbsps. melted margarine or cooking oil. Over all pour evenly 1 cup cold water. Mix well with a fork. Bake about 25 min. at 350 deg. Fahr.

ICING: Melt about 2 tbsps. margarine and ½ cube baking chocolate. Add 1¼ cups icing sugar and a little milk if necessary. Spread on cooled cake in pan.

Now give the Wacky Cake recipe to your eager young bakers and leave them alone to "slop around".

MERCHANDISE CHECK — Standing amid haphazard, but tasteful displays of hand-made dresses at Sans Souci in Halifax, part-owners of the boutique, Inora Kundsins (left) and Jennifer Oland, discuss one of their newest creations. The girls were college students who opened the shop as a money-making venture for the summer. Now they may stay in business full time.

Stores with a Difference

Boutiques Do Booming Business

HALIFAX (CP) — Boutiques, fast becoming a booming business here, operate with two simple ground rules.

They must be different—as original as anything can be in a mass-produced society.

And they must open and grow on an unstructured base, unhampered by preconceived notions of how a business should be run.

Once you have the floor space, it's do your own thing.

"Doing your thing" means different things to different people.

Four of the six Halifax boutiques now in operation specialize in women's clothes, but such combinations as leather goods and knick-knacks, hand-sewn dresses and antiques or way-out men's wear and posters can be found.

In most cases, owners admit that they model their shops around their own ideas of good taste. If customers like what the boutique has to offer, fine—but there is no hard sell in the small, intimate shops.

Advertising? That's left mostly to word of mouth or a chance spotting of a window display. A couple of owners confessed they would like to advertise more through the media, but lack the funds.

With six boutiques serving a metropolitan population of 250,000, competition seems to be no problem. In fact, with each boutique owner doing his or her own thing, each of the shops has become almost specialized, and owners talk with pride of what they feel they do best.

The Nite Leather Shop boasts: "If we don't have it, we'll make it." A glance at the dark, crowded shop indicates they have a great many of the odds and ends on which boutique buyers spend their money.

Three college girls, happily employed for the summer or perhaps longer, are proud of the clothes they make in their basement sewing room at Sans Souci.

Ada and Charlene de Louchery, the "mother" and daughter team at the boutique known simply as de Loucher-y's, are also proud of their hand made garments. And their prices are the lowest in town—competitive with even the off-the-rack department stores, they say.

Other boutiques here sell many factory-made lines, but here too the owners boast of "exclusive"—lines found only in their shops in Halifax.

The Matelot has an undisputed exclusive currently. It is the only boutique to handle men's clothing.

Boutiques featuring higher-priced merchandise have adopted the "you get what you pay for" philosophy. All feel their merchandise is superior to many mass-produced lines and that everyone can afford to buy here but . . .

Shoppers who patronize the shops and pay their prices — not out of line for most mid-die-income shoppers—seem to fall into no particular category. Each store has its "regulars" and they come from all walks of life—the college, business, and entertainment fields, and housewives.

The CBC has shopped in at least one boutique for costumes for Singalong Jubilee which is produced here.

The Rag Doll, a fashionable boutique with several exclusive lines for women, is making a direct play for a more specialized market when they open their proposed maternity wing this fall.

But if business is good, it was not always so. The early comers to the boutique scene here—those who opened their shops two years ago—say there has been a gradual, grudging acceptance of the up-to-date fashion boutique here. Even today, many regular customers are not Halifax natives, but have moved here from larger centres.

But in recent months, only one boutique has closed and four new shops have opened their doors. As shoppers slowly, steadily drift into their relaxing atmospheres, there may soon be more.

Ann Landers

Widow's Romance Turns Into Heartbreak

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I fell in love with a very attractive man whom I met at work. He has a charming personality, makes a wonderful appearance and gave me something to live for after my husband passed away, 17 months ago.

He told me his wife was in a mental hospital and comes home on weekends. He said he wanted to marry me but continued to get a divorce when his wife was well enough to sign the papers. He never mentioned children, but it turns out that he has two. It also turns out that his wife is not a patient in the mental hospital. She is a dietician there.

I feel terribly violated and almost passed out. When I told him what I knew he broke down and cried — said he had lied because he was afraid of losing me. I told him we were through and asked him not to call me again.

This morning he telephoned to say he had filed for divorce. I want to believe him but it's difficult after what I've been through. Where can I get the facts? Would this be a matter of record? Please advise me. — WEEPING WILLOW.

WEAR W.W.: You have the most important fact. The guy is a liar. Give him the deep six.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your ignorance is showing again. Recently you said a 14-year-old cocker spaniel is equivalent to a 98-year-old human. Obviously you arrived at this conclusion by multiplying the dog's age by seven. This is an antiquated method long since discarded by canine authorities.

The correct method is as follows: Figure 25 years for the first two years of the dog's life. Add seven to the third year. Then add two years for each remaining years. So you see, Ann, the cocker spaniel if he was a person would have been 54 years old, not 98. And that's pretty young to go. — I. GOTTCHA.

* * *

DEAR I: I don't know who invented the "new" hymen but I checked with three veterinarians and they said it's so new they've never heard of it. All three agreed that a 14-year-old cocker spaniel would be considered a very senior citizen in anybody's kennel — and much closer to a 98-year-old human than one 84, Bubela.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please settle an argument. Is it proper to get a letter back once you have dropped it in the mail box? A friend says no. I say if you speak politely to the postman who picks up the letters and takes them to the central post office, he will return your letter. Who is right? — LEE AND DEE.

DEAR L AND D: Once the letter is in the box the mailman cannot give it back, no matter how politely you speak. In order to retrieve a letter you must go to the post office and fill out Withdrawal Form 3855. You must state the approximate size of the envelope, the date and hour it was mailed, where you deposited it and why you want it back. You must also agree to pay for any expenses incurred in retrieving the letter. It's easier to put the letter in the drawer overnight, reread it the next day and then decide whether you want to mail it.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Girl: "Look how nice I painted the chair for my mom."

Mother: "You got paint all over the floor. Why can't you do something more quiet?"

If a child is tackling a new task, give her some simple instruction beforehand, rather than a scolding after the damage is done.

Mother: Spread out this plastic dropcloth before you start to paint, and please stir the paint in the basement workshop before you bring the can upstairs."

Keeps Cool

MTUBATUBA, South Africa (AP) — Eight-year-old Donald Chandler came across a group of hapgard, dusty army ants less cramped in a field near his home. He invited them to come to his house for a bath. Fifty six came and Donald's mother was furious. But she regained her composure, gathered the recruits together and sprayed them down with a garden hose.

A pair of young pacers — Canadian Killean and Early Lakes Pride — have made 1969 a rags-to-riches year for Earl Lakes of Elgin.

Saturday night the pair, who won just $97 between them last year, swept everything before them in the first annual Corby Distillery Stake for two-and-three-year-old trotters and pacers who had not won over $200 by January 1, 1969.

Canadian Killean and Early Lakes Pride which had won $2,706 between them in 24 starts this season, added $1,100 to their total by taking both heats and running one-two in the final of the Corby Distillery Stake.

Early Lakes Pride started the Lake combination of Elgin on the right foot by covering the mile in 2:14 to win the first heat of the Corby Stake.

Canadian Killean gave a sign of things to come in the second Corby Stake heat — the fourth race of the night's card sponsored by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club — by turning in a winning time of 2:13.4 without being pressed very hard.

Paul Oulette took Canadian Killean to the top at the start of the Corby Distillery Stake final — the seventh race of the night.

And that's all there was to it — Killean stayed in front all the way to beat out Early Lakes Pride in a two-horse race. The time was 2:12.2.

Al Vance brought Billy Amber home in third spot while Hawk came in fourth. Vance lodged a protest against Earl Lake and Early Lakes Pride but it was disallowed by the judges.

In addition to the $1,100 in purse money, Earl Lake won the Corby Distillery Stake Trophy presented by Corby sales representative Dick Simon and a blanket awarded by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

The closest race on Saturday's card came in the fifth heat when it took the photo finish camera to place Brust's Lightning first ahead of Doble Star and the King of Diamonds after all three finished in a virtual dead-heat.

The fastest time of the night — 2:11.1 — was turned in by Bee Jay Comet in the eighth race while the biggest payoff for a two dollar win ticket — $15.20 — was returned by

Canada's Junior Golf Champ Already Ponders Move South

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — Brawny Dale Tallon of Toronto, softspoken centreman and newly-crowned Canadian junior golf champion, will decide next June whether he will trade his hockey stick for a putter.

"I'm a free agent, so if I don't get picked up in the (National Hockey League) draft in June for the right money, I'll probably try for a golf scholarship in the States," said Tallon, who finished the 72-hole tournament Saturday at three-under-par 285 after a blistering 69 in the final round.

"I don't know what I'm going to do. I love hockey and golf, equally well."

Tallon, starting his final season with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, emerged out of fourth place with his second 69 of the championship to finish one stroke ahead of steady Guy Fabre of Asteneil, Que.

Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver, third-round leader and 1968 medallist, slipped into third place at 287 with a one-over 73 over the tough 6,315-yard Kelowna Golf and Country Club course.

David James Russell, of Medicine Hat, Alta., out front with Roxburgh after 54 holes, lived up to his prediction that he would "choke on the last day" and staggered to a 78, taking an eight on the monster 505-yard, par-five fourth hole that saw two 10s and a 12 during the tournament.

He dropped into a fifth-place tie with Alan Defoe of Vancouver at four-over 292, two shots behind Dave Mick of Victoria.

Tallon was in control of his game as well as his temper Saturday as he reeled off birdies on four of the first eight holes, sinking a curling 25-foot putt for a deuce on the par-three eighth.

"I just told myself: 'If I hit a bad shot to hell with it,'" he said. "I wanted to win so bad, I planned to shoot a 67 just to make sure.

"That birdie on one and the par on three really gave me confidence."

The muscular 18-year-old started the day two shots behind the leaders and I watched Roxburgh, his playing partner and the youngster he figured he had to beat, stumble to a two-over 38 on the front nine.

While Roxburgh and Russell faltered, Fabre was playing the same brand of consistent golf which made him a contender from the opening day.

He was one-under for the round and two-under for the tournament when he gambled and tried to reach the green with his second shot on the 554-yard, par-five 12th. The ball took one bounce and rolled into a manmade lake. It cost him a penalty stroke, and the championship.

Tallon birdied the 18th and Fabre needed an eagle three to force a playoff. He birdied instead for second.

Dies in Plane Crash

'The Rock' Took Many Tough Punches

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Rocky Marciano, the Brockton Blockbuster, was mourned today by the people of this city who idolized him.

Marciano, who left coal shoveling and ditch-digging in his hometown and went on to win the world heavyweight boxing championship, died Sunday night in a plane crash in an Iowa farmyard.

Marciano captured the title in 1952 with a 13th-round knockout of Jersey Joe Walcott and eventually retired undefeated in 1956.

He was killed when a light plane carrying him to his birthday celebration crashed in Newton, Iowa. His body was recovered here Monday, the day he would have been 46 years old.

His professional career started in Holyoke in 1947 with a three-round knockout over Lee Epperson and ended in New York eight years and 49 undefeated fights later with a ninth-round knockout over Archie Moore.

Known as a fighter who didn't know the art of boxing, he'd take as many punches as necessary to land one.

"I got lucky tonight because I only got nailed a couple of times," he once told a reporter after a fight in 1952. "But in tough fights, I have headaches for a week or two weeks. Sometimes I actually hear humming . . . and I know that can't be good for me."

Then he added: "But I used to have a sore back all the time from shoveling coke at the Brockton Back Gas Works. For this I get paid better."

"Inside the ring he was a lion, outside a lamb," was the way Walcott described Marciano.

Former champ Sonny Liston said Marciano "was one of the greatest champions there ever was," and deposed champion Cassius Clay told a reporter Marciano was "the only one that would have given me some trouble."

Although respected by those who fought him, Marciano's free-swinging, plodding style found little praise with the boxing experts.

"However," Marciano once remarked after his retirement, "20 years from now fight fans will look at my record and know I fought everybody around and never lost a fight. I might even end up a living legend."

A funeral mass will be celebrated at St. Coleman's Roman Catholic Church Thursday, and another mass will be celebrated Friday at St. Pius Church in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where Marciano made his home for the last several years.

Burial will be in Queen of Heaven Cemetery, Fort Lauderdale.

Survivors include his wife, Barbara; a daughter, Mary Ann, 18, and an infant son, Rocky Kevin, 17 months old.

Marciano's string of victories are without equal in the history of modern boxing—49 in a row, 43 by knockouts. He was beaten only once—as an amateur. In all his career he was knocked off his feet but twice.

When Marciano retired as champion in the spring of 1956. He had held the crown for 3½ years and defended it six times.

Deep inside him burned a fierce pride in the title. "What could be better than walking down any street in any city and knowing that you are the champion?" he once asked.

Comfortably fixed financially, he said he retired in order to be more time with his family. In the preceding four years he had spent a total of only five months with his wife, His visits to his Brockton, Mass., home were so infrequent that he had to be "introduced" to his daughter, Mary Anne, each time. She was 3½ when he decided to retire.

Always A Champion

At top, Jersey Joe Walcott is against the ropes after being hit by Rocky Marciano during heavyweight championship bout in Philadelphia in 1952. At bottom, blood flows freely from severe cut over Marciano's left eye during fight with Ezzard Charles in 1954. Marciano went on to win both fights. He was killed Sunday in a plane crash near Des Moines, Iowa.

Ticats Triumph

Three Inches Fatal To Upset Roughies

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats met Ottawa Rough Riders Monday in the game billed as the first major clash in the Eastern Football Conference. But when it was over there was no shattering victory, only a win built on a series of fourth-quarter blunders.

Both teams went into the game unbeaten and the Tiger-Cats ended with a 27-23 triumph before the largest crowd in the history of Hamilton's Civic Stadium—30,298.

The Ticats, off to a quick 10-point lead in the first quarter and a 15-7 advantage at half-time, appeared to wilt in the 32-degree heat. Early in the fourth quarter, the Riders went ahead for the first time in the game 18 on a touchdown by Ron Stewart.

But a matter of inches swung late around. On two smashes into the line, fullback Jim Mackins drove for nine yards, two feet and nine inches. Play was at the Ottawa 24. Russ Jackson, after watching the yardstick measurement, indicated the distance to the Ottawa bench.

Coach Frank Claire gave the go-for-it sign and Jackson called for Mackins again. He didn't make it, Hamilton took over and quarterback Joe Zuger drove in for the winning touchdown.

In Monday's only other Eastern game, Montreal Alouettes dropped a 17-8 halftime lead and played to a 24-24 tie with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The results left Hamilton first in the East with nine points on four victories and a tie. Ottawa and Toronto Argonauts have 4-1 records and Montreal has two ties in five games.

That crucial three inches in the Hamilton-Ottawa game culminated in Jackson's decision to gamble on a quick run from the huddle and a fast snap. It was ruined by a slow handoff to Mackins.

Jackson ran for two of the Ottawa touchdowns—13 yards on a broken play in the second quarter and six yards on a similar play in the third quarter. He completed 15 of 35 passes for 223 yards.

Stewart got the other Ottawa touchdown and Don Sutherin kicked three converts and a single.

Zuger scored Hamilton's first touchdown on what appeared to be a broken play—his receivers were covered. He also kicked a single.

Tommy Joe Coffey looked after everything else for the Ticats, except two safety touches conceded by Ottawa. He scored a touchdown, two field goals, two converts and a single to extend his Eastern Conference scoring lead.

Although Ottawa's gamble for a third down deep in its own territory may have cost the Rough Riders the lead, that folly was compounded by other events late in the game.

The first of these happened quickly. On the kickoff after Zuger's touchdown, Vic Washington fumbled the ball. That led to a wide field goal by Coffey that went for a single.

The Car Buyers Problem:

THE USED CAR PROBLEM

Jim Patterson

Without a successful used car operation, most new car dealerships would soon be out of business.

If we can go one step further, we would like to add this thought: the PRIMARY reason for the auto dealer's existence is to sell and service used cars for which the new car sales provide him with a continuous source.

If it were not that used cars are such a vital part of our automobile-industry economy, new cars could very possibly be sold in department stores or other non-service establishments and the customer left to dispose of his old car how he can.

The market filtered tell the story: each year more than two and a half times as many used cars are sold as compared to new. But despite a market that is more than twice as large as that for new cars, there is still a percentage of dealers who regularly have a used car problem.

Why? The reason lies in the fact that a used car is to a greater or lesser extent a worn vehicle. Even with reconditioning it will ultimately need far more service than a new car. But if impending major repairs are disguised or ignored in order to make a sale, the resulting customer dissatisfaction will turn around and destroy the dealer's reputation in the community.

Without an earned reputation for trust, any dealer will eventually have a used car problem.

Pro-stocked Nats Lose to Soviets

LENINGRAD (CP) — The Canadian national team lost its first game in a hockey tournament Monday night, bowing to a Russian club, the Wings of the Soviet Air Force, 4-1.

After a scoreless first period, the Russians grabbed a 3-1 second-period lead and added another pair in the third period.

The Nationals, with several pros in their ranks, had won their first three starts in the round-robin tournament and have one game left.

Jim McKenney scored Canada's only goal Monday night.

Eskies Could Kick Themselves

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos, who have lost games this year because of kicks that did not work, lost one Monday because of a kick that did work.

Calgary Stampeders turned a mental lapse on the part of Dick Dupuis into the points they needed in a 16-14 Western Football Conference victory over the luckless Eskimos.

In the West's other Monday game, Saskatchewan Roughriders strengthened their hold on first place with a 32-14 victory over last-place British Columbia Lions.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, meanwhile, played to a 24-24 tie with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference in an interlocking game in Montreal.

Dupuis became the goat of the Edmonton-Calgary game when he elected to kick a Calgary punt out of the Edmonton end zone in the last few seconds of the second quarter instead of running it out.

The kick went to Rudy Linterman of Calgary on the Edmonton 28-yard line and set the stage for a 29-yard field goal by Larry Robinson that proved to be the Stampeders' margin of victory.

Monday's results left Saskatchewan on top in the west with five wins and a tie for 10 points. Calgary is second with six points followed by Winnipeg with five, Edmonton two and B.C. without a win.

Robinson kicked three field goals, a convert and a single for the Stampeders. Dave Cranmer scored Calgary's only touchdown before a hometown crowd.

Dave Cutler kicked two field goals, a single and a convert for the Eskimos with Terry Swarn getting Edmonton's lone touchdown on a 33-yard pass.

Saskatchewan, who had lost their first game of the season last Wednesday 16-14 to Winnipeg, unveiled an umbrella-like pass defence, picking off five passes from Lions quarterbacks Paul Brothers and Hank Grenda.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster threw two touchdown passes before 18,470 homecoming fans to flanker Hugh Campbell and ran for one himself. George Reed got the other Roughrider touchdown and placekicking guard Jack Abendschan added four converts, a field goal and a single.

Ted Gerela led the B.C. scorers with two field goals, a single and a convert on the Lions' only touchdown, a six-yard run by Brothers.

In Calgary, the Stampeders and Eskimos treated a crowd of 23,618 to a tight defensive struggle, highlighted by an Edmonton goal-line stand that stopped the Calgary running attack three times inside the Eskime five-yard line.

The Calgary attendance was a record for the club.

In Regina, the Lions took a 14-7 lead after two quarters but the Roughriders stormed back with Lancaster igniting their offence with passing to Campbell, Allan Ford and Silas McKinnie.

Sets Fairgrounds Record

DuHamel Tops Dirt-trackers for Fifth Time

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

It's a long way from Kansas City to Belleville, but for Yvon DuHamel the trip was a fruitful one.

DuHamel made a clean sweep of the elimination heat, the semi - final and the final to capture the 500 c.c. expert class Canadian ½-mile Dirt Track Championship for the fifth time in the last six years Monday night at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

DuHamel, who has spent almost the entire 1969 season racing BSA and Yamaha motorcycles on the United States road racing and dirt track circuits, returned to Belleville for his first 1969 Canadian dirt track competition when he blew the motor in his BSA Thursday at Kansas City.

The previous Sunday DuHamel's motor blew up at Indianapolis, leaving him without a bike to ride at Kansas City after his misfortune there.

George Davis, the long-time mechanic for the Montreal native, provided Yvon with 500 c.c and 250 c.c. Jawas for Monday night's racing. And DuHamel was not without mechanical troubles at Belleville either. On the second leg of the 250 c.c. expert heat, DuHamel's engine seized, leaving him with only his 500 c.c. machine.

And that was all DuHamel needed to win the three 500 c.c. races, head Jean Marc Houde his first defeat of the season on the Belleville track and set a record in the process.

Houde played second fiddle to DuHamel — who has held the No. 1 plate (awarded annually to the driver who compiles the most points during the Canadian racing season), for the last four years — in all three 500 c.c. expert races.

DuHamel, not a Belleville track record with a clocking of four minutes and 53 seconds in the 10-lap final around the half - mile Fairgrounds track in the 500 c.c. expert final.

Jean Marc Houde, the 21-year-old performer from Quebec City, placed second in the 500 c.c. expert final while Jean Guy Ribeau's third place finish made it a 1-2-3 sweep for Jawa in the 500 c.c. expert class.

Dave Sohl didn't compete because the ankle which he broke in late June is bothering him again, but Moe Fraser piloted Dave's Triumph to fourth place in the 500 c.c. expert final. Veteran Don McHugh finished fifth on his Harley Davidson.

Jawas, the hand - built machines made in Czechoslovakia, captured first place in all three, 50 c.c. categories. Robert Laviolette of St. Jerome, Quebec captured the 350 c.c. senior title while Robert Richardson of Montreal took 500 c.c. junior honors.

Jean Michel Gleski of Marieville, Quebec drove his BSA to second place in the 500 c.c. senior competition just ahead of Bob Robinson of Spencerport, New York, on a Bultaco.

Bob Bultmer the 1969 Ontario titlist from Morrice, Michigan — placed second in the 200 c.c. Junior class ahead of third place Hopkes Rosehill of Brimton, Ontario.

Expert Maurice Fraser of Hamilton scored a runaway win with a Bultaco in the 250 c.c. combined expert - senior competition while Toronto's Dave McLean finished second, took 250 c.c. senior honors. Fraser proved to be the only expert to finish the final when the motor conked out on veteran Don McHugh's Harley Davidson.

Bob Swaddling of Kingsville, Ontario proved to be no babe in swaddling clothes when he unveiled the wraps to capture the 250 c.c. junior crown after winning his heat.

Gary Sherman, the race director of the Belleville Piston Pushers Club which sponsored the Labor Day competition, termed the crowd of 2,000 disappointing and said that the forecast for rain cut down on the expected attendance.

In all there were 60 entrants; 40 of them in the 250 c.c. and 500 c.c. junior classes.

Daughter's Reward

Gina DuHamel, the six-year-old daughter of Yvon DuHamel, sits on her father's back after his winning performance in the 500 c.c. expert class Monday night at the Belleville Fairgrounds in the 1969 Canadian ½-mile Dirt Track Motorcycle Championships sponsored by the Belleville Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club.

The Sulk sisters — Peggy 15 and Regina 18 — appeared fresh from their three and a half mile race on leaving the water after crossing the finish line together. They succeeded in keeping the trophy for winning in the family name for the fourth year in a row.

Juniors Have Time For Concentration

Richard Ellis Juniors have been forced to concentrate solely on the Commercial League playoffs.

Saturday night the Juniors fell 5-0 before Peterborough Hesting and the strong right arm of Dave Ruthowsky and were eliminated from the second round of the OASA playdowns.

Ruthowsky fanned 16 men Saturday night to run his two-game total to 36 after the defeat of Ellis - Ontario champion. Peterborough squad eliminated the Juniors in two straight games. "Scotty" Reid and Mark Sheridan shared the pitching chores for the Juniors.

Peterborough scored all their runs in the fourth and fifth innings against the short-handed Ellis squad. Coach Harold Reid had only himself and nine players on hand for the road game.

"This is the first year since 1967 that Belleville's had a Junior "A" club and I expect we'll be stronger next year with a year's experience under our belts," Coach Reid said.

Reid added that the Juniors would only lose three players — Mark Sheridan, Terry Wellesley and Wes May — next year and noted that his infield would return intact.

Tonight the Juniors attempt to eliminate the Point Ames Comentmen at the Alemite ball park in the fifth game of their Commercial Softball League semi - final series. The Juniors lead the series three-games-to-one.

Carol, Archery Mates Whipped by U.S. Team

Belleville's Carol Armstrong missed by just three points in her attempt to win a point for Canada in the second Ambassador Cup match play archery competition with the United States at Joliette, Que.

Carol recorded scores of 1,098, 1,094 and 1,117 in her three rounds of match play target competition against each member of the United States team.

The American women won seven of nine matches and the American men swept all nine matches to record their fourth straight Ambassador Cup win, this time by a score of 16-2.

Carol, who took a point each of her previous two Ambassador Cup competitions, totalled 3,309 points as compared to 3,410 by Dorothy Liistone of Vancouver, the 1969 world champion who placed second to Linda Myers if the U.S. led the women with 2,498 points.

One Kind of Luck for Joyces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

ORILLIA — Jim Whyte would give anything for a break.

The Belleville Joyces coach is the first to admit his Eastern Ontario Baseball Association senior champs needed more than good luck to avoid consequences like Monday's 16-3 loss at the hands of the Orillia Majors.

All the same, a look at the games to date in the best-of-five OBA semi-final series would appear to support Whyte's complaints of "lousy breaks."

If the Joyces did have horseshoes, it was in having the opening 20-2 loss in Orillia washed out when their two-last over a lack of Orillia player cards was upheld by the OBA.

But errors at crucial times haunted the Joyces in their first official loss of the series — an 8-2 setback at the Belleville Fairgrounds last Thursday.

Luck reached an all-time low yesterday in Orillia when the Joyces found themselves with only 10 players in uniform. It was just their luck that hurlers Dave Steakston and Bill Latchford and second baseman Pat Asselatine had to attend school teachers' meetings yesterday.

And the loss of .400 hitter Ralph Plane for the season — (suspended after an altercation in July's Peterborough tournament— and speedy outfielder Terry Wellesley (off to Tennessee on a football scholarship) — are not exactly cause for Joyce rejoicing.

It was unfortunate, too, that versatile Bill Barberstock had to jump his commitments with the Shannonville Braves in their tight South Hastings League final playoff series.

So what happens when sophomore Joe Hastings goes out to the mound to start yesterday's game?

Well, naturally, the way things are going, he cuts a finger torn up and a thumb bent back on his pitching hand by a sharp liner!!

Hastings endured the pain until the third, when he left the game on the short end of a 7-0 score on five Orillia hits and three walks.

Bob Hastings and reliever Garnie Adams found themselves the victims of a six-homer barrage that was not much to powerful bat-swinging as from the Majors' bad weapon—a senior softball field with shorter outfield measurements than Belleville's minor league Parkdale diamond.

Five of the six circuit blasts —including Pat Hennessy's seventh-inning grand-slammer —went over the snow fence in "deep" centre or right. "Deep" being 290 feet from home plate. Hennessy's clout was hit off his bat handle.

"We're not long ball hitters, so we couldn't take advantage of it," Whyte said. "And they never came close to a homer in Belleville last week."

The exception to the Joyce rule was Gary Goyer, who hit what he called a pop-up about 350 feet over the only senior baseball fence in the park in left field.

Goyer's shot was one of seven Joyce hits, including a pair of singles by Larry Mavety, doubles by John McKibbon and Jack Elliott and a safety by Moe Hunter for the 18th consecutive game.

Former Class A pro hurler Mike Bust — in addition to mowing down a dozen Joyce batters on the way — continued to be the best ninth-place hitter in the series, collecting a pair of Orillia — Joyce homers off the Joyces Garnie Adams.

Adams was touched for seven Orillia hits and walked three, striking out a pair. Carl Bonnick was the winners in one run on a hit batter, balk and single in the eighth off last Orillia relief.

A Belleville fan made it a perfect day for coach Whyte when he got a ratified ball in the Newtonville area wilderness via a "short cut."

The Joyces have a rubber rebound Wednesday night in the third game of the series at the Belleville Fairgrounds at 8.30 p.m.

Carmel Plays Like Champs

Carmel collected 40 hits on the weekend en route to sweeping their best-of-three Ontario Baseball Association quarter-final series from Thornhill in two straight games.

Saturday on their home diamond Carmel collected 17 hits to back up the three - hit pitching of Carm McCaffery and Dale Bamber, en route to an 18-4 win over Thornhill in the series opener.

The story was much the same Sunday in Thornhill as Dale Bamber threw a three-hitter and Carmel collected 23 hits to clinch the series with a 20-3 victory.

Numbers Important to Hockey School

There are several numbers persons interested in the new Belleville Hockey School should bear in mind.

Firstly - 320 - that's how many 7 - 13-year-olds can be accommodated in the Oct. 6-18 instructional program to teach city boys some hockey fundamentals.

The other two are dates — Friday, Sept. 5 (from 7-9 p.m.) and Saturday, Sept. 6 (from 9-noon).

Those are the times registrations for the school will be accepted at the Pinnacle St. Recreation centre on a first-come, first-served basis.

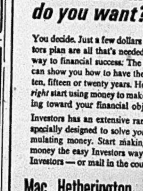
Swimming Sulks Go Down to Wire

TRENTON — The Sulk sisters of Batawa provided a dandy photo finish for the fourth annual Murray Canal swim here on Sunday.



Peggy, 15, and Regina, 18, resumed a family duel of the three and a half mile event sponsored by the Rotary Club of Trenton.

Regina won the race in 1966 and again in 1967. In 1967 yet another sister — Inis — was the winner.

Peggy, out in front ahead of the next closest entry, the sisters turned on the speed the last 300 yards to the finish line west of Highway 33 swing bridge. They agreed to together under a rope strung from the south bank to a pier in midstream and the judges called the contest a tie.

Two youngsters from Belleville, members of the Centennial Swimming Club, stroked the distance in the field of 37 starters. Bob Lajoie Liddle, 7, and Wayne Ukanek, 9, received awards for their accomplishments.

The Sulk sisters' time for the course was 58.07 minutes.

Twins' Perranoski Earns Pay Labor Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was Labor Day for most people Monday but it turned into just another day of labor for Ron Perranoski.

Perranoski made the long trip in from the bullpen for the 63rd time this season and got credit for a record-tying 20th save as Minnesota Twins widened their American League West lead with a 7-5 victory over Cleveland Indians.

The victory combined with Oakland Athletics' 6-2 loss at Boston gave Minnesota 5½ game spread in the West as the pennant races swing into their final month.

In other American League games Monday, Baltimore Orioles bombed Chicago White Sox 8-0, New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Seattle Pilots, winning 6-1 before losing 5-1 in 13 innings, Washington Senators divided a pair with California Angels, winning 4-0 before losing 8-7, and Detroit Tigers nipped Kansas City Athletics 5-4 in 10 innings before losing 3-2.

Sunday, Minnesota beat Boston 6-2, Chicago edged Cleveland 7-6, New York downed Kansas City 5-3, Washington clobbered Oakland 8-3, Detroit defeated Seattle 7-2 and Baltimore topped California 4-3.

Perranoski allowed just one hit in the final 2 1-3 innings to nail down the victory for the Twins after Cleveland had rallied from an early 7-1 deficit.

The veteran right-hander is just three short of the Minnesota club record for appearances and seems certain to top his personal high of 72 set in 1964 when he was with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Perranoski's 26 saves tied the AL record set by Baltimore's Stu Miller in 1963 and matched by Jack Aker with Kansas City in 1968. When Miller and Aker did it, a reliever had to face the tying run to qualify for a save. Now, he merely has to finish the game to get one.

In four of Saturday's five games, the winning margin was a single run. Chicago edged Atlanta 5-4, Cincinnati beat St. Louis 4-3, New York defeated San Francisco 3-2, Houston won 2-1 over Pittsburgh and Los Angeles blanked Philadelphia 2-0.

Davis' 29-game Streak Helps Keep Dodgers Close

By MIKE BRYSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

A September rainstorm and a June plane ride are teaming up to put a dent in Cincinnati Reds' hopes in the dizzy National League Western Division title chase.

The rainstorm washed out the Reds' scheduled game with Chicago Cubs after a 90-minute wait Monday night.

That postponement, coupled with San Francisco Giants' 12-2 rout of Montreal Expos earlier in the day, enabled the Giants to reclaim the place just .002 percentage points ahead of the Reds.

And, that mid-June flight has the Reds in danger of doing a little more slipping tonight.

Last June 15, Chicago was leading Cincinnati 5-4 after seven innings of the second game of a doubleheader, when the game was suspended to permit the Reds to catch a plane to San Francisco, where they were scheduled to play the next afternoon.

That game will be resumed from the point of interruption—with the Cubs holding that 5-4 lead tonight before the regularly scheduled match with the Eastern Division leaders.

Meanwhile, Willie Davis extended his hitting streak to 29 games in helping Los Angeles Dodgers to a 10-4 success over New York Mets that kept the Dodgers just .003 percentage points back of the Giants. The loss dropped the Mets 4½ games back of the Cubs in the east.

Davis' sizzling single to centre in the second inning Monday enabled him to tie Zack Wheat's all-time Dodger record, biting streak and put the veteran outfielder just eight games shy of the modern league record set by Tommy Holmes of the old Boston Braves in 1945.

Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees holds the major league record—56 games—and there are enough games remaining on the Dodger schedule for Davis to conceivably match that lofty mark.

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Olympic speedster Jimmy Hines, paid $70,000 by Miami Dolphins to switch to pro football, was cut Monday by the American Football League club. The former Texas Southern track star was among four players put on waivers by coach George Wilson as the Dolphins cut their squad to 44. Hines, who turns 23 on Sept. 10, shattered the world 100-metre record in the Olympic Games at Mexico with a 9.9 clocking.

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Team-mates Bruce McLaren and Denis Hulme continued their domination of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series Sunday, the two New Zealanders finishing one-two respectively as the second half of the 10-race series got under way. The two drivers have each won three races in the $1,000,000 series so far, McLaren edging Hulme Sunday by 1:100 of a second. A crowd of 34,237 watched the two men, driving identical McLaren Mark 8 racers, vie for the lead over the 50-lap, 200-mile distance. McLaren's average speed was 107.49 miles an hour.

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — It's Minto Cup time again and Oshawa Green Gaels are in a familiar spot. The Gaels, winner of the Cup and the Canadian junior lacrosse championship, for the last six years, started the ball rolling again Monday night with a victory in the first game of the 1969 junior finals. The Gaels outran, outplayed and outhit South Vancouver Legionnaires club 19-10 to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven competition. All games will be played in Oshawa with the next one scheduled tonight.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Northwood Hoss, a three-year-old pacing colt owned by the Northwood Stables of Pembroke, Ont., fell to the track and died during the second race at Garden City Raceway Monday night. The colt was in second-last position nearing the three-quarter mark when he suddenly broke stride, veered to the middle of the track and fell. Driver Ron Waples escaped injury when he jumped clear seconds before the horse went down.

Where Are All The Soldiers Gone?

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Rifles crack and the drums roll for the last time today for four New Hampshire soldiers of French-Canadian descent who were killed in Vietnam last week when their truck struck a land mine.

But for the fifth victim buried Monday from St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Church there were no rifles, no muffled drums. Just a trio of folk singers asking: "Where have all the soldiers gone?" Answering: "Gone to graveyards every one. When will they ever learn?"

The mass at St. Catharine's was for Army Specialist Richard E. Genest, 24, of Manchester.

His pretty wife, Brenda, 20, said: "I am against war. Dick was against it. And the funeral was a protest against it."

Orangeville:

Youths 'Stoned on Everything' at Pop Festival

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Four girls and a nude boy were found in a tent Saturday night when Toronto psychologist Maurice Baker answered a call for help at an encampment in a field above the Rockhill Park pop festival.

"My God, they're stoned on everything and anything up there," he said after looking around at some of the other tents.

The five in the tent were drugged and agitated. He divided three mosquito tablets among them.

"I told them they were powerful and would put them to sleep in five minutes. I really laid it on strong. . . . They all went to sleep."

Mr. Baker was working in the area with volunteer doctors and psychologists from Toronto's Mental Health Centre and the Owen Sound-Ontario Hospital.

A tent they set up to help those reeling under the drugs soon became overcrowded with weeping girls and dazed and mumbling boys weaving up the dirt road, some supported or carried by friends.

Behind them, down by a swimming pond near this town 40 miles northwest of Toronto, rock bands played at full amplifier and the light from bonfires flickered over the faces of more than 4,000 young people jammed up against the stages.

The volunteer workers said they found youngsters victims of LSD, amphetamines, opium, hashish and other drugs. In one tent a wasted boy clutched Ann Soace of the Canadian Mental Health Association, telling her of his nerves of being stabbed. No one was sure what drugs he had taken.

An ambulance ran a shuttle service to the nearest hospital, 17 miles south in Orangeville.

Among injuries treated were a broken ankle, a broken leg, a broken back, a severed artery, someone choking from asthma and five cuts.

Isle of Wight:

Couple Make Love in Public After Dylan Sings

RYE, Isle of Wight (Reuters) — A 19-year-old naked girl from "nowhere" and a naked youth made love in public Sunday night after American folk singer Bob Dylan sent 200,000 fans wild with delight in his first mass concert in four years.

Acclaimed by 200 persons, who screamed "Beautiful" and "Freaky baby," the couple embraced and made love in a sea of foam pumped by a machine in an open air arena.

Some of the hippy-garbed fans were shocked but witnesses said there was no move to stop the public sex act. Other fully-clothed fans frolicked in the foam but were not so daring.

The happening came soon after Dylan, a semi-recluse in recent years, went on stage on the third night of a giant pop, folk and rock festival, on a hillside on this normally quiet vacation island off England's south coast.

Interviewed by reporters, the girl said only that her name was Vivian, she was 19 and came from nowhere.

A naked teen-age girl, daubed in paint, leapt from the audience Saturday and danced for 10 minutes in the press enclosure before security guards took her away.

Impatient for Dylan's appearance after two days of electric sounds from other rock groups, fans shouted, cheered and whistled as their idol walked onto the open-air stage.

Dressed in an all-white outfit —suit, shirt, shoes and tie—Dylan opened with She Belongs to Me an old favorite of the fans clustered around the festival arena.

Dylan's appearance climaxed one of Europe's biggest pop and folk extravaganzas as a fresh influx of fans from Europe and North America arrived Sunday night from the English mainland.

Local authorities sent out calls for doctors and stretcher-bearers to carry away youths and girls fainting in the crush to catch a glimpse of their hero.

Meanwhile, taxi drivers worked around the clock and special buses ran night and day to ferry thousands of pop pilgrims to and from the festival site.

'Pot' Supplies Have Dried Up

Associated Press Writer

The burning of marijuana fields in Mexico and tighter controls at the border have dried up supplies of "pot" in several major cities around the United States and Canada, a survey of official and underground sources showed Monday.

In New York, "potheads" were growing edge illegal plant on their fire escapes. And in Los Angeles, several entrepreneurs have been advertising an artificial pot—ingredients unknown—they guaranteed would produce "a very potent legal high."

Police in Toronto said they have picked up loads of hay, weeds and ordinary lawn grass meant to be sold as marijuana.

Edward Caas, chief of the federal bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs office in Boston, said dealers there were selling oregeno, alfalfa "and anything that looks like marijuana" just to keep their businesses going.

A survey of pot smokers, dealers and police in Toronto, New York, Dallas, San Francisco, Boston, Atlanta, Los Angeles, Miami, San Diego and Chicago disclosed that prices have gone up as supplies of good marijuana dwindled.

A 21-year-old dealer in New York said she used to buy a full pound of "grass" for $140. Now she pays $250 for a "13-ounce pound."

California users reported that the price of a "lid," or one ounce, has gone up to $35 from $10, and most kids now are only one-half to three-fourths of an ounce.

The shortage seemed to be worst on the east and west coasts.

Lawyers Want More Working on Constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — A resolution urging the federal government to enlarge the staff of the federal-provincial constitutional secretariat will be presented later this week at the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association here.

Professor Gerald Morriss of the University of Toronto said Monday Ottawa has "little more than a corporal's guard" to handle matters of "tremendous responsibility."

A draft resolution to be presented Friday says both Ottawa and the provinces should put more money into staffing the secretariat.

The resolution, prepared by an association committee, also urges that governments make public wherever possible studies and reports prepared on constitutional issues to stimulate "informed public discussion."

About 850 lawyers of the association's membership of more than 12,000 are registered for the week-long meeting, which opened Monday.

The meeting began with a proposal by outgoing president J. J. Saucier of Calgary that the 29 or more lawyers groups in Canada be merged into the Canadian Bar Association and its provincial governing bodies. He said this would solve its financial problems where fee increases—a proposal before the association would raise annual fees to $45 from $25—will not.

The highlight was the panel discussion on the constitution. It was mainly low key except for a sharp spat between Louis Sabourin, one of the panelists, and Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher of Regina.

Dr. Sabourin, director of the Institute of International Co-operation at the University of Ottawa, did work for the royal commission on biculturalism and bilingualism.

With him on the panel were Dr. Alex J. Corry, former principal of Queen's University and now visiting professor at Carleton in Ottawa; and Gerald V. LaForest, dean of law at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. Chairman was Maxwell Cohen, former dean of law at McGill University, Montreal.

Dr. Sabourin stirred sparks when he asked whether anyone in 1969 could dispute Quebec's claim that it should have some jurisdiction in foreign affairs, immigration and broadcasting.

"I can," interjected Dr. Shumiatcher from the floor. He said that division of foreign affairs would be the "height of parochialism."

The angered Dr. Sabourin said remarks about parochialism had no place in a discussion based on mutual respect.

"You aren't capable of dialogue with tolerance," Dr. Sabourin said.

Dr. Cohen said the word parochialism can't be used to describe the aspirations of a deep-rooted people. Its use had been unfortunate.

A Toronto lawyer, in another comment on Dr. Sabourin's remarks, said that if Quebec policy on English students in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard was any indication of how it would treat immigrants, "God save Canada."

Dean LaForest said federal spending power shouldn't be reduced by constitutional change,

No Trace Found of Plane

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Searchers Monday still had found no sign of a light aircraft with three Toronto persons aboard which has been missing since Friday.

W. Lorne Grey, his wife and four-year-old son took off from here Friday morning bound for a Labor Day weekend holiday in Toronto. They had planned to make three stops along the north shore of Lake Superior.

Two aircraft from the search-and-rescue division of the Canadian Forces base at Trenton, Ont., joined the search.

Mr. Grey, a vice-president of the St. Lawrence Starch Co. Ltd. in Port Credit, Ont., and a licensed pilot for about 10 years, was flying a four-equipped, single-engine airplane.

Tanker Testing Arctic Passage Will Enter First Ice Today

IN DAVIS STRAIT (CP) — A $40,000,000 gamble to prove super oil tankers can use the Northwest Passage on a year-round basis starts in earnest today as the S.S. Manhattan prepares to enter its first ice pack between Baffin Island and Greenland.

The American ship was accompanied by the Canadian Coast Guard vessel John A. Macdonald, travelling three miles off her port bow to warn of icebergs.

A heavy fog settled over the strait Monday, and the Manhattan decided not to enter the ice pack until early today.

Stanley Haas, project manager for the Humble Oil Ltd., expedition into the Arctic waters, said the plan was for the 115,000,000 deadweight-ton ship to enter the Baffin ice pack at about five knots then gradually increase speed.

"We are anxious to get into the ice pack and that sort of situation," Haas said at a news conference held after he talked ice strategy aboard the Macdonald with skipper F. M. Fournier and Capt. Thomas Pullen, the official Canadian government representative aboard the Manhattan.

Haas said the Manhattan would stay with the ice pack for a few days in order to give some warm-blooded Texans their baptism of fire.

The experience would be of great value when the Manhattan crew has to deal with more dangerous polar ice known to be awaiting them past Resolute Bay, he said.

Haas said some of the Manhattan crew served aboard the Macdonald last year to get training in the ice. For that reason, the Manhattan's crew had particularly welcomed the sight of the Macdonald when the two ships held their rendezvous before midnight Sunday.

Haas said apart from the "Here, too, we must at last fill in the old cliches so firmly that no one will be able to open them up again," Heinemann said.

The idea for the broadcast came from Heinemann himself, who resigned from the cabinet of the late Konrad Adenauer after protesting West Germany's post-war rearmament.

three-week delay in starting the voyage, all had gone smoothly since the ship left Philadelphia.

If the voyage proved the success he thought it would, a fleet of six tankers—each twice the size of the Manhattan—would be in operation in the passage early in 1973, bringing oil from the north slope of Alaska to east coast United States markets.

He said Manhattan probably will return to the Arctic early next year for further tests.

It was not his company's plan to use Herschel Island in the Canadian western Arctic as a base for its operations, Haas said.

Poles Mark 30th Anniversary of War

WARSAW (Reuters) — Wailing sirens Monday helped Poles recall the Nazi Panzer attack on their country which started the Second World War exactly 30 years before.

When sirens sounded at noon, cars and pedestrians halted, and people stood in factories, on balconies and at windows in a hushed, two-minute tribute to 6,000,000 Poles who died in the six-year conflict.

Thousands gathered at a mass open air meeting in the capital's market square in the Old Town, attended by Communist leaders and visiting Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda.

In Bonn, West German President Gustav Heinemann held out a conciliatory hand to Poland.

The new president, who took office July 1, demonstrated a personal pacifism in an unprecedented broadcast to the country on an anniversary date ignored by his predecessors. He said reconciliation similar to that achieved with France—Germany's traditional enemy—still had to be forged with the Federal Republic's eastern neighbors, and particularly Poland.

Ontario Official Will Play A Role In Toronto Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Eberlee, Ontario deputy labor minister, said Sunday he will intervene in an inter-union dispute which has halted concrete construction in Metropolitan Toronto.

He said he intends to invite leaders of the opposing union factions to meet him today. A possible solution could lie in establishing a working relationship between 2,200 workers in the concrete forming industry and the traditional craft unions.

The Toronto Building Trades Council wants jurisdiction over the concrete formers shared by the carpenters', hoisting engineers', ironworkers' and laborers' unions.

Bruno Zanini, head of the independent Canadian Concrete Forming Workers Union, has said his union is willing to cooperate with the council so long as his group can retain its identity. At a union meeting Sunday, Mr. Zanini was re-elected president.

In an interview he said his men insist they continue as a single bargaining unit instead of being divided along traditional craft lines.

Meanwhile, eight ready-mix concrete suppliers say they will seek prosecution against Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters for what they term an illegal strike.

Teamster union cement drivers have refused to cross picket lines set up at construction sites by the Building Trades Council.

Born Without Face, Child Now Has One

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Deborah Fox, born 13½ years ago virtually without a face, goes to school today for the first time in her life.

It took 37 operations and help from a lot of people to get her there.

Debbie said she was "very happy" to be in a class with other children at last.

Before today, Debbie's education consisted of taking part in classes by telephone hookup, bolstered by three hours of private tutoring each week at her farm home north of here.

Now she's an eighth-grader in a special education class at White Oak school.

Debbie had her 37th—and most extensive—operation last June at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. It was carried out by six physicians in 13½ hours.

With brain, eye and plastic surgery, the doctors literally changed the configuration of Debbie's skullbones.

They moved her eyes from the sides to the centre of her face and started rebuilding her nose.

Further surgery is planned on her nose and mouth after test this fall at Baltimore. Her appearance is still not normal.

In addition to her face, one of Debbie's hands and one of her legs is deformed.

Edward L. Fitch, an assistant superintendent in the country education department, said almost all the operations have been paid for by charitable organizations or governmental agencies.

Are You Worried About High Mortgage Rates?

ED McKINNEY
J. E. McKinney Realty Ltd.

Well, join the club.

No rational person is going to say they're low. But — and this is a very important "but" — there is relative to the cost of borrowing necessary money by virtually every other means they are still a very real bargain.

First of all, there is the actual home mortgage rate of interest, which is usually at least three per cent below most consumer loans which must be repaid over a much shorter time.

Furthermore, money borrowed to purchase a home is invested in an object of worth that CONTINUES TO GROW IN WORTH. Car loan interest rates, for instance, may well be twice as high while the value of the vehicle starts with each monthly payment.

Yet many people think nothing of taking on an automobile finance contract at high rates — perhaps because the amount and duration is relatively less — while they hesitate at a large mortgage.

But the size and long terms of a home mortgage embody its real advantages: A home mortgage can often be refinanced if interest rates go down, but otherwise, our inflationary trend seems to assure that you will be making your payments in money worth at least four percent less per year, since that is the rate at which the value of our currency has annually dropped in recent years.

Do Want Ads Work?
Do Girls Like Diamonds?

The answer is a sparkling, and out "yes" to both questions!

Young girls have been ecstatic when they discover the first engagement ring found its way to a maiden's third finger, left hand.

And Want Ads have been working for years, producing results for people of all ages, and in all kinds of life's activities.

But diamonds have been recognized as a precious gem.

If you have never used a Want Ad, you have a real thrill awaiting you.

You can place a fast-acting Want Ad for a very small investment just by dialing 962-9171. The Intelligencer and ask for Classified Ads.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LAND FOR TAXES
CITY OF BELLEVILLE
TO WIT:

By virtue of a warrant issued by the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville, bearing date the 2nd day of July, 1969, and the seal of the said Corporation hereto affixed, I do hereby offer for sale at public auction the several parcels of land in the City of Belleville which will be held in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Belleville, Ontario, on Monday, the 13th day of October, 1969, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon for the purpose of the said day of November, 1969, unless the taxes in arrears and costs are sooner paid.

Notice is hereby further given that the said lands will be offered for sale en masse, shall be held on Friday the 14th day of November, 1969, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, whereat the Corporation of the City of Belleville or any person on their behalf may bid for the said lands.

Notice is hereby given that the said list of lands for sale for arrears of taxes was published on the Corporation Bulletin Board on the 1st August, 1969, and that copies of the said list may be obtained at my office.

Dated at the City of Belleville, Ontario, this 1st day of August, 1969.

John J. Graham,
Treasurer.

Newcomer Becomes Familiar Sight

By CECIL S. PAUL

Racing fans in the Quinte area were treated to a double - header last weekend at Riverview Speedway in Trenton. Races were held on Saturday night as usual, and again on Monday afternoon.

John Jarvis of Shortcut Lake, is a newcomer to the Speedway but by now he is a familiar sight in his six cylinder car number 2.

Last Saturday night, John made it three in a ball, as he won his six cylinder qualifying, the six cylinder Feature, and came through for the checkered flag in the Super Feature, winning over Doug Davis in a Ball, car number 75, Jim Woof.

Monday afternoon racing got underway at 2.00 p.m. Despite the heat, the faithful Riverview fans turned out to watch their favorites run.

John Jarvis in car 2 took his six cylinder qualifying race, winning over the other two cars.

The six cylinder Feature, a 20 lap contest, had 14 cars in the line - up. It was John Jarvis of Newcastle, in car number 7, taking the lead at the starter's flag.

The Super Feature was John Jarvis again taking an early lead. He lost it once to Wayne Alore in car 111, it looked like Alore's big eight was away, but John came by him on the stretch, and never looked back.

This win gave John five checkered flags out of five races, an excellent achievement for a small six cylinder car, considering the fact that two of these wins were against the bigger eights.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS

1st Race — 8 cylinder qualifying — 10 laps: 1st - 111, Ron Herrington; 2nd - 9, Paul Kirk; 3rd - 97, Ron Gurney.

Irwin Walks Away With Lion's Share

By BOB BOUCHER

Port Hope's Carm Irwin did his thing Sunday afternoon at Brighton Speedway and walked away with the lion's share of the loot. Smith' Carm won his qualifying race and the six cylinder feature and the Super Feature, all by a wide margin. Included in his day for Irwin in his Flathead Ford 202 now he got into the lead as all of those races.

Frank Day of Port Hope and Tremont's Ron Yarrow did battle for 16 laps of the 20 lap first race. Day took the race and Yarrow took second spot when he spun out on the very last turn however he took a second to Ron Abbott as Campbells Superstox 179 was a later heat. Yarrow is one of the fine drivers that you seldom hear of continually taking seconds and thirds. One of these days he'll hit it big.

Speaking of drivers who continually take seconds and thirds, the winner of the feature for eights is a prime example. Unassuming Doug McMurray driving LBJ (Little Brown Jug) is the second top point man around. He's 14 drivers and his win in that feature was only his second checkered flag of the season. Good show Doug.

The Imperial - Hell Drivers from Picton returned with no hand next week as an added attraction. Regular racing will get underway at 1 p.m.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Doctors Can't Show Worry But Their Hearts Not Hard

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Do doctors get hard-hearted after a few years? — Mr. M.

Comment.: I believe that most physicians, whate v er their personalities, outwardly are like anyone else, acutely sensitive to the suffering of others.

I know of no doctor who has thrown more light on this often-asked question than the venerated Dr. William Osler who wrote in equanimities in 1899: "Imperturbability means coolness and presence of mind under all circumstances, calmness amid storm, clearness of judgment in moments of great peril, immobility, impassiveness, or, to use an old and expressive word, phlegm.

"It is the quality which is most appreciated by the laity though often misunderstood by them; and the physician who has the misfortune to be without it, who betrays indecision and worry and who shows that he is flustered and flurried in ordinary emergencies, loses rapidly the confidence of his patients. . . .

"From its very nature his precious quality (imperturbability) is liable to be misinterpreted, and the general accusation of hardness, so often brought against the physician, has here its foundation . . .

By my own experience I have found, Mr. M., that the daily battering upon his own emotions produced by sharing the miseries of his patients, over a period of many years, softens rather than hardens the doctor.

How the doctor acts, or looks, is not a true mirror-image of his inner feelings. I believe that the outer cold facade conceals deep feelings of pity for the sick.

For Mrs. R.: There is no reason why a healthy 2-year-old can't have an inter-meal snack. I can see why he'd scream, being left out of it while watching the beatific expressions of contentment on his brothers and sisters as they enjoy the ice cream.

* * *

For Mrs. N.: A woman of 70 with diagnosis of diabetes can be operated on. It is only dangerous when her diabetes is uncontrolled. With proper preparation (diet and insulin) she should be able to withstand surgery of all sorts any other patient her age.

* * *

For Mrs. V.: Not all children under 2 to 3 years of age overeat because they are sore and unhappy. Some are just born with tremendous appetites and keep on that way through life. It is such children who grow into adulthood with the continuing problem of obesity, if possible, the time to break the overeating habits is when they are young. Not easy.

For Mr. H.: Take your problem to a dermatologist, a transplanted M.D. who is successful in patients with receding hairlines. If he hasn't had experience with this procedure he will refer you to a specialist who will tell you if you are a likely candidate.

For Mr. A.: An ultramicroscope is an exceptionally high-powered microscope.

"That wobble turned out to be much higher up than you thought."

"Thanks for dogsitting while I was on vacation, Tweedy. I hope Duke didn't inconvenience you too much."

Hard to Cure Squealing Belt

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"About a month ago my service station installed a new fan belt and generator on my 1966 six cylinder sedan. Within three days later an annoying high pitched squeal developed when the engine is idling.

"The mechanic has adjusted it several times, installed another new belt, and even tried sandpapering the inside area of the belt that rubs against the pulleys. The noise disappears at speeds above 30 miles an hour, but when idling at stoplights it sounds like a nest of crickets have settled in the front of the car.

"Can you suggest a cure for this problem?" — Mr. B.Y., Orillia, Ont.

Several readers have asked me how to cope with various types of driving belts which, even though appearing to be in good condition and properly adjusted, insist on squealing.

To begin with, drive belts are supposed to operate silently, and thank goodness most of them do. But occasionally there is the odd stubborn squealer and, while I have searched for years, I have yet to come up with an ironclad guaranteed cure for the temperamental belt that makes like a cricket.

I have tried soap (some oldtimers swear by a bar of soap) and, while it has stopped some of the squeals for a day or so, and occasionally permanently, for the most part the pesky squeal reared up again. As a last resort, even though the offending belt showed no sign of wear, I have tried a new one which is usually but not always the answer.

Sometimes the problem is not attributable directly to the belt. On occasion, it have seen instances where one of the pulleys was badly worn or out of line — too far forward or back, putting the strain on the edge of the belt. Sometimes the pulleys on exchange or even new generators or waterpumps are out of alignment. However, this seldom happens, and we have to accept the odd stubborn case of a new or old squealing belt.

The strength and durability of most rubber driving belts is amazing. They are flexed and stretched, operate in temperatures from far below zero to well above boiling point while driving the generator or alternator, fan, waterpump, power steering and air-conditioning. The combined effort of operating all these units requires several horsepower.

Possibly one out of every three driving belts is worn to the point where replacement is necessary. To avoid serious engine damage and costly failures, all driving belts should be examined during a routine safety-check. Too loose a setting causes slippage and premature wear, sometimes accompanied by a high-pitched squeal. Too tight an adjustment will damage the bearings in the units the belt is driving. Replacement or adjustment is not costly and usually takes only a few minutes.

Vincent Massey Estate for Sale

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram suggests the federal government should buy Batterwood, residence of the late Hon. Vincent Massey, as an historic site.

Telegram real estate writer Ralph Magee says:

"Why, you ask yourself, has the federal government allowed this lovely bit of Canadiana to be put up for sale on the public real estate market?

"Why hasn't the federal government bought it as an historic site?

"For Batterwood is historic— the home of the first native Canadi an Governor-General, a man whose appointment to the office of representative marked such was large a step in creating a Canadian identity."

The Georgian mansion is on a 300-acre estate near Port Hope, a Lake Ontario community about 60 miles east of Toronto.

Magee says the property is not listed with any realty firm, but the sale is being handled by Mr. Massey's son, Hart.

During a tour of the grounds, forested by harch, flowering limas, maples, conifers and oaks, Mr. Massey told the writer:

"All of this was planted by my father. There was nothing here but a wheat field when the house was started back in the 1930s."

A vestibule leads to a roomy centre hallway with a fireplace once owned by Benedict Arnold. The fireplace came from Mrs. Massey's family in Fredericton, N.B.

Upstairs in one wing is the Queen's suite—so named because it has been occupied by both the Queen and the Queen Mother.

"Hat (Batterwood's) guest book teems with big names, interesting names," Mr. Magee says.

"There are the signatures of Anthony Eden, of Lord Louis Mountbatten, Lord and Lady Alexander, Governor-General and Mme. Vanier.

"There are Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, Lester B. Pearson, the Princess Royal, Sir Malcolm Sargent, Gov. Gen. Roland Michener and Lord Beaverbrook.

Mr. Magee quotes Hart Massey as saying he may file a request with the deed giving the Canadian government first refusal when he sells the property.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 3

Your birthday today: March forward! Everything that comes to you this year is unexpected. Planning in advance assumes great importance. Your routines expand into new patterns. Today's natives are able to follow nearly any approach to life without limitations.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Decide what you want and place your order, symbolically as well as in the marketplace. A little streak of luck with money is promised.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Concentrate your main efforts today on the regular, normal customs, and leave the big adventures for a more auspicious moment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Aside from some home or personal inconvenience early in the day, this's a rather productive time. Allow more space for the opinions of others and more room for people to pass.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Curiosity and the will to try new things take over. Speak up for your point of view when it is challenged or competition sets in. A break from routine is coming! Enjoy it.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You find several choices, but little time to select. The natural course is to take the surest thing with the highest social connections. A partner may be in the middle with an odd but successful bit of ingenuity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A period now begins of social change, in which your own developing interests attract new people into your life. Plan ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): New contracts are promised today. Close a business financial arrangement near noon. Some relatives may surprise you and your associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Early morning is favorable for money matters—the later the better. The later hours decline rapidly into unfavorable conditions. (Friends require extra tact.)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Seek energetic company. Your work promises to be a brisk and erratic but constructive day for you. Accompanied by a good humor, enjoy a lively evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): If you are prepared to go through the day without detailed agreement from your mate and associates, matters will take an interesting, creative course. Have more patience with those you love.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Something new is to think about is promised for today. Old skills and tools are applicable in places and jobs you had not thought possible. Plan a health program this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Social activity brings you a contact of considerable future importance. You bridge a gap between the traditional and some modern application and stand to profit by the introduction.

Man's Strange Memorials

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some friends of mine, who have just returned from Africa, were relating stories about the strange statues erected by native tribes as shrines of worship.

They seemed to think this was exclusively a primitive custom, but men have always erected monuments to odd objects of wonder and devotion. In America alone, we have had some of the weirdest commemorations known to man.

When the pioneer Mormons in Salt Lake City were ready to harvest their first grain crop, crickets and grasshoppers threatened to destroy the fields. But, just then, sea gulls by the thousands came up from the lake and devoured the insects, thus saving the harvest. The gull is a "sacred" bird in Utah today, and a monument to its honor stands in Salt Lake City.

An effigy of the codfish hangs in the Massachusetts Statehouse, and another has hung in one assembly hall or another for more than 300 years. The codfish saved the early settlers from starving.

There is a monument in the public square of Enterprise, Ala., from which a huge boll weevil, rampant, looks down upon the town. It seems that the weevil destroyed the cotton one year, and forced the farmers to diversify their crops, which turned out to be a blessing.

At Little Compton, R.I., a monument to a hen commemorates the origin of the Rhode Island Red breed of chicken.

When Lord Byron's Newfoundland dog died, the poet buried him in the ruins of the ancient church at Newstead Abbey, with his grave marked by a tall and finely carved pedestal bearing the inscription: "Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without insolence, courage without ferocity, and all the virtues of man without his vices."

English Surgeon Plans Clinic Here

Roy Peacock

Boon to Arthritic

Asleh Walker, stenographer at Deloro Stellite in Belleville, displays components of metal implant invented by English surgeon Mr. F. A. Ring as a replacement hip joint. Machined to extremely close tolerances, the ball and socket are manufactured from Stellite at the company's English plant, but are expected to go into production here.

Dubcek Under Attack

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The future of Cechoslovakia's former Communist party leader, Alexander Dubcek, appeared grim today after a demand by a top central committee member that he be stripped of his remaining posts in the party hierarchy.

The attack on Dubcek Tuesday by Volem Novy, a conservative member of the party's chief body, was the highest placed demand to d te that the liberal leader be doomed to political oblivion.

Novy, speaking to Communist party functionaries in the Bohemian town of Ceske Budjovice, also said he would like to see the removal from the central committee of Josef Smkovsky, the liberal deputy Federal Assembly leader.

The central committee at a meeting expected to be held later this month would put right the damages which had been caused, Novy predicted.

Hip Implant Made By Deloro Stellite

The medical staff association of the Belleville General Hospital handed the Belleville Week a coup yesterday when it announced one of England's top orthopaedic surgeons would visit Belleville Sept. 27.

The invitation to Mr. Peter Ring, FRCS, was specifically timed to coincide with the city's observance of Belleville Week, a promotion activity built around the theme "Tomorrow is Here".

Mr. Ring, while in Canada, will conduct a medical clinic at the BGH and, watched by closed circuit television, will demonstrate his method of total hip replacement to many of Ontario's 100 orthopaedic surgeons who will be invited to attend.

Dr. Harold Williamson, local orthopaedist who has observed Mr. Ring during one of his operations in England, said that Mr. Ring "is generally considered one of the top four surgeons in his field in England and is the inventor of the technique known as the Ring total hip prosthesis replacement."

Mr. Ring, who perfected his method about five years ago, is now doing about 200 operations a year himself. Other surgeons, using his technique, push the hip implant number to about 2,000 yearly in the UK.

In the Ring technique, both the ball and socket parts of the hip joint made inoperative by arthritis are replaced by metal substitutes.

Playing a major factor in Mr. Ring's decision to come to Belleville was the fact the chrome-cobalt alloy used in his hip implant is manufactured at Deloro Stellite in England. It was developed under Mr. Ring's guidance by Deloro Stellite at Swindon, an associate firm of the local plant.

Policeman, Girl Slain by Snipers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A white policeman and a 15-year-old Negro girl were shot to death Tuesday night in an outbreak of sniper fire in Camden, N.J. Sniping incidents with no reported injuries recurred in Hartford, Conn., and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The Camden victims were Patrolman Rande J. Chandler, 22, and Rose McDonald, both apparently hit by the same volley during the second night of disorders in the south New Jersey city of 117,000 near Philadelphia.

Condition Deteriorating

Ho Chi Minh Is Dying

HONG KONG (CP) — Hanoi Radio reported today that President Ho Chi Minh's condition is deteriorating, monitors reported.

The French-language broadcast was Hanoi's first report that the condition of the 79-year-old father of Vietnamese communism was worsening. Two earlier official announcements said he was in "somewhat grave" condition and that his illness was "developing." Officials in Saigon felt that even that much admission meant Ho was near death.

Ho's illness was announced in a communique which said:

"Over the past few weeks, President Ho Chi Minh has not been well. . . . A collective of professors and medical doctors has been attending him day and night."

Another communique, broadcast four hours later, said Ho's condition was "not stable" and that "his illness is developing and is somewhat grave."

"They" would hardly issue such a bulletin unless Ho was already dead or in a coma of some kind," said one official in Saigon.

Hanoi did not disclose the nature of the illness, but Ho had a bad case of tuberculosis in the 1940s and had suffered from heart trouble and possible lung complications for more than two years.

A North Vietnamese official in Paris remarked: "All I can say is what is obvious—the president is an old man."

Experts in Saigon said Ho's death or incapacitation probably would result in an intensified power struggle in North Vietnam but no change in the goal of a unified Communist Vietnam. And they said even the jockeying for power might not be evident for some time.

"It will be a dictatorship by the party, not a dictatorship by one man," one expert said. "The political bureau and the central committee will be the important factors."

The chief contenders for the succession are considered to be the chief of the Communist party machine, Le Duan, who is listed No. 2 on the politburo; Truong Chinh, No. 3 and the party's most vocal ideologist; Premier Pham Van Dong, No. 4; and Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the defence minister, architect of the French defeat and the director of the war against the United States and the Saigon government.

Le Duan is considered pro-Moscow, Truong Chinh pro-Peking.

News of Ho's illness came only hours after the top North Vietnamese negotiator in Paris,

High Water Damage Not Large

OTTAWA (CP) — Damage to Canadian property along the Great Lakes due to rising water levels should not be as high as that recently estimated by American officials, a spokesman for the resources department said Tuesday.

The spokesman said that although Lake Erie had reached the highest level in the century, it had receded by one-tenth of a foot within the last month. Lakes Huron, Michigan and Superior were about a foot below 1952 high water marks on the Canadian side.

Memory Pill Is Developed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University students soon will be able to take a memory pill to help them retain things like history dates and math equations, Dr. Wendell Jolley, professor of chemistry at Loma Linda University, said Tuesday.

He presented the memory-enhancing pill called Ribaminol to a news conference Tuesday.

Jungle Battle Fierce

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy American B-52 strikes today hit North Vietnamese battling South Vietnamese forces near the provincial capital of Song Be for the fourth day.

South Vietnamese casualties were climbing, with at least 30 troops killed, 138 wounded and 17 missing, as well as four American advisers wounded.

The North Vietnamese resistance was so strong that more than 1,000 troops from the U.S. Special Forces' mobile strike force of hired tribesmen have been forced into retreat. Only six North Vietnamese soldiers were known dead.

The battle is taking place in heavy jungle near the Cambodian border about 85 miles northeast of Saigon.

Libyan Revolt Was Organized By Group of Young Officers

DAMASCUS (AP) — Egypt's Middle East News Agency, MENA, reported Tuesday that the coup d'etat in Libya Monday was made by young army, air force and navy officers who call themselves the Organization of Free Unionist Officers.

In some respects the tactics and personnel that overthrew the government of King Idris were similar to those used by the Egyptian Revolutionary Command Council under Nasser to oust King Farouk in July 1952.

Egypt was among the first governments to recognize the new Libyan regime.

Baghdad radio in Iraq, the first country to recognize the new regime, gave details emerging from Libya. It quoted Iraqi military sources as saying the Libyan coup leader, Col. Saad Eddine Abbou Chouireb, was a graduate of Britain's Sandhurst military school.

The radio said Chouireb later underwent military training in Cairo before he joined the Libyan Army tank corps in the late 1950s.

Chouireb was retired from the Libyan army in 1964 for his progressive nationalist views, the Egyptian agency MENA said, and remained a pensioned officer until he led the coup.

King Is in Greece

KAMMENA VOURLA (CP) — Deposed King Idris of Libya arrived at this popular central Greek spa today under security precautions, seldom seen here.

After a brief welcome by the town authorities, the ailing 79-year-old king and his queen went into seclusion at the Hotel Galini where Idris had reserved 24 rooms for his entourage of 32 members.

The king arrived at the Greek port of Volos by ship from Turkey earlier today and vowed he would return soon to Libya.

The royal party arrived from the Turkish spa of Bursa where the king had been taking the waters for his rheumatism when he lost his throne in a military coup two days ago.

U.S. Will Cut Construction

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — President Nixon plans a major cut in federally financed construction projects as an anti-inflationary measure. The proposal drew criticism from some U.S. governors.

"I for one am not going to take it sitting down," said Democratic Gov. John N. Dempsey of Connecticut, who threatened to seek an immediate protest from the 51st National Governors Conference in session here.

The Nixon plan would cut off new federal construction projects immediately, and halt federal aid for such state projects as highway building effective next April 1.

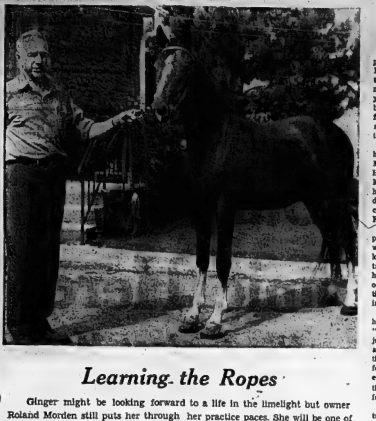
Ex-bishop Missing In Desert

JERUSALEM (AP) — Searchers today found the passport and wallet of Dr. James Pike, former Episcopal bishop of California missing in the Judean wilderness northwest of the Dead Sea.

Israeli Army officials said Pike's belongings were found in a dry river bed at an oasis about a mile east of his abandoned car.

"The officials said they expected to find Pike soon "dead or alive."



Pike, 56, and his 31-year-old third wife were motoring through the area when their car broke down Monday night. The couple set out on foot to look for help, but Pike collapsed after two hours walking in the heat and sent his wife on alone. She said she left him on a hillside.

After walking all night, Mrs. Pike met some highway guards early Tuesday and they took her to Bethlehem.

Hackneys Prep for Picton Fair

PICTON — Staging her premiere performance at Prince Edward County fair this week is a saucy show girl nicknamed Ginger. When this young lady settled on a show bit career she dropped her family name — it sounded too sophisticated for the entertainment world.

In real life, the two-year-old hackney filly owned by Roland Morden, is known as Margie's Hi-Flyer. Purchased by Mr. Morden this summer, Ginger has been receiving lessons in deportment preparatory to competition in a line class this Friday at the fair.

"For pony and handler the past several weeks have been written around the "getting to know you" theme. Ginger's trainer feels that each pony has its own personality and once his discovered the educational program varies accordingly.

Ginger's schooling to date has been an intensive study of "how to stand still as the judge looks her over." Colts are naturally full of life but in the show ring must stand perfectly still, front feet "stretched" or "placed" slightly while the judge stores them an conformation.

When the judge calls for a trot in a hackney pony line class, Ginger's owner feels he has his eye out for a high stepping colt with plenty of action. Ginger was literally placed in chains during her training in order to encourage the natural action she already showed. "Action chains buckle around the pony's fetlocks or ankles adding weight to his feet," explained Mr. Morden. "When a pony is in chains he automatically lifts his feet higher, developing the action characterizing the hackney".

Ginger has a definite plus in the action line. This flashy filly sports four white stockings, prized markings in the hackney breed. White stockings, believes Mr. Morden, catch the judge's eye and emphasize a pony's action.

All work and no play could make Ginger a bored filly so with this in mind her lessons are varied. She has just learned "to shake hands" with her handler and is such a ham that she performs faultlessly on cue each time she's asked.

Later this fall Ginger will become acquainted with the driving buggy. Her owner looks forward to the red letter day when she will be "hooked" or harnessed for the first time. This initial hitching marks another step in the filly's career. Once she has mastered what Mr. Morden considers "the biggest lesson of all," travelling on the buggy, Ginger will be eligible to compete in several harness classes listed at local horse shows and county fairs.

Mr. Morden has shown and raised hackney ponies for the past 15 years. The first pony was for his son, Douglas. This "first pony" led Mr. Morden down the bridle path. Ponies have become a part of his life.

One of a large number of ponies competing at Prince Edward County fair this week, Ginger will show in the hackney pony two-year-old line class. The time invested in her training typifies, according to her handler, the hours spent by most fair exhibitionors on their prospects. Soon to become a "fair lady" Ginger's transformation from pony to show pony seems not unlike the story of Professor Henry Higgins and Eliza.

Learning the Ropes

Ginger might be looking forward to a life in the limelight but owner Roland Morden still puts her through her practice paces. She will be one of the entries in the pony class at the Picton Fair.

IN MEMORIAM

MORRISON — In loving memory of Ethel Jane Morrison, who passed away on Sept. 3rd, 1965.
Sunshine fades and shadows fall,
But sweet remembrance outlasts all.
—Always remembered by daughter Betty.

COWIE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Gordon Cowie, who passed away Tuesday September 3rd, 1963.
Twenty years are we had to part,
With me you loved with all your heart;
The world's so deep it will not heal,
Only those who have lost know how we feel.
We seem to see your dear smiling face,
Through the mist of memories trace,
For a family's circle is incomplete,
With your thoughtful face of you.
—Sadly missed by his loving mother, brothers and sister, John, George and Margaret.

Bearers were Clarence Woods; Samuel Jones; Harry Thompson; Cyril Latta; Matthew English and George Owens.

Demonstration Days For Area Farmers

Quinte area farmers are invited to attend three demonstration days during September — all of them in Codrington ward improved farming practices.

The first of the three days is the Drainage Information Day, scheduled for the Cairns farm south of Redeersville on Sept. 9. The program includes modern farm drainage features such as plastic tile and a pumping station to get rid of water.

Sept. 23 will be Materials Handling Day sponsored by the Quinte Soil and Crop Improvement Association. The day will be held north of Port Hope with the program devoted to the demonstration of materials handling equipment. Included will be elevators, augers, conveyors, mix mills, feed banks and portable feed wagons.

The final public day for September is the Hastings county plowing match to be held Sept. 24 in the West Huntingdon area.

This year's plowing match, sponsored by the Hastings Farm Service Club, will have several changes in program.

For the first time in the history of the match a "Queen of the Furrow" class will be added allowing the ladies to demonstrate their proficiency at plowmen. The new class is open to any woman or girl 12 years of age or over who lives on a farm.

Also the morning utility class will be divided into two groups to provide a class for plowmen of 18 years and under, and one for mature plowmen.

The reeves and councillors of the area have been amended to include mayors, which will give council heads from Belleville, Trenton and Deseronto the opportunity to become plowmen for the day.

Cow Moose On Loose Being Chased by Dogs

The cow moose footloose in Prince Edward County is headed south following a less three miles east of the Highway 33 route to Picton.

Yesterday Jim Moore, the county lands and forest conservation officer investigated a sighting of the animal by Consecon marsh near County Road 1.

The officer confirmed the tracks were those of a moose and followed them for a distance of one half mile, chief ranger Paul Endress at the Napanee division reported this morning. Signs the animal was being chased by dogs were observed, the ranger noted.

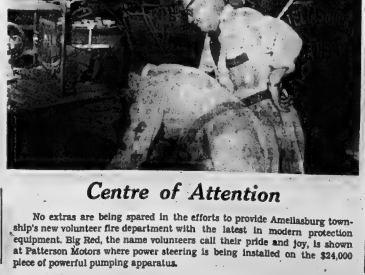
Simon DeRuiter of RR 2 Consecon was surprised on the way to his barn yesterday morning. He thought a neighbor's horse had wandered into the barnyard during the night. On a closer look he realized the intruder was the county's wayward cow moose. Then the farmer's dog noticed the strange looking beast. DeRuiter reported the last time he saw the animal it was running through his cornfield with the dog after it.

It would be a shame to have it molested and killed now after coming so far."

Since the moose was recognized on the Belleville golf course about two weeks ago it has swum across a bay and two lakes and roamed dozens of miles.

At the present rate of forward progress it is not likely to reach Picton while there is a fair on to interest the people.

The fair board's program committee could do something a great attraction if the timing was better, however.



Race Track At Picton Rebuilt

"Making tracks" can be difficult work according to members of Prince Edward County fair board. The race track at Picton fairgrounds, the same track where the Queen's Plate was reportedly run years ago, has been completely regraded for horse racing during the county fair. Additional earth has been placed on the track and a new guard rail built around a portion ill it.

The track will be used this week for saddle races, chariot races and harness racing. A section of the track directly in front of the grandstand has been selected as the show ring for the numerous saddle and driving classes scheduled. Track improvement is the result of many hours of painstaking work by those involved with the county fair.

Surgeon To Hold Clinic

At the moment, Mr. Ring and other doctors using his technique are using the Deloro-Stellite implants as quickly as they can be manufactured.

As a result, in most cases the hip implant surgery is reserved for older persons who are severely crippled by arthritis.

"If we can give these people a more active role when they would be doomed to five to 15 years of crippling pain," then it is reasonable that the operation, in the main be done on older persons said Dr. Williamson. "However, in the past five years the number of operations is growing rapidly and no doubt surgeons will be using the hip implant on younger persons eventually."

The local doctor said that in an extremely high percentage of cases the recipient is restored to an active life without pain. St. Peterburg, Fla., orthopaedist Dr. Irwin Leinbach the leading exponent of the bloc technique in the United States, put the figure at 80 percent recently in an article in the journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Leinbach, who only started using the technique a year ago, said "within a year, 1,000 American patients will be walking around with the bipolar prosthesis."

Patients, after undergoing the operation, are usually able to bear full weight upon their new hips within 24 hours and greatly increase their range of motion within two weeks. Usually they can walk without the assistance of a crutch or cane within six months.

"It is not unusual that some would even be able to play golf again," said Dr. Williamson.

Although the hip plant is chiefly used in dealing with arthritic patients it cannot be used if it is the type of arthritis which softens the bones as it progresses.

Invitations, through the medical staff association of the BGH, are being sent to Ontario's 100 orthopaedic surgeons. During their stay in Belleville they will be invited to tour the Deloro Stellite plant—where the chrome-cobalt alloy is manufactured.

A panel of orthopaedists is expected to comment on the operation while the surgeons view the technique via closed circuit television in an adjoining room.

Following the operation, the head of the orthopaedic association in Ontario, Dr. F. P. Dewar of Toronto, will join Mr. Ring in a question and answer panel discussion.

Also adding to the local involvement in the medical clinic will be the staff and students of Loyalist College who will set up and operate the closed circuit television circuit.

Good Way to Go

Floating downstream on an inflated inner tube can be real fun. It is a popular game with young swimmers at the Murray Canal connecting the Bay of Quinte with Brighton Bay. The trick is for one player to throw his doughnut-shaped life preserver so a second participant can enjoy a free ride with the current. The next time around the thrower gets his chance.

Up 74 This Year

Hastings Now Has 1066 Teachers

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings county students, knuckling down to regular classes today, will be confronted by 74 new teachers.

They represent the increase in the teaching staff this year, necessitated by increased enrolment and an attempt to lighten the teachers' workload.

By slightly reducing the pupil-teacher ratio the county board is moving closer to its goal of quality teaching and quality learning.

"In the elementary schools, a good supply of teachers this year has made it possible for the board to select highly qualified applicants," said L. F. Reid, superintendent of academic services.

The number of elementary school teachers in the county has increased by 31 to a total of 594. The pupil teacher ratio has been lowered from last year's 28 to 1 to 26.6 to 1. The recommended ratio is about 25 to 1.

However, average class size in county elementary schools is about 32, because many of the staff members included in ratio calculations are non-teaching principals, librarians and similar personnel.

The same situation holds true in the secondary schools, where the average class size is 20, although the pupil-teachers ratio is 17.5 to 1.

Last year the ratio stood at 18 to 1. The recommended ratio is 17 to 1. Secondary school staff this year has increased by 43 to a total of 472 teachers.

The board has enlarged and strengthened the staff of the retarded children's school in Belleville and made a start towards providing psychological services in the county with the hiring of an educational psychologist.

A co-ordinator of instructional media and an educational resource technician are now at work in the board office. They will be in charge of co-ordinating audio-visual and library facilities in county schools.

One exchange teacher will be working in Belleville this year, William Spaulding, a science teacher from England, will be taking Leon Trupp's place at Quinte Secondary School this year. Mr. Trupp is now teaching in England.

Trenton Post Office Bidder Again Seeks Property

A skeleton was dragged from the basement of the Trenton council chambers last night and appeared to haunt some of the members once again, as it has been doing for the past six years.

Trenton's old Post Office was again brought to the fore by a letter signed by J. W. Gould. Mr. Gould was the second place finisher in the race to buy the old building from the town of Trenton.

"It appears to me that the old Post Office is not going to be used for municipal purposes. You obtained it from the Ontario Municipal board on these terms," read the letter.

Mr. Gould said if the town was not going to use it as they said they would, he felt he had every right to have his bid accepted. The bidder said that $41,508 and interest was his offer for the building.

POST indent en ma t2

Mr. Gould was backed by councillor Gerald Weaver in his remarks. Councillor Weaver stated that the town has to use the former federal building on the terms under which it was bought.

Mayor MacDonald stated that the committee has been looking into uses for the building.

Mayor MacDonald said that six years have passed and nothing had been done, therefore the committee felt it was time the situation came to a head.

It was also noted that some banks have expressed an interest in the land.

When Mr. Weaver reminded the mayor that the property had to be used for municipal use, the mayor answered quickly:

"To me municipal use covers a wide field."

School, Trenton To Discuss Lot

TRENTON — Trenton council caught up on several small items left over from the summer at its meeting Tuesday night and considered only a few issues of major importance.

Hastings county board of education was given the right to deal with Trenton's finance committee in the purchase of two lots adjacent to Dufferin School.

Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson and Ralph Weaver, trustees with the county board, appeared before council and expressed the hope the board could retain the land.

Involved are lots 16 and 17 on MacLellan St. abutting the school.

After consideration, Mayor James MacDonald and council decided that all lot 16 and part of lot 17 would be turned over to the county board if the finance committee and the board could agree on a price.

It is expected the land will be sold for about $1,000. Part of lot 17 is covered with pine trees and council decided the property should be turned over to the parks board.

It was noted that lot 16 had a watermain running through its centre and could not be used for building.

Councillor Paul Tripp said he would object to the land being used for any other purpose and the board of education should have the right to the property.

Ho Dying

Xuan Thuy, hinted that the deadlocked peace talks might get moving if the United States made significant troop withdrawals.

Hanoi previously demanded complete and unconditional withdrawal of American forces in South Vietnam.

Speaking at a reception marking North Vietnamese Independence day, Xuan Thuy said: "If President Nixon withdraws his troops rapidly and in considerable numbers, we will examine the situation and take it into account."

North Vietnamese sources denied that the apparent shift was hinted to the news of Ho's illness. They also said there was "nothing new" in Xuan Thuy's statement—that it is standard Hanoi diplomatic practice.

Ho Chi Minh has been a patriot for 79 years and a Communist for 50.

His struggle for national independence began while Vietnam was a French colony, extended through the Second World War occupation by Japan, saw partial triumph in the defeat of the French and the creation of Communist North Vietnam, but continued with the struggle for reunification of Vietnam that turned into a bitter war with the United States.

School of Experience

"School's Out" may be music in the ears of most kids, but when the time comes to go back there is a sense of anticipation and a sparkle among the young people that are unmistakable.

That time has come. All over the province the big yellow buses have resumed the run to countless schools from the Lakehead to the Quebec border.

It is the same across the nation. From early morning the clusters of students stand waiting for their buses. Those living in town, not far from school, walk. But urban or rural, the scene is familiar.

There is an excitement among the small fry as they wait for their transportation or walk as the case may be, but it is a mood they tend to lose as the years progress. Suddenly they become teenagers with their somewhat serious, unsmiling mien.

The sense of wonderment youngsters have from the age of five to about ten gives way to the growing sophistication of pre-teen and teen years. It is in these early years that important habits of thought are cultivated. Ideally an education should acquaint a student with both knowledge and judgment as well as an interest in the world at large.

Judgment, or the ability to choose between right and wrong is more than ever vital these days. There is a need to get the minds of young people more on to things spiritual than material. By spiritual we don't mean the phony spirituality afforded by drugs or a rigid concept of religion. Christianity yes, but also an awareness of the world at large.

Young people have it easy these days. But education will have failed if it leads only to a driver's license at 16, a fast car and early marriage. Better that young people consider first opportunities to travel and the acquisition of a broad range of experience. Maturity does not come easily; it comes only with the years, tempered by the kind of experience we have mentioned.

Unwanted

Sergeant Cash is the Mounties' least-wanted man. A rather less than muscular and upstanding member of the force Sgt. Cash is the star of a current television commercial plugging a well-known soft drink. A complaint has been lodged with the company about this caricature of Canada's finest and the word is it may be phased out a little quicker than usual.

The RCMP has every right to complain, although the ad in question is harmless enough and it might be better simply to await its demise with good grace.

Television advertising runs the whole gamut from the clever to the childish and idiotic. The Mounties doubtless will survive this little annoyance, just as we are sure the particular soft drink will also survive without the aid of Sgt. Cash.

In Politics

Former child star Shirley Temple Black has come a long way from the pixie-faced youngster who sang and danced her way to fame in the thirties.

In recent years Mrs. Black, still attractive at 40, has been making her presence felt increasingly in politics. Although unsuccessful as a California Republican candidate for Congress last year she impressed voters with her mature outlook on affairs.

Now Mrs. Black has been named as a possible successor to Katie Louchein as U. S. ambassador to the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization.

If Mrs. Black should win this post it would be a tribute to a young woman who has a special place in the affections of Americans and people everywhere. She belongs to a generation still young, with a sense of responsibility toward their fellows that those of tender years today might with profit emulate.

September Charm

September is the mellowest of months. It is both warm and gentle, combining the best of summer with the beginnings of that fabled, ageless scene that comes with fall in this part of the world.

Already the first hint of bronze is tinting some trees, to deepen and mature later into the full glory of autumn. Soon the leaves will start to fall and scatter across the earth.

It is another year in decline. The last long weekend of the summer is past. Before long the beaches will be deserted and the first chill winds of winter will be felt. But meantime much of summer's best remains.

Led Country to Independence

Military Coup Ousts Monarch of Oil-Rich Libya

By ALLAN JACKS

ROME (AP) — King Idris of Libya, overthrown Monday by a military coup d'etat in his oil-rich desert country, devoted most of his life to the struggle for Libyan independence and achieved the goal in 1951. Since then he had led his country to relative prosperity.

The 79-year-old Idris was in Bursa, Turkey, for medical treatment when word came over Benghazi radio of the army revolt.

The radio said a republic had been proclaimed.

In Bursa the king's private secretary said the coup was of "no importance," and that Idris would return to Libya as scheduled. The statement was characteristic of the aloof calm with which Idris has ruled his kingdom for 18 years.

The white-bearded King Idris El Mahdi El Senussi was born March 13, 1890, at Jaghbub, a remote oasis in the Libyan desert south of Tobruk. Revered by his countrymen as a direct descendant of Mohammed, Idris is the grandson of the founder of the Senussi Order, a movement dedicated to Orthodox Islamic principles.

The Senussi sought a return to traditional Arab life and to restore orthodox Islaam—to return to the true teachings of Mohammed. This goal remained a cornerstone of the policies of King Idris and his governments.

At the age of 27, Idris assumed leadership of the movement, which also worked and fought for Libyan Independence from Italian occupation. The country had become an Italian colony in 1911 after centuries of domination by the Ottoman Turks.

While in exile in Egypt during the Second World War, Idris organized Libyan patriots into a "liberation army" that fought beside the British Army in North Africa. And in 1950 a Libyan constituent assembly elected him king. The following year he assumed the throne.

Since then Libya has risen from a backward, poverty-stricken nation of 1,-500,000 persons to a relatively-modern, prosperous and developed country.

Its meteoric development came, with the discovery of oil 10 years ago.

Production this year reached a rate of 3,000,000 barrels daily, providing the Libyan government with $1,000,000,000 annually in revenue, approximately $850 for every Libyan.

About 40 Western oil companies, most of them American but others from Britain, France, West Germany and Italy are operating in the country, drilling oil deep in the desert and piping it to new shipping terminals on the Mediterranean coast.

From the time of its independence until today Libya, under King Idris, enjoyed relative stability by Middle Eastern standards.

But Libya is an Arab land with all the emotional involvement of other Arab countries in the conflict with Israel. When the Arab-Israeli war erupted in June, 1967, so did the population of Libya. Mobs wrecked the U.S. Information Service library and stoned the British Embassy.

Since then the country has been calm, giving no warning of Monday's coup.

Childless, King Idris designated a nephew, 35-year-old Hassan El-Rida, as crown prince and successor. He was little known to the general public and lived quietly in a modest palace in Tripoli. He was reported to have given up his rights to the throne in the wake of the coup.

Youth, 18, Unable to Get Job

Grade Thirteen Is It Enough Today?

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I'll never forget that day when I made the giant step into the world. My mother kissed me on the cheek and handed me my Buck Rogers dinner pail. This was my first day at school. From this moment on I was a captive in a complicated world of civilized man. From this moment on I would be constantly reminded that without an education I would get no where.

Now it is twelve years later. I have successfully completed a course at Quinte Secondary. I am considered to be a graduate & I am considered to have a fair education, good enough to obtain a reasonable job.

This assumption is very misleading. During the past two months I have been trying in vain to secure a permanent job. I have written many letters and received no replies. Two days ago I spent a day in Belleville searching for a job. All my attempts were fruitless.

For example, I went to apply for a job at a shoe store. I stood there two hours until it opened. I saw a gentleman and told him I came in response to an ad in the newspaper. He asked how old I was and I said "18" — "Sorry, we can't use you."

In another incident I was turned down because I had no experience. How can I obtain experience if no one hires me?

I have concluded that a Grade 12 education isn't any good unless you are 35 and have at least ten years' experience.

I have also concluded that if you have money and connections regardless of your education, you can obtain a job.

I wonder if this is the purpose of our educational system

— to have students with two years of university driving a taxi;

— to have grade 13 graduates punch holes in belts?

Student Employment Centre's Success

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to take this opportunity through the medium of your newspaper to thank all those who participated in the successful operation of the Student Summer Employment Centre that was created by the Canada Manpower Centre of Belleville.

It would be very difficult to thank everyone personally, but I would like to thank the following persons in particular:

Mayor J. Russell Scott, Lt.-Colonel Angus Duffy, ENG Coordinator, and Mr. Don Rodgers, Warden of Hastings County, for their immediate approval and wholehearted support of the project. These gentlemen were responsible for the free use of the Provincial Legislature Committee Rooms on Dundas Street, Ray Bradshaw, president of the Belleville and District Labor Council for providing and paying for the installation and monthly charges of the telephone extension, Belleville and District Employment Committee, who approved the Student Employment Centre program and provided funds for the advertising campaign, The Intelligencer and CJBQ for their support in publishing and broadcasting news items without any charge to the Canada Manpower Centre and finally — to all the employers who placed their vacancies with the Student Employment Centre, conducted themselves in a manner that should surely make the parents of these young teenagers proud.

H. W. Karn,
Area Office Manager,
Canada Manpower Centre.

Missionaries' Vital Role

Such statements are doing great harm to the cause of Christ. In an hour when the literal coming of Jesus Christ is imminent, we do well to forget the emotions on so much technology and concentrate on the spiritual.

The Christian Missionaries are the only people sent by God, indeed minister to the whole man! They seek to uplift the whole physical being, as well as to teach him, the better way of living.

Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel."

MRS. M. GILLESPIE,
Coe Hill.

The Intelligencer welcomes letters to the editor. Letters should be written or typed on one side of the paper only and bear the address and signature of the sender. For publication purposes a pseudonym or pen-name may be used if so indicated.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Britain declared war on Germany 30 years ago today—in 1939—followed by France, Australia and New Zealand on the same day. The German navy was swift to strike, torpedoing the passenger liner Athenia, 200 miles west of northern Scotland, en route from Liverpool to Montreal with 1,400 passengers. There were 135 lives lost, most of those when the torpedo exploded. The liner's passenger list included 435 Canadians and 311 United States citizens.

1930—The first non-stop Paris-New York airplane flight.

1940—President Roosevelt turned over to Britain 50 over-age destroyers in exchange for leases on British naval and air bases in the Western Hemisphere.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—if 1944—Americans captured Mons, Belgium; Allies sank or damaged 28 enemy ships in Celebes and Halmahera Islands; Allies entered Lyons; British 8th Army took Pesaro; Russians took 40 Romanian towns; Gen. de Gaulle's provisional government moved to Paris from Algiers.

Dublin "Mischief"

Lynch Renews Call for a United Ireland

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Political differences between Britain and the Irish Republic have sharpened with Prime Minister John Lynch's repeated demands that partition between the North and south of Ireland be ended.

These demands at this stage of the crisis in the North are seen by some observers as the deliberate injection of a touch of Irish mischief at a critical stage when reunification is unrealistic.

Lynch's 26 counties hold 2,-800,000 people. More than 80 per cent are Roman Catholic. The six counties in the North have 1,500,000 people. About 66 per cent are Protestant.

Removal of the border would result in a dramatic political realignment, with the dominant Ulster Protestants of the North turned into a minority, a role which most of them would never accept.

While the south argues that the entire island belongs to the republic, Lynch's predecessors quietly accepted the existence of the border since partition was enforced in the 1920s. In fact there was a period under the former prime minister, Sean Lemass, when friendship between the Northern and southern governments blossomed, leading to speculation that both sides would co-operate while maintaining respect for each other's territory.

That period was short-lived by the outcries of extremists on both sides. Moves to calm heated emotions would seem to be the most vital current need in restoring some form of order in the North. But Lynch apparently has decided to exploit the crisis for its own purposes.

While the British government has appealed for calm, Lynch has mounted a fresh battle for an end to partitition, sending out a corps of publicists to North America and Europe to press home his argument. Irish Republic pamphlets, distributed in many countries, have depicted British troops sent to Ulster to prevent new bloodshed, as foreigners on Irish soil.

A number of British newspapers have accused Lynch of inflaming the crisis. Some agree that eventually there may be reunification but this will require patient diplomacy and gradual evolution of political interests.

But even if Lynch did get his way and the border was dropped, it is doubted that turmoil would end. Ulster, at the moment, does not pay its way. It is subsidized by the British treasury by $250,000,000 or more a year. This aid gives the North a decided edge over the south in social benefits.

Elimination of the subsidy would undoubtedly bring fresh grumbling as Dublin attempts to rearrange its own benefits to cover the new citizens. It would be another problem added to the struggle over divided loyalties and religious differences.

Kingston Thieves Rob Simpsons

KINGSTON (CP) — About $5,000 in merchandise was stolen from a downtown shopping centre during the Labor Day weekend, police reported Tuesday.

Police said thieves broke into a Simpsons-Sears department store and carted away fur coats, television sets, men's suits, cameras, women's clothing, radios and tape recorders.

Toronto Livestock

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were barely steady on a moderate demand for slaughter steers and heifers at the Ontario public stockyards today.

Cow and bull prices were steady, choice veal calf prices steady, common and off-weight calves were selling under pressure. Hog prices were lower, lamb prices were steady.

Slaughter cattle 3,179: Choice steers 29.50-31 with sales to 32.50; good 28-30; mediums 26-28.50; commons 23-26; choice heifers 28-29 with sales to 29.40; good 26.50-27.50; medium 24.50-26; commons 22-24; good cows 23-24 with sales to 25; mediums 21.50-22.50; canners and cutters 16-21; good heavy bologna bulls 26-27 with sales to 29; commons and mediums 22-25.50.

Replacement cattle 200: Good light stockers and feeders 33-37; good stock steer calves 38-41; good stock heifer calves 34-36 with lights up to 37; common and medium stocks and feeders 26-33.

Calves 314: Choice vealers 35-39 with odd singles to 41 a hundredweight; good 31-34; mediums 27-30; commons 24-27; boners 20-24.

Hogs 941: Base price 37-37.05, currently at Toronto 37.05; stags and boars liveweight 18.65 a hundredweight.

Sheep and lambs 627: Good handyweight lambs 28-27 with a few sales to 28; sheep 8-18.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a moderate advance in light mid-morning trading today as it moved into its fifth upward session.

On index, industrials were up .52 to 178.94, western oils .35 to 254.68 and base metals .18 to 108.21. Golds slipped .45 to 183.77.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 533,000 shares compared with 577,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Ten of the 17 industrial components were higher. Bank, chemical, food processing, general manufacturing, paper and forest, real estate and trust and loan stocks were weak. Construction and material issues were unchanged.

Gains outnumbered losses 138 to 107 with 194 issues unchanged.

Inco was up ⅝ to 39½, Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Algoma was unchanged at 16¼ and Stelco unchanged at 23. Steelworkers are on strike at both companies.

Falconbridge was unchanged at 13½. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

CPR rose ¼ to 73½, Marathon Realty, a CPR subsidiary, and Okanagan Holdings Ltd. will build a $34,000,000 shopping-residential centre three miles east of Kelowna, B.C.

Canadian Tire A was up 1¼ to 57¼, Kaps 1 to 22 and Yellowknife Bear ⅝ to 11. Denison lost 1¼ to 49¼ and Asamera ¼ to 19¼.

The Toronto market Tuesday posted its fourth consecutive daily advance as a technical rally that began last week continued.

The market opened with a small gain, then advanced cautiously before closing at its highest level of the session.

Volume was light as investors continued to show concern over warnings by some observers that the market could move into on more long slump before the year ends.

About 2,088,000 shares were traded compared with 2,322,000 Friday.

Real estate and steel issues led the session as 12 of the 17 industrial components advanced. Utility, trust and loan, merchandising pipeline and oil refining stocks were lower.

In the real estate group, Block Bros. was up ¼ to 7. Revenue 30 cents to $4.30, Markborough ¼ to 6¾ and Trizec 15 cents to $1.75.

In steels, Stelco rose ¼ to 23, Dofasco ⅜ to 23½ and Algoma Steel was unchanged at 16¼.

Steelworkers at Stelco have been on strike since Aug. 1 and at Algoma since last Thursday.

Inco advanced ¼ to 39¼. Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Falconbridge rose 1 to 135. Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

French Pete gained ¼ to 11. The company's first-half earnings were unchanged from the similar 1968 period at 10 cents a share.

Hunter Douglas was up ⅛ to 13¼ after reporting first-half earnings of $2,313,000 compared with $1,932,000 in the corresponding 1968 period.

Ulster Petes slipped 15 cents to $4.25. The company had a first-half loss of $85,808. No comparative figures were given.

Westcoast Transmission picked up ⅛ to 27⅞. The federal government approved Westcoast's application to build about 23 miles of pipeline in British Columbia at an estimated cost of $228,800.

On index, industrials gained .99 to 176.43, golds 1.27 to 184.22 and base metals .65 to 108.03. Western oils slipped 2.51 to 254.33.

Advances outnumbered losses 280 to 210.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DAVID SKELLY

Skelly – Browning

Rev. David Hawkins performed the double - ring ceremony in Christ Church, ... ville on Saturday, August 30, 1969, when Vickie Lynn Browning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berk W. Browning was united in marriage to John David Skelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Skelly of Plainfield. John C. Withers, church organist, provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the choir boys in appropriate renditions.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire styled pure silk organza over taffeta gown with the bodice featuring a high ruched neckline and long sleeves. The gown was highlighted with a loose cape overdress with Swiss lace trim on the sleeves, neckline and hemline of the dress. Her headdress was a matching pillbox from which extended a long cathedral length train trimmed with Swiss lace and daisies. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, white carnations and ivy.

Miss Susan McEvoy of Belleville was maid of honor wearing a full length empire styled gown of pale yellow crepe with lace overdress and pera de soie trim. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of white and yellow mums. Wendy Presland of Ottawa, cousin of the bride and Nancy Browning, sister of the bride were gowned similarly to the maid of honor but in Nile green and each carried a bouquet of white and green mums. Jane Rapino, cousin of the bride was attired similarly to the other attendants and carried a basket of green and white mums.

Murray Lockwood of Actinolite was groomsman, while the ushers were Ronald DeMille, cousin of the bridegroom of Melrose and Michael Browning, brother of the bride of Belleville. Ring - bearer was Michael Skelly, cousin of the bridegroom of Belleville.

A reception was held at the Elks' Hall, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a rose colored lace over satin ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white and rose mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a yellow linen ensemble with yellow and blue accessories and a corsage of blue and white mums.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride chose a knit dress of hunter green with beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

On return the couple will reside in Belleville.

Parents May Stay Overnight With Children

TORONTO (CP) — Part of Scarborough Centenary Hospital's new approach to pediatric care includes allowing parents to stay overnight with their children if they wish.

"After all, a child is the parents' most prized possession," says Anne Sokol, Centenary's pediatric unit supervisor. "If they (the parents) know we're not hostile and not hiding anything, then they in turn are not over-protective with the child.

"Because thy hav th privilge o stay overnight, most of them relax and very few actually stay."

When children are admitted to Centenary "they aren't taken straight to bed," says Miss Sokol.

"They are brought to the playroom—and during their stay it is the focal point of all their activity here. We find it fundamental to their treatment now. We're trying to destroy some of the old hospital concepts."

Another Scarborough hospital, Scarborough General, has carried the play-therapy concept further by hiring the first Metropolitan Toronto general hospital to employ a professional recreational therapist.

"Play is a serious thing for children, and many of them work hard at it," says the therapist, Pam Miller.

"When they come to hospital for a stay, no matter how brief, they must have their daily play routine. We try to fulfil this need for them while they are in hospital."

Mrs. Miller supervises the hospital's two playrooms.

"The medical staff agrees with what I'm trying to do," she says.

"I try to create an atmosphere in the playrooms where the children will be comfortable and uninhibited and come and go as they please. Also, I allow no treatment or examinations to be given in the playroom, so that when they go there the children will feel it's an escape from hospital routine."

Mrs. Miller also observes her young charges to see how they behave in a group, how they get along with others and to observe how they get along under stress, their tolerance and frustration levels, their work habits and their achievements.

She says this is sometimes of great help in the over-all treatment of children, especially where a diagnosis has not been completed and where emotional difficulties might be involved in a case.

"I overheard one doctor tell a little boy that he could leave the hospital that afternoon," she says. "Instead of being excited about going home, he told the doctor: 'Oh, I can't leave. I haven't finished my basket.'"

Miss Heather Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boyle, R. R. 1 Foxboro, graduated from St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, on August 29, 1969. Miss Boyle who plans to remain on the staff of the hospital, is a graduate of Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville. She received the religious hospitallers award.

Course in Montreal

Students Prepare for Two-year Stay in East Africa

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Two Niagara Falls sisters and the new husband of one of them are taking a training course in Montreal in preparation for a two-year stay in East Africa, sponsored by Canadian University Students Overseas.

Neither sister had been aware that the other was interested in the CUSO organization, an independent, voluntary agency founded in 1961 to provide technical and professional help to emerging countries.

Rosemary Martin, a school-teacher with twinkling brown eyes, decided last Christmas to volunteer, but postponed it after announcement of the engagement of her sister Linda, a student at Waterloo Lutheran University.

"I didn't find out until Easter that Linda and her fiance had applied to go with CUSO," Rosemary said.

"I tried to tell my parents, but they were so upset about Linda going that I didn't tell them until June. It was quite a shock to them, but they have accepted it now." The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Martin, have another daughter, Debbie, who enters nursing school this fall.

Linda and William James Orme of Claremont, Ont., were married Aug. 2 and left immediately for Montreal to train for their work in Tanzania, where they will teach in a boys' high school.

Rosemary will be going to Zambia to teach, and will be about 600 miles away from Linda and William. "Transportation is not very good," Rosemary said. "How you get places depends on your own initiative and how well you can plan things."

After her two-year sojourn in Zambia, Rosemary hopes to travel in Europe. She was there last year and would like to see more of it.

"It will be winter in Zambia when I get there but it isn't very cold—about 30 degrees at night. They have frost but no snow. But in the daytime the weather is warm and humid.

"School starts at seven in the morning and runs until one o'clock. During the afternoon various forms of activities are conducted and then you are free."

Rosemary worked earlier with immigrant children in Montreal and "I found them a much better type of student because of their desire to learn."

"I'm hoping from what I've heard from people who have been in Zambia that the Zambians too think education is important to them and their country."

She says CUSO officials are careful in their choice of applicants. The host government pays transportation from Canada and return and this alone can cost up to $5,000, "so they have to be particular, sending only those trained for the jobs they require and those who will stay for two years."

Husband-and-wife teams are often taken if both can qualify.

Teachers and nurses are always needed, but CUSO is sending workers in such other fields as industry, architecture and banking, she says.

"I met a man who had worked for a number of years with a chemical company and went over with CUSO to assist. Now he's going to stay on in Zambia working for a chemical company—not for CUSO but for the Zambian government."

Code of Ethics in Advertising Approved

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers should soon be seeing appliance advertising bearing a seal designed to tell them the advertiser is subscribing to a truth-in-advertising code of ethics.

The code has been drawn up for the industry by the Canadian Appliance Manufacturers Association partly in response to suggestions from government and consumer.

F. Donald Hobbs, CAMA code committee chairman, says retailers and manufacturers have been involved on the code. This month the association starts its campaign to make the public aware of it.

The literature sent by the CAMA to retailers explains why the association has decided the code is needed now:

"Because the government is becoming more active in prosecuting misleading advertisers. Already the number of court cases is four times the previous annual average, and if convicted, you could go to jail for five years.

"Because consumers are more aware, and their action groups intend to fight misleading advertising claims."

In an interview, Mr. Robb said CAMA members also feel it's good business to be considered trustworthy.

Mr. Robb, advertising manager, consumer group, for Canadian Westinghouse, Hamilton, said the committee wrote the code after members had seen some examples of misleading advertising and had consulted retail and advertising association and government consumer protection experts.

He said retailers who contravene the code will have pressure put on them by the CAMA to stop it. In an extreme case, he said, the manufacturer involved might refuse to pay his share of the cost of an ad. Advertising costs are often shared by retailer and manufacturer.

"As a group of manufacturers, we're not going to prosecute anybody. The program should be self-policing. We don't want a retailer to admit publicly he did any misleading advertising. We just want him to stop."

A CAMA review board will meet four times a year to judge advertisements and to handle complaints or questions from retailers or manufacturers. It is not set up to handle consumer problems directly.

Briefly, the code says no claims should be made for performance or capacity that cannot be substantiated. The appliance model being advertised must be available. Price comparisons must be truthful and warranties must be clearly explained.

Ann Landers

One With Nightmares May Need Sedative

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a devoted father and a wonderful husband. For the past several weeks he has been having terrible nightmares. Almost every night he wakes me up and says, "I just dreamed I was burned and killed everyone in sight." I have asked him repeatedly if he knows any of the people and he says, "No. They are all strangers."

ANN LANDERS

I keep telling him these dreams are good because they help him get the hostility out of his system. He is told him time and time again that dreams mean absolutely nothing and that he should not worry about them.

In spite of my warm front I am not sure I am right. My husband is a very gentle soul and I have never seen any sign of violence in him. Yet, every once in a while we read in the newspapers about a quiet person who went on a shooting spree and kills several people for no reason whatsoever.

We are a military family and my husband is afraid he might lose his security clearance if he sees a counselor. Please give me your advice. I promised to follow it. — ANONYMOUS WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Your husband should see his physician. Perhaps a mild sedative will help him through what might well be a transitory period of anxiety. Urge him to go at once.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll bet hundreds of women felt like killing their best friend when she told me she'd been sterile and then got her pregnant. To my way of thinking he should be arrested. A dirty trick like that is the next thing to rape.

Your theory that the girl is responsible for whatever happens to her and the boy is entitled too whatever he can talk her into (or out of) is plain crazy. Notions like that encourage boys to have their fun without looking back to see how many lives they've ruined. I though you had a few loose bolts when you confessed in print that you couldn't make Jello. Now I'm sure. Why don't you wake up and smell the coffee? — NO FAN OF YOURS.

DEAR NO FAN: I did indeed say that the girl is responsible for whatever happens to her. But I did not say a boy is entitled to whatever he can talk a girl into — or out of. I said most boys would take whatever they can get. And I stand by both statements.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you printed a letter from a girl who had figured out a easy way to lose weight. She discovered the method herself and wanted to share it with others She said if a person will simply take one-third his usual helping — enough to satisfy the taste-buds and get sufficient nourishment — and eat slowly he is bound to drop weight. She pointed out that a lot of unnecessary eating is done by fast eaters who shovel in unneeded and unwanted food, just to keep someone company.

You asked your readers to try the system and see if it works. I did and I lost six pounds in three weeks. I have ten more pounds to lose and I'm sure I'll make it. Thank her and thank you! — GRATEFUL LOSER.

DEAR GRATEFUL: You're a winner, not a loser. Congratulations.

A dinner was also given at the home of Miss Orlando Capobi when a number of her co-workers attended.

Miss Phyllis M. Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Graham, Ameliasburg, graduated from Hamilton and District School of Nursing August 1, 1969. Miss Graham has accepted a position at Bloorview Handicapped Children's Hospital.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Blueberries, Make Excellent Pies

By MARY MOORE

My assignment was to take two pies to a garden supper for 11 people. Then I had to make the agonizing decision of what they would be. I narrowed it down to Lime Meringue and Blueberry Lattice—the latter because imported blueberries were still available. Both were equally popular, so take your choice. I have left out the pastry recipe for you know how to make that.

LIME MERINGUE PIE

Baked pastry shell (deep 9" pie plate)

FILLING:

1 cup sugar
6½ tbsps. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups boiling water
4 large eggs — yolks and whites separated
¼ cup butter
1-3 cup lime juice (2½ limes)
Grated rind 2 limes (easier and drier to grate than lemon)
½ cup sugar (for meringue)
½ tsp. vanilla (for meringue)
¼ tsp. cream of tartar (for meringue)

In a heavy saucepan mix together the sugar, cornstarch and salt; stir in boiling water and cook stirring until thick. Mix some into the beaten egg yolks in a bowl then stir this into the hot mixture over low heat for 1 min. Remove from heat, stir in butter and lime rind and cool a little then stir in lime juice. Pour into baked pastry shell. Cover right to edge with meringue made by beating together until stiff four egg whites, one-half cup sugar and cream of tartar, beating vanilla in last. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until meringue tips are gold. Do not attempt to cut lime meringue pie until thoroughly cold. A lovely change from Lemon Meringue Pie.

BLUEBERRY LATTICE PIE

Unbaked pastry sufficient for two-crust pie
1 qt. blueberries, picked over washed and drained
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
2½ tbsps. minute tapioca
¼ cup cold water
½ cup hot water
Grated rind of one lemon
1 tbsp. lemon juice

Measure ¼ cup blueberries into saucepan and add the sugar, salt, tapioca and cold water and mix and mash with potato masher. Stir in hot water and cook stirring until boiling. Add remaining berries, reduce heat and cook five min. longer stirring gently. Remove from heat, add lemon rind and juice and pour into raw-pastry-lined pie plate. Cover with lattice pastry topping. Brush lattice-work sparingly with milk. To prevent the pie boiling over in oven you must build a "fence" of double foil around entire edge, pinching it to rim of pie plate to fix it into place. Bake at 425 deg Fahr. 40-45 min.

NOTE: A shallow pan below blueberry pie with oven-safe tech water in it is a good precaution to catch any boil over of juice and keep oven clean.

MUTUAL FEELINGS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—When a burglar took $150 from a box hidden in her apartment, Joy March changed the hiding place and left a note in the box saying, "To hell with you." Miss March, a 30-year-old secretary, told police later that $90 was missing from her new hiding place, a vase on the mantel. On the mantel she found a note saying, "To hell (with you, too."

Successful Living

Cat Observes Rule

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I feel that there is only one way to handle people — with love. Accepting them exactly the way they are. Not trying to boss them or possess them, but giving them freedom of choice.

We have a cat which is perfect example of this. Yes, a cat! He's a white Persian and was given all sorts of love and attention even before we bought him. Then we were given a stray kitten, a male. This stray had been beaten, starved, and tortured. A line around his neck, like a white hairless scar, was mute evidence that someone, in his not-too - distant past, had tried to hang him.

That kitten, promptly named Tuffy, was all claws, growls and teeth. As soon as he was given to us, he ran under a chair, and stayed there hissing.

Our white Persian tried to make friends. He went up to him and removed. The stray hit him with a paw full of claws and drew blood. The white cat sat there, not hissing back, just calling the way a mother would call her kitten. After a while he went to his food dish, calling the stray. The stray would not come.

So he — in a sort of cat language we seemed to understand — made us know that he wanted the dish brought over to the chair. We did it. The stray growled, and clawed. The white cat was determined. Twice more his nose was clawed before the stray sat gave in and ate.

Then the white cat stayed there, purring, the rest of the night. By morning, the stray was his devoted and loyal subject, following wherever the cat went.

If that isn't a living example of "do unto others" I don't know what is. — Shirley May

Dear Shirley May: Delightful! I suspect our furry friends have a good deal more warm understanding than we give them credit for.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have been going with this guy for about four months now. Today we went golfing with another guy, and he said about three words to me all the time out there.

Yesterday he was standing beside me when his mother asked me for dinner, but after church he just brought me home. I met his father later on and he was kind of mad at him for not bringing me. His parents think a lot of me, and I got wondering if he was made to see me.

His two cousins are getting married next month and I was told I was invited. I don't know if I should get my dress and shoes. If I am invited will I get the invitation myself? He thinks he could call me at the last minute and I am supposed to be ready.

Do some guys go through a stage where they don't talk, one time, and the next time they're very nice? — Can't Take It

Dear Can't: So the question is, did he fall or was he pushed? And could you bear to keep company with anyone who was wishing he was somewhere else?

Clear the air. Be brave and ask him whether it's time to call it quits — before he suggests it. Clear up the question about the wedding invitation while you are at it.

Better to know the truth now before you accidentally get engaged to a lakewarm lover because of his pushy parents.

* * *

Did you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Two-year-olds are so exasperating. Susie insists on putting on her own shoes, then she has a tantrum when she can't do it right. I feel like spanking her."

You may not be able to avoid all tantrums with a 2-year-old, but a mother's patience and tact can keep a child from feeling constantly thwarted and can help minimize temper explosions.

Encourage Susie to dress herself and put on her shoes, but be ready to lend a helping hand before she reaches the point of complete frustration.

In 1919 we started up,

...and it's the next 50 years that count!

Somebody once asked, "What do you do when you reach 50?"

You could look back; why have Dominion Stores become the largest most successful supermarket chain in Canada? The answer's simple; we started up with a promise; that Dominion shoppers deserve more quality, service and value in the most pleasant and convenient shopping environment. Then we consistently lived up to our promise. A pretty upstart idea, 50 years ago!

You look ahead to the next 50 years. As our modern, fast-paced, complex society becomes more demanding, other supermarket chains are beginning to promise, you, the shopper, more of everything. Not a very upstart idea, considering that Dominion customers in ever increasing numbers have been fulfilling their needs with our promise for the past fifty years!

You re-dedicate your promise for right now! Dominion Stores will maintain that day to day dialogue with shoppers, and effectively reflect those needs and desires in everything we do in our stores and company. We will continue to find new and more efficient ways of doing those things that modern shoppers want. Explore and develop bright ideas that will expediate the distribution of groceries to ensure peak freshness of even packaged goods. To make available to Dominion customers an ever widening variety of top quality produce and products at prices that will promise best value. To build the most pleasant and efficient new supermarkets and to continually update our older establishments.

We re-dedicate our unique urge to outperform our fulfilled promise of yesterday...

You share a Jubilation: we extend a warm invitation to you other shoppers, to join the thousands of Dominion customers who prove our promise everyday. What do you do when you reach 50? You go on about the serious business of making your promise ring true for the next 50 years. That's what you do if you're Dominion. More quality, service and value. Prove our promise to yourself. Today! Join the upstart!

Tustin Home Planting Wins Top Residential Trillium Award

John R. Bush Wins First Place In Commercial Class

Trillium Awards Go to City's Best Horticulturalists

It was three times and "in" for Mrs. George Tustin, 234 Ann Street, who received the highest trillium award in the recent contest conducted by the Belleville Horticultural Society.

Mrs. Tustin has won trillium awards in the past three years but this is the first time she has taken the top award.

Thirty six trillium awards were handed out in this year's residential section of the contest. A special award was Given to F. G. Creegan, 352 Bridge Street, East, for his display.

The John R. Bush Funeral Home took the highest award in the commercial section of this year's contest.

Other commercial award winners were Ontario Hydro, Dundas Street, East; Ontario School for the deaf, Dundas Street, West; Jack Allin Insurance, 21 North Front Street; The Intelligencer, Bridge Street, East, and the Ontario Provincial Police, 400 North Front Street.

The list of this year's residential award winners is as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. W. Slark, 12 Sidney St.; W. Bird, 183 Wright Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Williamson, 74 Selena Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Bird, 18 Hatton Drive; James Meens, 22 Westmount Ave.; J. A. Bly, 194 College St. West; Mr. and Mrs. Dearmann, 255 College St. West; Mr. and Mrs. C. Colling, 205 Dundas St. West.

Mrs. D. DeGenova, 622 Sidney St.; Women's Christian Association Residence, 58 Highland Ave.; Mr. Spry, 35 Edgehill Drive; Mr. and Mrs. R. Norris, 253 Parrott Drive; R. Reid, 7 Sunset Drive; A. J. K. Griffiths, 17 Lee Ave.; R. Dewar, 9 Smith Cresc.; Mr. and Mrs. L. Foster, 11 Smith Cresc.; Mr. and Mrs. G. McQuade, 125 Bridge St. East; F. G. Creegan, 352 Bridge St. East.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Hay, 5 Humewood Drive; Mrs. Dobson, 40 Southview Ave.; Mrs. D. Maddocks, 107 Bertram Blvd.; J. C. Young, 200 Victoria Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Miles, 3 Bertram Blvd.; Don Stanton, 14 Fairway Ave.; Mrs. P. Rainbow, 84 Crestview Ave., Mr. and Mrs. G. Freeman, 230 Bridge St. East; Rev. and Mrs. H. Davis, 100 Bridge St. East.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jeffrey, 152 Dufferin Ave.; Mrs. George Tustin, 234 Ann St.; Mrs. Colin Boninseel, 300 Dundas St. West; Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, 147 Bridge St. West; E. Schlievert, 11 Strachan St.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Inglis, 20 Reynolds Cresc.; Mr. and Mrs. Dolan, 26 Edgehill Dr.; Mr. and Mrs. Gorsline, 14 Crestview Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. Honeyman, 12 Crestview Ave.

Two Awards Stolen Overnight

More than just ardent horticulturists have taken a liking to the Belleville Horticultural Society's trillium awards.

At least two of the white trillium markers have disappeared from the lawns of award winners this week.

The marker awarded to Mrs. George Tustin, 234 Ann St., was missing yesterday morning. This morning the marker on the lawn of G. A. Freeman, 230 Bridge St. East, had disappeared.

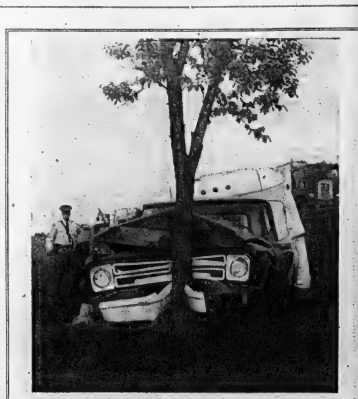
To preserve their trophies, some winners have begun taking the markers into the house at night and replacing them on the lawn in the morning.

Smells Still Beset Town: MacDonald

Mayor James MacDonald indicated last night that the town of Trenton "has more than one stinking problem."

On three occasions at last night's council meeting the mayor stated that the people in the area of Knox Gelatine of Canada Limited had to suffer through the summer, smelling the pollution being dumped into the bay by the firm.

The mayor was concerned as to how the town was going to handle the problem — either with the present sewage lines or the placing of a new line which the firm could use.



Councillor Paul Tripp informed council that the main reason Knox located in this area was under the agreement that the town place a sewage disposal line to the factory. Tripp said that he felt that the firm had been very considerate.

"They have waited a long time and suffered some hardship and if we are as interested in solving the pollution problem as we would have the people of this town believe, then we should do something about it."

He also said that pollution control and the people concerned with the health and welfare of the area have turned an eye the other way "knowing that we were going to help."

Other members on the council had an opposite view. Councillor Duncan McDonald indicated that the firm could install holding tanks for their sewage and control the flow into the present sewer line on the Carrying Place Road.

Council will continue to look into the situation but as Councillor Tripp indicated, "the smell remains."

A truck and trailer accident west of Trenton on Highway 401, early Monday morning was one of many incidents investigated by police departments throughout Ontario over the Labor Day weekend. A travelling pizzaria that had been working fall fairs in the district went out of control and struck the only tree within 500 feet on the shoulder of the road.

L-A County Starts Adult Rehab Centre

NAPANEE — At their recent planning meeting, the Lennox and Addington Association for the Mentally Retarded discussed the Adult Rehabilitation Centre, which will open in September, and outlined a tentative schedule for the school's operation.

Newly appointed manager - director of the A.R.C. was present and described to the executive the tremendous value he derived from visiting other such centres.

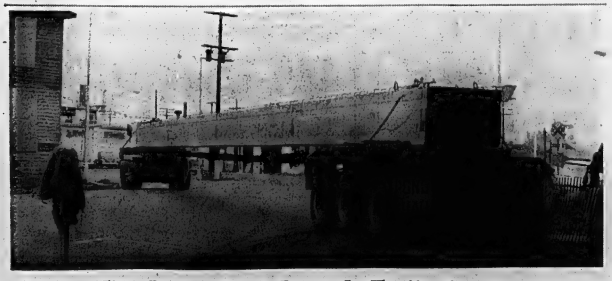
During the meeting the various money - raising activities of the Association were mapped out by members.

Details were completed and committees appointed in charge of the food booth, which will be open in Centreville and Napanee.

Long - range plans were made for this year's banquet. Tickets are being sold to cover expenses for this self-supporting event.

President Friel Julkunsen reported that final returns from the Flowers of Hope Campaign are now over $3,000. To this has been added $1,000 contributed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, as proceeds from the walkathon.

The Association "needs every dollar it can scrape together," the president pointed out, as it has almost no government support.



A monthly grant of $20 for each trainee is all the government assistance given. The Association must provide and maintain the building, furnish equipment and pay salaries and incidental expenses.

Schools for the mentally retarded are not financed by the Department of Education.

The school for this county has been held in the Happy Day School just off Highway No. 2 on the Slash Rd., will re - open in the former public school in Morven.

The former school has been purchased by the Association of the A.R.C. Pupils after they reach the age of 18 can no longer attend the school, and is to care for such trainable young people that the A.R.C. are sent.

The centre will open the second week in September and will operate 12 months in the year except for short vacation periods.

This Bridge Deck Beam Is Traffic Stopper

Temporary traffic tie-ups are a regular occurrence these days on lower Front Street, as deck beams for the new Dundas Street bridge are moved to the site. Here truck loaded with huge 30 ton beam manoeuvres at the corner of Front and Dundas Street completely blocking traffic. About half the beams for the new bridge are in place.

City to Confer with OMB Regarding Plaza Rehearing

Belleville city solicitor E. Guss Porter will meet "very shortly" with J. A. Kennedy, chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board with respect to directions regarding the re - hearing of the city's application for north end rezoning to permit construction of the proposed three million dollar shopping plaza.

Mr. Porter - discussions with the OMB chairman will include a possible date for the re - hearing.

A re - hearing on Thurlow township's zoning bylaw will be held in conjunction with that of the city's rezoning application.

The city solicitor yesterday conferred with the solicitor for Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., which proposes construction of the north end plaza. As yet there is no date in mind for the "new hearing."

At the original hearing last winter the OMB decided against the city's rezoning application, the feeling being that there should be no approval until the report of the city's urban renewal study was received.

Oshawa Wholesale and Towers Discount Store objected to the north end rezoning and also to Thurlow township's zoning bylaw which would allow a plaza construction immediate north of 401 highway in that municipality.

Third '20' Season In Jenkins' Grasp

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fergie's at it again.

Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., who won 20 games for Chicago Cubs in 1967 and 1968, scored his 19th victory of 1969 Tuesday night as the Cubs roared over Cincinnati Reds 8-2.

That victory, combined with

...as earlier 5-4 win in the first part of a doubleheader extended the Cubs' lead to five games in the National League's eastern division over New York Mets who beat Los Angeles Dodgers 8-4 Tuesday.

The twin defeats left the Reds 1½ games behind first-place San Francisco Giants and a half game back of Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Houston Astros nipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 11 innings and Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 2-0 in the only other scheduled action Tuesday.

Oscar Gamble, Glenn Beckert and Don Kessinger keyed Chicago's second victory—Jenkins' 19th against 11 defeats. Gamble singled in a run and tripled in two more, Beckert produced two more with a pair of singles and Kessinger drove in two with his fourth homer and a double.

Los Angeles' Willie Davis broke the Dodger record for a hitting streak set by Zack Wheat and became the first in the majors to hit in 30 straight games since Stan Musial in 1950. But he struck out with two out and men on first and third in the ninth after the Dodgers had scored three times to make it 5-4.

Davis kept his streak alive by doubling in the sixth. He then scored the first Los Angeles run.

New York built up its five-run lead when Donn Clendenon hit his 10th and 11th homers, Ron Swoboda cracked a two-run double and Clendenon singled, stole second and scored on Ken Boswell's eighth-inning single.

St. Louis built up a 6-1 lead before Houston came back on Joe Morgan's three-run homer. Doug Rader's solo shot and Jesus Alou's seventh-inning RBI double.

The Astros then won it in the 11th when John Edwards raced home from third on Alou's infield hit. The victory left Houston five games back of San Francisco.

Rookie Billy Champion pitched a three-hitter and was backed by Richie Allen's run-scoring single and Cookie Rojas' sacrifice fly in Philadelphia's victory over San Diego.

Clutch For Clete

A fan leaps over grandstand rail and onto playing field to plant a kiss on the cheek of Clete Boyer, Atlanta Braves' 3rd baseman as Chicago Cubs Randy Hundley watches during game at Atlanta, Ga., Sunday. An usher chased her back into stands at right. The kiss apparently did some good because Boyer went on to bat and hit a double driving in a run. The Cubs won 8-4. (AP Wirephoto)

Orioles Make Shambles of AL East; Now Twins Turn

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles have made a mockery of the American League Eastern race for the last two months with their big lead and fans looked to the west for excitement.

That has changed, however, as Minnesota Twins now are turning the Western battle into a runaway too.

The Twins clubbed Cleveland Indians and hard-luck Luis Tiant 5-2 Tuesday night for their third straight victory, their sixth in seven games and ninth in 11 games.

That triumph, combined with Oakland Athletics' rainout at Boston, widened the Twins' lead to six games over the Athletics with just a month left in the season.

The Twins have held first since July 5, but Oakland was only two games off the pace a week ago. However, Oakland has lost six of its last seven games during the latest string of successes.

In other American League activity Tuesday, Chicago White Sox mauled Baltimore and Dave McNally 10-3, Kansas City Royals whipped Detroit Tigers 6-2, New York Yankees nipped Seattle Pilots 5-4 in 15 innings and Washington Senators took a doubleheader from California Angels 2-0 and 3-2.

Tiant, who won 21 games last year, had checked the Twins on three hits in a 1-1 tie in the fifth, when Minnesota exploded for two runs and then drove him from the mound in the sixth with two more. It was Tiant's 18th loss and the seventh straight for the Indians.

Ted Uhlaender drove in one of Minnesota's sixth-inning quartets with a single that extended his hitting streak to 15 games.

McNally, who won his first 15 games, suffered his sixth loss in his last eight decisions as the White Sox erupted for nine runs in the sixth inning to top Baltimore for the first time this year in their last meeting of the season.

'Frustration' Game Played By Gaels

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels used "frustration techniques" Tuesday night for a 14-8 win over South Vancouver Legionaires in the Canadian junior lacrosse championship.

The Gaels now go into Thursday's third game of the best-of-seven series for the Minto Cup with a 2-0 lead in games.

Coach Jim Bishop said his floating zone defence and his goaltenders frustrated the Legionnaires into losing.

"They couldn't break through our floating zone defence and this confused them and prevented them from playing their best game."

Under the Bishop defence, four players each guard a zone while a "fighter" covers the ball carrier.

"The floater bugs the ball carrie and prohibits the good shot," Bishop said.

He said the varying styles of his two goal tenders, Fred Cundell and Tom Christie, also shook up the Legionnaires.

Bishop described Cundell as a "reflex goalie" who can be far out of position but can recover to stop the shot. Christie is an "angle man" who usually breathes while awaiting the shot and stands serenely as the ball bounces off his chest.

"Having to adjust to a new style of goaltending halfway through the game can really confuse the opposition," Bishop said.

The star of the game was Tom Simpson, a rookie who scored three goals. Simpson, of Huntsville, Ont., commutes to the games from Sudbury, Ont., where he is attending Laurentian University.

Peter Vipond and Mike Lewis each scored two goals while Terry Rowland, Bill Langley, Jim Higgs, Mike Beamish, Charlie Marlowe, Chuck Li and Tom Vean added one apiece.

The Legionnaires top scorers were Ray Bennie, picked up from New Westminster, B.C., Salmonbellies, and Al Tasker with two goals each.

Other goals were to Butch Skrityk, Tom Sonner, Dave Tasker and Les Shoumaker.

Al Tasker opened the scoring eight minutes after the opening face-off.

Brother Dave made it 2-0 nine minutes later, the only time the Legionnaires led in the game.

Bishop said Huntsville Hawks' Ivan Thompson, defenceman, who is the Ontario Lacrosse Association's most valuable player, would dress for Thursday's game.

The Legionnaires have picked up six players from the British Columbia Intercity Lacrosse League, including Bennie, the team's leading scorer with five goals and four assists for the series.

Bishop said the Legionnaires "seem to be having trouble working six new players into their team. They just don't seem to be running as hard as most Western teams."

Had Grey Cup Thrill

RENFREW (CP) — A. B. (Benny) MacDonell, 30, a former professional football player, died at his home here Tuesday.

He was a fullback with Ottawa from 1949 to 1956, scoring the first Ottawa touchdown in the club's 21-14 1951 Grey Cup win over Saskatchewan. He later described that event as his biggest thrill in football.

After his Ottawa years, he played a year with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Houk Hooked Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Ralph Houk and general manager Lee McPhail were given new three-year contracts by New York Yankees Tuesday. Houk is currently in his seventh season as the field boss of the American Baseball League club.

Expo Has Ulcer

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Montreal Expos of the National League revealed Tuesday that pitcher Gary Waslewski has been admitted to hospital here for a series of tests on a possible ulcer or stomach disorder.

Waslewski is expected to rejoin the Expos before their departure for St. Louis Wednesday night for a weekend series against the Cardinals.

Top Netters Unite

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — John Newcombe of Australia disclosed Tuesday the formation of a tennis players association to be known as the International Tennis Players Championship Association. "We have all of the top players enrolled," he said. "We will try to have a say in the tournaments and the purses."

Quarry Finds Foe

OAKLAND (AP) — Brian London, ready for another payday at 35, and Jerry Quarry, trying to prove he isn't over the hill at 24, meet in a 10-round heavyweight bout tonight in the Oakland Arena.

It will be London's first United States appearance since he lost a decision to Quarry in Los Angeles two years ago.

For Quarry, it will be his first major test since losing a title fight to Joe Frazier earlier this year. Last month, Quarry scored a first-round knockout over Phoenix heavyweight John Carroll in St. Paul, Minn.

In these trying times of an inflated economy and a deflated dollar, $7.50 isn't going to buy too many pounds of chuck.

As for recreation, it would get you into a couple of NHL games, provided you can buy into available scalpers or wanted to see Oakland Seals play.

From Oct. 6-18 in this city, that same $7.50 will buy boys 7-13 more basic delight into hockey than they could get from a whole winter's watching Skinny Night in Canada.

The Belleville Hockey School program — sponsored by the city's Recreation-Arena Committee is not designed to make Bobby Hulls, Gordie Howes, or money, particularly the latter.

Budgeted on a break-even basis, the school's only overhead involves such things as ice — a virtual necessity, most people agree — the films, projectors and blackboards required for all-ice tutoring, and a token fee for about 10 instructors who could make as much by umpiring a local softball game.

Each boy is guaranteed 15 hours of schooling in hockey fundamentals — skating, shooting, most lasting lessons — rather than the pretty-looking, but relatively valueless drills that many commercial hockey schools stress.

If you can't skate, what good is there in practising a two-on-one break?

Skating will come in the form of 15 minutes with one of Al Reid's Quinte Figure Skating Club seniors.

The following 45 minutes of on-ice instruction will be provided by a group of such qualified local hockey personalities as Floyd Crawford and Gordie Bell- Senior hockey's Lionel Reid chief scientist.

Then it's into the dressing room for a film, chalk-talk, or question-and-answer period to develop the youngsters' memories as well as their skating stride.

In addition to ten 90-minute weekday lessons, each participant in the school will get to apply his homework in one of a series of scrimmage games.

There is a catch: parents desirous of seeing their sons enrol in the school had better be lining up at the Pinnacle St. Recreation Centre by 7 o'clock this Friday evening. That's the start of a two-hour registration period that will accommodate the first 320 boys in sign up. (If necessary registration will also be held from 9 a.m. - noon Saturday).

There isn't a minor hockey coach in this city who shouldn't be eager to have some "graduates" on his team this winter.

Lacrosse Youngsters Put Sticks in Storage

Tuesday night 150 youngsters got all wet and put their lacrosse sticks away for winter storage.

The occasion was the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association's official windup night.

Memorial Arena was the starting point of the night's activities. Trophy and crest presentations by Cliff Belch of the Recreation Department were first on the agenda followed by an exhibition game between the Minor Lacrosse Association's coaches and a representative bantam team.

Then the boys got all wet — they went to the Kinsmen pool for a swim and a boat with hot dogs and soft drinks.

Championship crests were presented to the members of the winning peewee and bantam teams — Atlas Van Lines and Larry's Imperials. The Association's only squirt team — the 11-member Golden Mile squad — also received crests.

All players received crests and plaques inscribed with the player's name were presented to the goalie and leading scorer in both the peewee and bantam divisions.

Players on the two title teams — the Atlas Van Lines peewees and Larry's Imperials bantams dominated award selections. Atlas defender Scott Wilkens was named the top goalie in the peewee division while a pair of Imperial players — netminder Pete Cox and leading scorer Danny Payne — took the bantam awards.

Roger Chapman of the Y's Men's Club topped the peewee scorers and was the only award winner who didn't play for a championship team.

"The coach knows best" is an old phrase, and Tuesday night the Minor Lacrosse coaches showed the bantams how to play the game when they registered a 5-4 win in the exhibition tilt. Wally Ubrynuk fired a pair of goals for the coaches while Bernie Howe, Dennis Lane and Bill McConkey added singletons.

Danny Payne netted a pair of goals for the bantams and teammates Danny Nuttall and Rick Barbeau got one apiece.

Deacon Tykes Lead Set

Peter Hall and Joe Molaski shut the door and their teammates went to work Tuesday night to rout opposition as Deacon Brothers trounced IBEW 16-4 in the first game of the best-of-three East Hill Minor Baseball Tyke championship series.

Hall and Molaski scattered five hits and fanned 18 over the six-inning distance while their teammates were collecting nine hits off IBEW hurlers B. Cunningham and R. Mc-Brien.

M. Smith topped the winners at the plate with a double and single while teammate T. Bernatzki chipped in with a pair of singles. J. Tomaso and Hall each doubled for Deacon Brothers and Molaski singled.

Point Anne Sticking With Juniors

City Hotel turned the tables on defending Commercial League champion Stinson's Construction Tuesday night in the fifth game of their best-of-seven semi - final playoff series.

The last time the two clubs met — Monday, August 25 — City hurler Bob Ethier threw a two - hitter and City collected eight hits only to see Stinson's win 3-1.

Tuesday night it was a different story — City once again collected eight hits but Ethier gave up six hard City scored a 3-2 win to take a 3-2 lead in games.

Meanwhile pennant - winning Point Anne stayed off elimination for the second time in a row and knocked off Ellis Juniors by an 8-3 count in the second game of the Commercial League semi - final playoff doubleheader at Alemite ball park.

Doug Hull's sacrifice fly brought left fielder Gerry Geoffreau — who opposed the inning with a triple — home with the deciding run in the top of the sixth to give City the win.

Earlier Jim Sopha's run - scoring second - inning triple and an outfield throwing error gave the Builders a 2-0 lead, but City evened the count with Pug Kellar's third inning run - scoring triple and Larry Potter's r.b.i. grounder in the fourth.

Lethbander Ethier threw third strikes past ten men and walked a pair while Stinson's Bob Swan fanned a pair and issued one free pass.

POINT ANNE 8
ELLIS JUNIORS 3

Point Anne's lopsided win Tuesday night was the first game in that best-of-seven semi-final series which wasn't decided by one run.

Jamie Hunter went the route scattering five hits and fanning five without issuing a walk to help the Cementmen narrow Ellis' lead to 3-2 in games.

Wildness and a two - run homer by Cementmen shortstop Rick Rosebush combined to drive Junior starter Mark Sheridan from the mound in the bottom of the third inning, but before he left he gave up seven runs.

- "Scotty" Reid finished up for the Juniors and limited Point Anne to a single run the rest of the way. The pair gave up 5 hits while fanning eight and walking seven.

Joyces Have Backs to Wall With Orillia Here Tonight

Do or die!

That's the situation facing the Belleville Joyces tonight when they take on the Orillia Majors at 8.30 p.m. at the Belleville Fairgrounds in the third game of their OBA semi-final series.

Orillia has a 2-0 stranglehold on the best-three-out-of-five series by virtue of 8-2 and 16-3 victories in the first two games of the set.

The Joyces must win tonight or suffer elimination in their first advancement into the Ontario Baseball Association playdowns.

Belleville has captured the EOBA pennant three years running, but in each of the last two years the Joyces lost out to Kingston in the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association playoffs.

This season the Joyces eliminated Kingston three-games-to-two in the EOBA playoffs, but they've been unable to get Orillia's number.

Righthander Mike Bulst has been one of the prime thorns in the Joyces' side. Bulst has beaten the Joyces twice with consecutive six-and-seven hit complete game efforts.

The Joyces will be out to solve Bulst's mastery tonight and stay alive in the fight for the Ontario Senior Baseball championship.

Sprackett Saves SACO Victory

John Sprackett switched to an unfamiliar relief role Tuesday night and doused a ninth inning uprising to preserve the win for starter Ken Johnson as Belleville SACO edged Peterborough UEW 5-4 in an OASA Bantam "A" playoff tilt.

Sprackett allowed one hit but fanned two men to get out of the inning as Belleville opened the best-of-three Eastern Ontario championship series on the road on a winning note.

Johnson tossed a three-hitter and threw third strikes past a dozen batters, but experienced control problems and walked 11 in his stint.

Backstop Peter Stalkovich slammed a homer and single to pace SACO's 11 - hit attack. Johnson and Musclow helped SACO's cause with a triple and single each while Dolan contributed a pair of singles.

The series resumes in Belleville Saturday with a 6 p.m. game at Alemite ball park.

Dear Hilda

Dear Hilda:
How do I obtain a rain check when the manager is taking his lunch hour?
Stuck

Dear Stuck:
You'll be happy to know that you can get a rain check from the assistant manager as well as the meat and produce managers. Of course we try to keep our shelves so well stocked that you will never have to ask for a rain check.

Dear Hilda:
In the area where I live there are five large supermarkets and your campaign to alert customers to the advantages of shopping at Loblaws has won me over.
Won Over

Dear Won Over:
I'd like to think that all shoppers are as aware as you of the part that consumer education plays in Loblaw's overall program to help customers obtain the highest quality products for the best possible prices.

Ashe Fighting Tennis Elbow

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The big test comes today for America's two leading tennis personalities—Pancho Gonzales and Arthur Ashe, Jr.

Pancho, 41, still aching from a tough tennis campaign, goes against third-seeded Tony Roche in a rain-delayed fourth round of the United States open championships.

Ashe, fighting a tennis elbow, meets Ken Rosewall in one of two men's quarter-finals. The other sends favorite Rod Laver, unbeaten in his last 27 matches, against fellow Australian Roy Emerson.

Three other players advanced to the men's quarter-finals Tuesday.

They were second-seeded John Newcombe of Australia who beat Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 25-23; Fred Stolle of Australia, who beat Britain's Roger Taylor 6-4, 4-2, 2-6, 6-3; and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, who upset 11th-seeded Andres Gimeno 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3.

Newcombe plays Stolle and Buchholz faces the Gonzales-Roche survivor in the men's quarter-finals Thursday.

Finalists were to be decided also today in the women's singles.

Margaret Court, the favorite, opposes Virginia Wade of Britain, the defending titleholder, and Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, takes on Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex.

Gonzales' match with Roch had to be put off when rain interrupted play for one hour, 15 minutes and the match between Newcombe and Riessen lasted more than five hours.

Legion Girls Still Win

The Legion girls of the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League are taking up where they left off at the end of the regular season.

Tuesday night the pennant-winning Legion club downed Black Diamond 10-3 in the first game of their best-of-five semi-final playoff series.

Sharon Quinn, Nancy McCallum, Joanne Dafoe and winning pitcher Sandra Claus all clouted home runs for the Legion. Linda Dalmard homered for the Black Diamond in support of losing pitcher Connie Carson.

Girls' Softball Goes Over Big

Belleville's girls got a chance to play organized softball this summer and 142 of them took advantage of the opportunity.

Saturday many of them showed - in a pair of exhibition games during the Girls' Minor Softball Association Field Day at Alemite ball park — that they've benefited from the experience.

The junior girls, ages eight-to-twelve, thrashed the women who coach and organize them 12-1 while the senior girls age 13 to 16, dropped a narrow 14-13 decision to a men's team composed of the Association's coaches and umpires.

Both exhibition games were just a part of the Field Day which included relay races, a barbecue and the presentation of trophies and crests.

Alderman Richard Ellis, Cy Coulson, the president of the Belleville Minor Sports Association, and Cliff Belch of the city recreation department were present to award trophies and crests to the Mel Barrage team. The senior girls champions. A round-robin playoff will be held this week to decide the junior girls championship.

The girls minor softball executive of president Jack Garvin, vice-president Mrs. Shirley Warner and secretary Mrs. Pamela Dunitz, announced that a meeting would be held soon to lay plans for the 1970 season.

Car Buff Learned Fast

Jack McDonald, a Trenton high school teacher, learned quickly in his first sports car race Saturday at Harewood Acres — a former RCAF airfield south of Hamilton.

McDonald learned so quickly that he took the lead on the fifth lap and went on to win the novice eight - lap race with an average speed of 79.3 miles-per-hour.

McDonald triumphed over 14 other competitors in the race which was held in conjunction with a Race Drivers School conducted by the Canadian Professional Racing Drivers Association and the Burlington Autosport Club.

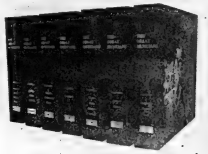
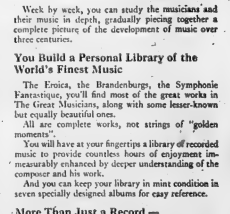
Have you bought a classical record lately?

Did it come with a biography of the composer?



Did it give you an analysis of his music by a famous critic?



Did it show you the men who influenced him?

Did it form part of a study of the world's greatest composers?

Did you buy it at your newsstand for $2.50?

Now you can. Now, for only $2.50, you can embark on an entirely new approach to classical music. Through record-books.

The Great Musicians, a new series published weekly, combines 10* records of major works with twelve page books on the composer, his life and times.

This Thursday, at your newsstand, you can buy one on Beethoven. He's number one in The Great Musicians series. You'll find a recording of his Pastoral Symphony (performed by London's Royal Philharmonic) tucked inside a twelve page serialized biography of the composer.

A Week by Week Study of the World's Greatest Composers

In The Great Musicians Series you study twenty of the world's greatest composers.

There will be eighty-four record-books in all. Twelve of them on Beethoven.

You'll get records of five of his symphonies, a concerto, four of his piano sonatas, and so on.

At the same time, we illustrate his childhood, his artistic and religious influences; analyse his growth as a man and development as an artist. Included too, is a detailed musical analysis so you can better understand what you hear.

The Man And His Music Come Suddenly To Life

The book will help you get to know Beethoven, the man.

The man who sawed the legs off his piano in order to use the floor as a sounding board. Because he was deaf.

The man who was so embarrassed by his affliction he preferred the company of trees to men. If you think about that, perhaps you will begin to see his Sixth Symphony in a new light.

Understanding the man often helps you understand his music.

Over Three Centuries of Musical History

There are ten issues on Mozart, four on Schubert, eight on Bach, three each on Monteverdi, Berlioz, and more.

By combining twelve page books on the composers with full length recordings of their works, the man and his music take on new meaning.

Week by week, you can study the musicians and their music in depth, gradually piecing together a complete picture of the development of music over three centuries.

You Build a Personal Library of the World's Finest Music

The Eroica, the Brandenburgs, the Symphonie Fantastique, you'll find most of the great works in The Great Musicians, along with some lesser-known but equally beautiful ones.

All are complete works, not strings of "golden moments".

You will have at your fingertips a library of recorded music to provide countless hours of enjoyment immeasurably enhanced by deeper understanding of the composer and his work.

And you can keep your library in mint condition in seven specially designed albums for easy reference.

More Than Just a Record — A Record Book

Fabbri of Milan have printed the books beautifully on fine art paper. Every record had to pass seven separate tests: stereo quality, dynamic range, frequency range, etc.; to be included in the series.

And, one of the advantages of having Europe's most modern record factory is that we can produce more records of high quality at a very reasonable price.

The World's Greatest Composers for $2.50 at your Newsstand

Why only $2.50? Because we sell at least ten times as many copies as the average classical album. So each of our records bears only a minute proportion of the original recording costs.

And we sell them at newsstands, smoke shops, department stores, even supermarkets. Beethoven is there now. For $2.50 you can take him home.

Available at your newsstand every week.

No. 1, Beethoven (Part one) on sale now. $2.50

Travel Questions, Answers

BY THE ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

QUESTION: We are planning on a motor trip in England and Scotland and understand that the Automobile Association classifies its recommended hotel and motel accommodations by a system of stars. Can you tell us what the different star ratings represent?

ANSWER: According to the Automobile Association, their star classification is intended to indicate the type of hotel rather then the degree of merit. The range of menus, service and hours of service are appropriate to the classification: all hotels must provide meals for non-residents and are expected to give value for money.

*Hotels simply furnished, with some lounge facilities for residents: bedrooms with hot and cold water; adequate bath and lavatory facilities; main meals served to non-residents at all reasonable times.

Hotels offering comfortable lounge and bedroom accommodation; adequate bath and lavatory facilities on all floors, but with few, if any, private bathrooms; alternative dishes for main courses at lunch and dinner.

Well-appointed hotels with porterage: at least 10 per cent of bedrooms with private bathrooms; electric shaving outlets in all bedrooms and bedroom heating without additional charge; television (if provided) in a separate room; well-served food with good choice of dishes for all courses.

*Exceptionally well appointed hotels offering a high standard of comfort and cuisine with room and night service; at least 20 per cent of bedrooms with private bathroom; suites available on request.

Luxury hotels with at least 75 per cent of bedrooms with private bedrooms; telephones in all bedrooms; excellent cuisine and service.

In addition, hotels in each classification where the cuisine can be especially recommended are awarded a rosette. A very high standard of cooking is expected from rosetted establishments throughout the British Isles, but differing national or regional tastes and styles of cooking are taken into account. Country hotels unable to offer an wide a choice of dishes as their urban counterparts can often compensate for this by the provision of fresh local produce and the specialties of the area.

All motorists should take note of the Ontario Highway Traffic Act amendment that went into effect on Sept. 1, with regard to stopping for emergency vehicles.

Formerly, stopping as closely as possible to the right hand side of the road was only required when an ambulance, fire or police vehicle was sounding a bell or siren. This has now been extended to include an ambulance, fire or police vehicle that is flashing a red light on the roof.

Another noteworthy amendment to the act is that new residents of Ontario, who have a valid driver's licence issued in another province, must obtain an Ontario licence within 30 days. This amendment took effect on June 9, 1969.

Justice Minister Declares War On Electronic Eavesdroppers

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal crackdown on electronic eavesdropping devices may make everything but hearing aids illegal, the Canadian Bar Association was told at its annual meeting Tuesday.

The association, which a year ago passed a resolution calling for laws to limit eavesdropping, heard Justice Minister John Turner give the issue a dramatic focus.

"The Orwellian society of 1984 may be here already," Mr. Turner said. In 1984, George Orwell's classic novel, Big Brother watched from TV sets on every wall.

The watchers of 1969—police, crooks, credit bureaus, data banks—may not be as obvious, yet but they can be as thorough.

Mr. Turner spoke of "radio pills" that can turn a man into a walking transmitter, wired clothes that can transmit his every mumble, mini-cameras that can photograph a room two blocks away by moonlight, parabolic microphones that can pick up a mid-lake conversation from shore.

"Our telephones can be tapped, our offices bugged, our files photographed, our physical movements monitored, our communications recorded, all without our knowing anything about it."

He said that only the police should be allowed to eavesdrop and then only in cases involving national security, organized crime or specific crimes to be spelled out in forthcoming legislation.

Police chiefs alone should be able to apply for surveillance warrants, which would set time limits and require details of the situation.

The application should be made to elected attorney-generals rather than to judges to give the public a chance to vote out those who abused the technique.

Provision should be made to allow lawsuits where persons had been watched unlawfully. This also would be aimed at preventing abuse.

Furthermore, a regular public account of surveillance should be made.

Except in British Columbia, there are no controls on surveillance in Canada and police this year were reluctant to give the Commons justice committee, which is studying the subject, any more than the sketchiest idea of how often they use the technique.

The convention of 850 of the association's 12,000 members broke into a series of panels Tuesday to chew over everything from juvenile delinquency to maritime law.

"Our speaker is the author of the well-known book, 'Seeing Europe on Fifty Cents a Day'."

'More Punitive' Approach Urged To Delinquency

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyers at the Canadian Bar Association convention were told Tuesday proposed reforms to legislation on juvenile delinquents are "trivial when you look at the whole problem."

Lynn McDonald, assistant professor of sociology at McMaster University, Hamilton, told the criminal justice committee juvenile courts should adopt "a much more punitive type of approach" toward young offenders.

Sentences should be considered punishment for specific acts, rather than preventive measures based on an assumption the juvenile would otherwise become a delinquent.

The present concept of giving such offenders corrective treatment resulted in harsher sentences than would a system similar to adult courts.

Ronald Price, law professor from Queen's University, Kingston, disagreed with Miss McDonald, whom he teamed as "enlightened reactionary."

Mr. Price recommended there be a three-year limit on the period juveniles may be kept in correctional institutions.

Hospital Insurance Costs Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hospital Services Commission announced Tuesday that the cost of the government-sponsored Ontario Hospital Insurance plan tripled in 10 years.

In its annual report, the commission said the 1968 cost was $573,400,000, compared with $181,700,000 in 1958.

The report said factors contributing to the increase were a 44-per-cent rise in the number of public hospital beds; a 31-per-cent increase in the number of patients; a 72-per-cent increase in full-time hospital staff and a 104-per-cent climb in wages.

"Salaries, wages and fringe benefits in public hospitals accounted for 76.7 per cent of the $568,500,000 which the commission paid during the year for insured services," the report said.

The province's total 1968 cost for hospitals, including the commission program, mental hospitals and tuberculosis sanitoria, plus provincial special and capital grants to hospitals, was $747,800,000.

Birds Wreck Fighter Planes

KINGSTON (CP) — Canada has lost seven fighter aircraft because of collisions with birds in the last 3½ years, Dr. V. E. F. Solman of the Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa, told a world conference on such hazards Tuesday.

Damage up to $500,000 from bird strikes with a loss of four planes since 1965 was reported by Jan P. C. de Bruin of the Royal Netherlands Air Force.

J. G. W. Bronn, technical officer of British European Airways, criticized airport managements because most bird strikes occur during takeoffs and landings. He also urged city officials to accept their role in bird control. A city dump a few miles from the end of a runway can be a gathering place for birds.

Fifteen countries are represented by 146 delegates at the conference at Queen's University under the sponsorship of the National Research Council of Canada.

Devlin Called Revolutionary

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. Liverseege Orr, chairman of the Northern Ireland Unionist party group in British Parliament, said Tuesday night that Bernadette Devlin, 22-year-old independent MP for Ulster, represents "an international Marxist gang" attempting to stir up revolution with techniques developed by Fidel Castro.

Have-nots May Ask We Share

OTTAWA (CP) — Maxwell Cohen, one of Canada's leading experts on constitutional and international law, wondered aloud Tuesday whether the world's underprivileged nations will want to share Canada's untold undersea resources.

Former dean of law at McGill University and chairman of the Canadian Bar Association's international law section, Mr. Cohen said exploring and exploiting Canada's offshore mineral resources involves complex domestic and international law and raises questions of international equity.

"What is Canada's obligation to the international community?" he asked at a meeting of the natural resources section at the bar association annual meeting.

"I can foresee, perhaps in the next 15 years, that there may be demands to share Canada's rich resources with less fortunate states. We are particularly vulnerable, considering the magnitude of our claims and of our resources."

Mr. Cohen spoke after Claude Isbister, deputy minister of resources, said Canada's claims to the mineral resources of the continental shelf run hundreds of miles into the Atlantic, and embrace the Arctic archipelago.

Cocktail Parties Boring

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

From close and fairly constant observation over the years, it is my considered opinion that nobody really likes cocktail parties — not even the people who like cocktails.

I am not speaking of those small, intimate groups of six or eight, but parties of more than twice that number. Most of the people I know despise giving them, and dread attending them — but they continue to give and to attend.

We so easily become the victims of a social custom that the custom persists long after the pleasure, if any, has departed. The modern cocktail party is an institution that keeps rolling on its own power, and no group of individuals is strong enough to stop it.

I have almost never had a good time at a cocktail party whether on the giving or receiving end. The former role is too harried, and the latter too hectic. As a host, you have little time to talk with your guest; and as a guest you generally find no one worth talking to.

This is because the cocktail party, unlike most other social occasions, is a kind of grab bag. In planning a dinner, or other celebration, you pick the people you like, want to be with, to laugh with, to talk with, and to sing with.

The cocktail party has become a social obligation, rather than a joyous gathering of congenial people. You suddenly realize that you owe invitations to 20 couples, few of whom you particularly care for, and none of whom has much in common with the other.

It would be impossible to have them for dinner, and intolerably tedious to invite them for a full evening — and so the melancholy compromise of the cocktail party is arranged.

They poor devils, are just as uncomfortable as you are; and, in order to conceal their discomfort, they drink too much, laugh too loudly, and drift unhappily from group to group, looking for somebody who resembles themselves.

Of all forms of self-imposed social torture, the cocktail party is the most excruciating, interminable, unsatisfying, able, dysphoric and dismal. Worse than all that, it keeps you from dinner until you are no longer hungry — and thus is an offense against the body as well as a betrayal of the mind.

Boycotts, Pickets, Law Suits Face South's School Systems

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — White boycotts, black picket lines and federal lawsuits faced school systems in the South today as the new term's second day of classes began.

Angry protests against racial integration Tuesday included a firebombing and the padlocking of schools in one area.

White students staged large-scale to wholesale boycotts in some districts of Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and North Carolina.

Negroes protested the closing of individual schools under federal desegregation plans in some districts of South Carolina and Georgia.

Two pre-dawn firebombs struck Irwin Avenue school in Charlotte, N.C., Tuesday. Classes opened anyway at the predominantly Negro junior high school which had to absorb many pupils of lower grades under an integration plan.

Police reported no arrests in the bombings, but 15 Negroes were arrested later in Charlotte after a demonstration blocked traffic. They were protesting an integration plan that closed their school and six other predominently black schools, and called for 4,200 black students to reach classes elsewhere by bus.

Alabama's former Gov. George C. Wallace, a third-party presidential candidate, in 1968, urged Alabama parents to "march on their schools" and demand freedom-of-choice attendance plans for their children.

In East Ascension, schools were padlocked at Gonzales and in other areas Monday night to prevent the opening of classes under court integration orders.

Schools were closed or operating at limited levels Tuesday throughout the eastern part of the district. There were white pickets at several schools, protesting integration decrees that reneged on voluntary integration plans.

There were white pupil boycotts in Florida's Manatee and Hillsborough counties in protest over integration plans which in some schools left private schools in the minority.

In Florence, S.C., about 150 Negro children and parents vowed to conduct classes on the lawn until the school board reopens their closed school.

In Alabama's rural Choctaw County, only 482 of an expected 2,300 white pupils showed up for newly integrated classes.

The Justice Department, meanwhile, prepared lawsuits against several Georgia school districts. Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the districts had agreed on voluntary integration plans.

Five civil rights division lawyers moved into the state to initiate court action. Suits were filed late Tuesday against three districts.

Other federal attorneys were at work in New Orleans on several Louisiana school cases. One of these involved Ascension Parish.

Do Want Ads Work?

Do Girls Like Diamonds?

The answer is a sparkling, clear-cut "yes" to both questions!

Young girls have been estatic over diamonds since the first engagement ring found its way to a maiden's hand finger, left hand.

And Want Ads have been working for the producing results for people of all ages, and in all walks of life . . . never longer than diamonds have been recognized as a precious gem.

If you have never used a Want Ad, you have a real thrill awaiting you.

You can place a fast-acting Want Ad for a very small investment just by dialing 962-8171. The Intelligencer and ask for Classified Ads.

TRADE SCHOOL

Not Getting Into College
Isn't The End Of The World

In fact, it might be the beginning of your world. A bright new and very rewarding world. The world of computer programming.

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them well to learn.

No, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school. A school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centres and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you during the day, evening — even Saturdays.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step to your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you — if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose? ECPI

Posties Cream Runs in Fifth

The Posties put all their eggs in one basket Tuesday night and drew goose eggs for pains of the way, but was enough to edge the Combines 5-4 and even their two-game winning - batting softball semi - final playoff series at two games apiece.

A five - run fifth inning outburst wiped out the Combines 3-0 lead and provided pitcher Paul Williams with all the support he needed.

Williams scattered six hits but was never in serious danger as he issued three free passes and fanned a pair.

Junior Day and Larry Marshall, who came on to quell the Posties fifth inning uprising, handled the pitching chores for the Combines. The pair gave up 11 hits, walked one and struck out six.

Schools Re-open Amid Disputes Over Salaries, Language, Buses

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first French-language public high school in Toronto, a teachers' strike in northern Alberta, curriculum changes in British Columbia—these were a few of the high spots as children went back to school Tuesday.

Meanwhile the return to classes today of 1,786,800 public school pupils in Quebec is expected to be orderly.

But in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard, where Mayor Leo Ouellet has warned of the danger of a "racial explosion" if a solution is not found to a language conflict, Roman Catholic pupils have another week of vacation.

Official reason for the delay is that teachers need an extra week of training. The community has been the scene of a conflict between mainly English-speaking parents insisting on the right to choose their children's language of education and French-speaking unilingualists intent on ending teaching in English.

After the school board began to eliminate bilingual classes, starting with Grade 1, English-speaking parents last fall reacted by establishing private basement classrooms for 200 Grade 1 pupils.

But in Toronto, French-language teaching took a big step forward Tuesday as the new high school opened.

The racket of hammers, electric drills and buldozer sounded, with facilities still under construction. The chairs didn't arrive on time so some of the 300 students—75 come from nearby centres such as Oshawa—sat on desks.

In Alberta's Minburn County, 35 miles east of Edmonton, 120 teachers began a strike over demands for a salary increase and improved allowances on their contracts. About 2,500 students in 11 schools are affected.

Another dispute closed schools in Sydney, N.S., as more than 300 teachers and the city's school board continued talks on a wage differential. The parties meet again Thursday.

Fussss over buses occurred in two widely-separated spots. A group of parents in Iron River and Fort Kent, about 125 miles northeast of Edmonton, said they planned to boycott schools as a protest over the moving of students by bus to centralized schools.

A similar problem will keep 26 kindergarten pupils out of school today north of Guelph, Ont. Parents say one-hour bus trips twice a day are too much for tots. Wellington County school board countered that kindergartens have to be centralized to cut costs.

Indians at Brantford Want Independent State

BRANTFORD (CP) — Most Indians on the Six Nations Reserve near here want an independent Indian state, says Chief Joseph Logan.

"For us integration into Canadian life, as Ottawa wants, would mean creeping genocide," he said in an interview. "We don't want our traditional way of life wiped out."

Chief Logan said three-quarters of the 9,000 Indians on the reserve want an independent state.

"Look at our side as we see it," he said. "To start with, we didn't call ourselves Indians. That was Columbus' mistake, remember? We are ongwehonweh—the original people.

"Our ancestors were a mighty nation long before the white man came to this continent. We had our own version of the UN, a confederacy or peace league of five tribes. Later another tribe joined and we became the Six Nations.

"Our ancestors were farmers, not bloodthirsty savages. Sure, they killed Jesuit martyrs now what's now Midland, but why? In retaliation for the murder of six of our braves by Hurons who were the allies of the French.

"Our confederacy was a democracy and a matriarchal society in which the women had superior status to the man, not like the white man's world. The hereditary chiefs were elected by the klan mothers, leaders of family groups within the tribes, and could be deposed by them.

"In 1534, our people made a treaty with the Dutch, the first white man in what is today New York state. When the British displaced the Dutch, we made the same treaty with them.

"This treaty was called the Two Row Wampum. Its symbol was a white belt with two parallel black stripes. This meant that the white man's boat and the red man's boat were to travel side by side in peace but they must never interfere with one another.

"That treaty, and others like it, were never revoked. . . ." According to international law, the only way a sovereign nation can lose its sovereignty is by voluntarily surrendering it or being defeated in war. Neither is true of us. Therefore we are legally still a sovereign nation."

Chief Logan said an independent state of Indians would maintain close relations with Canada but would run its own internal affairs.

"We've been advised to take our case to the world court in The Hague. If we did, we probably would sue for the return of Vermont while we were at it, since by treaty it still belongs to us.

"But what good would it do? If the court decided in our favor, who would enforce its ruling?

"We don't want to be Canadians any more than the Cechs want to be Russians or the Mennonites want to be Catholics.

"We just want to get what is rightfully ours."

ON PINS AND NEEDLES

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP) — Harold Corning of Elmsville Ridge near here figures he collected at least 125 quills in a recent encounter with a porcupine in his garden. Corning slipped and fell on top of one while trying to dispose of two prickly marauders. He spent a week in hospital as a result and vows he'll give porcupines a wide berth in future.

Aviation Body Seeks Reports On Kidnapped

MONTREAL (CP) — A committee of the International Civil Aviation Organization requested the Syrian government Tuesday to furnish reports on the Aug. 30 hijacking of an American Trans-World Airlines Boeing 707.

The request was sent in a telegram to the Syrian government, the second such telegram asking for clarification on the hijacking over southern Italy of the jetliner with 113 persons aboard.

The flight had left Rome and was bound for Athens and Tel Aviv when it was diverted to Damascus. A bomb exploded in its cockpit about 15 minutes after the passengers and 12 crew members had left the plane.

An ICAO spokesman said Tuesday that according to the rules of the organization the Syrian government must present a report outlining the circumstances of the hijacking. The Syrians, however, are in no way obligated to answer the telegram from the committee on the unlawful interference with civil aviation and its facilities, he said.

The spokesman said ICAO is interested only in the safety of airline passengers and is not concerned with the political overtones involved in air hijacking.

Charles F. Butler, United States representative to ICAO, said the U.S. "has a moral responsibility for the safety of the passengers because it was a U.S. flag airline."

Arab commandoes claim they hijacked the Trans-World jet last Friday as a counterblow against the U.S. sale of Phanton jet-fighters to Israel.

Six Israeli passengers were detained while the plane's 95 passengers and 12-man crew boarded an Alitalia airliner for Rome and Athens.

Two Israeli men were kept in Syrian custody and the plane's four other Israeli passengers, three women and a teen-age girl, arrived in Tel Aviv Monday after spending 64 hours in Damascus.

Hamilton Teachers Urged to Resign

HAMILTON (CP) — The chief bargainer for Hamilton's 1,100 public high school teachers Tuesday urged them to submit their resignations, effective in December at the end of the fall term, to support contract demands.

Jack Warrick, bargaining committee chairman for the Hamilton section of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, spoke to more than 900 teachers here after they began the term without a contract.

Bargaining with Hamilton board of education broke down in June, and no talks were held during the summer vacation.

Mr. Warrick said his committee representatives would visit each school, after which they should submit their resignations to the federation's lawyer for tabulation.

Mr. Warrick said in an interview the teachers have rejected a $400 across-the-board increase. Until settlement is reached they will be paid on the basis of this offer, salaries ranging from $6,800 to $14,200.

He said the teachers demand a 13-per-cent increase, five per cent more than the board has offered, to give them the same average pay as Toronto teachers.

The Toronto range of $8,800 to $14,400 is comparable to the board's offer, but the real issue is respected responsibilities which raise earnings of teachers such as department heads, he said.

Shulman Maintains 401 Booby-trapped

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democrat member of the Ontario Legislature, charged Tuesday that the province's highways are "booby-trapped" with hazardous sign posts and guard rails.

Dr. Shulman issued 11 photographs he took with 25 miles of Toronto on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, which he says is Ontario's best and most modern highway.

In an interview, Dr. Shulman said the photographs of improperly-placed signs and guard rails and of American concrete posts and abutments prove the freeway has been "stupidly" constructed by the province's highways department.

One of Dr. Shulman's main targets is the use on Ontario highways of unprotected concrete light poles when breakaway aluminum poles could be used.

One of the photographs taken on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway shows a "typical safety breakaway post." However, Dr. Shulman points out that the post is mounted on a raised concrete base "which defeats the purpose of the breakaway poles and would be deadly if struck."

Two photographs show wooden or concrete "blunt end guard rails, contact with which would immediately destroy a car," Dr. Shulman says the end of guard rails should be angled away from the road or buried to prevent head-on collisions.

ALIEN LANGUAGE

QUEBEC (CP) — Grade 1 pupils here will see a film showing how creatures from another planet learn to speak French as the education department's first step to reform methods of teaching the language. The movie, one of 125 educational television broadcasts scheduled for 1969-70, depicts the arrival on earth of some creatures from the planet Oralie and their subsequent efforts to conquer the French language.

Union of Students Seems Doomed

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The annual convention of the Canadian Union of Students broke into an emotion-charged debate early today and adjourned after considering only about half its prepared program.

Delegates and observers voted for adjournment of the week-long convention, in its final day, at about 6 a.m. after an uninterrupted 17-hour session.

The crisis began in the early hours today when Barry McPeake, acting as chairman of all plenary sessions, left the chair to address the students.

"I could no longer sit in the chair and submerge the contradictions that are in this congress," said McPeake, a Maritime field worker with CUS.

The conflict he referred to was one that plagued the congress throughout...A struggle between radical, leftist groups who demand uncompromising, revolutionary stands and the new CUS executive, trying to take clear positions but without the use of radical language.

McPeake said there was "a primary contradiction" between the strong, radical terms many delegates wanted to use and the milder language they were forced to use to meet the needs of CUS.

"I want to smash the illusion that I'm a good guy because I'm not. I want to smash capitalism and imperialism," McPeake told the delegates.

CUS was only obscuring student issues, not doing anything to alleviate the problems.

He said some delegates want to preserve CUS only because it provided them with a kind of "power structure" within which they can operate.

He said nothing that happened at the conference would convince delegates to return to their campuses and push to win referendums on CUS membership.

Most CUS officials now agree there is little if any chance of winning the required membership after the convention failure.

Kuznetsov Story Told On CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — A real-life escape story—Russian author Anatoly Kuznetsov's account of his defection from the Soviet Union—was the dramatic curtain raiser on CBS's season of Tuesday night news hours.

Kuznetsov speaks no English, but the hour-long interview taped in London overcame the obstacle nicely. CBS correspondent Morley Safer, a native of Toronto, asked the questions and Kuznetsov's answers were translated simultaneously by a Russian-speaking newspaper man, David Floyd, to whom Kuznetsov turned for help.

Safer explained the writer still lives in hiding and Ang —he prefers to drop his last name—said: "I am still afraid of Soviet officials."

In a quiet voice, the bespectacled author told of his carefully laid plans to escape from his native land after 30 years of his defection from the yaks, "the last straw."

It was a vivid enterprising piece of broadcasting and would have been, perhaps, even more effective if Safer had restrained his impulse to push with dramatic questions.

Kennedy's Lawyers Win Delay Of Inquest Into Girl's Death

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (CP) — District Court Judge James A. Boyle today will announce an indefinite postponement of the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

The delay was won by lawyers for Senator Edward M. Kennedy despite fears the public might think they were trying to hide something.

The hearing had been expected to clear up much of the mystery surrounding the death of the 28-year-old Miss Kopechne in Kennedy's car, which plunged off a narrow bridge into a tidal pond on nearby Chappaquiddick Island July 18.

Justice Paul Reardon of the Massachusetts Supreme Court ordered the postponement Tuesday after lawyers for Kennedy appealed to the state's highest court against a ruling by Boyle that lawyers could not cross-examine witnesses at the inquest.

The appeal must go to the full nine-member court, which is not scheduled to reconvene until Oct. 1. The inquest therefore may not be held until late fall or early winter.

Another development expected today is a decision by Judge Bernard Brosnitski in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., on whether he will consider a request by Edgartown District Attorney Edmund Dinis for an autopsy on the body of Miss Kopechne.

The pretty former secretary to the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy was buried in Pennsylvania, and her parents have strongly opposed moves to have the body exhumed for an autopsy.

Brosnitski has been considering if he has the jurisdiction to rule on the autopsy inquest.

Dinis said he wanted the autopsy and the inquest to clear up some of the unanswered questions concerning the accident, which occurred after a party on Chappaquiddick Island attended by a small group of Kennedy aides and several young women who had worked for Robert F. Kennedy.

Released Prisoners Describe Tortures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. Navy men have given harsh accounts of North Vietnamese prison camp life. Their testimony was seen as a switch of U.S. government tactics to bring pressure on Hanoi concerning prisoner-of-war treatment.

Few if any details came with the release of other American prisoners, but Tuesday, Lieut. Robert F. Frishman and seaman Douglas Brent Hegdahl told reporters of torture, hunger and solitary confinement.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird followed this with a statement saying "North Vietnam has violated even the most fundamental standards of human decency."

Hanoi, Laird said, "consistently has claimed through propaganda statements that our men are being treated humanely." This has been clearly proven to be false, he said.

Frishman said his story was being told because of "a strong obligation to those still back there to get the truth out."

The lieutenant said American prisoners have had their fingernails pulled out, been burned with glowing cigarette ends, beaten, suspended from beams by ropes, and cast into tiny almost airless cells for months on end.

"You resist so long," he said, "but it is only a matter of time before they can make you do anything they want you to do."

Frishman indicated his words may well cause further torture for the friends he left behind.

But, he said, several POWs go together before he left and it was the consensus that he should tell the truth about treatment behind the barbed wire in Hanoi.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscop

For September 4

Your birthday today: Career and living conditions are subject to considerable change (and probable improvement) in the year. Eagery activity of your life involves more people. The challenge will shift to include learning more psychology and practical diplomacy. Romantic interests flourish, sometimes swiftly or with brief drama. Today's natives are interested in occult studies or some special technology.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Clear away the routine. Expect the opposite sex to make extra fuss. State your views directly; be prepared for quick answers. In the evening or for a long weekend if you can manage it, take a trip for diversion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Stick to tested methods today. Rely on your own work instead of other people. New methods work well, but speculative ventures are especially vulnerable to today's pressures.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Fresh views, some odd coincidence, perhaps even pure luck mark the day for you. Sentimental interests thrive, although a better atmosphere for romance must be created by you.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You will be happy later if you will restrain the impulse to be imprudent today. Haste now is particularly wasteful. The moderate approach wins with mate and associates.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your own growth involves passing moments of internal, unconscious conflicts which may upset sensitive people without your knowledge. Nobody seems to get the right picture now, so be somewhat conservative.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Pay attention to those you care about, but resist undue claims on your time and resources. You have more intangible assets going than you realize. Plan a more effective approach to life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You have the initiative and energy, but nobody is in step with you. Do what you can alone; take care not to distract neighbors, fellow workers. Treat others as you would wish if the circumstances were reversed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Diligent search turns up a chance for you to improve your situation lots. The mails may also carry a big message for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Everybody has a different idea about what to do and where to go. Most do not have the drive or the energy to match yours. Make allowances, and proceed with your own interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Impulse that comes readily today should be challenged or else channeled into clearly constructive acts. Your vocation takes a turn, slight but significant, for the better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Romantic interests and distant matters combine to fill your time. Travel, if you can schedule it today, promises to be helpful. Use the evening for meditation, particularly if in a strange place.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): The temptation is to come to the point too abruptly and upset people. The fact that you are right does not help. Make an early evening of it.

Ho's Death Raises Fear About Effect on Future

Power Fight Already Begun

By Peter Gregson

HONG KONG (Reuters) — A power struggle to replace North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh, whose death was announced by Hanoi radio, already has begun, observers in Hong Kong said today.

The man who fought the Japanese, French and Americans died at 9:47 a.m. Wednesday (1:47 p.m. EDT Tuesday), the North Vietnamese news agency reported.

He had been dead for nine minutes when Radio Hanoi reported Wednesday that he was "gravely ill." The radio today said the 79-year-old leader died of a heart attack just a day after the 24th anniversary of North Vietnam's first declaration of independence from France which led to the Indochinese war.

Announcement of his death was withheld for nearly 21 hours, while Hanoi radio prepared the North Vietnamese people with periodic reports that his condition was getting worse.

"Everyone tried their utmost and gave of their best to reclaim at any price," Hanoi radio said, "but because of his advanced age and serious illness of the sudden severe heart attack, President Ho has left us."

The man considered most likely to succeed him is Le Duan, a 62-year-old southerner who is first secretary of the North Vietnamese Workers (Communist) party.

His name surfaced after the Vietnam news agency reported that Le Duan would head a 26-man committee to organize a state funeral for Ho.

The agency issued the names of the committee members in strict order. Noting the attention paid to ranking in official Communist announcements, observers in Hong Kong saw it as indicating that Le Duan had a clear edge over the other two men seen as his closest rival for the leadership.

They are National Assembly Chairman Truong Chinh, 61, and Premier Pham Van Dong, 62. They were listed No. 2 and No. 4 in the committee, and given the title "deputy head" along with Vice-president Ton Duc Thang, No. 3 in the list.

Thang, 81, becomes acting president under the North Vietnamese constitution. But observers do not consider him as a serious candidate for the leadership, most likely because of his age.

The list also seemed to rule out Defence Minister Vo Nguyen Giap for the top spot. He was listed No. 7.

The death of Ho, who died without seeing the fulfilment of his dream of a united, Communist Vietnam under his leadership, was not considered likely to mean any major changes in Hanoi's foreign policy or in the conduct of the Vietnamese war.

Officials in Washington also thought his death would mean no change in the war or in the progress of the peace talks in Paris, which have been stalled for months.

Today's session of the peace talks was cancelled. The next meeting will be held next Thursday.

The Hanoi government announced a seven-day period of mourning for Ho beginning today. The president's body will lie in state at Ba Dinh Hall in the centre of Hanoi and the funeral will take place at an undisclosed date in Ba Dinh Square, the radio said.

The committee organizing the funeral was chosen Wednesday in Hanoi by the central committee of the North Vietnamese Workers party.

The official announcement of Ho's death said that doctors had done their best to save him over a period of several weeks. But it did not specify the nature of his illness.

Prince Philip Plans October Trip to Canada

LONDON (CP) — Prince Philip will make an extensive tour of Canada next month, visiting about 10 cities in two weeks, officials disclosed today.

The trip is mainly in connection with his awards plan for young people, to encourage them to excel in service to the community and in pursuit of hobbies.

But Philip will also make a few speeches on other subjects and will present new colors to the Royal Canadian Regiment in London, Ont.

Flying an Andover aircraft of the Queen's Flight, Philip will make his first stop at Saint John, N.B., Oct. 16. He will continue to Ottawa, Oct. 17; Kingston, Ont., Oct. 19; Peterborough, Oct. 20; Toronto, Oct. 20-23; London, Oct. 23; Calgary, Oct. 23-24; Kimberley, B.C., Oct. 24; Vancouver, Oct. 25-26; Victoria, Oct. 26-28, and then back to Vancouver Oct. 28-31.

Arab Guerrillas Fight Big Battle

From Reuters-AP

Arab guerrillas claimed they fought their biggest battles yet with Israeli troops in the Jordan Valley and said the fighting, which cost them at least five dead, lasted until early today.

An Israeli Army spokesman denied the claims made by Al Fatah guerrillas in an operation they code-named Spears of Fatah. He said their story was untrue "from beginning to end."

"You are welcome to visit the area, and see for yourself," he said.

In Tel Aviv, a military spokesman said Israeli planes today struck for the second straight day at guerrillas east of the River Jordan.

At the same time, Israeli ground forces countered an attack launched by guerrillas with bazooka and small-arms fire on an Israeli patrol near Ashdot Yaacov village to the north.

There were no Israeli casualties in the incidents and the Israeli planes returned safely to base, the spokesman said.

A guerrilla communique said the Jordan Valley battles were the biggest fought by the commandos. They lasted until early today and resulted in heavy Israeli casualties and material damage.

It said the attacks were made on 12 Israeli posts along a 12-mile front extending from Turkmaniya in the north to Suwaima in the south.

At the same time, it added, ground missiles were fired at Jiftlik and Ouja army camps.

The communique said the commandos broke into El Himmeh around midnight and the fighting lasted for about two hours.

During that time, the communique said, the commandos "were in full control and detonated high explosive charges at predetermined targets."

The communique said a large number of Israelis were killed or wounded and several tanks, other vehicles, and gun emplacements, were destroyed.

The Israeli army announced that two of its soldiers were killed and two others wounded Wednesday night in a fight with guerrillas near the Damiya Bridge in the Jordan Valley.

In Amman, a Jordanian military spokesman said two Israeli fight planes, firing rockets and dropping napalm, attacked Jordanian forces in the northern Jordan Valley but inflicted no casualties.

Israel will not wait indefinitely for the release of the two Israeli airline passengers held by the Syrian authorities since Friday, Moshe Carmel said today.

'Sick Society' Assailed

When Criminal Is Jailed Wife Imprisoned Socially

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Canada's prison system and society's attitudes to criminals and their families came under attack from Rev. T. Neil Libby, national director of the St. Leonard's Society of Canada, Wednesday.

"Only a sick society would perpetuate a prison system which separates the sexes," Mr. Libby said at a seminar on the skills of marriage and family planning being held at the University of Windsor.

"When a man is sent away to prison it is an abnormal situation. He is imprisoned physically and his wife is imprisoned socially. Social agencies and workers focus a lot of attention on the inmate and on the victim of crime, but not so much on the inmate's family.

"The greater punishment in our system is the lack of physical contact between inmates and their spouses."

Possible solutions, Mr. Libby suggested, are the experiment in Saskatchewan which allows inmates' wives to visit at week-ends and a move in Kingston where churches have pooled resources to aid wives visiting their husbands in the penitentiary.

All Vietnam Mourns Ho

SAIGON (Reuters) — The death of the man who dedicated his life to create a Communist Vietnam was treated by anti-Communist South Vietnam as the passing of a great patriot.

From taxi drivers to government legislators, southerners mourned North Vietnam President Ho Chi Minh as a Vietnamese national hero who had captured the international limelight for decades.

President Nguyen Van Thieu said the death of Ho will weaken North Vietnamese morale and create an unstable internal situation in Hanoi.

Senator Tran Van Don, a former general who is chairman of the senate defence committee said of Ho: "I don't care about his political views, but Ho is a man who struggled all his life, and he is a man we must admire."

Said a taxi driver: "Without the Communist ideology, President Ho is the best man in Vietnam and his death makes us all sad."

Even a soldier who said he did not like Communists remarked:

"Ho Chi Minh was the greatest of all Vietnamese. He was a patriot."

No Sudden Changes Are Likely in War

By George McArthur

SAIGON (AP) — North and South Vietnam are briefly united today by the death of Ho Chi Minh, united in the recognition on all sides that one of history's dominant figures has left the stage.

Even among his many and bitter enemies there is no gloating.

In both the North and South, apprehension for the future lies heavily on the emotions brought forth by the death of the frail, 79-year-old leader.

The moment of unity is unlikely to alter the course of the war or seriously diminish the fierce divisions among the Vietnamese. In their announcement of Ho's death, the tight little group of men at the top of North Vietnam's Communist party called simultaneously for the pomp and pageantry of a state funeral and an intensified war effort to win the South by force.

There was little expectation among any official sources that the death of the man who dominated the Vietnamese scene for so long would bring sudden developments at the Paris peace talks. Rather there was a feeling that the new men in Hanoi would stand firmer than ever to prove their devotion to Ho's aims.

The eight men left on the party politburo are variously labelled pro-Moscow or pro-Peking, but largely for convenience. Many Vietnamese experts have long laughed at such labels and called them gross oversimplifications. The men of the politburo, these experts say, are pro-Vietnamese Communists.

Toronto Plant Is Fire-bombed

TORONTO (CP)—Two firebombs were thrown Wednesday into the plant of a concrete producing firm which is involved in an inter-union dispute here.

One of the firebombs — bottles filled with gasoline — crashed through a window of the Teskey Ready-Mix Concrete Co. Ltd. but did not explode. The other cracked a window and burst into flames.

Company President Frank Teskey and other employees put out the blaze with fire extinguishers before firemen arrived.

There was no damage to the building except for two broken windows.

News Briefs

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli army abandoned its search for Dr. James Pike tonight. It made the decision after a fruitless, day-long search by troops, policemen and airplanes of the Judean desert for the former Episcopal Anglican bishop of California. Officials held little hope that he was still alive.

Prince Edward County Fair Opens

Prince Edward County Fair will be officially opened at Picton this evening. Above a long-time exhibitor of flowers, Miss Vivian Rylott, asks directions from director Phil Dodds. (For story see Page 2.)

Walking My Geese Back Home

Alex Miller, an exhibitor at the Picton Fair, clutches two geese, one in each hand, and begins to guide them towards cages that will be their home during the fair which ends Saturda y night.

500 Exhibitors
Prince Edward Fair Opens

PICTON — "County fair exhibits in the community centre have never been more abundant nor more beautiful," said fair secretary Phil Dodds.

And in the curling rink it is the same story.

"The girls have stolen the show this year," remarked Mr. Dodds.

The 11 county branches of the Prince Edward Women's Institutes, each with a four by eight foot display, have filled the building with arts, crafts and sewing projects.

A four seasons theme for all women's exhibits is being introduced this year for the first time in Ontario at the Prince Edward County Fair. Seasonal decorations provide attractive backgrounds for the various displays of sewing, rug hooking, quilting and other handicrafts.

Last night about 500 exhibitors brought displays to the fair grounds.

The fair will be officia l l y opened by county warden George Foster and other dignitaries this evening in front of the grandstand.

Doc Has All The Answers

NAPANEE — When the Doc Williams show plays the Picton Fair this Saturday it will have a cast of six entertainers and an announcer, electrician, publicity man, booking agent and sound engineer.

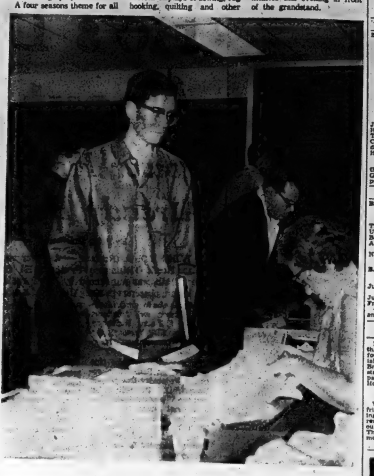
What is so unusual about this?

The last five people mentioned are all rolled into one — Wheeling, West Virginia's Doc Williams.

The first of three shows by the travelling musicians was held last night at the Napanee Fair. Over 1,200 people sat through a two-hour show and saw the star take control of all operations.

At times the sound was poor — the doctor of western music repaired that. Then the lights went out when the power failed. Once again the doc performed an operation to repair the situation.

The visit to the Picton fair will be the eighth consecutive time that Doc Williams and his wife Chickie have entertained there. The visitors are looking forward to Saturday's show.



"We like playing there and the people seem to like us. A great group of directors run that fair and we are treated with kindness," said the Doc.

The strong-willed farmer from Virginia told the press last night that he has cancelled his tour to western Canada this year due to the situation between the Canadian government and the wheat farmers.

Mrs. Williams added to the Doc's statement.

"Doc feels we should not put on a show where we would be taking money from people who cannot afford to spend it. He knows that people would spend their last dollar to make us feel at home in Regina and we don't want that."

"We are looking forward to Picton this Saturday for a second reason. It will conclude a busy week in this area and make the total number of miles travelled on this tour well over 1,500," said Doc Williams.

Registrations Rolling In

Loyalist College opens its first 1969 - 70 semester Monday. Today student applicants (above) are in the last phase of registration — total of which already is running well ahead of last year say college officials.

Laboratory Tests Scheduled On Weslemkoon Skeleton

MADOC — The bones of a skeleton, painstakingly picked by police skindivers from the bed of Weslemkoon Lake, today were sent to Toronto for laboratory tests.

The bones were found last weekend by a holidaying skin diver in the vicinity of a 1953 double-drowning.

Provincial police say they hope the tests may help establish positive identification of the skeleton.

The drowning tragedy in the West Bay area of Weslemkoon, 40 miles northeast of here, involved the deaths of Clayton Appleby, 59, and his son Gerald, 35, trapped by a storm while horsing on the lake.

The body of the younger Appleby was never recovered.

A rubber boot also was found by police skindivers near the skeleton during a three-d a y search of the spot.

No means of positive identification was discovered.

However, laboratory tests may at least reveal the height, age and weight of the victim for comparison with police records on the 14-year-old drowning.

The giant cucumber Mrs. Stewart DeRoche of 11 Reynolds Cres., picked from her garden with six of a similar size this morning measured 17 inches. The seven monster vegetables together weighed 30 pounds and will make 14 quart jars of mustard pickles.

Brighton Boy Hurt In Mishap

BRIGHTON — The two - year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whitney, Brighton, was rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon following an accident at their Colonial Acres home.

Thomas Whitney was playing in his wagon when a milk delivery truck backed into it and injured the boy. Lawrence Weese, driver of the truck, told police he failed to see the child as he manoeuvred the truck into the Whitney's laneway.

Trenton Hospital reported this morning the youngster has been treated for a broken leg and other minor injuries.

Registrations at Loyalist Showing Big Increase

Loyalist College is readying for its third year of operation — with student applications showing a sizeable increase.

The Quinte-district community college formally opens its doors Monday on the first semester of its 1969-70 school year.

Today sees the end of a two-day registration session when most students will have registered for the 42 programs on the college's three-year roster.

Applications this year total close to 440 — the first time the number of possible students has passed 350, a college official said today.

Actual enrolement for the year can't be estimated until registrations close today. Even after that there will be some latecomers who find it impossible — for various personal reasons — to register until later.

However, the trend thus far is definitely up.

As of last night some 345 registrations had been received. The close of registrations last year saw a total 306 enrolled for the college's technical, business and arts courses.

Preliminary figures today showed a "pronounced swing" to business and arts courses, the Loyalist spokesman said.

Some 228 students applied for such courses, compared to 186 in various technology and technician programs.

While Loyalist serves the four Quinte counties, statistics so far today show the bulk of accepted applications — 271 — are from students from Hastings County.

Belleville and its environs — the most populous zone in the region — also accounts for more applications than any other centre of urban settlement.

There are 130 students from the immediate Belleville area registered so far at the college. Trenton is next with 72.

Farm House Destroyed Near Madoc

TWEED — An early morning fire today destroyed the buildings on the farm of Raymond Henley, 15 miles north of Madoc on the Cleveland Road.

Origin of blaze that burned down the house, barn and two sheds on the farm is unknown. The loss of life buildings, 300 bales of hay and some light equipment is partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Henley live in Uxbridge, and the farm was unoccupied at the time of the fire. It has been in the possession of the family for four generations, having been handed down to Mr. Henley from his great grandfather.

BIRTHS

FLANDERS — Roger and Beverley (nee Sandall) are happy to announce the birth of their son, Kenneth Brian, 6lbs., 12 ozs. on Sept. 2nd, 1969 at Belleville General Hospital. Grandmother Sandall for Mrs. R. J. Flanders and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Sandall.

MacFARLANE — Don and Marjorie, R.R. No. 1, Shannonville, Ont. are very thankful to announce the safe arrival of their daughter, Jennifer Elizabeth Kimberly Rosalind, on Saturday August 30th, 1969. Weight 7 lbs. 12 ozs. Sisters Mary Anne, Betty-Lou, Dorothy Jean and Brother Billy. Many thanks to Dr. Dodds, nurses and staff on third floor.

DEATHS

BRENTON — Enid Beatrice Craft — Of the 4th Concession Thurlow on Wed., morning Sept. 3, 1969 at the Belleville General Hospital. Age 72 years. Beloved wife of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brenton. Beloved husband of Ethel Baker. Dear friend of Mrs. Irene Young (Gladys) Gelsthorpe, Mrs. Ethel Gelsthorpe, Mary (Gelsthorpe) Ahearn, Mrs. Connie. Dear brother of Mrs. Grace Sandle, Hanover, Mrs. Marie Brenton, Toronto, Edward Brenton, Toronto. Resting at the John R. Rush Funeral Home, 93 Highland Ave. until Saturday Sept. 6 when the funeral will leave for Christ Church, Tweed. Rev. Mark Hobbs officiating. Interment in Tweed Union Cemetery. Sept. 6 at 2 p.m. Rev. Mr. Hobbs officiating. Interment, Belleville Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, donations to the Heart Foundation or Canadian Diabetic Society would be appreciated.

IN MEMORIAM

BAKER — In loving memory of dear husband and father Harry F. Baker who passed away Sept. 4, 1966.
The midnight stars are shining.
Upon your silent grave,
Beneath it lieves for one we love,
And the one we could not save.
Always remembered by wife Nettie, dad and family.

BAKER — In loving memory of a dear friend who suddenly passed away September 4, 1966.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance.
Just a memory sad and true.
There's a vacant chair and home
Always remembered — by Donald and Mary and family.

Contract

Police To Sign Today

PICTON — The Picton Police Commission expect to meet today with town police negotiators to sign a contract giving members of the seven-man force a $1,700 raise spanning a two-year period.

Signing of the contract will mark the end of salary negotiations initiated nearly a year ago.

At that time a police spokesman clarified members of the Picton force worked longer hours at a lower rate of pay than did any other force in the area. Constables George Wright and Donald Cassidy were appointed as negotiators for the police association during the salary dispute.

When talks with the police commission headed by Judge W. S. Lane broke down early this spring, the association applied for arbitration. However, before a satisfactory arbitrator could be named the commission drew up a new contract for ratification by the police.

Last month town police decided in favor of the new agreement providing a $1,700 raise over the two-year-period and next year will shorten the present 44-hour work week to 40 hours. The agreement will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1969.

The present salary of a first class constable in Picton is $5,400.

Arabs Asked To Close Ranks

CAIRO (Reuters) — Arab nations today were asked to close ranks against Israel and provide full support for a battle to win back Arab lands occupied by the Israelis in the six-day war of June, 1967.

Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Iraq — joined by Sudan — said Wednesday night after a two-day summit conference here that while they would man the frontlines, the rest of the Arab world should help pay the cost.

A communique issued after the talks said: "The battle is too big to be confined to one place. It is a battle of destiny."

Vanishing Smoke Rings

Canadian National Steam Engine No. 6218 steams down the tracks. This train will take youngsters on trips from Belleville to Anson Junction, possibly one of its last trips before retirement.

Milk Delivery Prices Up

It's costing more this week for home delivery of a pitcher pack and three-quart jug of milk.

Two of Belleville's three dairies reported today that the home-delivered prices for both the pitcher pack and the three-quart jugs were increased by three cents, or one cent per quart.

The price for home delivered pitcher packs has risen from 93 to 96 cents while jug prices for 3.5 per cent milk went to 93 cents.

This week's price increase was no home retail sales only, but one local dairy representative said he expected the wholesale prices soon would also be increased.

United Appeal Campaign Really Getting Up Steam

Canadian National steam engine No. 6218 will stoke up Sept. 13 and 14 here in Belleville for what could be the last trip made by a steam locomotive in this part of Canada.

And it's all for the benefit of the United Community Services pre-campaign celebrations from Sept. 13 through Sept. 20.

The locomotive, with its 11 coaches and one baggage car, will leave the CNR station in Belleville four times each day on Saturday and Sunday Sept. 13 and 14 on tours to Anson Junction near Stirling.

According to Kenneth Fleming, public relations officer for this year's United Appeal Campaign, these trips could be the last for the old locomotive.

And students will have the opportunity to take advantage of the tours and, at the same time, do their part to contribute to the United Appeal Campaign this year.

The Hastings County Board of Education has given blanket authority to the campaign committee to co-operate in seeing that students in Belleville's public and secondary schools have an opportunity to take advantage of the tours.

"About 20,000 letters will go into homes via the students," Mr. Fleming said.

Students will be charged 50 cents and adults $1 for an opportunity to travel on the train which has not been seen in Belleville since June 1964 when the CNR was celebrating Railroad week.

The elapsed time of each trip—from Belleville through Corbyville, Foxboro, Madoc Junction to Anson Junction — will be 1¼ hours enabling campers bags plenty of time for photographs.

Apart from the direct costs to the CNR for the operation of the train, the balance of admission receipts will be turned over to the United Appeal Campaign Fund.

Members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the United Transportation Union (Trainmen) and United Transportation Union (Firemen) will be giving their time free of charge.

The BCIVS Key Club will be assisting in the project as conductors.

There will be eight trips altogether, at 10 a.m., 1 p.m., 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. each day.

Students and adults will obtain tickets from their schools, the CNR station, the "caboose" downtown, Rokul's Travel Centre and Davison and Davison Travel Agency.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. PETER J. CASSIDY (Sisco)

Funeral service was held Thursday for Mrs. Peter J. Cassidy, of Sisco, who died in the House of Providence, Kingston, in her 87th year.

She was born in Kricsville, and her parents, Thomas Taylor and the former Mary Walsh are both deceased.

She was the wife of the late Peter J. Cassidy who predeceased her on Jan. 29, 1957.

Mrs. Cassidy is survived by a daughter — Sister Elizabeth Cassidy, St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville — and two sons, John Thomas Cassidy, of Sisco; Joseph Leo Cassidy of Lively, Ont. One sister also survives, Mary Ann Dowling of Hamilton, Ont.

The following grandchildren also survive: Sister Eileen, of St. Joseph's College, North Bay; Larry Cassidy of Vancouver, B.C.; Patricia, Peter, Joseph and Michael Cassidy, all of Lively, Ont.

Mrs. Cassidy was a member of St. Edmund's church, Sisco, and was a life-member of the Catholic Women's League.

She rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, after which Requiem Mass was held in St. Edmund's church. Officiating was Rev. John C. Crowdemeyer. Interment was in St. Edmund's Cemetery.

Bearers, all nephews of the deceased, were John Murphy, Edmund Dowling, Thomas Hinch, Malicka Cassidy, Leonard Cassidy and Stanley Cassidy.

Present in the sanctuary were Very Rev. C. E. Baker, Tweed; Rev. T. Bricelend, Kingston; Rev. J. J. O'Neil, Napanee; Rev. Paul McAvoy of Elgin; Rev. T. Brady, of Kingston and Rev. H. Ladriere of O. M. S. Brockville.

JOEL D. C. BRENTON

In failing health for some time, Joel Douglas Clark Brenton, of the 4th Concession, Thurlow, died Wednesday in the Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 81st year.

Born in Corbyville, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joel Brenton. He is survived by his wife, Elsie Bates and two daughters, Mrs. Bruce (Gladys) Gelsthorpe, RR 6, Belleville and Mrs. Gary (Carolyn) Andres, of Toronto. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Grace Gamble, of Ottawa, and Miss Marie Brenton, of Toronto. He had one brother, Edward, predeceased.

Mr. Brenton, who was a former mail boy with the Corbyville area, had been in retirement since 1961.

Extremely active in church and community work, he was a member of St. Mark's United Church, Hamilton. He was secretary-treasurer of the official board of that church for 32 years, and also the superintendent of Sunday school classes for a number of years.

The body will rest at the John R. Bush Funeral home until Friday noon, when services will be held at St. Mark's United Church, Canfield, at 2 p.m.

Interment in the Belleville Cemetery. Rev. John Hobbs will officiate

Aircraft On Search Missions

TRENTON — Aircraft from CFB Trenton are involved in two search operations going on in Ontario.

Shortly after daybreak this morning the big blue and red helicopter took off to join in the hunt for a 16' aluminum boat missing with two people aboard. Scanning Lake Ontario between Port Dover and Long Point is the coastguard cutter Spume. OPP called for search and rescue assistance last night after John Lawrence, 20, of Woodstock and a woman friend failed to return to John Kreskel's marina at Port Rowan with the rented boat.

Four aircraft from CFB Trenton were back in the air again today as the search was expanded for industrialist W. Lorne Gray, 45, of Toronto, his wife and three-year-old son who disappeared on a flight from Sault Ste. Marie to the Lakehead on Friday.

Drug Tragedy

The Globe and Mail heading read: "Freak-out at the Pop Festival" with a sub-heading, "My God, they're Boned on everything and anything."

The latter were the words of a psychologist who with doctors and police were prepared for a drug orgy at the Rockhill Park pop festival at Orangeville at the weekend — and got it.

It made sad reading, the report of Michael Valpy, there is part of it: "The drug casualties kept coming up the road — victims of LSD, speed, opium, hashish, LSD mixed with strychnine, LSD mixed with speed and beer. . .

"Kids on the verge of psychotic breaks, paranoid kids, kids deep into sub-suicidal depression, some of them starting to regress back into childhood on the chemicals on their brains. . ."

Valpy said about 30 were treated during the night. Not many perhaps in a crowd of 4,000 young people at the festival but nevertheless the prospect of 30 lives ruined. Could this have happened a few years ago? Even in the heyday of the Beatles five years ago the drug phenomenon had not taken root among the young.

What is to be done? These drugs are deadly. LSD can be example, while it can have beneficial effects taken under strict medical supervision, also can cause permanent mental damage. It is incredible that the youngsters will take such risks, but there it is.

No wonder the dangers of drugs must be impressed with even greater emphasis on the youth of our day. Obviously some are not getting the message. Schools, medical authorities and police must combine to try and eliminate this scourge from society.

Movie Inspiration?

We wonder if the recent spate of agitation in Northern Ireland will inspire another crop of movies on that part of the world.

Perhaps the best known, in the political sphere at least, was Odd Man Out from the novel by F. L. Green. Filmed in Belfast, it had James Mason playing the role of an Irish Republican Army man on the run from the police. The book itself was a remarkable piece of writing in which Green, an Englishman who made his home in Belfast, probed the innermost thoughts and feelings of an Irish patriot and the people around him.

Another film going back to an earlier time in Irish history was Captain Boycott, with Stewart Granger as the English land agent ostracized by his neighbors during the Land League agitation in Ireland in 1880. Ever since the name has been part of the English language to indicate ostracism, or to use the much older English term, "sent to Coventry." This is thought to have originated with the Cavaliers in the 17th century when the town of Coventry was strongly Roundhead.

It would not be surprising if one of these days someone makes a film about Ireland's latest troubles starring Bernadette Devlin. She has the looks, the centuries old grab and the dramatic and who knows, maybe latent stage talent.

This recalls that other movie of a few years ago with Bernadette, which however was not political but rather the story of a young woman who claimed to have seen the Virgin Mary.

Lost Freedom

Life under Communism is a grim business. The Czechs know that, so do the Cubans with their shortages, long queues to buy even an ice cream and everyone watching everyone else, a once happy people transformed into political automotons.

In China children are given arms training from an early age. They are also put through the propaganda mill, learning such ditties as this one noted by French journalist Jean-Claude Rigault.

"By the imperialist escalation in Vietnam, Johnson hanged himself and Nixon will do the same . . ." Then a song, its theme being: "Chairman Mao, Chairman Mao, I love you. Dear are our parents, but dearer still is Chairman Mao."

In China, as in Czechoslovakia and Cuba, one obvious manifestation of the death of personal liberty is the ban on photography. Overseas visitors quickly learn that taking photographs of anything even remotely strategic militarily is forbidden.

Other evidence, in Europe at least, are barbed wire, watchtowers, police dogs and all the other impedimenta of the Communist frontier world.

The Berlin wall is the arch symbol of Communist oppression. We should remember these things and be aware of our own good fortune in living in peace and freedom.

Executive Assistants Are Top Drawer in Government

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Once was that a prime minister slugged along with the help of only one executive assistant, one of only the most senior members of his cabinet made do with a special assistant.

(EAs as executive assistants are known in these federal corridors of power are a scratch above SAs.)

It was only 10 years ago, but it might as well have been 100.

Things have changed that much.

The prime minister now has assistants — executive, special, administrative, legislative, program, plans, press and regional — 17 deep.

And even junior cabinet ministers have two, three or four.

What do these EAs and SAs do?

Well, here it is straight from the man who has three, Veterans Minister Jean - Eudes Dube. His EA, Mr. Dube has reported in writing to the Commons, "gives overall direction for the administration of the minister's staff, conducts confidential research and offers special and confidential advice at the minister's request, on all matters within the discretion of the minister."

Get that: ". . .offers special and confidential advice . . . on all matters within the discretion of the minister."

It has to mean that the EA is a decision-maker and policy shaper with his hands on the levers of power, at least in the Veterans Affairs Department.

The EA, P. B. Curd gets $17,200 for all this, up $2,200 from last year's $15,000.

In the salary scale for EAs and SAs, this is about halfway up the pay wall between a ceiling of $21,000 and a floor of $10,000.

A few holes have been poked in the ceiling for three top-rated brains in the prime minister's East Block think-tank, with Marc Lalonde getting $34,000, Jim Davey $24,000 and Ivan Head $23,165. The other 14 tall off to a mere $12,000.

Walker Turnbull, who almost single-handed ran — and alone ruled — Prime Minister Mackenzie King's office, publicly has pinned the label "tire inflator" on this tribe of ministerial assistants.

He does not discriminate. To Turnbull, they are all "applepolishers."

But he errs with his generalization, for there have been — and still are — some real hotshots among them.

One was Bill Lee, EA to former Defence and Transport Minister Paul Hellyer.

Bill Lee was credited — or debited — as the real power behind unification of the Armed Forces.

He master-minded Hellyer's bid for the Liberal leadership, and losing — a new and apparently traumatic experiences for Lee — left.

Let's look, though, at the others, the non-Lee types, through Walter Turnbull's colorful critical eyes.

They are unabashed "yes-men," he says, and "highly prized by cabinet ministers."

There is the poor cabinet minister, bleeding from a thousand wounds to his ego. And there is the executive standing by with the soothing words, the unction, the comforting verbal salve that the minister is gloriously marvellous.

"Played by the Opposition, needled by the press, pestered by constituents, prodded by cabinet colleagues, the deflated minister goes back to his office looking for the man who will puff him up again," relates Turnbull on the basis of a lifetime watching Ottawa from the inside, part of it as Mackenzie King's hatchet-man.

The flattened minister easily finds his inflators:

"Nobody," insists Walter Turnbull, "can get a job, now today, with the government who in any way questions, much less criticizes the federal establishment."

Mackenzie King was different, he relates, because "he "deeply distrusted anyone who, right off the top, agreed with some hard decision made only after searching thought and soul-scanning."

Maclean says that kind of instant-agreement as apple-polishing and instinctively knew how dangerously destructive it could be.

How different now, laments King's former gumshoe, the men around the ministers.

"Safety first types," he calls them. "Nice guys, glib talkers" who are afraid to tell the cabinet minister the way - it - is, because they know if they do, the next thing they will hear will be his cry: "Off with his head, he brings me bad news."

The Young Rebels—in Perspective

Winnipeg Free Press

It began to look in the prime ministerial assault case as though Prime Minister Trudeau had gone in swinging and belted half the youthful four-letter men in Canada. He hit me too; not too, a couple more declared when the act got under way, and one had a mental image of Pierre Elliot Trudeau with six arms, tearing into the crowd like a Gallic Jimmy Cagney.

The justice who heard the complaint found the evidence "inconclusive." He must be a kindly man. No doubt he considered the really serious side of the affair, the use of the courts frivolously to embarrass or bring into public contempt men of high public standing. And thereby to bring into contempt, and to abuse, the courts.

It is unlikely to happen again, because in future the police are sure to get to the demonstrators before the prime minister does. In the end the affair was trivial. It may even have done some good. For a great many people it put the status and the qualities of the four-letter demonstrators into a better public perspective as rather uncouth, dreary and inconsequential specimens who have had all the rope they needed to hang their talents and their views. It's a poor thing. It advertises the fact that those who couldn't handle school sometimes know exactly how to handle the complex affairs of this nation and the world. It's a poor thing as words at a public servant and make menacing approaches.

It's a tiresome kind of behavior in school yards and it has merely been transferred to the streets. It seems to have contributed something to a certain school of public opinion: That policemen have a necessary and legitimate function. Perhaps it will even persuade those who once saw a profound philosophy in flower power that a well washed youth may not after all be a total loss, or a drag on the lively well-being of society.

The Irish Scene

Shades of Captain Boycott

Brantford Expositor

Bernadette Devlin, the Irish MP now on a fund-raising tour in the United States, has been criticized for allegedly calling on American audiences to boycott British goods and shun British trans Atlantic flights. The word "boycott", though not the tactic, is of Irish origin, deriving its name from that of an English land agent, Captain Boycott, who was so harsh in his treatment of his employee's Irish tenants that they refused to have anything to do with him or his family.

Boycott methods have been used in various forms for centuries. As reprisal for economic penalties England imposed on Irish manufacturers in the early 18th-century, Jonathan Swift advised the Irish patriots to burn everything English but their coal. A boycott of British goods, during a visit made in 1912 to Ulster, would merely add to the economic distress in Northern Ireland, a major factor in the whole result of the riots there. The American public would do well to boycott Miss Devlin's meetings if she persists in biting off her nose to spite her face.

More appropriate to the tea tragedy of Ulster is another prophetic comment by Dean Swift:

"We have just enough religion to make us hate, but not enough to make us love one another."

Politics in B. C.

Windsor Star

B.C. politics are somewhat different, because economic and resource problems there are somewhat different. The economy is based on the extractive industries, forestry, fisheries and mining. B.C. prospers as they prosper and the people obviously were concerned about these industries being disturbed by the NDP. A recent rash of strikes didn't help the NDP cause.

Premier Bennett played on these fears, there being a bit of the demagogue in him. He has had, through the years, the support of the powerful industrialists. his Social Credit Party becoming conservative rather than radical. But he was not hesitated to be a bit radical, as in the public ownership of Hydro and the West Coast ferry services, when politically expedient.

Lifetime of Revolution and Conflict

Ho Chi Minh Was Legendary Figure in Communist World

HONG KONG (Reuters) — North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh; who has died of a heart attack, endured a lifetime of revolution, war, and political negotiation to create a nationalistic socialist state in Vietnam.

The 79 - year - old president, whose name is synonomous with decades of upheaval in Vietnam, is regarded by his followers as a communist David facing a capitalist Goliath while holding out against the overpowering influence of Russia and China.

Small in stature with sunken cheeks, lustrous eyes and a thin pointed beard, Ho has become almost legendary to left-wingers through the world as an untiring revolutionary who combines determination with oriental finesse.

He emerged as a Vietnamese leader during the Second World War, engaged in military battle against the Japanese, then against the French after the war, and now against the United States, South Vietnam and their anti-communist allies.

In the last 30 years he has been a nationalist first, maintaining his own brand of communism and refusing to become involved in the Sino-Soviet ideological struggle while receiving the support of both communist giants.

His commitment to anti-colonialism began as a child when he ran errands for an anti-French organization. He became ideologically conscious when he was in France, shortly after the Bolshevik Revolution, and helped found the French Communist party. He then was summoned to Russia for further indoctrination.

Born May 19, 1890, in central Vietnam, then part of French Indochina, he was originally named Nguyen That Thanh, and was acting as messenger for an anti-colonial organization before he was nine.

After a traditional Sino-Vietnamese education, which included studies in Confucianism, Buddhism and Christianity, he worked his passage to Europe on a French ship in 1912.

In 1914, he worked in the kitchens of the smart Carlton restaurant in London and later lived for a time in New York's Harlem district and in Boston before settling in Paris.

He was among the founder members of the French Communist party in 1920, and two years later began indoctrination and training in Moscow as an emissary for the Comintern — the Communist International Bureau.

He was sentenced to death in his absence by the French authorities in Thailand in 1929 for revolutionary activities and jailed for 18 months by the British in Hong Kong in 1931.

He is reported to have said he took part in Mao Tse-tung's famous "long march" through China in the 1930s which gave the Chinese Communists breathing space to stage their rise to power after the Second World War.

Jailed by Chinese authorities in 1942, he was released the following year at the request of the Allies because he was able to gather intelligence for them in Vietnam.

The name Ho Chi Minh, meaning "Ho the bringer of light," was said to have been given to him as a joke by his Chinese prison guards, but the name stuck.

Immediately after the Japanese surrender in 1945, Ho formed his first provisional government in Vietnam, and was elected president the following year. He declared a "national war of liberation" against the French that same year. This was to end in the 1954 ceasefire agreement signed in Geneva after the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu.

The country was partitioned on the 17th parallel pending elections which have not yet been held to decide on the unification of Vietnam.

By now the frail - looking man was a familiar figure through the world. A bachelor, a poet and still a student of Confucious, he revealed a magnetic personality and was always popular with visitors to whom he became Uncle Ho.

From 1955, groups under Ho's influence infiltrated South Vietnam, and began a network of tracks, through Laos along which supplies were moved to Viet Cong guerrillas in the South became known as the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

While successive Saigon governments were overthrown and the Viet Cong grew stronger, the war became more and more an American war as Washington provided ever greater aid to South Vietnam.

After years of bitter warfare, Ho agreed to send a North Vietnamese delegation to Paris in April, 1968, to discuss peace talks with U.S. representatives.

But his price for peace always has included the withdrawal of American "aggressors" from South Vietnam. and the Paris peace talks—now extended to include delegates from the Saigon government and the Viet Cong—remain deadlocked.

Belleville Goes Bilingual!

In keeping with the federal government's policy on bilingualism the lettering on the new Belleville regional headquarters of the Unemployment Insurance Commission on Dundas Street, East, is in both English and French. Office equipment for the new headquarters is now being moved in and the transfer from temporary quarters at the Belleville Plaza is expected to be completed in time for the official opening scheduled for Sept. 10.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Gains and losses were about even today as the Toronto stock market posted a small loss in light mid-morning trading today.

The market has been higher in the last five sessions.

On index, Industrials lost .33 to 176.16, base metals .02 to 107.46 and western oils .27 to 250.11. Golds were up .01 to 181.78.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 547,000 shares compared with 533,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Inco was down ⅝ to 39. Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Falconbridge slipped ¾ to 135½. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Algoma Steel was down ¼ to 15⅝ and Stelco gained ¼ to 23. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

CAE Industries gained ¼ to 8⅝. The company has been awarded contracts worth about $4,000,000 from Canadian and United States government agencies for the development of aircraft guidance systems.

Seagrams was down ⅛ to 50 on 14,370 shares, the most active industrial. A block of 13,600 Seagram shares traded at 50.

Cominco was unchanged at 29½. The company raised its Canadian price for prime western zinc to 15½ cents a pound from 14½ cents.

The Toronto market hung on to a fractional gain Wednesday as it posted its fifth consecutive daily advance.

THE . . . Para 2-F285

The market opened with a small gain, then advanced cautiously, but began to settle near the close.

Weakness in New York appeared to be the influencing factor.

Some analysts say that any major news could send the market into a sustained rally because of strength it has shown in the face of recent bad news such as the devaluation of the franc.

Falconbridge was up ¼ to 135¾. The company has asked the Ontario labor department to assist in ending a strike by Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers that began Aug. 21.

Inco, whose Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs, picked up ⅛ to 39⅜.

Stelco slipped ¼ to 22¾ and Algoma ¼ to 18. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

Brascan slipped ⅛ to 16 despite reporting first-half earnings of $27,883,000 compared with $26,902,000 in the similar 1968 period.

Dundas Bridge Growing

The staid old Moira River is running a different course at its mouth today as preparations go ahead for constructing the second half of the new Dundas Street bridge.

Deck slabs for the east half of the bridge have been swung into place on their piers and today the earthen coffer dam is being extended to the west bank of the river.

Starting at the east bank a mechanical back hoe is being used to scoop up the present coffer dam fill. The dirt is unloaded into a truck which backs across the weir and dumps it into the river to the west thus extending the coffer dam.

Lawyers Convene

Political Foes Debate Before Bar Gathering

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a saying that inside every lawyer there is a politician screaming to get out.

Two who made the move put on a legislative debate Wednesday for the Canadian Bar Association's annual meeting.

The subject was New Brunswick's controversial municipal reform. The contestants were the province's Liberal premier, Louis J. Robichaud, and Conservative Opposition Leader Richard Hatfield, both lawyers.

Elsewhere at the meeting that has brought 850 lawyers together for a week of discussions:

—A Montreal judge and two lawyers put on their robes for a mock divorce case to show how contested actions are held in Quebec.

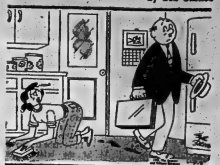
—A squad of lawyers was given a tour of the Supreme Court of Canada by two of its justices.

—Holes were picked in the new federal expropriation bill as Justice Minister John Turner listened.

—Mr. Turner's plans for a national law reform commission were endorsed by the civil justice section of the association.

—The pros and cons of no-fault auto insurance were debated.

—The proposed new federal corporations act, with its provisions on insider trading, was warmly praised.



The Robichaud-Hatfield confrontation took lawyers from across Canada to ringside for the hottest subject of debate New Brunswick has had in years.

Mr. Robichaud's government replaced 15 county councils in 1967 with municipalities supported, where in need, by the province through equalization payments. The premier said the change has meant equal opportunity and better services in a province where there are extremely poor areas.

Mr. Hatfield said the reform "went too far" and created excessive centralization of services, particularly in health and welfare.

Mr. Turner listened as lawyers criticized parts of the proposed Expropriation Act revision and said later their remarks may result in changes in the bill.

THE BETTER HALF by Bob Barnes

"Oh, that's all right — I'll just go over it again — — I was too tired to get up off my knees anyway."

Book Firm Fined

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal book company was fined $400 Wednesday after being found guilty of distributing two volumes by the Marquis de Sade declared obscene by the court.

Les Editions du Beller, Inc., had been selling French-language copies of 120 Journees de Sodome (120 Days of Sodomy) and L'Ecole du Libertinage (School of Libertinage) until police seized 780 of the books last Oct. 23 and laid obscenity charges.

Warning Issued

Group Law Violations Lead to Police State

OTTAWA (CP) — A prominent American lawyer warned the Canadian legal profession Wednesday that police state-style repression could result from group violation of the law.

William T. Gossett, former president of the American Bar Association, told the annual meeting of its Canadian counterpart that massive repression measures comparable to those of a police state would be a catastrophe for all.

Such repression could be brought on by continued "wholesale violation of law by large groups," he told the banquet audience of 1,300 which included Premier Roberts of Ontario.

"The politics of confrontation must not be allowed to degenerate into an embittered free-for-all that will destroy everything," he said. Lawyers ought to be concerned about campus and street violence.

Mob uprisings ought to be dealt with calmly and with restraint, "but with absolute clarity that criminal methods will not go unpunished and that blackmail and violence will not be rewarded."

Some student tactics in campus uprisings were totalitarian in approach. They deprived others of fundamental rights. Such disreputable tactics overshadowed idealistic student goals.

The Gossett plea for reason was preceded by a round of debate in panels as the week-long convention reached its midpoint.

Prof. Melville Watkins, the Toronto economist who headed a federal study on foreign ownership of the Canadian economy, told one group that large foreign corporations operating in Canada were not deterred by Canadian economic guidelines announced by the Canadian government.

Such Canadian pronouncements amounted to "an open-mouth policy" which conned the unwitting people, he said. Canada to have no policy on the extent of foreign ownership was wrong.

The bar association's criminal justice section proposed a resolution of concern about the lack of punishment for publishers of material that could influence jurors charged with judging an accused person.

The section also wants the full association to approve the abolition of corporal punishment and make time spent in prison awaiting sentence count as time served.

Maritime Union Study Plans Public Hearings

HALIFAX (CP) — Political union, no union and various kinds of interprovincial co-operation. All these are being urged on the Maritime union study as its members hold a round of public hearings in Maritime provincial capitals this week.

"Maritime union has more curves than a corkscrew," said Frederic Drummie, executive director of the study, as the three-man group prepared to leave for Charlottetown today and Fredericton Friday.

In Halifax Wednesday Robert C. Coates, Conservative member of Parliament for the Nova Scotia riding of Cumberland-Colchester North, told chairman Dr. John J. Deutsch that Maritime union is no substitute for "the right kind" of federal government policy toward the region.

On the other side of the question, Charles R. MacFadden, president of the Atlantic provinces economic council, described political union as essential if the region is to develop as it should.

Between these two positions, a group of organizations and individuals called for greater co-operation between the provinces, especially in furthering such projects as regional management training centres, police and nursing schools, arts councils and post-graduate education institutes.

Speakers from the same town illustrated the gap between opposing arguments. Mr. Coates saw Maritime union as a false hope. It would distract Maritimers from the main cause of their problems—federal government policies dating back to Confederation.

His fellow townsman, Norman Mansour, president of the Amherst, N.S. Board of Trade, supported political union completely, although he thought it might take five or 10 years to accomplish.

Mr. Coates dismissed the argument that union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island would give their MPs and a united provincial government a stronger voice in Ottawa.

"My experience in Ottawa has been that many things make a good MP and it doesn't matter where you come from."

A fight over Maritime union would set the region back for years, he said, and distract attention from the real problems.

Search Planes Plan To Extend Hunt Area

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Canadian Forces' search planes will range farther north and west Thursday along the possible route of the Toronto family missing since last Friday on a flight to Kenora, Ont.

Assistant searchmaster Capt. William McKay said Wednesday a search during the day along the north shore of Lake Superior revealed no trace of the missing plane flown by W. Lorne Gray, 43, a vice - president of the St. Lawrence Starch Co.

Capt. McKay said the search will extend north to Lake Nipigon.

Missing are Mr. Gray, his wife Judy, 37, and their son Gordon, 4. They left the Sault Friday in a Cessna 180 to visit friends in Kenora but never arrived.

The missing plane was equipped with pontoons, and search officials say it could have landed on one of the many small lakes along its route.

Students Die In Car Mishap

BRANTFORD (CP) — Two Brantford high school students were killed Wednesday after their car swerved across four-lane Highway 3, about 15 miles east of the city, and was struck broadside by an on-coming car.

Police said they believe Edward Young, 20, was the driver of the car. Also killed was Paul Harris, 18. The driver of the other car, Dale Humphries, 27, of Hamilton, and his wife Susan, 26, were reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Shoreline Park Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government has turned over a strip of Lake Ontario shoreline which it owns in Lincoln County to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority for development as parkland.

Notice of the transfer, which gives the authority "administration, control, dispersal and beneficial use" of the land, was given without details in an order-in-council approved by the cabinet Aug. 28.

The land is in what was formerly Grantham Township west of St. Catharines.

Strictly Personal

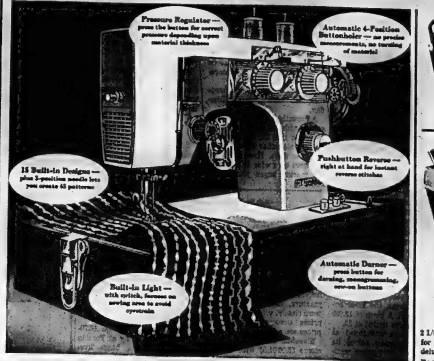
Misconceptions Abound

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A young lady I know, who comes of French origin and lived most of her life in France, told me the other evening that as soon as a new escort hears she is French, he immediately assumes that she is highly geared for l'amour.

"It's such nonsense," she exclaimed with irritation. "Don't Americans realize that unmarried French girls are much more closely chaperoned and much more prudent in their conduct than American girls?"

The answer, of course, is no. Because the French are more realistic about sex than we are, and less hypocritical, we take it for granted that they are "immoral" — when as a fin the Dark Ages of international understanding. Organizations like the United Nations do no good in this respect, because they consist of diplomats dealing with other diplomatists, and the citizens of each country remain as far apart as ever.



Our misconceptions about Europeans are no greater than theirs about us. We still believe, for instance, that the Italians eat all their food highly spiced and full of garlic; actually, the Italian diet is considerably blander than ours. The seasoning in American-type spaghetti would sicken the average Italian palate.

The Englishman is commonly believed to be cold, reserved and austere; but this is only to strangers who have never seen him relax at home, his club, or his pub. Nobody is more casual and friendly than an Englishman, as soon as the thin barriers of formality are down.

All these may seem to be trivial instances, but, together with many other misconceptions, they add up to an ominous wall of ignorance about people of other countries. We are shocked and amazed when we learn what Europeans think of us, and we protest that they are mistaken. So they are; we are nicer than they think — and what is miraculous and hopeful about the human race is that we are always nicer when you get to know us better.

Not Results Expected

Only Two French Classes Formed

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial legislation passed last year to permit French classes on petition in elementary schools has failed to produce the results predicted by Franco-Ontarian education leaders.

The legislation, which became effective last Jan. 1, made French classes in either public or separate schools mandatory when 10 French-speaking ratepayers of a school division petitioned form them and could produce a sufficient number of children.

Wednesday, a department of education official could point to two areas where new French classes had been set up in elementary schools—Burlington and Kitchener. At the same time, registration in French classes in the Metropolitan Toronto separate school system was down by 20 from 1968—1,219 compared to 1,239.

Roger Charbonneau, general secretary of the French-Canadian Association of Ontario, said Wednesday many Franco-Ontarians have not understood the rights granted them by the legislation.

Last winter, Mr. Charbonneau wrote to Franco-Ontarian parents urging them to petition for French classes in separate schools. "We anticipate the establishment of several hundred (French) classes by September, 1969," he told the parents.

He said Wednesday the association is studying why its campaign to extend French elementary classes this year has failed. He said that public French secondary schools have taken up most of the association's attention in the last two years.

Jean-Jacques Blais, president of the Toronto region of the association, said the attention of Toronto French parents was concentrated last year on the fight for a public secondary school with the result that little attention was paid to extending French elementary education.

In Burlington, Mrs. Phillippe Desjurdins, who presides over one of three French classes which were opened for the first time at St. Paul's separate school, said she and her husband had requested such classes for 10 years without success.

Army Units Patrol Libya Hot Spots

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Tripoli radio announced today that infantry and armored units have moved to Benghazi, capital of Libya's vast Cyrenaica province where desert tribes are known to be fanatically loyal to deposed King Idris.

The broadcast made no mention of fighting. But observers in Tunis believed there was opposition to the new military regime of Col. Saad Eddin Abbou Chouireb which seized, power Monday.

Benghazi, the birthplace of Col. Chouireb, is 700 miles east of Tripoli, Libya's capital, and 300 miles from the Egyptian border.

The broadcast said: "Libyan tanks and infantry moved into Benghazi late last night and in the early hours of this morning under the direction of the army officers commanded by the revolutionary council."

Another Tripoli Radio broadcast today made an urgent call for all doctors and nurses to report to the city's central hospital.

The broadcasts gave no other details.

The official Libyan news agency reported Libyan Air Force planes flew patrols over the country's oil installations Wednesday night after anti-British demonstrations in Libyan cities.

The Middle East news agency said the demonstrations broke out after Libya's new military leaders warned Britain not to help King Idris try to regain his throne.

After the anti-British demonstrations, the government ordered the Libyan Air Force to keep oil installations and the port of Tobruk under constant patrol. Britain has a small base in Tobruk.

The warning to Britain came as a result of a meeting in London Tuesday between British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and an envoy from the king. The envoy brought a request from Idris for British intervention to put down the junta. Stewart turned him down.

The country's airports and borders remained closed to all but selected foreign Arabs, but a Tripoli radio broadcast ordered all ground personnel at the city's international airport to report to work, indicating the airport would be reopened soon.

Prostitution Leniency Fails in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — A rise in prostitution in New York Force a two-year period has caused the state to give up on an experiment to treat convicted prostitutes with leniency.

During the two years, police have recorded a soaring prostitution rate that caused even Gov. Nelson Rockefeller to all but admit the experiment had failed.

Prostitutes from out of state flocked to New York's two largest cities, local girls in other cities operated more brazenly than before and young girls were attracted to the trade.

This week, a new law went into effect raising the maximum penalty for prostitution to 90 from 15 days, and wiping out the liberalization attempt that had seen the penalty reduced on Sept. 1, 1967, from a maximum of a year to the 15 days.

New York City officials had appealed for a harsher penalty after hundreds of girls from other states were attracted to the city by the liberalized law.

The city recorded a 76-percent rise in prostitution arrests from 1966 to 1968. Police said 4,728 prostitutes were arrested in 1966, while the stiff one-year penalty was in effect, and 8,045 in 1968, the first full year of the 15-day law.

Police in Buffalo said they had faced a similar problem of girls drawn to the state's second-largest city because of the lenient law.

Search Continues for Dr. Pike

JERUSALEM (AP) — Troops, policemen and airplanes combed the Judean desert again today for Dr. James Pike, but officials held out little hope that the former Episcopal bishop of California was still alive.

Pike, 56, has been missing since Monday night, after his rented car got stuck about eight miles west of the Dead Sea. His 31-year-old wife left him on a hillside and walked all night until she reached a road workers' camp.

Mrs. Pike told police she and her husband were doing research on a book and decided to drive through the desert for a few hours to "get the feel of the Judean hills." She said the car got stuck in rocks and boulders about 3 p.m. and they were unable to free it despite trying for about two hours.

Then the couple set out on foot toward the Dead Sea. After two hours of walking, Pike complained of leg pains and told his wife to go on without him.

"I suggested that he take a nap and when he got his strength to follow me," she said. "I left him atop a small mountain about six or seven miles west of the Dead Sea."

Two hundred soldiers and troops began the search for Pike Tuesday on foot and in helicopters and light planes. First they found the car, with Pike's wallet and passport in it. Later they found a map in a dry river bed about a mile east of the car, and Mrs. Pike said her husband had been carrying it before they were separated.

There were four theories to explain Pike's disappearance.

—That he had taken refuge in one of the many caves in the area to escape daytime temperatures of more than 100 degrees.

—That he had fallen victim to a beast of prey.

—That he had succumbed to the heat and that his body was beneath some overhanging cliff, or had been found by Bedouin nomads and taken to one of their camps.

Engagement Notices

Mr. and Mrs. Simon E. Malloy of Belleville announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Caren Mary Elaine, to Constable Larry Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Scott, also of Belleville. Marriage will take place on Saturday, October 4, 1969, in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Goodmurphy of Consecon R. R. 2 announce the engagement of their daughter Louise, to William James Healy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Healy, 158 Dundas Street East, Belleville. The wedding will take place on Saturday, September 13, 1969 at 2 p.m., in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville.

Family Reunions

(FOX REUNION)

The ninth annual Fox reunion was held at Tweed Park recently, with 70 in attendance.

After dinner, president, Albert Fox opened the business session with a two minute silence for deceased members. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Luella Brickman was named president for another year, with Audrey Fox vice - president and Gladys Graham secretary.

Named to the sport committee was Glenn Graham and Harold Bailey, and to the prize committee, Sylvia Bailey and Linda Graham. The reunion will be held in August next year, in the same location.

Several prizes were given—one to the largest family present, Mrs. Margaret Fox. The couple coming from the farthest distance was Laura and Elmo Blackmae, while the youngest baby was the child of Mr. and Mrs. A. Whitney. Games were held, with all the winners receiving prizes.

After the games concluded, the family enjoyed another meal together, bringing to a close the reunion for another year.

Setting Up Shop

Hospital Auxiliary volunteers left to right Mrs. C. A. Campbell, Mrs. R. R. Blake and Mrs. F. A. Beeby along with other members loaded up display stands and shelves as they readied the local Opportunity Shop for re-opening this afternoon.

Auxiliary Opportunity Shop Opens

When the Women's Hospital Auxiliary Opportunity Shop was opened here 22 years ago the sales for the year amounted to approximately $700.

The volunteers from the Hospital Auxiliary who operated the place then were delighted by the turnover in business.

But prices and buying patterns have changed . . . in the meantime.

The upswing has been a boon to the auxiliary's major project as well.

In the year 1968 the Opportunity Shop grossed $12,000 a record in sales for any previous 12 months.

Yesterday while volunteers were busy setting up shop for the re-opening ceremony this afternoon, Mrs. F. A. Beeby associated with the endeavor since its inception observed encouraging results attained year after year continue to amaze those helping to make it a success. She repeated that the project's threefold purpose was to benefit people looking for a place to donate their used clothing and household articles, buyers hunting for bargains and the hospital receiving the proceeds from their sales.

The staffing of the Opportunity Shop located in the market square is distributed among 100 Auxiliary members.

OPEN HOUSE

The Experts Say

Family Service Group Encounters New Type of Homemaker

MONTREAL (CP) — Families calling the Family Service Association when they require a temporary replacement for mother are encountering a new breed of "homemaker" these days.

As in the past, she is usually a woman whose own family is grown and who has spent most of her life keeping house. But now the chances are good that she may also have a diploma in homemaking, certifying she has completed a 600-hour course in family skills.

Mrs. Leurette Gagnon, supervisor of homemaker service at La Societe de Service Social aux Familles, discussed the course, initiated last October, in an interview. Four months long, it was offered only in French last year but Mrs. Gagnon, English-speaking counterpart is awaiting permission from the Quebec government to implement the same program for English-speaking homemakers this fall.

An outstanding feature of the course, sponsored by Canada Manpower in conjunction with the Montreal Catholic School Commission, is that a woman with dependents is paid to attend. She receives $37 weekly for herself, $18 for her first dependent plus $10 for each additional dependent to a maximum of $75 weekly for the duration of classes.

Others, not eligible for the allowance paid by the federal government, take the course at no cost.

Homemakers may be called in to care for sick or elderly persons, to take charge of children in a household where the mother is physically or mentally ill, or to guide young wives whose upbringing did not provide a sound example in how to run a home.

Their working hours are adjusted to suit the husband's schedule—when he is off work, he is expected to take over from the homemaker. Usually, a case is terminated within six weeks.

Mrs. Gagnon has a staff of 56 homemakers—24 with diplomas. They receive $62.50 a week to start.

So far, 60 women have completed the homemakers' course—30 began last October and 30 more in March. Some had been working with family agencies for more than 10 years but apparently felt the program still had something extra to offer

Following instruction by lawyers, doctors, economists and psychiatrists, the potential homemakers delve into such topics as anatomy, prenatal to geriatric psychology, marriage laws and legal aspects of divorce, separation, adoption, women's and minors' rights.

They study alcoholism, sociology, pregnancy, elementary nursing, nutrition, sewing, basic interior decorating and family dynamics—in short, all aspects of daily life.

Economists advise the women on home management. Once on a case, homemakers usually do the shopping and are instructed to spend the same amount as a mother disposes of in a week. After all, they feel, there is bound to be conflict if a husband discovers his wife requires twice as much cash as the homemaker to run his house.

Nursing is kept to a minimum, Mrs. Gagnon said. If one of the family has casts on an arm or leg, or both, the homemaker is responsible for bathing him. Or if the mother is taking medication, it is up to the homemaker to ensure she swallows the pills, one at a time, and at the prescribed intervals.

Theoretically the program is available to any woman over 18 years of age with a Grade 9 education. However, Mrs. Gagnon definitely prefers to enrol women over 30.

"They have all the training in the world but if they don't like housework, they will not be good homemakers. Older women generally have families of their own and have spent considerable time in the house. Also, homemakers often go into troubled families where there is a divorce or separation brewing. This is not a good atmosphere for young girls."

Another aspect is that few women, lying in a hospital bed, like the thought of a young girl looking after their children—not to mention their husbands.

Even after awarding certificates, the association has ample opportunity to check up on its homemakers. During the homemaker's first week on a new case, the supervisor may phone or drop in at any time. Also, the agency checks the family once a case is closed to discover what, if anything, went wrong.

Prior to this, the women have already spent nearly a month of their course on preparation, working in households under close supervision.

Mrs. Gagnon, who set up the homemaker service when she first joined the agency 11 years ago, feels there are several immediate advantages to the diploma course.

Obviously, it gives the agency a better chance to screen the applicants. Previously it had only a woman's experience and the results of a two-hour interview and a two-week training period as a guide.

Most important, Mrs. Gagnon says the homemaker with a certificate finds it much easier to integrate herself in the family. She has learned in respect and accept whatever family situation she discovers, realizing it can not be changed in two or three weeks.

Each homemaker works alongside a social worker, also assigned to the family, and the agency found in the past that untrained women sometimes tried to influence the social worker, believing their first-hand knowledge of the family gave them the upper hand.

Also, the course provides housewives with a marketable skill. Mrs. Gagnon mentioned one woman who, armed with her diploma, had found a job in Peru.

On the other hand, a good course may provide employment problems. Mrs. Gagnon's department, the largest homemaker service in Montreal, now hires only those homemakers with a diploma. However, cost of the service is each family ranges from nothing to $2 a day so the resultant lack of funds severely limits the number of women she can employ.

Understandably, women will not take the course if they know there will not be a job waiting for them, and because of a problem with references, homemakers find it difficult to operate independently.

Montreal is particularly handicapped. Not only are there several agencies handling each religious group, but they are also divided by language. This puts a great strain on resources of the provincial government and Federated Appeal of Greater Montreal.

However, the demand for services such as homemakers is so great that plans are under way to group the agencies into a central authority.

Then Mrs. Gagnon and her peers can begin catching up with Toronto and that city's more than 200 homemakers.

Fall Styles Eye-catching

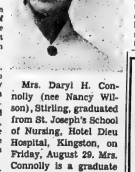
PARIS (AP) — Fall and winter fashions will most certainly shock, delight or distress someone—either the wearers or their male friends—in the matter of hemlines and space-age features.

Buyers left the Paris showings loaded with models they will spring on the public. All are strongly enough executed to demand that everyone sit up and take notice.

This year there is no overnight switch such as there was with Christian Dior's new look in 1947. The long-skirt groups in nearly everyone's collection received mixed reactions. It won't be easy to go back to them. Too many girls have pretty legs. Too many men enjoy looking at them. But the hand writing is on the wall.

Maybe it means that woman from now on will regain some of her mystery and some of the eternal feminine quality that has fascinated men down through the ages.

On the other hand, ladies, pants are here to stay. They go into evening with beautifully jewelled tunics. They step forth for day topped by fur-lined chasubles with turtlenecks, knitted sleeves, and hoods or knit caps, matching gloves and ankle boots. They will be seen in the city, worn with daytime tunics or under furs and leather.



The word "freedom" has become involved in fashion. Courreges wants to do away with skirts and "liberate" woman's bosom, already having liberated her legs with his rompers and see-through pants.

Children In Cars

VANCOUVER (CP) — How to let small children enjoy themselves while travelling in a car and still ensure their safety? The president of the British Columbia Automobile Association says most small children complain about not being able to see out the window when strapped in with a safety belt. G. Conway Parrot says the simple solution of raising the child with a pillow or "cushion, then tightening the seat belt, should allow him a clear view and keep him safe at the same time.

OFFER INCENTIVE

MADRAS, India (AP)—The Tamil Nadu region of far southern India is offering gold medals and cash payment for intercaste and inter-religious marriages as an incentive toward erasing the caste system.

New Orleans Party Chicken Is Approved by Many

By MARY MOORE

This is a remarkable chicken dish. Everything but the bones is used. The skin is cleverly included in a dressing base and the broth combined with eggs becomes a custard to pour over all.

It will appeal to our mothers of large families because of its size; to budgeters because of its low cost; to hostesses because it may be prepared in advance. It won spontaneous unsolicited approval from my crowd of five adults and three children.

NEW ORLEANS PARTY CHICKEN
(Serves 8)
One 3½ to 4-lb. chicken (including giblets)
4 cups hot water
½ bay leaf
1 tbsp. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)

DRESSING BASE:
½ cup raw rice
1 tsp. salt
2 cups boiling water
Chicken skin and giblets put through grinder
2 slices bread put through grinder
1 tbsp. chopped onion (or bottled flakes)

SAUCE:
2 tbsps. chicken fat (skimmed from broth)
2 tbsps. flour
2½ cups chicken broth
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten

TOPPING:
3 slices fresh bread, crumbed (burned in blender)
3 tbsps. melted butter
½ tsp. MSG (Accent)
Simmer chicken and giblets (reserve liver for adding later) in 4 cups hot water with bay leaf and onion, covered, until meat will fall from bones about 1½ hrs., turning once at halftime. Five min. before removing from heat add liver to "set" it. Drain. Reserve and chill broth. On large tray cool chicken enough to handle then remove bones and meat-lage and discard them. Reserve skin.

To make Dressing Base cook rice in 2 cups boiling water with the salt until tender. Put skin through grinder and follow it with the 2 slices of bread. Add onion. Combine with cooked rice and spread on bottom of large shallow baking dish 13x9x"x2½". Cut chicken into large pieces and cover dressing completely with it.

To make Sauce skim 2 tbsps. fat from top of chilled broth and blend with flour and salt. Stir into 2 cups of chicken broth until thick. Add a little to the beaten eggs, then stir them into broth until blended. Pour evenly over chicken in baking dish. Cover with Topping made by melting butter and stirring in fresh breadcrumbs and MSG. At this stage this dish may be chilled until mealtime. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 45 min., until top is golden and bubbly.

(NOTE: Bake 1 hr. if put in oven refrigerator-cold.)

Anglican Church Congregation Bids Retiring Pastor Farewell

DESERONTO — St. Mark's Anglican Church has bade farewell to its rector and his wife, Rev. A. F. and Mrs. Dowdell, here six years, and left Wednesday for their new home in Cobourg. Mr. Dowdell is retiring after 40 years of service.

SIZES 2-8

Wednesday the congregation met for a church supper, with the rector and his wife as guests of honor. Mrs. Dowdell was presented with a handbag, and Mr. Dowdell with a pen, by the evening unit of the Anglican Church Women, and to both went a presentation of a purse of money from the congregation.

The rector's last weekend in Deseronto was a busy one. Saturday evening he officiated at a wedding in St. Mark's Church. Sunday he was in charge of the two services during the morning, with a baptism at the second service. Rev. C. R. Rudd of Peterborough spoke on behalf of the Canadian Bible Society and Mr. Dowdell said farewell to his parishioners.

Sunday afternoon the rector baptized an infant at All Saints church on the Tyendinaga Reserve. He has been responsible for such duties on the reserve since the sudden death last March of Rev. F. F. Downing, chaplain to the Mohawks. The two lay readers are conducting the regular Sunday services there.

Rev. Canon John Hutchison of Kingston will conduct the services in St. Mark's church September 7 and 14.

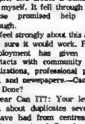
Successful Living

Exciting Trips Offered to Hikers, Hostellers

By DORIS CLARK

Being a Canadian Youth Hostel not only means getting low-cost accommodation away from home; it also means getting in on some imaginative trips. A summer edition of The Nova Scotian Hosteller talks up some terrific tripping for vacation time.

Among other things there is a mountain-climbing group, a project called orienteering, all kinds of camping and hiking in the Maritimes, fascinating such things as "swimming, corn boil," fishing and anything else you might do when you are living under the sky.



I was particularly intrigued by a French language trip to take place in the summer of 1959. This calls for a French language course in France and a tour of Central Europe, and should take about five weeks. The Hosteller anticipates an enrolment of about 30 participants, school groups, individuals, school teachers.

Advertised are rental bicycles, and Swing-Air I.D. Cards from Air Canada, and freeze-dried foods for hiking and canoe trips.

Other Canadian regions of the other exciting prospects. Hostelling is a great way to get around!

Dear Doris: I read with great interest your story about

DORIS CLARK

Mr. Churchman and the Retired Manpower Service. This idea is one I was trying on my own last year, along with Arts and Crafts to help the older people, and create a business for myself. It fell through because promised help fell through.

I feel strongly about this and feel sure it would work. Past employment has given me contacts with community organizations, professional people, and newspapers.—Can It Be Done?

Dear Can IT?: Your letter just about duplicates several I have had from centres in various parts of Canada. Indeed it can be done!

As first steps, I'd suggest:

(1) Find out what is already being done where you are. Visit Canada Manpower and talk to the manager.

(2) Determine the local need. Your family agency or social planning council will clue you in to how things are going with the senior residents of your town.

(3) Start small. Pass the word around by mouth, and by inexpensive circular. Keep overhead down. This can mean the difference between success and failure.

Dear Doris: I am approaching my late teens and I am very self-conscious about my long face.

What can one do to make his face appear rounder? Is it better to wear one's hair short or fairly long? I am male. — Long Face

Dear Long Face: Here's the low down, straight from a male hair stylist:

Keep you hair thinned out on top. Keep plenty of fulness on the sides, extending to the top of the ear. If you like sideburns, grow some; they will widen the effect too.

Cultivate a wide smile!

Doris welcomes your comments and ideas. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Ann Landers
All Wives Have Similar Problems

DEAR READERS: Remember the letter from the physician's wife who said doctors make the world's worst husbands?? She confessed she believed (when she was young and foolish) that if she married a doctor she'd have someone to look after her when she became ill. "The closest thing I get to medical attention from my husband," she moaned, "is instructions to go look in the top drawer of his desk where he throws his samples. There is always plenty of stuff in there and I'm supposed to take what I need."

ANN LANDERS

Additional complaints: If the children get sick at night, doctor-husband refuses to call another doctor because he hates to bother a friend. His friends don't mind bothering him, however, his wife asserted. Frequently he is awakened at all hours of the night and he never refuses to get dressed and go.

The disenchanted wife closed by saying, "When I was a dewey-eyed romantic co-ed I thought it would be wonderful to be married to a professional man. And I still do, but I wish I had married a lawyer." She signed her letter G.P.'s MATE."

I told G.P.'s Mate her letter should be answered by a doctor's wife and I did not qualify. I invited the wives of hysicians to respond and promised to print the best letter. The results were staggering. Since it was virtually impossible to make a decision, I opted in favor of printing the best lines from the top five letters. Here they are:

From Cincinnati: That doctor's wife who thinks she should have married a lawyer can have mine. He hasn't had dinner home two night in a row since he passed the bar — nine years ago.

From Battle Creek, Michigan: Tell G.P.'s Mate to quit griping. I have the same problem with my husband and he's no doctor. He's a carpenter. Our house is falling down and I can't get him to pick up a hammer. For six months I've been begging him to fix the roof but he is "too busy." All husbands are the same, Ann Landers — heroes in the outside world and bums in their own families.

From Washington, D.C.: I'm married to a Certified Public Accountant. So who do you think does the income tax in our family?? You guessed it, — little ol' me — a high school dropout.

From Omaha, Nebraska: If that G.P.'s mate thinks she'd be better off married to a psychiatrist tell her to forget it. Every time I look sideways my husband tells me I am compensating, transferring, projecting or hallucinating. His Royal Highness was so busy last month I had to make an appointment (under an assumed name) to discuss our six-year-old son who still wets his pants.

From St. Louis: If that lonely G.P.'s wife lives in our town please tell her to call my husband. He's a minister. I can promise her that he'll give her as much time as she wants — especially if she is attractive. Meanwhile, back at the parsonage I'd give anything to hear an adult voice. I have no car, no money, no decent clothes, no social life and no family life. When I get to feeling so depressed and lonely that I can't stand it anymore, guess who I call? My doctor. He is just wonderful.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Be a good boy and eat your asparagus."

Son: "I don't like it."

Mother: "How do you know? You haven't even tried it. Please taste it just to please me."

Son: "I don't like asparagus."

Father: "This looks delicious the way Mother fixed it. I'll put a little on your plate so you can taste it. You might be surprised."

Children should try foods because the food is good — not to stay in favor with their parents. Serve a small portion as if you expect it to be enjoyed. Then forego any further forcing of food, however subtle it may be.

MR. AND MRS. GILLES CHRETIEN

Chretien – Meagher

St. Joseph's Church, Belleville, was the scene of the August wedding, when Barbara Joan Meagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Meagher of Belleville, exchanged wedding vows with Gilles Romeo Chretien, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Chretien, of R.R. No. 2, Indian River. Officiating at the ceremony was Father C. Gazeley. Rendering appropriate nuptial selections was Sister Mary Wilhemina and soloist was Mrs. William Coon, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of imported crystal peau in an A-line styling with a round neck, and yoke. The gown featured short sleeves, and the overdress was attached at the front yoke falling into a chapel train edged in the same lace. Her headpiece was of daisy clusters, matching with pearl stamens holding a four-tier silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph Ross, of Peterborough, was attired in a floor length gown of pink chiffon with an Empire waistline, square neckline, completed by tear drop edging around the armholes, neckline and waist. The bodice was of silencon lace, while the skirt was pure silk chiffon over nylon taffeta. She carried a cameliot cluster bouquet of white glamellias, centred with pink.

Best man was Charles Taylor of Peterborough. Ushers were Douglas Meagher, brother of the bride.

For the wedding reception held in the Gold Knight Room at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a pink surrah silk dress, in princess lines, completed by matching accessories and a corsage of two white cymbidium orchids. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegrom chose a two-piece beige shantung ensemble, complemented by pink and beige accessories and a corsage of two pink orchids.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride donned a pink wool crepe dress, navy accessories and a corsage of white daisy 'mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside at R. R. 3, Indian River.

Friends Honor Couple On 40th Anniversary

NAPANEE — On August 28, 1939, Hazel Beroice Benn and Bertram Wartman Asselstine were united in marriage in the parsonage of the Methodist Church in Selby, by Rev. Mr. Foley. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Benn of Forest Mills, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Asselstine of Marlbank, now deceased. Their own church was in Roblin, but their minister was on holidays at the time.

Mrs. Reginald Chapman, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid and Kenneth Benn, brother of the bride, was the best man.

On their return and until 14 years ago when they moved to Napanee Mr. and Mrs. Asselstine farmed near Marlbank. Last Sunday the 40th anniversary of the wedding was celebrated at the summer vacation home Bert and Bernice Asselstine have built on their 75 - acre holding on Lime Lake, Mr. Asselstine, a former member of the Napanee Town council, is now an employee in the post office, and Bernice Asselstine for ten years has carried on a successful Dundas St. business known as Bernice's Ladies' Wear. Both take an active part in affairs of the town and of Trinity United Church.

All but one of their eight children are married, James of Kingston, Douglas, lives in Napanee, William in Odessa, Stanley in Amherstview, Doctine, Mrs. William Jordan, in Scarboro; Faye, Mrs. Michael O'Grady, in Oshawa; Paul in Peterborough and Louis of Napanee. All with their wives or husbands, and their children, attended the anniversary, except William and Stanley.

Among the many gifts was one that was a trip by jet plane from Ottawa to Toronto the previous day, the first trip by air for either parent. It was the gift of their children.

Many friends called during the day to offer their good wishes.

USE CAREFULLY

HUNTINGDON, Que. (CP) — The Huntingdon fire inspector says most fireworks accidents are caused by misuse. Using a firecracker to propel a missile from a tube or removing the explosive material for other experiments may cause serious injury. Besides, the dismantling of a firework is an offence punishable under the Explosives Act. No one should approach a firework when it appears to have gone out — it may still be smoldering.

WEDDING

THOMPSON — SPRACKETT

Rev. John Griffen officiated at the candlelight ceremony in Kingsview United Church, Oshawa, recently, when Francis Jeanne Sprackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprackett of Oshawa was united in marriage to Ian Charles Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Huntsville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white sparkle organza, fashioned with an empire style waist, lily point sleeves and an A-line skirt. Her headdress consisted of a beaded tiara from which flowed a silk tulle illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisy 'mums and yellow sweetheart roses.

Miss Frances Pitts was maid of honor and the Misses Karen and Kristan Anderson, nieces of the bride were junior bridesmaids. All were dressed in orange and each carried a bouquet of pale yellow 'mums.

Ross Moore was groomsman and the ushers were Ivan Thompson, brother of the bridegroom and William Sprackett, brother of the bride.

The reception was held at the Lions Club hall in Bowmanville.

For the honeymoon trip to Temagami, the bride chose an orange ice dress with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Huntsville.

Twinge Causes Jerry Quarry to Announce Retirement

OAKLAND (AP) — Two things happened when Jerry Quarry hit Brian London with a jolting right hand to the head at 2:20 of the second round in their scheduled 10-pound fight Wednesday night.

London, the No. 3-rated British boxer from Blackpool, England, thudded forward on his face, finished for the night.

Quarry, who at 24 already has fought twice for the heavyweight title and lost, then decided to give up boxing—so he said.

"When I hit him I felt a twinge in my right hand. It's still hurting. That's when I decided to quit."

The hand, once broken, has troubled him throughout his career, Quarry said.

Quarry called it quits after a loss to Joe Frazier in a title bout but then said he would quit after the London fight. He also has said he wanted to fight Frazier again before retiring.

But 15 minutes after he declared flatly, "this is it," the Bellflower, Calif., slugger was reminding reporters: "I'm only 24. I know I can fight. If I just have to, I can come back to it."

London, 35, slung Quarry several times in the first round with left jabs as Quarry took it easy.

But in a weird second round, Quarry came back like a tiger, Jarring London with left hooks, one of them folding London's knees as Quarry counterpunched with his back to the ropes.

London sank to the canvas and the referee made him take an eight count as the bell rang. London was sent to his corner but was pushed out again as officials decided a minute was left in the round.

Timekeeper, Joe Leopold, said: "I just made a mistake. It was the first time in 40 years."

Leopold said he was counting down the minutes and looked up at the lights, His eyes were blurred and he said he saw "two marks instead of one."

Quarry then jarred London with a left hook again and hit him with the right. London took a 10-count on his stomach.

"I thought the three minutes were up," London said. "But he beat me, anyway. He's still a great counter puncher."

"He may have felt like it was three minutes," joked Quarry, who won his 33rd of 40 pro bouts.

"If he quits, I think he's crazy," commented London, who at 206 outweighed Jerry by nine pounds. "He will never be champion, but he can still make a lot of money."

The rugged London, who lost in title bouts against Floyd Patterson and Cassius Clay, has been stopped many times by cuts while compiling a 37-13-1 record.

A disappointing turnout of 4,-057 produced a gate estimated at $25,000. Quarry earned 30 per cent, London 25 per cent.

Has Longest Streak in Over 20 Years

Davis Saves Self and Dodgers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Willie Davis should write novels during the baseball off season—he has a flair for the dramatic.

He kept alive the longest consecutive game hitting streak in more than 20 years in the major leagues with a little ninth inning drama Wednesday night.

Thwarted in four previous times at bat in an effort to hit in his 31st consecutive game, he came up in the ninth and socked the first pitch for a double that scored Maury Wills from second to beat New York Mets 3-4.

First base open, with one out and Willie on second, when Davis came to the plate to face relief pitcher Jack DiLauro.

Gil Hodges, Mets' manager, said he considered walking Davis, but decided to pitch to him in view of his four futile tries to extend his streak.

The victory kept the Dodgers one game back of San Francisco Giants in the NL West scramble and one-half game ahead of the Cincinnati Reds.

San Francisco shaded Montreal Expos 2-1. Cincinnati Reds blanked Chicago Cubs 2-0. Atlanta Braves trounced Pittsburgh Pirates 8-1 and Philadelphia Phillies romped over San Diego Padres 9-1 in other NL games.

Claude Osteen, seeking his 19th victory, was hovering along with a 4-0 lead over Jerry Koosman and the Mets until the eighth.

Then two-run homers by Tommie Agee and Donn Clendenon tied the score and set the stage for Davis' game ending rival. Davis was mobbed by spectators swirling around him at third base as he left the field.

The Mets stayed five games back of Chicago in the NL East since Don Cardwell allowed a two-hit shutout from the Reds' Jim Maloney.

The Cubs' two hits, both singles, were made by Don Kessenger in the third and by losing pitcher Bill Hands in the sixth.

The Giants made only two hits against Montreal, but one was a single by Jim Davenport with the bases full in the seventh that drove in both of the Giants' runs.

Losing pitcher Mike Wegener of the Expos had loaded the sacks on three bases on balls before Davenport came up. The Giants' other hit was another single by Ron Hunt in the fourth.

Juan Marichal, who chalked up his 17th victory, had to bear down with all his skill in the ninth when Montreal put the tying run on third with none out on Mack Jones' triple.

"I was worried," Marichal said afterward. "I wanted to strike out the next three batters, but didn't think I could. I hope they would hit a ground ball to someone."

After Miserable Road Trip

Oakland Needs 'Operation Catch Up'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Operation catch up begins a four-day run in Oakland tonight, and, if it doesn't succeed, there won't be much doubt that it will be Minnesota Twins against Baltimore Orioles in the American League playoffs next month.

The Athletics, slumping home after a miserable road swing, will have to cool off the red-hot Twins considerably in the four-game set to keep their flickering Western Division title hopes alive.

Boston Red Sox stopped Oakland 5-2 Wednesday, after the Athletics won the opener of a doubleheader 7-1, while the Twins were polishing off Cleveland Indians 7-1 for their fourth straight win and 10th in 12 games. Detroit Tigers beat Kansas City Royals 4-2 in the only other league game.

That boosted the Twins lead to 6½ games over Oakland, which was only two games off the pace a little more than a week ago. But, while the Twins were enjoying their period of prosperity, Oakland dropped seven of 10 games on the road.

Minnesota manager Billy Martin's only big concern during the coming series is Rod Carew, who will miss the last three games because of a week end military obligation.

Carew, who just rejoined the team after four days of summer training camp, is leading the league with a .351 average.

Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer—his 39th of the season—keyed a five-run Twins' explosion in the sixth inning that helped Dave Boswell to his 13th victory in 25 decisions with a four-hitter.

Tony Oliva and Leo Cardenas also singled in runs in the big inning, while Boswell's sacrifice bunt scored George Mitterwald from third for the others.

Ken Harrelson slammed his 27th homer for the Indians.

Gaels Have 2-0 Lead

Offence Key to Minto Cup

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The 1969 Minto Cup contest will decide not only the best junior lacrosse team in Canada but whether Eastern or Western Canada has the best offence.

As both regions use a fast passing game across mid-floor, the basic difference is in the position of a player when he scores.

In the Eastern style, as played by Jim Bishop's Oshawa Green Gaels, the shooter often scores while only inches from the goalie's crease.

The South Vancouver Legionnaires, coached by Ron Phillips, prefer to shoot from about 20 feet out, aiming for the corners about the goalie's shoulders.

These two teams meet here again tonight in the third game of their best-of-seven series for the Canadian Junior Lacrosse championship.

Bishop's style seems to be more effective as Gaels won the first two games 19-10 and 14-4.

The Gaels' offence has an edge because of its simplicity.

When a Gael gets the ball, five players break quickly and run full tilt for the opposing goal hoping to intimidate the defence.

Many times they score coming down the centre.

When they don't, they set up a "crease offence," in which two players stand on either side and slightly in front of the goalie. The other three pass the ball around, then pass it to a crease man who shoots for the goalie's short side.

The Legionnaires' offence depends on ball control, fast passing and the accurate long-ball.

Players are set up in a semi-circle about 20 feet from the goalie. The ball is passed until the goalie is confused, then shot between his shoulder and the crossbar.

Neither team has been able to use its particular offence fully, largely because of rookies on their rosters.

The Gaels have six players in their first year while the Legionnaires have five attackers picked up from other British Columbia teams for Minto Cup play.

Phillips has had trouble working Ray Bennie, picked up from New Westminster Salmonbellies, into his team although Bennie is the team's leading scorer with five goals.

He said Bennie's line with Dave Litzenberger, a 72-goal scorer, and Al Tasker, hasn't been as effective as hoped.

Squires Sparks Brooklin Triumph

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scoring honors were old hat all season for Elmer Tran of Brooklin Redmen, but Bill Squires was the Redman with the scoring punch Wednesday night in the second game of the Mann Cup Canadian senior lacrosse championship series.

Squires paced the Redmen to a 14-10 triumph over New Westminster Blues to give Brooklin a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Brooklin forward punched home three goals in the first period and two in the final frame to finish the evening with five. Tran, Ontario Lacrosse Association regular season scoring leader, notched three goals and assisted on two others.

All three of Tran's goals came in the final period and all were unassisted.

Defenceman Jim Henderson also scored three goals for the winners. Dave Houston added a pair and a single went to playing-coach Don Craggs.

Barry Erlandson scored three goals for the Blues and Bob Parent added a pair. John Stewart, Ken Henry, Skip Mint, Wayne Bellwood and Vern Coulter added single goals.

Brooklin opened the contest with a fast and furious first period that left the Blues down 6-1 going into the second. However, the Redmen leaked through the second, allowing New Westminster to close the gap to 8-4.

Both squads demonstrated offensive power in the final frame, splitting 12 goals in a display that had a wildly-cheering crowd of 900 on its feet several times.

Sport Briefs

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Butlin, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, said Wednesday he wants to clear up "any doubt about his continuing as president" of the league.

Although the position is demanding, Butlin said in a statement, he felt compelled to assist in "resolving the many difficulties junior hockey is faced with."

One of the main problems was money. Teams in Western Canada had received "really meagre" compensation from the National Hockey League for the talent developed by the junior teams.

GALT (CP) — Bill Wylie, coach of the 1969 Allan Cup champions Galt Hornets, has been persuaded to remain with the club for a third season.

Wylie guided the Hornets to the Canadian senior hockey title last spring but resigned as coach in July. In addition to their Ontario Hockey Association schedule this season, Hornets are scheduled to tour Europe and team manager Wes Little said Wednesday Wylie's return will "maintain the continuity of a winner in our toughest season."

Nats Win Tourney

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Canadian national hockey team completed its tour of the Soviet Union by beating the Leningrad Dynamo team 7-2 in Leningrad Wednesday night.

The Canadians outclassed the Soviet third-division team and swept to a victory which gave them first place in the Leningrad section of a tournament organized by the newspaper Sovetsky Sport.

Bob Berry, Chuck Lefley and Wayne Carlton scored for Canada in the opening period which ended 3-1. Fran Huck got two in the second period and teammate Jim McKenny tallied once. The Soviets scored their second goal in the last period but Phil Roberto made it 7-2 for Canada.

In earlier matches the Canadians beat Voskresenak Khimik 6-3, downed the Finnish team, Ukkeri, 8-2 and the Leningrad army team 6-1 and lost 4-1 to the Moscow team, Wings of the Soviets.

The Canadians will meet the Finnish national team Sept. 5, in Helsinki.

Ulman Becomes Highest Paid Leaf

TORONTO (CP) — General manager Jim Gregory of Toronto Maple Leafs announced Wednesday that Norm Ulman has signed a three-year contract for the largest salary ever given a Leaf.

Gregory said Ulman will receive more than $50,000 a year on the life of the contract, an increase of $10,000 from his 1968 salary.

"Most of the guys got raises," said Gregory. "This is the first realistic and very honest approach we have ever made.

"Most of the guys appreciated it. I signed all but four players before the July holidays."

With Ulman signed only three players are still holdouts —forward Murray Oliver and defencemen Pat Quinn and Tim Horton.

Horton, an all-star National Hockey League rearguard who was named most outstanding player for Toronto in 1968-69, announced retirement plans at the end of last season and said he will play this year only for an estimated $80,000.

"He wants double what he got last year," Gregory said at a news conference. "I'm afraid he will have to remain retired."

Horton earned more than $40,000 last season. He is on the final year of a three-year contract.

Later, Gregory said he had offered Marcel Pronovost, veteran defencemen whom he does not expect to make the Leafs this year, a chance to coach at Tulsa in the Central League.

"He'll be back on Monday and we'll reach a decision," Gregory said.

Tommy Smythe Continues Family's Gardens Tradition

TORONTO (CP) — Tommy Smythe, grandson of Conn Smythe, founder of Maple Leaf Gardens, was named general manager Wednesday of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

He replaces Alan Buck Houle who left to become general manager of Canada's national hockey team.

Smythe, at 23, is the third member of the famous hockey family to take over executive duties at the Gardens although he did serve as assistant manager to Houle for the last few years. His father is Stafford, former president of the Gardens.

'Heat Treatments' Pay Off for Bill Latchford and Joyces

The Belleville Joyces owe thanks to the man who invented "heat treatments".

Wednesday night righthander Bill Latchford — who had pitched only three innings in the last two months — hurled a one - hitter for seven innings and finished with a four hitter as the Joyces edged Orillia Majors 3-2 at the Belleville Fairgrounds in the third game of their best-of-five OBA semi-final playoff series.

Latchford's doctor prescribed "heat treatments" to combat the inflamed ligaments in his right shoulder and Wednesday night Latchford and the "heat treatments" passed the big test as the Joyces staved off elimination and narrowed Orillia's series lead to 2-1 in games.

Latchford, who said "I didn't know whether I should start or not, but I felt good when I got out there on the mound," had to make some adjustments because of his shoulder injury.

He had to throw with a three - quarters motion because he couldn't raise his right arm straight up above his head. Latchford didn't overpower the Majors but his curve was breaking sharply. He fanned seven men and issued but one free pass over the nine inning distance and blanked the Majors until the eighth frame.

Belleville's first two runs were earned, but the Joyces third run, which proved to be the winner, was a gift from the Orillia infield.

Terry Meagher — a regular with the Lions midgets of the EOBA — produced a two - run single in the sixth frame after pinch hitters Bill Barberstock and Pat Asselstine got on via a fielder's choice and a double.

Third sacker Moe Hunter tallied the winning run in bottom of the seventh when he singled and came around to score on a pair of infield errors.

Lefthander George Dunn started for the Majors but was removed for a pinch hitter in the top of the eighth with Orillia trailing 3-0. Dunn gave up seven hits, struck out only a dozen and issued one walk in his seven innings. Reliever Jim Hunter retired the Joyces in order in the bottom of the eighth.

Shortstop Gary Goyer with a pair of singles was the only Joyce to get two hits and he played superbly in the field starting a pair of double plays and taking part in a third twin killing.

Unfortunately for the Joyces Wednesday night's game was Goyer's last of the 1969 campaign. Gary goes into the hospital today for an operation on his foot and he'll be in a walking cast for about a month.

Meagher came through with his clutch two-run single and Larry Mavety and Pat Asselstine collected doubles for the Joyces Wednesday night. Brian Coughlin and Moe Hunter also hit safely for the winners.

The series resumes Saturday but the site of the game isn't definite yet. The fair is in Orillia this weekend and the Majors likely won't be able to play on their regular diamond.

If that's the case the game will be played in Little Britain Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. If a fifth and deciding game is necessary it'll be played Sunday in Peterborough but the time for that game hasn't been decided as yet.

In South Hastings Final

Read and Shannonville All Tied Up

Read and Shannonville got nowhere Wednesday night in their attempt to settle the 1969 South Hastings Baseball League championship playoff series.

Shannonville tallied a single run in the top of the seventh and final inning to tie Wednesday night's game 3-3 and stalemate the best-of-seven series at two wins each and two ties. The ties won't count and one of the teams will have to win a pair of games to clinch the championship.

Larry Lewis on the Shannonville mound was tagged for 11 hits while whiffing ten and walking one. Read's Frank Farrell gave up nine hits, fanned four and walked three.

Shannonville jumped off to a four - run lead in the opening frame, but Read rebounded to take a 8-4 lead with three runs in the fourth inning and single runs in the fifth and sixth frames.

Wayne Sager topped Shannonville's attack with a double and a pair of singles while teammates Larry Lewis, Bud Hill and Doug Dafoe collected doubles. Bill Barberstock, Clint Green and Dwayne Loft each singled for the pennant-winning Shannonville club.

Pete Enright contributed three singles to the Read attack while Harold Pascoe had a double and single and Carm Milligan a pair of singles. Steve Wake, Gerald Brennan, Paul Hanley and Frank Farrell chipped in with a single apiece for Read.

The series resumes Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. in Shannonville.

Legionnaires Disprove Skeptics

The team nobody thought would go anywhere this season has proven everybody wrong.

Although they were all-Ontario finalists last year, the Belleville Legionnaires failed to raise the hopes of many minor hardball enthusiasts this spring because they had lost many of last year's players through graduation to midget competition.

But look at the Legionnaires now! They started slowly, improved steadily and finished second in the EOBA Bantam "A" league. Then they eliminated league champion Oshawa Legionnaires-in-one in the EOBA playoffs.

Sunday the Legionnaires travel to Kitchener to play that city's entry in the opening of a best-of-three quarter-final series in the Ontario Baseball Association playdowns.

"I don't know what we're going to face in Kitchener because we've never played them before," said Legion coach Russ Soule, "but we're going up there to win a ball game."

The series resumes in Belleville at Parkdale ball park, Saturday, Sept. 13, at 2 p.m. If a third and deciding game is necessary it will be played at Parkdale Sunday, Sept. 14, at 2 p.m.

Winter Sports Program Next

After concluding a successful softball season, the Point Anne and District Sports Association is setting its sights on organizing a winter sports program — centred around hockey — for the youngsters of the area.

The softball program — the first project undertaken by the sports group — was termed a success by President Bill Bates. The Gordon Ray Concrete midgets advanced to the OASA quarter-finals before losing out to a strong Trenton team to highlight the minor softball scene down Point Anne way.

The softball equipment came from an OASA grant and the Point Anne and District Association hopes to gain an OHA grant to aid their proposed hockey program.

The Association will hold an open meeting Sunday at local 219 Union Hall on the Front Road for all those interested in a winter sports program for the youngsters of the Point Anne area.

Bill Bates is president of the Association, Maurice Legere vice-president, Fred Deveau treasurer and Tom Walker secretary.

In addition the Gordon Ray Concrete midget softball club is doing its bit to assist hockey in the area. The entire team will walk in the Minor Sports Sept. 20th walkathon and have already raised sponsorships to the tune of $90 if they all complete the 30-mile walk.

Because they feel that the new recreation centre, to which the walkathon funds will go, is going to benefit the entire Quinte area and not just the residents of Belleville, the Point Anne youngsters are going all out to help make the walkathon and the recreation centre project a big success.

Hockey Fees Lowered

The organizers of the Belleville Hockey School have lessened the financial burden on parents whose children will attend Belleville's first hockey school.

The Recreation Arena Commission has announced a new reduced slate of fees meaning that the registration fee for boys is now just $5 and any family of boys will only be charged $10.

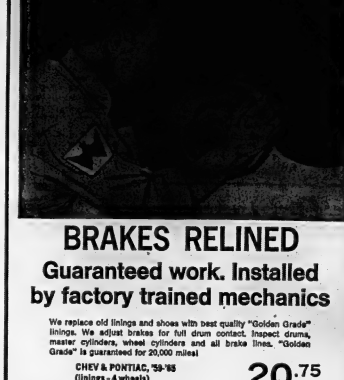
Girls between the ages of 12-18 will be charged $3 apiece with a $6 limit for a family of girls.

Any family combination of girls and boys can attend the Hockey School at a cost of $10.

Registration for the Hockey School will be held at the Recreation Centre Friday from 7-9 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Culloden Finishes What He Started

Ron Culloden wasn't able to go the route on the mound Wednesday night in The Intelligencer's Departmental Softball League consolation playoff series with International Hardware, but he did finish what he started.



Culloden, who was driven from the mound in International Hardware's four - run third inning, clobbed a game-winning solo homer with one out in bottom of the seventh and final inning to give the Printers a 7-6 win and knot the best-of-seven series at two games apiece with one tie.

The cleanup hitters for both teams had a big night. Hardware's Harold Redquest drove in three runs with a pair of homers and a single while the Intelligencer's Merv Thompson also drove in three runs with a pair of homers — the second of which tied the game at 6-6 in the bottom of the fifth.

Culloden and Dave Feeney gave up 10 hits and three walks while fanning three. Hardware's Ken Osborne allowed seven hits and also walked three and fanned three.

Culloden added a pair of singles to his home run while Maurice Switzer and Ron Broadbridge also contributed hits to the Intell attack.

Keeping Up

Coach Mrs. Elsie Jokinen (centre) jogs to keep up with Kinsmen Track and Field Club members Barb Platt and Dave Grant while trying to sign their pledge card for the Sept. 20th Minor Sports walkathon. Almost every member of the Kinsmen Track Club will enter the walkathon and some, like Barb and Dave, will attempt to run the entire 30-mile distance.

Some Grapes Keep Galloping In Minor Sports Walkathon

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The Galloping Grapes have slowed down to a walk.

Some of them, that is, because there are a few members of the Kinsmen Track and Field Club who intend to run in the 30 - mile, Sept. 20 walkathon to raise money for the Quinte Community Recreation Centre.

So - named because of the mid - summer acquisition of stunning purple uniforms, the Galloping Grapes will close out their first season under the Kinsmen Club's sponsorship by participating in the round-the-bay hike to launch the drive for a second city arena.

If their record in eight summer meets is any indication, the budding track and field enthusiasts should be right up there in front of the walkathon pack.

From the time they ran, jumped and hurled off with a second - place finish in their first meet at Almonte July 1, the 80 - member Kinsmen contingent brought head coach Gord Smith more than enough personal satisfaction be a dividend for the time he had invested.

Here's the Grapes' box score for all of their season's meets except an upcoming one Sept. 13 in Peterborough:

ALMONTE (July 1)

Team 2nd of 13 entries; bantam Marie Brain, midget Dennis Bowman win individual trophies;

SCARBOROUGH CENTRAL ONTARIO (July 5-6)

Bantam and Midget

Nine - member Kinsmen contingent place 8th of 28 participating clubs; three qualify for All - Ontario Championships; bantams, Marie Brain and Dawn Yateman, and midgets Kim Sturgess and Dennis Bowman.

SARNIA ALL-ONTARIO (July 19)

Marie Brain gets firsts in 220 dash, long ujmp, 3rd in 100 dash; Kim Sturgess jumps 4' 8" for third - place; midget girls' ribbon; Dennis Bowman wins triple jump (43' 9½"), seconds in long jump and 100-metre hurdles.

ETOBICOKE CENTRAL ONTARIO JUVENILE AND JUNIOR (July 18)

Four Kinsmen team members compete — juniors Jim Sled, Dave Grant — and juvenailes Ralph Vandervoort, Dave Simonds, but miss out placing in top three to qualify for all - Ontario.

NEWMARKET (July 26)

Eight Kinsmen participants pick up "Galloping Grapes" nickname by sporting new purple uniforms for first time.

OSHAWA

First inter - club meet of season for Kinsmen - team, winning team title over six other clubs entered; seioms (11 and under) contribute 47 of team's winning 220-point total;

PETERBOROUGH (Aug. 17)

Belleville close second in five - team field, compiling 187 points to host Peterborough club's 197;

BELLEVILLE (Aug. 24)

First - ever track meet staged by Kinsmen club, draws eight teams, plenty of spectators to home Moira S.S. track; Grapes outclass field with 222 points, with Peterborough (179) closest.

• • • •

Even though the return to school and homework have forced cancellation of the twice - weekly practice sessions, members of the Kinsmen team have been encouraged to train on their own time — both for the Sept. 13 Peterborough meet and the Sept. 20 walkathon.

Local Youngsters Win Hockey School Honors

Half a dozen Belleville youngsters and one from Picton were award winners in the sixth week of the Kingston Summer Hockey School.

For the second consecutive week Randy Hutchinson of Belleville won an Honor Award in the junior division. Randy obtained an Honor standing in the comprehensive rules quiz designed for referees and team captains.

Wayne Deighton, an eight-year-old West College Street resident won an Honor Award in the Atom division as did the Crawford brothers—Peter and Mike — in the Intermediate division.

The Honor Awards are given to the most outstanding boy, in each group every week, best displaying sportsmanship, citizenship and development.

Merit wards for outstanding achievement and sportsmanship were won by Ross MacLeod of Melrose Crescent who attained an Honor Standing in the comprehensive rules quiz, and 11-year-old Bradley Cooper of R.R. 4, Picton.

Ricky Hutchinson of Bridge Street West won a Special Director's Honor Award for outstanding achievement in obtaining 80% or greater on the comprehensive rules quiz.

Tom McClelland, the director of the Kingston Summer Hockey School, added that he was "really impressed with the seriousness and interest in the rules quiz by the Belleville boys."

"Their knowledge of the rules at their present age is remarkable — many adult referees have failed this quiz. The boys obviously know that, you can't help your team while in the penalty box," McClelland concluded.

Trudeau Writes Song - - by- Proxy

TORONTO (CP) — Singer Jan Rubes met Prime Minister Trudeau at a cocktail party last winter and said: "How about writing a song for me?"

The prime minister said yes and turned the matter over to his staff which includes Tim Porteous, author of My Fur Lady, breezy takeoff of the Broadway hit, My Fair Lady.

In the Mediterranean early in August, vacationing on a yacht with his boss, Porteous dashed off the lyrics for Chacun a Son Gout — roughly translated as Each to His Own.

One in Three Anti-Semitics

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Outright prejudice against Jews has decreased sin.ce the Second World War, but about one-third of all Americans are still anti-Semitic, two sociologists report.

These anti-Semitic Americans still accept the stereotype of the unethical Jew who has too much power in business and sticks too close to other Jews, the researchers said Wednesday.

They reported about one-third of all Americans would not necessarily vote against a political candidate who declared himself against Jews if the candidate appealed to them for other reasons.

Dr. Gertrude Selznick, a lecturer at the University of California's Berkeley campus, and Dr. Charles Glock, chairman of its sociology department, released their 1964 study of 2,000 families at the American sociological Association convention. Their research was sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

Dr. Selznick said the major factor behind anti-Semitism is lack of education.

"As the nation becomes more educated inevitably the derogatory image will decline, but not that rapidly," she said.

Describing the typical anti-Semite, Dr. Selznick said: "He's relatively uneducated. He's relatively uniformed. He's relatively prejudiced against everybody except his own group and he's relatively uncommitted to the democratic process."

The study found that:

—52 per cent of Americans believe "Jews stick together too much."

—42 per cent believe "Jews are more willing than others to use shady practices to get what they want."

—39 per cent believe "Jews have too much power in the business world."

New Move Planned to Open Bard's Grave

LONDON (Reuters) — An undercover man will be sent to Stratford Upon Avon next month to find out who is buried in Shakespeare's tomb, it was learned Wednesday.

The move is part of a campaign by the Remember Shakespeare Action Committee which believes that inside the coffin there may be valuable clues pointing to the true authorship of the bard's plays.

The undercover man will take up residence in Stratford because only a resident of the town can apply to have the grave opened.

Francis Carr, the committee's chairman, said there are bound to be objections and Dr. Levi Fox, a director of the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, called the plan "preposterous and ridiculous."

Stratfordians have in the six years since the committee was founded closed ranks against attempts to open the grave.

They resent all attempts to prove that the real author of Shakespeare's plays was really Francis Bacon or Christopher Marlow or the Earl of Oxford or George Williams, a Welsh-born Church of England bishop in Shakespeare's time, or someone else.

Human Lives Are Saved By Experiments on Animals

EDMONTON (CP) — Animal experiments over the years have saved the lives of millions of people who otherwise would have died, says the director of laboratory animal services at the University of Toronto.

Dr. L. R. Christensen said Wednesday that sacrificing lives of a few animals is morally justified if thousands of human lives can be saved as a result.

"There are many drugs that can't be tried out in test tubes alone," Dr. Christensen, president of the Canadian Association for Laboratory Animal Science, said in an interview. "They must be used on animals, too."

Dr. Christensen said anesthetic is used in practically all cases where an experiment might cause an animal pain.

Fireman Catches Falling Worker

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — A fireman reached out from an aerial ladder and caught a workman falling from the side of a building Wednesday.

Fireman Ed Raper, 26, grabbed Albert Brubach, 35, around the waist just after he let go of a cornice 50 feet above the street.

A scaffolding, from which Brubach and John Markiewicz, 44, were installing a sign, collapsed minutes before noon as office workers began their lunch hour. Markiewicz fell into the bed of a parked truck and was injured critically.

But Brubach managed to grip as aluminum cornice. He held on for 30 minutes, until the cornice cut into his hand and he fell toward the street.

Raper, a former professional football player, was riding the top of a fire ladder when the workman fell. Witnesses said the fireman lunged from theladder and encircled Brubach's waist with his arm.

Other firemen rushed up the ladder and brought the two to the ground.

Japanese Minister Aboard

Fire Bombs Thrown at Airplane

TOKYO (Reuters) — Two Molotov cocktails nearly struck a taxiing plane carrying Japanese Foreign Minister Aiichi Aichi as he headed today for Moscow, where Kremlin leaders announced that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin would be unable to meet with him.

The gasoline bombs, thrown by five youths waving red flags, landed on the runway near the taxiing Russian Ilyushin jet carrying the foreign minister.

No damage or injuries were reported, but the plane was delayed while hundreds of riot police swarmed across the runway to arrest the barefooted demonstrators and put out the flames. The aircraft was delayed about a half hour.

Shortly after the plane took off the Japanese foreign ministry announced it had received a message from the Kremlin saying Kosygin would not be able to meet with Aichi because of a "matter of extreme emergency."

The message came following word of the death of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

Aichi, who plans to remain in Moscow for five days, intended to discuss a long standing fishing dispute between Japan and the Soviet Union and the return to Japan of islands held by Russia since the Second World War.

From Moscow, Aichi flies to Brussels and then to Washington for talks with U.S. officials on the return of the Ryukyu Islands, which include Okinawa and its big American military base.

Several Molotov cocktails were hurled at the U.S. and Russian embassies in Tokyo Wednesday week in an apparent protest of Aichi's trip. No damage was reported.

Quebec to Move 12 Villages

RIMOUSKI, Que. (CP) — The Quebec government plans to wipe out about a dozen marginal settlements in the eastern part of the province and transfer their residents to larger communities.

The project, to start within two months, was announced Tuesday by Marcel Masse, cabinet minister in charge of the Eastern Quebec Development Bureau.

But Mr. Masse said heads of families in the affected communities would be consulted and relocation would be undertaken only in communities where 50 per cent or more of the families agreed.

If all proposed communities accepted the relocation, he said the job would cost about $20,000,000 and affect about 2,000 persons, members of 350 families.

Mr. Masse said the aim of the project is to enable the heads of the families involved, many of whom live on welfare, to find jobs in larger centres.

Robillard A Candidate

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal naturopath, Dr. Guy Robillard, who says he has never held elected office within the Liberal Party, announced Wednesday he will be a candidate for the leadership of the Quebec party recently vacated by Jean Lesage.

He said in a statement that he has consistently voted for the Liberal party and during past elections has been "the brain" in providing technical information for party organizers.

He said he has a good chance to win the leadership and if elected would blow new life into the party.

He said he is against separatism because Quebec should be progressive and outward looking and because he is convinced that Quebec's separation from Canada would cause serious friction between the two main language groups in the province.

Delay Expensive

Weather Postpones U.S. Nuclear Blast

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Unfavorable weather conditions have caused at least a 24-hour delay in Project Rulison, a 40-kiloton underground nuclear blast in western Colorado.

Project officials made the decision Wednesday night after a weather briefing. Forecasts were for bad weather again on Friday and possibly Saturday.

Each day's delay will cost Austral Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., one of the sponsors of the blast, an estimated $31,000.

"The predictions are clearly outside the criteria we have established for ourselves," said Bob Tahlgrist, test manager.

Weathermen said there was a strong chance of thunderstorms over the test site, near the town of Grand Valley, about the time of the scheduled detonation —3 p.m. EDT Thursday. Indications were, the forecasters said, that there would be thundershowers in the area about the same time on Friday.

Weather conditions halted the scheduled explosion 8,500 feet under the earth's crust after extensive legal manoeuvres failed to do so.

Justice Thurgood Marshall of the U.S. Supreme Court refused Wednesday to overturn lower court decisions that all necessary precautions had been taken and the explosion could proceed.

In Denver, meanwhile, a federal judge denied another injunction request from a conservationist group which contended the blast threatens the safety of Colorado residents and could contaminate ground water and the atmosphere.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which is conducting the blast in co-operation with Austral and CER Geonuclear Corp. of Las Vegas, Nev., has said all possible precautions have been taken for safety of residents in the thinly populated area.

Project Rulison, part of the AEC's Plowshare program to find peaceful uses for atomic energy, is designed to free trapped deposits of natural gas.

Police Remove Barricades

BELFAST (Reuters) — Police and British troops moved in today to restore order and tear down barricades set up during the night by roving bands of religious extremists, mostly Protestants.

The police and troops moved in at daybreak, abandoning their policy of not interfering with obstructions erected by residents for their own protection during and after bloody Roman Catholic-Protestant riots last month.

The barricades—five erected by Protestants and one by Catholics—were set up in rain thoroughfares and cut off several main approaches to the city.

A statement from the army, which took control of security in Northern Ireland after the riots, said that in the economic interests of Ulster it would resist any attempt to disrupt the normal flow of traffic.

The army moved in this morning with troops, heavy trucks and cranes to remove the barricades, some which were reinforced with overturned trucks and cars.

The joint action by police and troops appeared to take the crowds by surprise and there was little resistance.

Kahn-Tineta Horn Goes on Trial Today

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — An Indian blockade of the international bridge here last December was to produce its final repercussion today with the scheduled trial of Kahn-Tineta Horn, charged with carrying an offensive weapon during the demonstration.

In earlier proceedings charges against 49 Indians of obstructing traffic on the bridge to Messina, N.Y., were dismissed.

Miss Horn, 24-year-old Mohawk from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, an aspiring actress, part-time model and full-time Indian rights activist, is accused of carrying a knife in her sleeve. Police said a knife fell out while she struggled with officers.

She had asked for a speedy trial, but the case already has been remanded four times because the Crown could not produce all its witnesses.

Her first choice was trial by judge and jury, but she later changed the election to trial by judge alone. Judge James Clair of Barrie, Ont., was to preside today.

Ernest Benedict, a leader of the 1,700 Mohawks on the St. Regis reserve, which spans the Canada-U.S. border said Wednesday interest in the trial is high and representatives would attend from the elected band council, from the ancient council of chiefs and from the Caughnawaga reserve.

For previous court appearances "the court couldn't hold all the people," Mr. Benedict said, but both .se and police spokesmen said they knew of no plans for demonstrations. No extra officers were assigned to the court area.

Mr. Benedict said Miss Horn, outspoken and colorfully dressed in Indian fashion at earlier proceedings, would take an active part in the presentation of her defence.

He said the defence would feature her contention that Cornwall police had no jurisdiction on the reserve where the Dec. 18 demonstration and arrests took place.

Residents of the reserve say they were never informed of the city of Cornwall's annexation of their land in 1952, and they still consider the reserve under federal jurisdiction.

A few go further, contending that the reserve belongs to neither Canada nor the United States but is a separate Indian nation. It straddles the international boundary, being situated partly in New York state, partly on the Canadian mainland and on two Canadian islands in the St. Lawrence River.

Mr. Benedict said the Mohawks' official position is that the right-of-way for the international bridge includes land on Cornwall Island for which the band was never compensated.

"That makes it still our land, and it means they were arresting people for standing on their own property."

The demonstration was the protest against collection of customs duties from Indians bringing American purchases into Canada. The Jay Treaty of 1794 the United States and Great Britain agreed to let native people pass freely over the border without paying duties.

American customs officers still let Indians pass without paying, but the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in 1956 that Canada is not bound by the treaty and Indians are subject to duties. St. Regis residents say the ruling was not enforced until recently.

About 150 Indians were on hand for the protest, but only about 50 actually took part in forming a barricade across the bridge. The 49 arrested included six juveniles and 17 women.

Three days after the demonstration Chief Angus Mitchell, head of the elected council, said the Canadian government had agreed to stop collecting duties but government spokesmen denied the policy change.

Only Sea Link

The Pascal Annié ferry (background) is the only major sea link between Canada and St. Pierre. It makes the return crossing from St. Pierre four times a week. Man and His World to be Back in 1970

QUEBEC (CP) — Man and His World, Montreal's successor to Expo 67, will re-open next summer with continued Quebec government support, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand announced Wednesday.

He told reporters after a cabinet meeting the province will pay 70 per cent of the 1970 Man and His World exhibition's deficit up to a ceiling of $5,500,000.

The premier called the fair "an economic, cultural and touristic asset to Quebec" just as Man and His World hit its 1969 attendance target of 6,- 000,000 visits with four days of operation left.

In Montreal, Mayor Jean Drapeau said the cabinet decision "shows their understanding of the magnificent contribution Man and His World is making to the economic, cultural and tourist promotion of our province."

Earlier this year when Mayor Drapeau threatened to close down the fair because of financial difficulties, the provinces promised to subsidize up to $5,- 500,000 of its 1969 deficit.

Trouble arose after Man and His World in 1968 ran up an unsubsidized deficit of $5,228,691 and the city nearly cancelled plans for the 1969 fair.

But in late February the federal, provincial and municipal governments announced an agreement for a system of financial support to keep the fair running this year.

Ottawa agreed to let the Quebec government postpone payments on its share of the Expo 67 deficit, interest free, until June 1, 1972, and the province in turn agreed to assume up to $5,500,000 of the 1969 deficit.

Total attendance at last year's five-month fair was a bout 12,500,000 considerably short of Mayor Drapeau's hoped-for 20,000,000.

This year he shortened the season to three months and lowered his expectations to 6,- 000,000. The fair closes Sunday but the La Ronde amusement area remains open on weekends until Thanksgiving, Oct. 13.

Strike Threat

Foreign Ships Avoid Vancouver Port

VANCOUVER (CP) — Foreign cargo vessels are starting to avoid the port of Vancouver and shipping industry spokesmen blame it on the threat of a strike by longshoremen.

Longshoremen in the port, Canada's largest on basis of volume handled, have been working without contract since Aug. 1 and are to take a strike vote next week.

Negotiations on a new contract broke down two weeks ago and union officials decided Wednesday to take the vote, with results to be announced Sept. 13.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, representing 3,000 members, seeks a basic $51 for an eight hour shift on a round-the-clock, seven-day-week operation with a guarantee of a five-day, 40-hour week. Current rate is $3.88 an hour. The Vancouver Merchant's Exchange said Wednesday there were 118 inward-bound vessels during August, compared with 149 in August, 1968.

Andy Kotowich, president of the union's Canadian branch, says his union is not to blame but added: "The ships have been diverted by their owners because they assumed there would be a strike starting Aug. 1."

E. M. Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association, said ships will continue to be diverted "as long as there is a cloud hanging over the harbor."

It costs an average 10,000-ton freighter $2,000 for every idle day in port.

Meanwhile, the port can lose wharfage fees and other charges while related industries lose banker fees, and profits on sale of supplies and the spending of crews.

Shipping agent Walter Garrett, president of C. Gardner Johnson, said: "Some businessmen are protecting themselves by splitting their cargoes and sending part by rail from eastern ports and the other half through the normal Panama or London route."

Even after settlement, says Mr. Strang, the port could have a hangover.

"The present situation doesn't encourage shipping business at all. Industries can too easily find other means of transporting their goods."

Both sides were still hoping Wednesday the dispute could be resolved without a strike.

The union has already promised that shipments of Prairie grain to export markets would not be tied up.

Ottawa Archbishop Vows Won't Bow 'to Blackmail'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Ottawa said Wednesday he will not bow to what he called blackmail tactics over the proposed purchase of a $130,000 house for an official residence.

Most Rev. Joseph Aurele Plourde noted at a news conference that some local parish priests had publicly expressed objections about the proposed residence.

"And if this is some form of blackmail, I don't want to play that game."

Archbishop Plourde said the situation at the present 120-year-old residence on midtown St. Patrick St. "is drastic." Renovation would cost about $200,000.

A lay committee had already suggested three other houses for residence and all were rejected because they were in "high-class areas," the archbishop said. The $130,000 house on Lakeview Terrace, overlooking Dow's Lake, was the committee's final suggestion.

Controversy bubbled up around the new residence after it became known that some priests in the diocesan synod felt a $130,000 expenditure would not be in keeping with the religious virtues of poverty and charity.

Pope Rebukes Rebels

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul and the Italian Bishops Conference Wednesday rebuked rebel priests and laymen of Florence's Isolotto parish, scene of the biggest crisis of church authority in Roman Catholic Italy.

The pontiff condemned rejection of the authority of bishops by small groups of reformers as leading to "a scandal, a ruination."

The bishops called on the rebels to adhere to the "firm disciplines" of their traditionalist archbishop, Ermenigildo Cardinal Florit.

The criticism was expected to harden the position of the rebel parish, which has been challenging Cardinal Florit for a year.

Londoners Recall War Days

LONDON (CP) — Memories of the time when one could only buy a pair of socks every four months and margarine was made from machine oil flooded back to a sunny London full of free-spending tourists Wednesday, exactly 30 years after Britain declared war on Nazi Germany.

Every newspaper was full of nostalgia — of a sort — for the days when the humble people of London huddled in the subway by night and shovelled the rubble of their homes by day, with a gritty, unquenchable spirit that proved better armor than air raid shelters.

The anniversary alone might not have prompted such columns of print on the hardships and heroism of Britons under the blitz, but with skilful timing, publishers Jonathan Cape ensured that a book called The People's War, by Angus Calder, hit the reviewers' desks at precisely the right moment.

He records how shocked middle-class country dwellers found that thousands of children evacuated from city slums had never used a lavatory, were covered in lice and often arrived sewn into their ragged clothes.

The Second World War was the most convulsive upheaval in Britain's long history—40,000,000 changes of address were recorded for the island's 38,000,000 civilians as they were bombed out, evacuated or redirected to new jobs.

Hitler's bombers smashed 4,- 000,000 homes, performing a brutal but effective slum clearance in London's East End. One in five of the nation's schools was hit, and 30,000 Londoners died in the blitz.

Calder, son of journalist and science writer Baron Ritchie-Calder, contends that the people endured so uncomplainingly because they were determined the war should result in a social square deal, in contrast to a pre-war Britain that had often seemed polarized between hunger marchers and high society.

U.S. Bombers Pound North Vietnam Base

SAIGON (AP) — Some 25 B-52 bombers pounded North Vietnamese positions threatening a key provincial capital 80 miles northeast of Saigon Wednesday night.

Field reports said fighting that had raged for four days between Song Be and the Cambodian border had dwindled after battered troops of the South Vietnamese mobile strike force pulled back to regroup.

The B-52s dropped 750 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese troop concentrations, base camps, supply depots, staging areas, bunker complexes and gun positions northwest of Song Be.

The Saigon troops are reported to have suffered 30 dead, 154 wounded and between 17 and 32 missing in the fighting near Song Be.

Only six North Vietnamese soldiers have been reported killed so far. There probably have been more, but the South Vietnamese have not been able to stay on the battlefield long enough without fighting to look for bodies.

U.S. spokesmen announced the loss of two more American aircraft and said all 15 Americans aboard were killed.

Fatigue, Disillusionment Bring Early Close To Canadian Union of Students Convention

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP) — Fatigue after hours of debate and a dramatic statement of disillusionment by an executive combined to force this year's convention of the Canadian Union of Students to a premature close.

The action leaves the union's future uncertain.

The week-long convention adjourned about 6 a.m. Wednesday after a 17-hour session that produced some policy statements but left many others not considered.

One that passed declared that "economically and racially oppressed" students shouldn't have to have marks as high as other students entering university who have not experienced the same disadvantages.

The adjournment came after Barry McPeake, a CUS official and field worker in the Maritimes, left his position as chairman of a plenary session to address the students.

He said he could no longer tolerate the hypocrisy he was experiencing as chairman.

The conflict arose from a struggle throughout the convention between radical, leftist groups who demand uncompromising stands on major issues and the CUS executive, trying to take clear stands but without the use of radical language.

The McPeake address, lasting 50 minutes, came at a time when students were weary after a week of struggle to draft a substantial series of resolutions that would be effective in combatting student problems and help win votes on CUS membership at universities later.

There was an attempt early in the convention by a group describing itself as moderate or liberal to crush CUS and establish a new federation of student councils. The plan failed but it did give the 250 delegates and observers an alternative to consider.

McPeake had been extremely popular. His endorsation of the radicals gave them the strength to disrupt the meeting.

Martin Loney, new CUS president, was hesitant early Wednesday to predict what will happen to the union now.

A bright, fiery student from Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C, Loney said membership votes at Ottawa's Carleton University and the University of Toronto, both in October, will have to be won for CUS to continue.

Among resolutions passed was one calling for establishment of community councils to keep tab on police and representatives from oppressed groups to investigate alleged police malpractices.

Another reaffirms the CUS position that "Canada is a bi-national country . . . and the home of the French national community is Quebec; that of the English-speaking, the rest of Canada."

No Quebec universities belong to CUS.

CUS also called for a progressive capital gains tax on land transactions to discourage real estate speculators who force up the prices of student housing.

The convention also censured the administration at Simon Fraser for going "on a witch-hunt" for professors with radical tendencies, then refusing to renew their contracts.

English-speaking Residents in Clash With French on School Language Issue

MONTREAL (CP) — A year-old educational conflict with province-wide repercussions exploded into violence Wednesday night when English- and French-speaking residents of suburban St. Leonard clashed in a local school hall.

An estimated 400 persons, shouting insults at one another, began throwing folding chairs minutes before a meeting organized by the unilingualist Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire was set to begin.

LIS president Raymond Lemieux, leader of he fight to eliminate English-language education in the suburb's elementary schools, was taken to hospital after a chair struck him on the head. His injuries were not serious.

Mr. Lemieux has described St. Leonard as "the symbol of Quebec resistance to English integration."

The English-speaking group—mostly of Italian immigrants—was removed from the hall by riot police. But once outside, they threw stones through many of the school's windows.

One man, believed mistaken for militant separatist Reggie Chertrand, leader of the Chevaliers de l'Independance, was beaten by a handful of angry parents before being rescued by police.

No arrests were made.

The LIS meeting was called to determine how the French-speaking residents of St. Leonard felt about a government proposed to open a private school for English-speaking children.

The proposal was put to the English-speaking parents by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal as a possible solution to the conflict. Such a school would be heavily subsidized by the government under recently-enacted provincial law.

Mr. Lemieux has expressed opposition to any English education in the north-end suburb.

Italian immigrants make up about 45 per cent of St. Leonard's 35,000 population.

The LIS-dominated Roman Catholic school board launched its policy of phasing out English-language education in the fall of 1968 by eliminating bilingual Grade 1 classes.

Bilingual classes in successive years would be stopped on a year-by-year basis, with Grade 3 eliminated this year.

Basement classes supported by donations were set up for about 200 youngsters last year while parents awaited action by the provincial government.

It never came, for the department of education said it was not empowered to overturn the decision of a local school board.

Western May Return to CUS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Student president Ian Brooks said Wednesday he may try to lead 10,000 undergraduates at the University of Western Ontario back into the Canadian Union of Students.

Mr. Brooks made the comment in an interview after returning from a CUS conference at Port Arthur attended by delegates from 26 universities.

Dairy Queen Wins Series Opener 12-5

Triples by Elaine Brooks, Bev Gibbs and Sharon Hanrahan helped the Dairy Queen defeat Dixie Lee 12-5 Wednesday night in the first game of their best-of-five Belleville and District Ladies Softball League semi-final playoff series.

Winning pitcher Barb Brewster limited only one walk and fanned seven while Joan Pilkerick homered for Dixie Lee in support of losing pitcher Ann Emerson.

Raymond's Happy With Montreal Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — There was a time earlier this year when Claude Raymond wasn't interested in being a part of baseball's Montreal Expos—for this year anyway. Now, he says he is happier playing for the National League expansion club than he was when he wore the uniform of a pennant contender—the Atlanta Braves.

Raymond, a native of St. Johns, Que., a community about 30 miles southwest of Montreal, was kidded constantly by Montreal writers during spring training camp that he would end up with the Expos.

The Expos and the Braves shared spring training facilities at West Palm Beach, Fla., and the 32-year-old relief pitcher would get a going-over every now and then.

"I don't want to go there this year anyway," he'd tell writers. "I guess I'd like to finish my career in Montreal but we've got a good chance to win our division this year. Maybe we'll be able to go to the World Series."

The Braves currently are in a torrid race for the National League's western division pennant—but without Raymond. He found himself in Montreal sooner than he really wanted to or expected to be. But he says he's happier now.

"That's for sure," Raymond said during a recent batting practice at Jarry Park in Montreal. "I wasn't getting any work there and I wasn't happy."

The Expos recently claimed Raymond on waivers from the Braves. He grabbed the first airplane available out of Atlanta and joined the club in Montreal minutes before a game against San Diego Padres.

It didn't take him long to get to work as the Expos brought him in in relief late in the game.

Prior to the start of the game, Raymond was introduced to the crowd and was given a long, standing ovation by the 14,250 spectators at the game.

"I don't know what happened in Atlanta," Raymond said. "I just didn't get any work. When I did, I wasn't effective."

Raymond came to the Expos with a 2-2 won-lost record. One of his victories was against the Expos in Montreal early in the season and his second came when he went 8 1-3 innings in relief.

He started 8 1-3 innings in 33 appearances for the Braves this year. In his first six games with the Expos, Raymond pitched in 8 1-3 innings.

One night before a game in Jarry Park, Raymond began signing autographs for young fans at 7:20. He didn't let up until five minutes before game time at 8:05.

He didn't waste any time settling down in Montreal. The day after his arrival he went to St. Johns and found himself an apartment. He and his wife spent an entire day buying furniture for their new home.

The five-foot-10, 180-pound right-hander broke into the majors in 1959. He was traded to the Braves while they were based in Milwaukee in 1961, then went to Houston in the 1963 expansion draft before being traded to Atlanta in 1967.

Raymond's best years in the majors came when he was with Houston. In his first year he appeared in 38 games, pitched 89 innings, had a 5-5 won-lost record and an earned-run average of 2.31.

The following year he had a 7-4 won-lost record, appearing in 33 games and a 2.81 ERA. He won seven games in 12 decisions in 1965, appearing in 62 games, and his earned-run average was 3.13.

His lifetime earned-run average in the major leagues is 3.26.

Burns Wins Dartmouth Tournament

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Terry Burns, a Halifax professional from the Truro, N.S., golf club, shot 70 Wednesday for a 133 total to win the Dartmouth open golf tournament.

Burns took the first-round lead Tuesday when he came through with a three-under-par 68 on the front nine and carded a 31, three under par on the back nine to break the competitive course record. He collected $1,000 top-prize money and an additional $50 for the low round on the first day.

Bill Ezenicki of Cape Cod, Mass., took second place by adding a one-over-par 69 to his first-round 65 to take home $600.

Dave Clayton of Dorchester, Ont., had 135, and captured the third-place purse of $300.

Koreans Demand 'Confession' As Price of Airman's Freedom

PANMUNJOM (CP) — North Korea said today that it will not release the three crew members of an American helicopter shot down Aug. 17 unless the United States admits they were on a criminal mission.

The United States said it would admit only that the helicopter had entered Communist territory inadvertently in violation of the Korean armistice agreement, and would give assurances that such an incident would not recur.

Maj.-Gen. Lee Choon-sun, representing North Korea at a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission called to discuss the release of the three Americans, demanded an "unconditional apology" admitting that the helicopter was on a "criminal mission," as well as a written assurance that there will be no more such incidents in the future.

U.S. Marine Maj.-Gen. Arthur Adams, senior armistice delegate of United Nations command here said he only was willing to submit a document saying the helicopter was on a military mission, became lost and "therefore flew into your territory."

The helicopter was shot down a few miles north of the demilitarized zone. The three crew members were reported by the North Koreans to be alive but injured.

Capt. David J. Crawford and specialist Herman E. Hofstatter are believed severely injured. The pilot, WO Vernon Loepke, was described as slightly injured.

In his opening statement, Adams said Korea could have a document containing "an expression of regret and a statement that measures will be taken to prevent recurrences of an incident of this kind."

But he said it was "preposterous" to think that a three-man, unarmed helicopter flew into North Korean territory, wilfully or with hostile intent.

The North Korean general termed the U.S. offer "nonsense" and said the UN command made excuses "in an arrogant manner."

"You are the main culprit in this criminal act and how can you, the criminal, make such an arrogant request instead of apologizing?" Lee said.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 5

Your birthday today: Surprises and short periods of spectacular growth characterize the coming year. Your intuitive faculties sharpen with every incident. Romantic interests continue stronger than before but with fewer and less obvious opportunities for expression. Today's natives tend to be changeable in mood and always prefer the most dramatic course of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Plans develop weak spots today; errors are common. Relative make sudden demands. Self-restraint and tact cope with these temporary inconveniences.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Expect people to be both impetuous and sensitive; see the situation as a test of your ingenuity. Be easy on your loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Early tensions yield to burgeoning optimism if you bear with it. Care with money is essential all day.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Take a critical tour of your home to check for supplies, shortages, repairs, ideas for improvements. Be prepared for the unusual.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The rainbow shines briefly, then wanes as you reach for the pot of gold at the foot of it. Look into the situation about health aids.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Press forward now on wherever your intuition favors. Past pressures are lifting. Beginning today, move — decisively — in the coming few weeks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Co-operation with strangers and people from distant places seems more likely now than with children and regular associations. Relatives may pose a moment of inconvenience over a forgotten promise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Test is your strongest and perhaps most difficult virtue today. Tomorrow you will be pleased with the results of your waiting. Give people plenty of time and space.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): For a change let other people supply the main force and direction for the day. Share your abundant humor with others. Celebrate tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The day starts slowly, perhaps with a momentary disappointment. It is essential that you clear up some snarl in your regular work to wind up the week properly, as new circumstances will keep you from doing it later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Expect more work and complexities. Put in a patient effort; keep notes as you go. Money matters are favored, as associates include you in their interesting transactions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Consider any property dealings fully; press for a quick conclusion. Gather loved ones for a festive evening.

Dirksen's Tumor Cancerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Everett M. Dirksen was said to be resting well today after the removal of a cancerous lung tumor.

Members of his staff said they had been told the senator would remain in Walter Reed Army Hospital for up to six weeks. He was operated on Tuesday.

Republican Senate Whip Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania was filling in for the 73-year-old senator from Illinois who is the Republican leader.

Doctors said the tumor—fourfifths of an inch in diameter—cut from the right upper lobe of Dirksen's right lung was malignant but had not spread. Also, they said, there was no sign further surgery or treatment would be necessary.

Dirksen's son-in-law, Senator Howard H. Baker Jr. (Rep.-Tenn.) said Wednesday he visited the senator, and found him "bright, cheerful and alert.

Tweed

Mr. and Mrs. Hanrahan are visiting with Eugene Deline at the present time.

Miss Carol Rivers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rivers, of Tweed, has just returned from spending a seven-week vacation touring London, England, France and Spain.

The community extends birthday greetings to Albert Martin, of R.R. 2 ,Cloyne, who was 88 years of age on August 25th, 1958.

The United Church Woman of Henderson held a bake sale and rummage sale recently in the afternoon in the hall, which was deemed a decided success.

Mrs. Ron Runions of Henderson is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Margaret Bosley, Evelyn Lynn, Bernice Cassidy accompanied Miss Roberta Sager to Kingston on Wednesday, and visited Mrs. R. A. Sager of Queensboro who is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs L. Kapuka of Ottawa is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson of Queensboro.

The Chamber of Commerce meeting will be held at the Hotel Tweedsmuir, Tweed, September 3rd, 1958. Directors and all members invited to attend.

Yaremko Reports

Ontario Is Developing Program to Aid Indians

TORONTO (CP) — John Yaremko, minister of social and family services, said Wednesday Ontario is developing a new program for delivering provincial services to the province's 50,000 Indians.

In an interview, he said he will outline details of the plan to the legislature after sittings resume Sept. 30.

Senior civil servants from other branches of social and family services have been running Indian affairs for the province since the resignations in May of director Joseph Dufour and several community development officers of the Indian development branch.

Mr. Yaremko said the new program will co-ordinate aspects of Indian affairs now handled by several government departments. He indicated the emphasis will be on co-ordination rather than a large expenditure of provincial funds.

He would not say whether Indian affairs will be moved out of his department in line with the announcement by Premier John Robarts last June that Indian affairs were to be amalgamated into a total citizenship program for the province.

He said Ontario has had at least one meeting with Jean Chretien, federal minister responsible for Indian affairs, since the release in Ottawa of a government white paper proposing that Indians lose their special status and become ordinary provincial residents.

Ontario plans a series of conferences with Indian bands to discuss the federal policy which means a transfer of all responsibility for Indian affairs to the provinces.

Later Wednesday, NDP Leader Donald MacDonald issued a statement calling on Premier John Robarts to indicate at once just what Ontario's position is on Ottawa's new Indian policy.

Charging that Ontario's record on Indian matters is the poorest of the "have" provinces, Mr. MacDonald said Mr. Robarts should announce plans to assume immediate and active responsibility for Indian community development.

The NDP leader said the province should also grant the $50,000 asked by the Union of Ontario Indians to put five Indian field officers out on the job collecting data on Indian needs.

These demands are the same as were made by NDP and Liberal critics last spring when opposition members demanded Mr. Yaremko resign in the face of the resignations from his branch and criticism of his policies by Indian leaders.

Chief among Mr. Yaremko's Indian critics at that time was Chief Wilmer Nadjiwon of the Cape Croker Indians, who resigned in protest from the government's Indian Advisory Council.

However, Mr. Nadjiwon has recently resigned his job as president of the Union of Ontario Indians and has been replaced by acting president Fred Plain of Sarnia.

Mr. Yaremko said in the interview that many demands made upon him by Indian leaders during trips he made earlier this year to Northern Ontario Indians will soon be satisfied.

Ada Keeps Her Hat

TORONTO (CP) — A discussion by the legislature's select committee on rules and procedures dissolved Wednesday into a discussion of Ada's hat.

"Sometimes I can't see you because of Ada's hat," T. Patrick Reid, L—Rainy River told Erie Winkler PC—Grey South.

"It's a matter of decorum as opposed to licence," Ada Pritchard PC — Hamilton West answered primly.

The issue before the committee was whether it should retain in the new rules a small clause saying "members, other than lady members, may not wear hats in the house."

Stephen Lewis NDP — carborough West wanted the whole clause removed.

"This is Ontario in the year 1969. A clause like this is a burlesque."

Paul Yakuski PC—Renfrew South agreed: "We don't want it the house like a carnival."

When the matter came to a vote, the Liberals and New Democrats lost to the Conservative majority and the clause was retained.

Belleville May Decide to Cut Off Urban Renewal Survey

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City officials will decide within the next few days whether to cut off the urban renewal study now under way for Belleville's downtown and Foster Ward areas.

Following a meeting yesterday with Allan Brass, who is doing the city's urban renewal study for town planners Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon, Mayor J. Russell Scott said the firm's cost for the survey to date was being asked.

"Mr. Brass is to telephone me this information today," said Mayor Scott. "We will decide then whether to continue the survey."

As a result of yesterday's meeting attended by Mayor Scott, Mr. Brass, city manager J. R. Reynolds, city assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson, and city solicitor E. Gus Porter, it was learned that even if the survey was completed it could be five years or more before any new construction would be ready for occupancy.

A preliminary report on the urban renewal study was expected by the city in August, but Mr. Brass told city officials yesterday that this would not be mailed before Sept. 17.

The preliminary report would contain arithmetical survey facts and projected population and traffic figures but is not expected to contain specific recommendations.

"There may be two or three more reports before everything is finished," said Mayor Scott.

But throwing a big block into urban renewal is the fact the federal government has cut back expenditures for such projects as a result of its austerity program.

Up until the cutback was announced, the federal and provincial governments paid 75 per cent of approved urban renewal costs with the municipality paying the balance.

However, under the terms of the previous agreement it is expected the two governments would still pay 75 per cent of the survey costs amounting to approximately $82,000.

"We have to decide whether to cut off the survey at this point and maybe do some planning ourselves," said Mayor Scott.

The fact that an urban renewal study was under way had a bearing on the decision of the Ontario Municipal Board last February when it turned down the city's application for a zoning change to allow construction of the proposed $3,000,000 north end plaza.

During the hearing, the OMB was told by Mr. Brass that in his view construction of the plaza would be premature.

Oil Threat To Arctic

RESOLUTE, N.W.T. (CP) — Pollution of Arctic waters is "inevitable" if tankers begin regular transport of petroleum products through the Northwest Passage, Richard E. Warner, professor of environmental biology at Memorial University in St. John's, Nfld., said in an interview Thursday.

"There will be significant oil pollution in the Arctic in the next decade. . . . The sinking or even serious damaging of one large tanker in Arctic waters could have catastrophic and longtime effects on Arctic coastal environment."

Mr. Warner arrived in Resolute earlier this week to attempt to evaluate the possible toxic effect on marine life that resulted from the sinking two weeks ago near Melville Sound of a barge carrying thousands of gallons of refined diesel fuel and aviation gasoline.

However, after several flights over the area where the barge Johnny Norberg was believed to have sunk, Mr. Warner has been unable to find any trace of oil or gasoline released on the water when ice ruptured fuel storage tanks on the barge.

New Revolt Brewing

TUNIS (AP) —Libya's revolutionary council named a special security commander in the Benghazi area today and called on all Libyan forces in Cyrenaica to maintain "vigilance and discipline."

The announcement, broadcast by Radio Tripoli and heard in Tunis, made no mention of armed opposition to the new regime. But there were growing indications that the revolutionary junta of army officers was running into difficulties in the Cyrenaican desert.

Release of 15 Price of Life

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — U.S. Ambassador Charles Burke Elbrick is in danger of being executed Saturday afternoon unless the Brazilian government complies with guerrilla demands to release 15 political prisoners.

Pro-Communist guerrillas who kidnapped the ambassador Thursday afternoon at about 3 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) said in a note Elbrick would be executed within 48 hours if the governments did not broadcast their statement and permit the 15 imprisoned men to flee to Algeria, Chile or Mexico.

The military-backed government complied with the first demand by giving the guerrilla statement to newspaper men and allowing it to be broadcast on Brazilian television. There was no word, despite urgent top-level cabinet consultations here Thursday night, of whether the government would free the prisoners.

Elbrick, 61, was kidnapped four blocks from the U.S. embassy by four men as he was driven from his home to the embassy after lunch. He arrived to take up his post last July 8.

Witnesses, including the ambassador's chauffeur who was allowed to go free, said the men grabbed Elbrick, forced their way into the car and made the chauffeur drive up a nearby hill.

The ambassador, whose nose was covered with a rag apparently soaked in chloroform, was dragged into a waiting station wagon.

The kidnappers took the keys of his car, ripped out the radio telephone connecting the car with the embassy and raced away in the station wagon, which was later found in a nearby botanical gardens. They left the note in the car.

In Washington, a state department spokesman said Brazilian authorities had the licence number of a second car apparently involved in the kidnapping.

The spokesman, who said the U.S. was in "urgent consultation" with Brazilian officials, said another car may have been used to force Elbrick's vehicle to a stop.

The kidnapping on a busy Rio street so close to the embassy and not far from an army barracks was one of the most daring exploits to date by the guerrillas who also claimed responsibility for recent bank robberies and other terrorist acts in Brazil.

In the message released by the government and signed by the National Liberation Action and October Revolutionary Movement, the guerrillas said:

"The life and death of Ambassador Elbrick is in the hands of the dictatorship.

"If it attends to two demands, Mr. Burke Elbrick will be freed, in the opposite case, we will be obliged to carry out revolutionary justice."

Nixon Asks States To Cut Construction

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon is giving his "new federalism" a key test by asking state and local governments to match the 75-per-cent cut he has ordered on all new federal construction.

Nixon ordered the federal construction cut for all government agencies Thursday, effective immediately. But he did not order similar cuts on state and local projects that are aided by federal government grants.

One of Nixon's top economic advisers, Dr. Arthur Burns, explained:

"The president has great faith in what he likes to think of, or describe as 'the new federalism.' He likes to leave as much discretion as possible to state and local authorities. The president, therefore, would like to see state and local governments take action on their own in accord with the national policy."

Nixon said, however that he would restrict federal grants for construction projects if the states and localities do not respond promptly and in a manner he thinks is sufficient to meet his urgent "plea for partnership in action."

Manitoba Cuts Medicare Levy

WINNIPEG (CP) — Health Minister Sidney Green announced Thursday that Manitoba medical care insurance premiums will be reduced by about 88 per cent effective Nov. 1.

Premiums for families will be reduced to $1.10 a month from $9.80 and for single persons to 55 cents a month from $4.90.

Snowstorm Dooms Four Eskimos

CAPE DORSET, N.W.T. (CP) — Four Eskimos suffering from food poisoning died here early today while waiting to be taken to Montreal, a hospital spokesman in Frobisher Bay said.

Eight other persons, whose condition remains uncertain are still in Cape Dorset where a violent snowstorm is preventing the landing of a Nordair aircraft which is supposed to take them 1,250 miles south to hospital in Montreal.

A doctor and a nurse from Frobisher Bay, 250 miles east, tried in land twice during the night, but were forced back by the snowstorm.

A spokesman at the Montreal General Hospital, where the victims are scheduled to be taken, said the Eskimos are suffering from botulism poisoning from canned food.

Ulster Flames Flare Again

BELFAST (CP)—Three gasoline bombs were hurled into a middle-class Protestant home in suburban Belfast early today as the Northern Ireland capital suffered through its worst night since religious riots last month.

Police said the occupants of the two-storey house were unharmed, but the house was damaged by fire.

Armed British troops early in the night confronted angry Protestants in Belfast in scenes that threatened the fragile peace now existing in Northern Ireland.

Protestant extremist leader Rev. Ian Paisley was called by his supporters to one of the districts to calm the crowd there. He led them in singing The Lord is my Shepherd and they dispersed peacefully.

The crowd even allowed troops to pull down a barricade they erected to prevent barriers remaining in Catholic parts of the city.

The barricade was erected on Donegall Road at the entrance to the most important highway in Ulster.

Lebanon Raided

Israelis Hit Arab Base

From AP-Reuters

Another Lebanon complaint to the UN-Security Council appeared likely today after Israeli ground forces raided a village hiding a guerrilla base two miles inside Lebanon.

The Israeli Army said its commando force killed at least six Arab saboteurs in small-arms fighting and destroyed 12 buildings in a guerrilla base in the village of Halta, just north of a thumb of Israeli territory that juts into southeast Lebanon.

The Israelis reported four of their raiders were wounded during the 90-minute operation that began at midnight Thursday night.

A Lebanese military spokesman disputed the Israeli announcement. He said that a Lebanese civilian was killed, two were wounded and three houses were destroyed.

He reported that the Israelis landed by helicopter, and Lebanese forces "confronted the enemy and forced him to withdraw." The spokesman made no mention of any Lebanese military casualties but said there were "numerous" Israeli casualties.

The Israelis said it was their first ground attack in Lebanon since the commando raid on the Beirut airport last December. Lebanon has reported several Israeli ground raids since then, however.

Viet Cong Calls Truce

SAIGON (Reuters) — The Viet Cong today called a three-day ceasefire to observe the death of President Ho Chi Minh but an American spokesman said the United States would not order a reciprocal truce unless the Saigon government agreed.

In a broadcast on the Viet Cong Liberation radio early today, the National Liberation Front said the ceasefire would be observed from 1 a.m. Monday (EDT Sunday) to 1 a.m. next Thursday (1 p.m. Wednesday) and that a funeral committee headed by lawyer Nguyen Huu Tho would organize memorial services, meetings, and seminars on Ho's works.

The chairman of the NLF Advisory Council invited all South Vietnamese soldiers, government officials and policemen as well as civilians to enter Viet Cong-controlled areas to participate in services for the North Vietnamese president.

A South Vietnamese spokesman refused to comment on the announcement, saying the govt-nal leader as a patriot and a le-broadcast.

The NLF said services would be held in churches of all religious denominations and called on the South Vietnamese to set up shrines honoring Ho and fly flags at half-staff until Sept. 11.

The Viet Cong offer clearly poses a problem for the Saigon government despite Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky's comment Thursday that Ho's death "left North Vietnam like a snake without a head." Many South Vietnamese regard the Communist leader as the epitome of the ordinary figure in Vietnamese history.

Complaints of Rock Dust Halt Apartment Excavation

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

How do you drill for rock excavation without raising dust?

That is the dilemma faced by John Leavit excavation contractor for the new Bay of Quinte Towers apartment structure at the top of West Bridge Street hill.

Next door neighbors to the apartment project have complained to city officials about the dust with result that work has been all but shut down.

No drilling for rock excavation has been done for the past week and the contractor is at loss to figure how he can resume operations.

He says he has been advised by a public works official to stop rock excavation until he can control the dust problem.

Since excavation for the project commenced on Aug. 13, the site has been visited repeatedly by police and city hall officials in answer to complaints about the dust problem.

But while appreciating the inconvenience to the neighbors, the contractor feels that he also has some rights.

"We were issued a building permit by the city and should have a right to carry out our contract," he says.

And the contractor seems to have a point. He noted that it is generally admitted that more housing is needed in the city but asks how this can be provided without some dust and inconvenience resulting from construction.

Belleville, it seems, is the only place where complaints about construction dust is prevalent. Mr. Leavitt says he has carried out excavation contracts for some of the largest building construction jobs in Ontario but only in Belleville has he run into work stopping complaints.

The constructor says he has taken every precaution to reduce the dust problem.

He has even erected a high plofilm fence in an effort to prevent dust blowing over adjacent property, but the complaints continue. The fence reaches at least 25 feet above the level of the drilling operations.

"There is simply no point in putting the fence higher. It would only blow away."

The use of water to prevent rock dust flying was said out of the question.

"Water would only plug up the hole and stop the drill."

The contractor has also run into a problem with respect to soil washing out of the excavation onto Bridge Street. There were complaints following a rain and the city has billed the contractor several times for street cleanup.

The apartment project principals are anxious that excavation resumes as quickly as possible as that concrete pouring can be well along before the arrival of winter.

So far about 15,000 cubic yards of earth have been excavated and now 7,500 yards of rock have to be taken out before footings can go in. In some areas the rock to be excavated is more than seven feet in depth.

The $2 unit apartment building represents an expenditure of close to $2,000,000. It will provide 82 units with underground parking.

Complaints Silence Drill Rig

Neighbors' complaints of dust nuisance have silenced this rock drilling rig at the site of the new 82-unit apartment building on West Bridge Street hill. Contractor has erected plioflim barrier in an effort to stop the dust but the complaints continue.

Divorces Again Top Docket

Divorces again swell the court docket to be heard by the Ontario Supreme Court assizes opening in Belleville next Monday.

Some 56 divorce actions are the bulk of 86 civil cases to be heard before Mr. Justice W. J. Henderson.

There are 17 damage claims arising from automobile accidents.

The assizes also has one criminal case listed — a charge of manslaughter against Bruce Normen Casselman, arising from a man's death in a Madoc - area farmhouse earlier this year. The charge will be prosecuted by assistant Crown Attorney Glenn Delaire and contested by Belleville barrister Robert Temple.

City Girl Plays Holiday Fanfare

And then there's the story of the local girl making good at a national event.

Joanne Burchill, 14, of 233 John Street, knows all about that sort of thing.

Joanne was fortunate enough and talented enough to be able to participate in the official Canada Games band during the summer games held from Aug. 15 to 22 in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

And it was all by accident.

She travelled to Dartmouth to attend the summer games and a friend of the band making her summer holidays a little more spectacular.

The band, named the Jolly Tars, was required to open the various events at the games.

Joanne has been playing trumpet for about a year and she comes by talent for the instrument naturally. Her father, Joseph Burchill, is himself a noted Belleville musician and trumpet player.

Playing in the band was quite an experience for the young adult. One thing she remembers is seeing Prime Minister Trudeau who was speaking at the games.

"I didn't think I'd get to see him, but I did," she said.

On top of that Joanne has always been interested in athletics and in particular, track and field events, and as a result the Canada Games were quite interesting for her.

Another event which caught her eye at the games, was the water-skiing. Dartmouth and Halifax dignitaries were interested to the teenager.

She found the ships docked under the bridge between Dartmouth and Halifax an impressive sight.

Now, with the summer games musical experience, she is looking forward to being in the BCIVS school band.

Eventually she wants "to be just like Dad and try to get into his band."

Obituaries

MRS. JOHN WEESE

Following an illness of one year duration Mrs. John Weese died yesterday in the Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 86th year.

Mrs. Weese was born in Ivanhoe, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rollins. She was a member of the Foxboro United Church and a member of the church's women's association.

Her husband John Weese predeceased a number of years ago. They lived for a time at Melrose.

Mrs. Weese is survived by three daughters — Mrs. Bernard (Mae) Hollinger and Mrs. Cecil (Lilie) Hubble both of Foxboro and Mrs. Edward (Keitha) O'Shaughnessy of Kitchener.

Two sons Lorne and Clare both of Melrose also survive.

There is a sister Mrs. Orval (Marion) Jackson of Stirling and two brothers Robinson Rollins of Saskatchewan and Percy Rollins of RR 4, Belleville surviving in addition to 14 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

The funeral service for Mrs. Weese will take place at the Grant Funeral Home at 2:30 p.m. and interment to the Foxboro United Church. Interment is in White Lake Cemetery. The Rev. Abel Parsons is officiating throughout.

Donald Francis Hatfield died suddenly at his home, RR 1 Carrying Place, on Thursday. He was in his 57th year.

Born in Belleville, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hatfield, of Huff's Island, and his wife Isobel (Peck.) Mr. Hatfield is survived by seven sons: Pembroke of Montreal, James of Belleville, Robert of Port Arthur and four at home: Peter, Daniel, Paul and Nick. The daughter, Miss Rebecca Hatfield, resides in Montreal. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Mabel Dennitt of Melbourne, Australia.

Funeral services will be held from the Thompson Funeral Chapel, Belleville, on Saturday at 2 p.m. Interment will be in the Albury Cemetery. Officiating will be Rev. Geofry Rennison, of Oshawa.

Loyalist Doors Still Open

Loyalist College has extended its registration period for another three days.

Registration is now scheduled to close last night, will continue to operate today, Saturday and Monday at the community college.

Major reason for the extension decision is the number of students who already have made application deposits but have not yet registered, Loyalist president J. K. Bradford said today.

By last night a total 377 students had enrolled for various technical, business and arts programs. But more than 400 have already applied.

Some students continue in summer jobs, deferring registration until the last possible moment, said Mr. Bradford.

Meanwhile, the enrolment deadline for some courses will be indefinitely extended, the president indicated. The program involved will not be known until current registration is assessed and space in college classes assigned.

Last year the registration deadline in some courses not initially filled continued into October and a similar extension is planned this year.

Loyalist begins its third year of operation Monday.

Preparing A Playhouse

Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse may not seem a glittering attraction right now. But it's in process of being prepared for new season — as guests to subscription-campaign opening discovered on guided tour (above) yesterday.

That's the Spirit

Community spirit that launched the Belleville Theatre Guild on its upcoming season came in for kudos yesterday from John Hill, Dominion Drama Festival secretary. Outside Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse he chats with director Roy Higgins, Mayor Russell Scott.

Theatre Guild Promises Stellar Stage Season

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Theatre Guild is justifying its community presence on the quality of its productions.

Yesterday it launched a new season of the highest dramatic quality.

The basic philosophy for the Guild was laid down by its president Ernest Kneisel as he introduced specially - invited guests at a social event opening the new season at the Pinnacle Playhouse:

"If our plays are no good and nobody turns out we shouldn't be in existence. If our plays are good — this is the only way we'll survive."

Already, however, the Guild has some auspicious qualities going for it — as some of the guests noted yesterday.

Notably, these are headed by the playhouse — the former Salvation Army citadel now leased from the city — and its own professional resident director Roy Higgins.

"I see a tremendous community spirit (here) which is not always prevalent" in other communities, reacted John Hill, executive secretary of the Dominion Drama Festival who drove from Ottawa for the event.

"It's a growing - up for our community," responded Mayor Russell Scott as he complimented Guild members on the conversion they had achieved with the "four-wall facility" rented from the city.

All of which, rejoined Mr. Kneisel, adds up to the Guild being "well on the way to having a good workable theatre" matured beyond "the rickytacky type of things" known to some provincial centres.

End results will be an "exciting season" of evenmuchly theatre, promised Mr. Higgins, key figure in the upcoming program of activities.

The season he outlined is the most ambitious yet planned by the Guild.

In order of appearance, it includes: The Mad Woman of Chaillot (Giradoux comedy classic); Dark of the Moon (a folk drama); Wait Until Dark (mystery drama); Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead (contemporary comedy); Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf (Albee prize-winning drama); Blithe Spirit (Noel Coward comedy).

Between times the Guild also is planning contesting the Eastern Ontario Drama League one-act play festival and staging a musical for the annual Quinte - district spring Arts Festival, said Mr. Higgins.

This last could be the Musicmen, although the Guild is seeking the rights to the Canadian musical, Anne of Green Gables, revealed the director.

Rosencrantz and Guildenstern also will be the Guild's entry in the EODL three-act play festival in March and Ottawa — if royalty rights can be secured. The comedy is still in professional repertories which may complicate its amateur status.

Dark of the Moon will also be a new departure for the Guild — the premiere of its Youtheatre group, a membership between 14 and 25 years of age.

Yesterday Mr. Hill announced one top professional participant.

The Dominion Drama Festival official said a 10 - day workshop in set design will be held here from Sept. 15 by Michael Egan, of Montreal.

Mr. Egan design commissions from CBC, Les Grand Ballets Canadiens and Theatre New Brunswick.

Mr. Hill also had other welcome news for the Guild. He confirmed a $1,500 grant from the DDF and the Ontario Council for the Arts to assist the Guild in meeting its director's salary.

Now, the Guild must raise the rest of the season's expenses.

Yesterday's event also marked the start of a subscription campaign. Season tickets for all six plays are now being offered at $10.

Roving Life Has Its Lure

PICTON — "I didn't run away from home to join the circus — that's an old fashioned idea," remarked Danny, a member of the Peter March Midway in Picton for the county fair.

"I was 14 when I left home in North Bay to go on the road with a circus," stated the young adventurer.

"School? I hated it and I was expelled from high school twice before I forgot about education and got my first job," he explained.

The "first job" was a short order cook in a North Bay mining camp and it lasted about a year. "I was laid off the first summer and when the circus came to town...I asked if they had a job for me," recalled the young man.

The circus did indeed put him to work, first with the monkeys and later the trick horses and ponies. Eventually he learned to be a "tiger" climbing high in the big top to set up the ropes for aerial acts. "Lots of people asked me if I didn't think about falling when I walked around up there, but I never worried any about it," said Danny with assurance.

Is it a lonely life travelling from town to town never stopping to make friends? Not according to Danny. "We stop in a lot of places and sometimes we get rooms overnight in private homes. The people are very friendly and I sure like to eat a home cooked meal. A lot of these same folks write to me now and then, so I guess I have plenty of friends even on the move like this," he said.

Right now Danny works in a Bingo concession, seldom getting through his shift before midnight. He says he's happy with what he is doing but doesn't enjoy it as much as he did the circus. Now that he is older he thinks education might by "O.K." for the young people who can "go it", but doesn't regret his decision to cut the classroom scene.

Watching a horse exhibitor grooming an entry Danny stopped to look the colt over and suggested a grooming tip to the owner. "I really like horses," he commented.

Running his eye over the horse the young carnival worker remarked, "It would be great to have a farm with lots of room for horses."

APPOINTMENT

HAROLD BURLEY

Mr. Frank S. Follwell, President of Follwell Real Estate, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Harold Burley to the general sales staff.

Mr. Burley was born in Belleville and attended public and high school in the city. During World War II he was a member of the Canadian Army. For the past 10 years he managed his own business serving the general public in the Quinte area.

He is a member of Christ Church and is residing at 214 West College St.

Mr. Burley will be pleased to serve clients interested in all types of real estate from his new location at Follwell Real Estate, 600 Front St.

Tenders to Be Called For Installing Sewers

TWEED — The August meeting of the Tweed Village Council was held in the Municipal Building, Tweed, with the Reeve and four councillors present.

Ontario Water Resources Commission advised that an analysis of water samples collected earlier in the summer from the Meraw Well showed contamination. As this was taken during the time that the new pump was being installed they expressed the opinion that this caused this situation and asked that six samples be taken from the well and in the immediate vicinity and be sent in for testing.

Ontario Water Resources Commission also advised that a delay was arising in the calling for tenders for storm sewage installation by reason of problems in obtaining right-of-way permits, and they expected to call for tenders about the third week of August.

Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit agreed to the installation of a septic tank system at John Rosevear's residence, 239 South Victoria Street.

Byron-Jackson Pumps advised the Council that they were of the opinion that the Council should be agreeable to pay 50 per cent of the cost of $1,250.40 for repairing the, new pump in the Meraw Well.

Mrs. Muriel Wood was appointed as a member of the Tweed - Hungerford Community Centre Board, for the year ending June 30, 1970.

Man Dies From Injuries

An 84-year-old Toronto man, injured in an automobile crash near Frankford more than two weeks ago, died yesterday in Belleville General Hospital.

Franklin McArthur received serious spine injuries when the car driven by his wife Laura collided with another automobile on Highway 33, two miles north of Frankford, Aug. 20.

Funeral service will be held in Toronto Monday.

Focus on Belleville

Belleville's growing prominence has received further testimony with the announcement that a leading British orthopaedic surgeon will be here later this month to demonstrate his method of total hip replacement to Ontario surgeons working in this field.

As already pointed out in this newspaper, Dr. Peter Ring's September 27 visit is being timed to coincide with Belleville Week when the spotlight will be on the city and its activities and achievements.

Interesting is the fact that the metal implants invented by Dr. Ring for his orthopaedic surgery, currently being manufactured from stellite in Deloro Stellite's English plant are expected to go into production in Belleville.

This development is a fresh injection into the life of Belleville, one that will aid not only the local economy but offer hope to sufferers from painful arthritic ailments.

Is There A Cure?

Much has been written on the subject of inflation — a subject as illusory as the money it is all about. But no one, neither governments nor economists let alone the public seem absolutely certain about either its causes or cure.

The dictionary defines inflation as an increase in the amount of currency in circulation, resulting in a relatively sharp and sudden fall in its value and rise in prices, and notes it may be caused by an increase in the volume of paper money issued or of gold mined, or a relative increase in expenditures, as when the supply of goods fails to meet the demand.

Thus maintenance of the volume of production is one important counter to inflation. But inflation is a wily foe. Controls placed on the level of government spending, for example, may hold the line for a while only for wages and prices to surge out of hand again not long after.

Globe and Mail columnist Richard Needham noted recently: "The interpretation I put on Pierre Trudeau's anti-inflation encyclical is that Government spending will continue to rise, taxes will continue to rise, prices will continue to rise . . . Inflation comes when people expect inflation; and after 30 continuous years of it, they can't expect anything else."

The public of course is more or less powerless in such a situation. Canadians, living as ever, grandly beyond their means, as former Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne once put it, will continue to acquire such goods as are available whether or not they can afford them at the time.

Inflation then will remain with us to one degree or another. The Government has done well to impose such curbs as it deems necessary. But are they enough? Even the banks take a cautious view, as may be seen from an extract elsewhere on this page from The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce's Commercial Review.

Unorthodox Course

At a time when Arab dissidents are talking of instituting guerrilla warfare in the United States, as an extension of the Arab confrontation with Israel, it seems all the more absurd that high school students in the wealthy suburb of Scarsdale, N.Y. are being taught such tactics for credit. And yet it may be a good thing.

School officials defend the course on the grounds that guerrilla warfare and revolution are taking place all over the world and students should know about it. They say it has no political slant.

Other unorthodox courses at the school include black-white relations, science fiction and mythology.

If the Arabs are as good as their word and begin a campaign of terror in the United States, there will be at least one nucleus of young Americans who will know more than most about possible counter measures.

County Library

One of the greatest treasures of any community is its library. Belleville's Corby Library is a fine example, but it is encouraging to note the growing facilities in the smaller centres and rural areas.

The Frontenac County Public Library for instance has just been opened in Hartington according to reports from Tweed. There are branches at Arden, Sharbot Lake and Sydenham and another one is to be opened in Cloyne later this month.

Ten townships signified their approval of the county library system, further evidence of both the need and public interest in making reading material more readily available.

Power Struggle Probable

Ho's Death Threat to North Vietnamese Stability

AP News Analyst

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Associated Press News Analyst

In the long run, Ho Chi Minh's departure from the stage can have a decided impact on events in Vietnam and South-east Asia.

Ho's passing can prove a strong blow to North Vietnamese and Liberation Front morale. Particularly in his later years, Ho was not the stereotyped figure of a Communist strongman ruler, but rather a symbol, a father figure, a personality who cannot be replaced.

It was in the name of Uncle Ho that appeals went from Hanoi to the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong, exhorting them to pursue protracted war to the finish, even if it should take 30 years. It was in Ho's name that slogans were fashioned for the unification of Vietnam.

It was Ho whose name a dozen years ago was considered so powerful that it, alone, was believed capable of swinging a popular vote in any election. That may have changed under Communist rule in the North, but the name remained potent medicine among many in the South.

Thus it was the name of Ho, rather than the office of the presidency, which carried the authority with the Liadong (Communist) party in the North and with the guerrillas in the South. The question of a successor as president is thus of importance mostly in what it may reveal about the present power structure.

Ho frequently was believed to have been the arbiter of intra-party disputes and the last word in settlement of such disputes among members of what appeared from time to time to be a divided politburo. His presence could have been sufficient to keep others from squabbling among themselves for power.

Until about five years ago there were strong signs of division in the politburo along pro-Chinese and pro-Soviet lines. Much in the future depends upon the progress of Soviet-Chinese hostility.

It is probable that North Vietnam's future rests in the hands of four top men—Le Duan, the party's first secretary; Truong Chinh, chairman of the National Assembly; Premier Pham Van Dong and Marshal Vo Nguyen Giap.

Chinh has the reputation of being strongly pro-Chinese. His name is an alias, dating from the days when he was with Mao Tse-tung in Yenan at the time of the historic "long march."

Truong Chinh means "long march," a token of his admiration for Mao. He was formerly known as Dang Xuan Khu.

A revolutionist since his youth in the 1920s, Chinh helped Ho and Pham found the Indochinese Communist party and was its propaganda director. He was its secretary-general, operating out of China in 1941, and again in 1954-56. Under Ho's Hanoi regime, Chinh slipped and was demoted for the failure of agriculture in the North. He bounced back, possibly through Peking's then strong influence in Hanoi.

Le Duan, now 62, once was considered pro-Chinese. He seemed to shift in the 1960s, after becoming the party's first secretary. Duan is believed to have a strong machine in the party membership. He was one of Ho's leading commanders in the South when the Vietminh were fighting the French. He is an expert on relations with other Communist parties and has travelled both to Moscow and Peking.

Premier Pham Van Dong, now 63, an early Ho associate, is considered pro-Moscow. He began serving Ho's cause in 1925 when he set up the main revolutionary base in South Vietnam. Since partition in 1954, he has been premier and at one time served simultaneously as foreign minister.

Giap, the defence minister who was architect of the 1954 Dien Bien Phu victory over the French, is primarily a military man. It is doubtful that he has vaulting political ambitions, but he could have army support in the future. In any case, he would likely have a strong voice in the outcome of any power realignment.

"If the Russians get there first it will be!"

Letter to the Editor

Specific Skills Necessary In A Competitive World

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Reginald Corey is quite correct when he concludes that a grade 13 education is not sufficient to obtain a good job without many years of experience. The reason is that with only grade 13 a young man does not have a specific skill or talent that is of use to an employer.

No company employs people just for the fun of it. A company employs people to do specific jobs that through which the company makes money. If you do not have the education or training for such a job the company has no interest in you.

Do not say to a prospective employer "I want a job." Say instead "I can do this, this, and that for you."

You can obtain the necessary skill or talent through many years of experience, but few can get a job in the first place. Or you can obtain this skill or talent through education.

The colleges of applied arts and technology were set up to give exactly this kind of education — specific education beyond the scope of the high schools. A high school gives you a general education to help you live in and understand this world — a college gives you a specific education to help you get and keep a job.

There once was a day when a grade 13 education was the ticket into the working world. As technology grows, as jobs become more complicated and more specialized, that day is fast fading into history.

Remember even if you could get a good job with only a grade 12 education, your job security would be continuously threatened by the highly trained young men coming up behind.

Inflation Problem

Curbing It Is A Delicate Exercise

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce

The application of policies of restraint has always been a delicate exercise. Usually the momentum of inflation resists for a considerable period of time the countermeasures of high interest rates, reduction in the supply of credit, budgetary surpluses of governments, and various official warnings. When measures finally do take hold, there is some risk of over-correction, especially if business expectation then swings too far in the direction of pessimism. The situation is further complicated in Canada at this time since there is also the problem of the timing and magnitude of anti - inflationary measures among the major countries of Western Europe and North America.

While Canada will probably achieve an increase in Gross National Product of nine per cent in 1969, as estimated by the Minister of Finance in June, this implies a slower rate of growth in the second half of the year. Some signs of deceleration in the growth rate are now apparent but so far there is little evidence that inflationary pressures are easing. It appears, therefore, that restraining measures will have to be continued for a considerable length of time if they are to be effective.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Soviet cipher clerk Igor Gouzenko defected from the Soviet embassy in Ottawa 24 years ago today—in 1945—taking documents which he handed to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police exposing a network of Soviet espionage in Canada. The documents he carried out of the embassy resulted in some 20 espionage trials and nine convictions. Since his revelations, Gouzenko has been living in Canada under an assumed name with RCMP protection.

Inquest Delayed

Trial by Public Opinion Still Haunts Edward Kennedy

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In terms of Senator Edward Kennedy's political career, the predominant feeling here is that it makes very little difference what the long-awaited inquest in a small Massachusetts courthouse brings to light.

The fact that the final act in the latest Kennedy drama has been put off for perhaps a month or more can only add to the strain on the principals concerned in the tragedy of Mary Jo Kopechne.

Certainly Kennedy must be anxious to have his ordeal before Judge James A. Boyle over and done with. Only the cautious warning of his squad of lawyers about the pitfalls of undue haste could persuade him to seek this further agonizing delay.

Judge Paul C. Reardon of the Massachusetts Supreme Court Tuesday ordered the delay pending a look at the ground rules set by Judge Boyle which barred cross-examination of witnesses by Kennedy's lawyers. The lawyers held that they could not ensure the senator's constitutional rights under the rules.

At best the inquest apparently could only show that Kennedy's 10-hour delay in reporting the accident to police and his much longer delay in offering a fuller account of his actions were the result of a misguided effort to protect others involved with him.

If there is some new information that could put his behavior in a kinder light, it would surely have been brought forward long before this to still the gossip and speculation that has filled the vacuum.

At worst, of course, the inquest could show him to be a liar and even lead to criminal charges against him.

But from the point of view of Kennedy's ambitions to be president, his real trial is before the court of public opinion and in this context it seems clear the inquest can do him much harm but precious little good.

The fact that Edward Kennedy and his friends have known since the fatal accident to conceal the full truth of the circumstances surrounding it have already effectively destroyed his public career," writes columnist Crosby S. Noyes in the Washington Evening Star.

While he may remain in the Senate, supported by the bulk of Massachusetts voters, Noyes says, "the bright promise that he inherited from his brothers . . . has vanished."

Judge Boyle had asserted that "this is not a trial—there is no defendant, no person has been accused of a crime."

True, but the essential truth of the episode has been recorded in Kennedy's own words in his famed television appearance when he described his condition after the July 18 accident as one of shock and confusion.

He admitted his conduct was "indefensible" when he failed to summon help after driving his car into a pond, taking Miss Kopechne to her death.

Yet he soon sought out two lawyer friends.

"The crime in the tribunal of public opinion," writes columnists Richard Harwood and Lawrence Stern in a piece from Edgartown, Mass., "was going for a lawyer instead of a scuba diver."

For the second time in the lives of most of us we are at war. Over and over again we have tried to find a peaceful way out of the differences between ourselves and those who are now our enemies. British freedom depends upon the defeat of the principles advocated by Germany."

The 'Tea Break' in Britain

Montreal Gazette

The English workman now has it included in his labor contracts that he must have "tea breaks." Before that, when he had to place his mug on the workbench or beside the trench that he was digging, he got the habit of calling it just "a cuppa."

Less kindly Establishmen remember Cowper and call it "the cup that cheers."

But this is obviously a just definition. Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, who is 78, fell down a 800-foot shaft in Wales recently and it wasn't until 20 hours later that an RAF helicopter searcher found her. Unbowed except for minor cuts and bruises, the first thing Mrs. Williams asked for was a cup of tea.

Two days later, an official on the Isle of Man explained that air controllers at an island airport had been on duty for 36 hours and "they had to have their tea sometime." That's why a Viscount with 70 people aboard had to circle above the silent airport for 25 minutes before receiving instructions to land.

The most intriguing part of the story is that there is no report of complaint from any of the passengers.

Could the stewardesses aboard the Viscount have been "pouring"?

New Directors Join YMCA Staff

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Two new program directors, one for men and boys, the other for women and girls, could be part of the new look in the Belleville YMCA and in YMCA's all across Canada.

Joining the Belleville Family YMCA as full time directors are Miss Maureen Kelly and David Hahn, two young people fresh out of university.

As Mr. Hahn explained the new philosophy involves the YMCA's desire for people with diversified backgrounds.

"They want a more psychologically - oriented approach to people's needs, someone who has some understanding of what motivates people," he said.

And Mr. Hahn should fill the bill perfectly. He has just graduated from Carleton University in Political Science and Psychology.

And he is young, 23 years of age with lots of travelling background behind him.

Born in Edmonton, he lived in San Antonio, Texas, for a number of years and then moved to Ottawa where he received his university education.

Miss Kelly, 22 is from Fredericton, New Brunswick, and is a graduate of the University of New Brunswick majoring in Industrial Sociology.

She has experience in the workings of the YMCA having worked in Saint John, New Brunswick as a program director for three camps. She was waterfront director and assistant camp director at the YWCA in Calgary, Alberta.

Her YMCA history also consists of a summer as camp director at the Fredericton YM-YWCA.

And to her, "the biggest thing today is the non-structured program," the selling to youth of a very flexible program.

Having arrived Tuesday for work at the Belleville Family YMCA the new directors have set to work immediately recruiting leaders for the various YMCA activities that are getting started for the new "Y" season.

The pair have set out to locate talented people in the community for craft leaders, club and group leaders and for aquatics in particular.

New Directors at Work

Miss Maureen Kelly and David Hahn, program directors for activities at the Belleville Family YMCA, mark the schedule for the coming year on a blackboard at the "Y."

Country Jamboree At Zwick's Island

Details for a Jamboree to be held as part of the United Community Services' pre-campaign celebrations from Sept. 12 to Sept. 20 inclusive are now almost in readiness.

The Trent Valley Jamboree group will entertain at the Zwick's Island Band Shell on Wednesday Sept. 10 at 8:30 p.m.

Featured during the jamboree celebrations will be the Western Hayriders: Don Johnson, an old-time fiddler; Robert Pearson, the singing teenager, and Gladys Smith, the country girl.

Also on the jamboree bill are Lyle Krause Couch, the storyteller; Carrion and Cathy, the singing McCann sisters; Robert Bird, the Little Arrows singer; Frank Gibbs, with Johnny Cash songs; and John McGuinness, the drifter.

On hand to act as master of ceremonies for the event will be radio CJB personality, Dick Lowering.

There will be no admission charge for the jamboree and, in the event of rain, the country music strains will be moved into the Ben Bleeker Auditorium at the Belleville Fairgrounds.

Man Not In Fire As Feared

Police and firemen sifted the ruins of a small frame house on Thurlow township's third concession last night, fearing its owner might have been trapped by fire.

However, no trace was found of the man — Wesley Mercer, believed in his 60s.

The fire broke out sometime after nine p.m. and provincial police and township firemen stayed at the scene for three hours, searching the area after the ruins had cooled.

Police said today they were satisfied Mr. Mercer wasn't in the building but they are still trying to establish his whereabouts.

Water Mains Next Step In Deseronto Planning

DESERONTO — Now that sewers are soon to be installed in Deseronto, the town is turning its attention to its next big project — getting an adequate supply of pure water. The matter has been under consideration for years but has been shelved several times, while attention was being focused on the sewer question.

Now Hisey and Barrington, the town engineers, have been instructed to speed up their work of drawing up plans for the completion of the project, of which the installation of the new water storage tower is an integral part.

With the completion of laying the water main on West Dundas St., water will be available in all parts of the town. However, although the water is chlorinated, there is no filtration plant. When Ontario Water Resources engineers were studying building the water storage tower, they studied the present system and advised having the intake come from the west end of the town where the water is deeper than at the present intake pipe, at the extreme east. Thus in addition to building a filtration plant, the town must make changes in the present water mains, as larger ones will be needed leading from the new intake.

In each step of its town improvements, Deseronto is cooperating with the OWRC which is trying desperately to clean up Lake Ontario, and all other waters in the province. The Bay of Quinte, according to the OWRC, has the highest pollution of any part of Lake Ontario. Yet, Deseronto citizens are using that water, and without filtration.

City Restaurant Robbed of $531

Belleville City Police are investigating a robbery that resulted in a loss of $531 from the M and M restaurant at 23 Bridge Street West.

According to deputy chief Harold Reid, the robbery took place at 4:30 a.m. this morning.

He said the owner Gus Angelatos was alone in the restaurant when two male persons entered and had coffee and a sandwich.

Then one of them went behind the counter and grabbed him by the shirt and told him to hand over the money there.

Mr. Angelatos gave them $531 in cash and they left the store an ddrove off.

There were no weapons involved in the incident and no one was hurt.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES ROGER LING

Ling – McGrath

St. George's Anglican Church, Oshawa was the scene of the double - ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, August 23, 1969 when Gail Catherine McGrath of Oshawa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McGrath of North Cobalt was united in marriage to Charles Roger Ling, also of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ling of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of white peau de soie with an organza overlay fashioned in A-line style with the bodice featuring a scooped neckline edged with Chantilly lace and wrist length matching lace sleeves. She wore a mantilla type veil of the same lace which was caught to a wedding ring headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations mingled with greenery.

The bride's attendant was her sister Susan McGrath who wore a sky blue crepe full length gown in A-line style and carried a bouquet of yellow and white shasta daisies.

Groomsman was Steven Ling, brother of the bridegroom from Belleville and the ushers were Larry Paquet, Hamilton and James Ling cousin of the bridegroom, Belleville.

A reception was held in the Georgian Motor Hotel at Oshawa where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pink lace dress with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of white camellias. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a blue silk shantung dress with matching jacket, blue accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to Jamaica, the bride donned a white wool ensemble with matching accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ling will reside in Oshawa.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "You've always been a mean, wilful child. I'm surprised you have any friends at all. You don't even try to be pleasant. Take that look off your face and don't you dare talk back to me."

Some teen-agers go through a stormy period when life can be difficult for the whole family. Parents have a right to protest and say what needs to be done. However, to attack the teenager's personality is likely to create even more tension, anger and resentment.

Mother: "I know you're upset and feel mean and miserable — and I'm really sorry, but you should not take it out on us. It ruins dinner for the whole family if one person is sullen and irritable at the table."

Survey Shows Effect of Inflation on Average Citizen

By JANE BECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"I used to throw out all my socks every three or four months and buy new ones," says Francis Cavanagh, a 35-year-old Toronto engineer.

"Now I buy new ones once a year. You sometimes don't think inflation has an effect on your living pattern, but it does. It's insidious—and that's a good word for it."

"Sure prices have gone up—you want to have a look in the freezer compartment of my refrigerator—it's got cobwebs. It hasn't been used in so long," says a Windsor, Ont., housewife who is supporting four children on welfare.

A Canadian Press Cross-Canada Survey shows comments like these typical from Canadians across the country struggling with the country's No. 1 malady—inflation.

Figures on inflation are well documented by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics: Cost of living up five per cent in the last year; bank interest rates up two per cent; house prices 30 to 50 per cent higher, depending on where you live.

But inflation's real meaning is in the lives of individual citizens.

From coast to coast, the survey shows Canadians being pinched by the squeeze of rising prices against slower-climbing incomes.

Average wages in Canada have risen by more than seven per cent in the last year. But about 80 per cent of those surveyed find the increase is not enough to keep them abreast of the increased cost of daily living.

"People try to save money any way they can—so they don't up waiters or taxi drivers," says David Smith, a waiter in an Edmonton hotel.

"It just seems I'm getting deeper and deeper into debt."

In Montreal, 19-year-old Michael Radford, a student and medical clerk, says he is caught in a vise.

"If I spend my money the retailers rob me. If I save it the government robs me. It's all rather infuriating."

Basically the cost-price spiral seems to be felt most sharply in central Canada.

Many of those questioned find that although their wages may have risen 10 per cent in the last year, price tags—particularly on food and clothing —have risen to the point that even the raises leave them worse off than before.

Many Ontario residents complain that they eat less steak than they used to.

"I don't bother to buy beef any more," says Mrs. Mary Taylor, a 40-year-old Ottawa widow with five children.

"I try to buy cheaper cuts of meat now," says Mrs. Shahnaz Ghauri of Toronto.

In Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mrs. J. Flesher, whose husband is the city welfare officer, says she serves chicken now instead of beef.

"Children have to have their clothes in June."

British Columbia residents appear to notice increasing food costs more than Canadians in other provinces.

Albert van der Houle, a 34-year-old Surrey, B.C., high school teacher, says his wife complains about the cost of groceries but his family, which includes two small boys, hasn't had to stop buying "any real necessities."

British Columbians are more concerned over increased financing charges on new cars and houses, and rising rates for such services as electricity.

But even in B.C. people say saving money is next to impossible.

"I'm not extravagant, but saving is out unless you have another source of income outside of your husband's," says Mrs. David McIntyre, a Vancouver plumber's wife. Her husband's wages have jumped 50 cents an hour over the last year, but she says the family is "just staying even" financially.

Her experience is shared by Mrs. R. W. Gibson of Edmonton, whose husband is an insurance salesman.

"My husband has a good job and he has been getting raises right along," she says. "But we just don't have any margin, anything to fall back on if my husband should lose his job."

In Saint John, N.B., a 62-year-old university professor says his salary has increased "just enough" to match rising living costs, but the steady rise in the cost of food has reduced the "discretionary" portion of his pay.

As expected, pensioners and others living on fixed incomes feel inflation acutely. They have no leverage in their income to match price changes in what they must buy.

"I get two pensions: a disability pension from Ottawa and one from the Manitoba government," says Pete Kenzie, 60, a retired prison guard in Winnipeg. "With both I get by but with only one I'd have to pull up the rocking chair and sit in it."

But in some areas it appears young people—single or married—with bargaining wants are in an even tougher spot.

"Prices are rising and there doesn't seem any reason to expect any improvement in the situation," says Christopher Burns, a 21-year-old Montreal student and salesman.

Mrs. Dennis Robertson, 25, of Toronto, says she and her husband were forced to move from their one-bedroom apartment when the rent increased to $153 a month from $133 recently. Now they are living with her parents until they can afford to buy a house.

"We don't go to bars any more and we try to hold our restaurant-going down," says Mrs. Robertson, although both she and her husband work.

In Winnipeg, Heather Smith, an 18-year-old secretary, lives at home with her parents but finds she has stopped buying "certain things that have risen in price unless they are absolutely necessary."

Near Halifax, Mrs. A. R. Dow, 64, whose husband is a construction supervisor, says his wages have kept pace with rising living costs. But her three married children are having a hard time making ends meet, have switched to powdered meat, supplement meat with fish and do less entertaining than before.

Here are more comments on how the pressure situation is affecting Canadians: •

"I've had an especially hard time finding children's and shoes at low-enough prices," says Mrs. Nettie Browning, a 67-year-old Vancouver widow.

"In six months or a year I'll really feel the squeeze if prices keep going up."

In Edmonton, Ronald Murison, 70, retired from a bank, says rent worries him most.

"I've had a rent increase in the past two months. If I get another increase I could be in trouble."

In Winnipeg, Mrs. J. Robercich, 34,whose husband is an apprentice mechanic, says the family, with two children, has had to cut down on luxuries.

"But then we've never been used to a lot of luxuries. If we can't afford something we just don't buy it."

"In my estimation wages are much higher than prices," says a 60-year-old Toronto manufacturer, giving the other side of the story.

"They've gone up about 600 per cent since I opened my business, while prices have gone up only 300 per cent. When I started, my workers got $8 a week. Now they get $60 and the price of bread isn't that much higher."

In Ottawa, Mrs. Stella Hannaford finds that a potato-bug killer which cost 45 cents two years ago now costs $1.25 for the same-sized can. And in Kitchener, Ont., Edward Rektor says what bothers him most of all about inflation is the "sneaky" way the price of potato chips has been increasing.

"The manufacturers continually drop the size of the package one ounce at a time," he says. "They think people won't notice."

A 62-year-old Quebec insurance broker, James Breslin, says his income has actually been reduced since last year. His commission rate has stayed steady, while insurance premiums have gone up, resulting in fewer policy buyers and therefore fewer commissions for him.

"A year ago I would to to a grocery store, buy what I wanted to eat and go back home," he says. "Now I have to compare prices."

In Saint John, Mrs. Joseph Keller, 47, whose husband works in a sugar refinery, says she finds increased taxes the biggest single price booster in the family budget. New Brunswick introduced a 10-per-cent income tax surcharge last spring, and also increased taxes on cigarettes.

But at Boutilier's Point, N.S., just outside Halifax, the 53-year-old wife of a crane operator, Mrs. Albert Yarn, was able to be philosophical about the whole situation.

"It's not as bad as the Depression days," she says. "Nobody's going to get rich or get luxuries, but I think people should be more satisfied with what they have."

Mr. Mrs. Rollins Wed 62 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rollins celebrating their 62nd wedding anniversary yesterday were given a surprise party by the staff of Montgomery Lodge to mark the event.

The well-known couple who lived in the Thomasburg area for many years cut the cake provided for them on the occasion and received members of their family and friends in the Lodge's sitting room in the afternoon.

They were married in the Presbyterian church at Fuller with the Rev. McConnell officiating. Mrs. Rollins was formerly Alberta "Bertie" Morland of Fuller.

Their two children — son Ivan lives at 36 Johnson Street in Belleville and a daughter Mrs. Donald (Lila) Fargey resides at RR2, Stirling.

They have two grandchildren — Kenneth Fargey of Belleville and Mrs. Keith (Carol) Wood of Bloomfield. There are also three great grandchildren.

Mr. Rollins has a brother, Joseph, at Carrying Place and a sister, Mrs. John (Ada) Holden of Moira.

INFLATION PINCHES CANADIANS — A Canadian Press Cross-Canada Survey shows people being pinched by the squeeze of rising prices against slower-climbing incomes. Both the retailer (left) and the consumer are affected by the stings of inflation. Average wages in Canada have risen by more than seven per cent in the last year. But about 80 per cent of those surveyed find the increase is not enough to keep them abreast of the increased cost of daily living.

Handicapped Little One May Bring Blessings

By DORIS CLARK

"She has the gift of love" said a young mother about her nine-year-old daughter. "She loves everyone and everyone loves her." The little girl was mentally handicapped — a mongol child.

At first it is a terrific shock for parents to discover that they have brought into the world a mentally handicapped child. Then there will be resentment. The question, "Why should this happen to me?" "Why me?"

Yet this little one must be loved for what he or she is. Normal intelligence is not the whole essence of human personality — far from it. Given patience and understanding, many low I.Q. children can make affectionate and satisfying relationships not only with their families, but with other people.

There will be things that this little one can do and do well. His personality may be winsome, charming, and enchantingly trustful in his dependence upon the help of others. Many, many times one of these children has brought into a home a depth of feeling and dedication undreamed of before.

A great deal can be done to make life interesting to him. He may have talents of his own, in manual dexterity and physical prowess. He may have unusual human understanding.

A dandy booklet about "Your Mentally Handicapped Child" is available from the National Association for Mental Health, London, England. It puts a parent's problems in perspective in working with this type of child, suggests ways to train him, how to help him develop through play, choosing a school and a career for him.

This 28-page booklet sells for $1. If I get requests for it, I will order it direct from England.

Dear Doris: My parents' anniversary is coming up soon and I can think of no greater gift than my letter in your column.

My parents have been married 17 years and I was born 10 months later. Since that time they have had seven other children and have succeeded in treating us all fairly and as individuals.

It hasn't been an easy job for them, either. I myself have given them 16, shall we say "challenging", years.

They have never had a real vacation of their own, not because they couldn't afford it but because they feel that their place is here at home with their children.

There is never a thought for themselves, it seems. We always come first and I, along with all my wonderful brothers and sisters, am truly grateful.

So happy anniversary, Mom and Dad, with special thanks from — Your Eldest of Eight.

Dear Eldest: What a heartwarming anniversary gift! Make sure they see it, won't you — even if you have to clip it out and hold it in front of their respective noses.

Congratulations, Mom and Dad!

Confidential to Bride-To-Be: You won't find anything about donations at weddings, since it is an ethnic custom. But passing out thank-you cards right then and there simply won't do. Say to your guests as you welcome them, "I'm so glad you were able to come," or "It's grand to see you," and be sure you circulate among them at some point during the reception.

The thank-you's should go in individual informal letters to each one later.

Scarves A Must Accessory for Fall

NEW YORK (CP) — Muffle up if you want to be in the fashion this fall. Length, not width, counts. Wrap nine feet of tweed, chiffon, feathers or fur around your neck. That's for the extrovert. Drape a modest, elongated scarf any way you prefer. That's for the conventional. Both wearers will be in fashion.

Scarves are mostly worn this fall with dresses and suits. Often they encircle the high neckline and then lie flat over one shoulder. Some sophisticates even attaches a paisley print scarf on a matching blouse worn with a bright green vest-dress.

Scarves were most important in the 1920s. A scarf, the cloche and a figureless dress were almost a uniform. Then in the mid-1920s they were often tied at the back or looped in the front of a costume.

A lot of scarves were seen in 1957, as a little flicker or dramatically flowing to the floor. By 1960 it was the fall scarf for fashion, he spring of 1963 saw scarves "heaped around the throat of costumes, suits or coats." By fall many of the printed scarves were three-cornered and worn as babushkas over the head.

This three-corner or kerchief scarf is also popular this fall. It can be small or a stole size such as Oscar de la Renta's fringed check, to complement his matching floor-length skirt and short jacket ensemble.

De la Renta even blows up a fringed triangle to wrap proportions. He also likes the shawl look, big and triangular and giant-fringed. He matches them with red-and-white herringbone or tweed skirts topped by pyjama-top shirts.

This large shawl style is used by Leo Narducci in red paisley design draped over one shoulder and tied at the waist. Oddly it is teamed with a gothic pleated skirt in a gigantic worsted gingham and a blouson. The shawl is identical with those worn as evening shawls in the late 1920s and then relegated to adorn the family piano.

These real Spanish shawls can be worn in many flirtatious ways and Narducci makes the most of them with black pannelled skirts and long white pull-down tunics.

But the really in-fashion is the grandaddy of all scarves, at least seven to nine feet long. With maxi coats they are usually worn around the throat to fall down to the toes and the heels of the new square-cut walking shoes. For evening, especially in a chiffon or a feather boa, they can circle the head, the throat with both ends floating down the back.

Ben Reig likes a long muffler to match his curry check coat, worn over a curry jersey dress. Mr. Mort loops a long fringed muffler over one shoulder to fall back and front, as part of his ankle-length costume in Black Watch plaid of fully pleated skirt and long tunic jacket.

For evening Sarmi uses long narrow fringed scarves to accent long, tangled crepe or lame chiffons. Suzy Perette likes satin on satin, a gown with a long Isadora-type scarf ending in a deep bead fringe. Nat Kaplan teams a huge fringed stole of lemon-yellow wool with a matching dinner gown.

Also for evening is the long, elegant feather boa. A new wardrobe item about 1900, the feather boa was even worn with Sunday suits and coats. This fall de la Renta prefers coq to the more usual ostrich feathers. On the runway his models crossed the boas at the back and looped the ends over their arms to the front. One yellow boa caressed a floor-length silver brocade.

Silver-dyed swansdown is used by Gayle Kirkpatrick for a boa that his model wore encircling the neck and twined around the shoulder of a long-skirted, long-tunic chiffon dress.

But be sure you know how to handle the long, slinky boa before you invest in one. A limp boa is deadly dull.

Ann Landers

Girl Attracts Wrong Friends

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After sitting home for 28 years (three dates the whole time) I decided to lose some weight, become a blond, change jobs and go where the action is. Here is my record for the past 16 months and I am ready to admit something is wrong with me. Can you tell me what?

I have managed to attract men whose wives don't understand them too well, one Captain of Industry who drives a Mercedes Benz, never has enough money for gas, a musician who smokes crazy cigarettes, a 52-year-old insurance adjuster who is impotent and a 23-year-old who calls me Mrs. Robinson and wants me to teach him a few things.

How can I get to meet a stable decent man and get out of this rut racy? — BELLA DONNA.

• • •

DEAR BELLA: The trouble with any rat race is that you are racing with rats. And the rats usually win.

Change your job again and get involved in some extra-curricular activities that appeals to decent, stable people.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to "Hurt Feelings" was terrible. She was the woman who started to sit down in the dainty antique chair and the hostess took her arm and led her to the sofa — much to her embarrassment. "Hurt Feelings" said the hostess was a boor. You said the fat lady should have known better.

The following is from a book on antiques: "A chair too wobbly for use should be discarded or placed in a museum. To be of value, an antique chair must be sturdy and in good condition so guests can sit on it."

And now what have you to say for yourself, Miss Knowitall? — PEABLE.

• • •

DEAR P.: That's one man's opinion. Now here's one woman's.

An obese woman should have more sense than to head for a dainty chair whether it is old or new. Such a chair was not constructed to hold her — either in the 18th century or now.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Time Again for Pickle Recipes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Back in '64 or '65 you gave a recipe for crock pickles that a relative of yours gave you — her name was Nora something. They were real good but I can't find my clipping . . . Margaret S.

ANSWER: Other readers asked for those crock pickles so actually I am quite pleased to repeat.

NORA GILMER'S COMPANY PICKLES
(Ideale - style)

6 large cucumbers (average size 8½" long x 2" diameter)
Boiling water
1 1-3 cups granulated sugar
1 1-2 tsps. salt
2 2-3 cups white vinegar
4 tsps. whole mixed pickling spices (tied in bag with long string)

Wash the cucumbers and put them in a medium-large pickle crock or porcelain bowl or enamel preserving kettle and pour over them enough boiling water to cover and let stand overnight. Drain and repeat this boiling water treatment for next three mornings — which means you cover them with boiling water and drain four times in all. On fifth day drain cucumbers and cut into quarters lengthwise and remove seeds. Cut strips into ½" pieces. I had 12 cups cut-up cucumber pieces. Return to crock.

In a large saucepan combine sugar, salt, vinegar and whole spices tied in a bag with long string. Bring to boiling and pour over cucumber pieces in crock and let stand two days. Turn the whole business — cucumbers and vinegar-syrup into preserving kettle and bring to boiling point.

NOTE: Remove bag of pickling spices when syrup is spicy enough to please your taste. Turn into hot sterile jars and seal. This amount will fill five pints. Store in a cool place or return to crock, cover with plate to keep pickles submerged in vinegar-syrup, cover with another plate or lid to keep them clean and store in cool cellar.

NOTE: Tomorrow I will repeat, by popular request, Margaret Hegler's Sweet Gherkins.

Willing Workers

AKRON, Ariz. (AP)—Three women who have chalked up 5,000 hours each in volunteer work at Akron General Hospital have been presented special awards by William Walker, president of the hospital's board of trustees. Mrs. Robert Breckenridge has been a volunteer since 1955; Mrs. William Whelton since 1962, and Mrs. A. F. Erdenberger since 1956. Members of the Women's Board, they all work in the craft and sewing department helping create items for the annual bazaar.

Ottawa Spending Limit Is Opposed by Lawyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association Thursday hoarded and sank a resolution suggesting that limits be placed on federal spending power.

Professor Gerald Morris of the University of Toronto withdrew the resolution as "tenacious" after three amendments sliced it to ribbons.

Only 69 of the 850 lawyers attending the annual convention here were present as the Morris resolution came up.

A clear majority, led by former Exchequer Court president, J. T. Thorson, and Maxwell Cohen, McGill law professor and constitutional authority, opposed it, however.

The opponents said federal spending power accounts for social welfare legislation in Canada ranging from old age pensions and the medical care insurance program to the equalization payments that keep the poorer provinces up to a national standard.

Mr. Thorson said any constitutional provision on federal spending power would be dangerous. No one had known 50 years ago the demands that would be made on federal government today.

Prof. Morris is chairman of the association's constitutional reform committee, which has been at work for a year.

The resolution called for "figure intensive study of the legal problems involved in the delimitation of the federal spending power."

A Cohen amendment removed the word "delimitation" and deleted entirely the key last paragraph of the resolution, which recommended:

"That the federal government should not enact legislation in the field of social welfare, including family allowances, old age pensions and hospital insurance, without the consent of the provinces."

Unions Seek Support In Fighting Independent

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of 24 Toronto locals of international construction trade unions flew to Washington Thursday to demand support from their international presidents in their fight to break a Canadian-led union of concrete formers.

The officers of the Toronto Building Trades Council need funds to continue the strike they launched last week at high-rise construction sites in the Metropolitan Toronto area. Their goal is to force owner-builders to require contractors to use only workers from the unions affiliated with the council.

The council's treasury has been drained by payments of $20 a day to members of Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to prevent deliveries of ready-mixed cement to all construction sites in the city.

With no more payments in sight, the ready-mix truck drivers have wavered in their support of the council's campaign to take over the 1,700 members of the independent Concrete Formers' Union led by Bruno Zanini.

Islanders Opposed To Maritime Union

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A majority of Prince Edward Islanders would vote against Maritime union, the Charlottetown Junior Chamber of Commerce told the Maritime union study here Thursday.

Two spokesmen for the chamber, Stanley Warwick and David Steeves, said there is a general feeling that political union would mean a loss of civil service jobs and thus reduce spending power, especially here in the P.E.I. capital.

Some would favor union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island if they were sure Charlottetown would be capital of the united province, they said. Loss of its status as a seat of government would mean a decline in the influence and prosperity of the city.

Robarts Outlines Plan For Talks with Indians

TORONTO (CP) —Premier John Robarts announced Thursday a government plan for a series of 11 meetings at Queen's Park between a special committee of cabinet ministers and representatives of 94 Indian bands.

Purpose of the meetings, Mr. Roberts said in a statement, is "to hear the views of the Indians on the new federal Indian policy and ask them what Ontario should do for our Indians."

Two of the planned in-camera meetings have been held during the last two weeks and the cabinet has approved a fund of $25,000 to cover travelling costs. The committee, which includes every minister whose responsibilities extend to Indian issues, has invited 188 delegates to represent the views of 54,593 Indians.

Mr. Roberts will be chairman of the meetings but chairman of the government's committee on Indian affairs will be John Yaremko, minister of social and family services whose policies were raked with criticism earlier this year when most of the senior members of department's Indian development branch resigned.

Mr. Yaremko said Thursday he had given up his annual vacation to devote more time to Indian issues this year.

The provincial initiative follows Mr. Robart's statement earlier this year that new federal plans to abolish the federal department of Indian affairs was a "real breakthrough" and promised Ontario's co-operation in bringing the Indian people into the mainstream of Canadian life.

Meanwhile, Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests announced improved operation of forest camps as a livelihood for Indians will be discussed when he visits three northern settlements Sept. 8 and 9.

Canadian Firm's Device Detects Air Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian research firm has proved that a device it developed can successfully measure specific air pollutants while floating by balloon in the outer atmosphere.

David Whiteman, vice-president of Barringer Research Ltd., said in an interview Thursday the firm developed the Barringer Correlation Spectrometer during the last five years at a cost of more than $500,000.

He said the concept of measuring air pollution from space was proven Wednesday on a 300-mile flight at an altitude of 25 miles when the spectrometer detected and plotted major air pollutants while floating by balloon in the outer atmosphere.

The North American Space Administration financed the test estimated at $125,000.

Mr. Whiteman said the device sees gases rather than smells them.

Khan-Tineta Horn Free But Dejected

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Kahn-Tineta Horn walked out of equity court here Thursday a free woman, dejected and broke.

The court had ruled the Crown had failed to prove that a small knife she was carrying during a demonstration at the bridge at the international border here Dec. 18 was "an offensive weapon dangerous in public peace."

But Miss Horn, 24, the beautiful Mohawk from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, said in an interview later she was disappointed Judge James Clair of Barrie, Ont. had dismissed the charge without hearing her prepared defence.

She said her presentation contained evidence that land and sovereignty had been stolen from the Mohawks on the nearby St. Regis reserve. "And that's what the trial was all about as far as me and my people are concerned."

Strictly Personal

Movie Audiences Are Aggravating

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the reasons I rarely go to movies has nothing to do with movies, but with the kind of people who regularly attend them. They remind me of Oscar Wilde's remark, "My last play was a success — the audience was a failure!"

I have never understood the psychological processes of the people who, for instance, feel they have to repeat out loud the words that are flashed on the screen.

"The Feature Presentation," they will repeat loudly to their companions, or "A Paramount Production." Do all these people bring illiterates with them to the movie house?

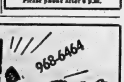
Or they will iterate a funny line that has been spoken by one of the characters — their voices usually blurring out a rejoinder that is even funnier. Perhaps they want to let their companions know that they possess a sense of humor.

Even more aggravating are the spectators who laugh at what I consider the wrong places. A stupid piece of buffoonery excites their hilarity to a hysterical degree; a genuinely pathetic scene finds them snickering with misplaced risibility or a tense and silent moment of action has them "explaining" the proceedings to the adjoining seat.

Perhaps I am unduly sensitive to the atmosphere around me, but the audience has always seemed to me to share responsibility for the general enjoyment of a film.

If the people around me are noisy, or inattentive, or greedily munching on popcorn, it tends to warp my pleasure in watching and listening. I can feel the general texture of an audience like a palpable coating around my personality; and a burlap audience makes me itch and want to run up the aisle and out into the cool darkness of the street.

Stage actors are also extraordinarily sensitive to the emanations of an audience, and many have told me that they give their best performances when they can "smell" a smart and attentive house. Conversely, a group of raucous conventioneers can bring down the level of a performance within minutes after the curtain has risen.



What most of us fail to realize is that every work of art (or even entertainment) is a collaboration between performer and audience.

Even when the performer is personally absent — as in a movie — the behavior of the house affects the influence of the film. There are some downtown movie houses I will not enter, no matter what film they are showing — because I know that the kind of audience there will destroy the responsive mood that is necessary for full enjoyment.

O'Quinn Repeats Threat of Rough Rider Television Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Red O'Quinn, general-manager of Ottawa Rough Riders, reiterated Thursday the football club will bar all television of home games next year if no settlement is reached with cable television interests.

O'Quinn said he and club owner David Loeb have made it clear to officials of the Canadian Football League that if no arrangement is worked out with the cable companies soon, all home game television will be cut off.

He said the CTV network, owner of CFL television rights this year, is pursuing the matter with cable company representatives on the football club's behalf, but added: "If no arrangement is worked out we will ban television."

O'Quinn said Riders budgeted for a deficit for the end of this season and will "be losing a few top players because of this" if the cable TV problem is not solved.

Riders threatened to ban home game TV for the 1969 season after the Canadian Radio Television Commission, broadcasting's regulatory agency, declined to intervene in the dispute.

However, the club dropped this plan when it became apparent it would jeopardize the whole TV agreement and revenue for other CFL teams.

But club officials said last July that they would enforce it in 1970 if no satisfactory solution could be worked out.

O'Quinn said the current contract with CTV is for this year only. Riders get approximately $120,000 in TV revenue for the year.

"Our attendance has been down for every game at home this year and we are going to have to do something about it," O'Quinn said. "It seems we fill every other ball park but our own.

Two cable television companies carry Ottawa home games from stations in Kingston and Montreal, outside the 75-mile blackout limit imposed by the

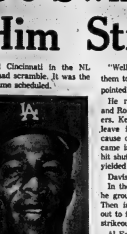
Willie's Swing Costs Him Streak



By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pitch from Gary Ross of San Diego Padres came in high and tight. Willie Davis swung and missed it for a third strike on a 1-2 count.

Thus came to an end Thursday night the longest consecutive game hitting streak in the major leagues in a quarter of a century.

The centre fielder for Los Angeles Dodgers had hit safely in 31 consecutive games and was within hailing distance of the modern National League record of 37 set by Tommy Holmes of the old Boston Braves in 1945.

Not only did the Padres stop Davis, but they blanked the Dodgers 3-0 dropping them to third place behind San Francisco and Cincinnati in the NL West mad scramble. It was the only game scheduled.

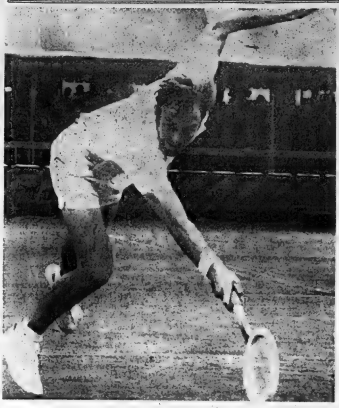
"Well, at least it took two of them to get me," said a disappointed Davis.

He referred to Dick Kelley and Ross, the two Padres pitchers. Kelley started, but had to leave in the third inning because of a sore shoulder. Ross came in and completed a four-hit shutout. He and Kelley each yielded two hits.



Davis' night went this way.

In the first and third innings he grounded out to Jose Arcia. Then in the fifth he grounded out to first and followed with a strikeout in the eighth.

Al Ferrera, a former Dodger, drove in all three runs for the Padres. He doubled home Roberto Pena and Ollie Brown in the third and hit a home run in the sixth.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1969

Australia's John Newcombe sweeps low for a return during his five hour, 30 minute, match with Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills Tuesday.

Rain Playing Havoc With Tennis Tourney

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Australia's John Newcombe, with an eye on the $16,000 first prize, predicted today the two-day delay in the United States open tennis tournament could throw the event into a wide open scramble.

"Tennis tournaments are funny things," the second-seeded player said. "A man tries to pace himself and build up to a peak at exactly the right moment."

A second straight day's postponement Thursday because of rain — with threat of more today — pushed the schedule ahead a day and makes it necessary to reschedule the men's singles final for Monday, barring further delay.

Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles and third-seeded Tony Roche are still lagging behind with an unplayed fourth round match, the winner in meet Earl (Butch) Buchholz of St. Louis.

Six players are already in the quarter-finals and will play today, weather permitting.

Home Not So Sweet When It's in Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Athletics are alive but not at all well in Oakland.

Home for a crucial four-game series with first-place Minnesota, the Athletics gave the Twins a good run but faded and took a 10-5 shellacking Thursday night.

The loss dropped the Athletics 7½ games back of Minnesota in the American League West and the villain of the show was little Cesar Tovar, the slap hitter-turned-slugger.

Tovar ruined the evening — and maybe the whole season — for the Athletics with his first career grand slam. That shot won the ball game for the Twins after the game Athletics had battled from behind to tie it in the bottom of the ninth.

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Baltimore Orioles nipped Detroit Tigers 5-4, California Angels shut out Chicago Cubs 1-0 and Kansas City Royals topped Seattle Pilots 5-3. The other teams had the day off.

The Athletics, needing a sweep of the series to make a real dent in the Twins' first-place cushion, led 4-1 going into the eighth inning.

But Minnesota struck suddenly, scoring four runs — the last two on Harmon Killebrew's 40th home run of the season. That gave the Twins a 5-4 bulge into the ninth.

But Oakland's Sal Bando, who had homered earlier, opened with a single and was sacrificed to second. Then an error by defensive replacement Frank Quilici allowed Bando to cross with the tying run.

In the 10th the Twins quickly loaded the bases on a double by Tony Oliva, an intentional walk to Killebrew and an unintentional one to Chuck Manuel.

That set it up for Tovar, who never before had hit a grand slam and only had 21 career homers in four big league seasons.

The Athletics had company as victims of late-inning thunder.

Detroit took a 4-1 lead into the ninth inning against Baltimore before the Orioles erupted.

Gaels Breeze Along

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — South Vancouver Legionnaires have taken on a tough job in junior lacrosse—defeating what they consider Canada's top team in four straight games.

Ron Phillips' team took on the Job Thursday after losing the third game of the best-of-seven series 22-10 to Jim Bishop's Oshawa Green Gaels.

If they are to break the Gaels' six-year possession of the Minto Cup they must win the next four games starting here Saturday.

"They're the best team I've ever seen, they're superhuman," coach Philips said Thursday night, "but they're not invincible."

The Legionnaires are not rookies in come-from-behind wins. They lost the first three games of their best-of-seven western final with New Westminster Salmonbellies but won the last four games.

"We haven't given up yet," Philips said. "We're not a bunch of quitters.

'Most of these boys are from a low-income area," explained Colin Cruikshank, commission of British Columbia junior lacrosse. "They're used to fighting for what they want."

"We'll make a game of it Saturday," said Dave Litzenberger, the Legionnaires' leading scorer in Thursday's game, with four goals.

Men Give Viola First Win

REGINA (CP) — Viola Thomas, 25, of Calgary, the first woman jockey on the Prairies, registered her initial victory at Exhibition Park Thursday.

Miss Thomas, aboard Wild Bruce, was awarded the win after a stewards' inquiry in the seventh and final race before 858 fans.

The stewards awarded the race to Wild Bruce, who had finished second, and dropped the winner, Knights Up, to fourth place.

The ruling also moved Rico Flash, the third-place finisher, to second and placed Reigh Phar third.

The inquiry was ordered when Knights Up, ridden by Gerry Kipling, drifted wide as the field entered the home stretch and forced Wild Bruce to the outside.

The inquiry also revealed that on the previous turn Knights Up had moved to the rail to force Reigh Phar to drop back.

Miss Thomas was approved as a jockey May 8 by the three stewards of the Western Canada Racing Association, one appointed by the Alberta Racing Commission and two by the WCRA.

She had been riding in Saskatoon, Edmonton and Calgary.

Alpha Cape Out to Win Black Diamond Stake for 'Girls'

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Last week's final of the Corby Distillery Stake was a two - horse race between Ent Lake's Canadian Killean and Early Lakes Pride, but Saturday this pair of pacers will face a stiff challenge in the final of the Black Diamond Stake.

The primary reason is Alpha Cape. Alpha who is owned by Ross Morthur of Ottawa and trained and driven by Ross Curran of Smiths Falls, has been a standout at Kingston this season.

She ran off four wins in a row earlier this year at Kingston and has won the last two feature races in the Limestone City. The three-year-old brown mare set a track record of 2:08.1 in the process.

Moreover Alpha Cape has beaten Canadian Killean — last week's Corby Stake winner — twice this season on the Kingston track.

Early Lakes Pride, runner-up to Canadian Killean in the Corby Stake, has the pole position in the Black Diamond Stake race while Canadian Killean has the number three slot.

Alpha Cape will start from the number two hole between her two arch - rivals in the Black Diamond Stake which will see nine horses vie for a total purse of $1,360 with $602 going to the winner.

All nine horses qualified for the Black Diamond Stake final Saturday, Aug. 16 in three elimination heats, but a heavy rain made the track unsafe for racing and prevented the running of the Stake final.

The Stake race is run by the Quinte Riding and Driving Club for the Fair Board which has staged the Black Diamond Stake as a grandstand feature during the annual fair in each of the last six years.

Eligibility rules for the Black Diamond Stake require that all entrants must not have had career earnings exceeding $200 as of January 1st, 1969.

proof to upset for head
The trio of Early Lakes Pride, Canadian Killean and Alpha Cape each won one of the three elimination heats dent Aug. 16 with the Pride horse turning in the best time — 2:14.3.
Canadian Killean's time was 2:17, while Alpha Cape turned the mile in 2:12.4 on a very heavy track in the last heat before the cancellation of the remainder of the races because of the unsafe condition of the track.

Early Lakes Pride has a little bit of tradition going for him Saturday night — his sire Early Lakes John won the Black Diamond Stake race in 1965 in 2:05.4 — the fastest time ever recorded at the Belleville track.

If Early Lakes Pride wins Saturday night in the sixth annual running of the Black Diamond Stake race he and Early Lakes John will become the first father-son combination to turn that trick in the history of Black Diamond Stake.

Bay Shore Marty, a four-year-old brown gelding owned by Alec Sweezet and T. Atkinson of Campbellford, ran second to Alpha Cape in the third elimination heat and will start from the fourth position.

Jimmie Boy, runner-up to Canadian Killean in the first elimination heat, will be in the number five slot while Joanne's Gem, which finished second to Early Lakes Pride in the second elimination heat has drawn the number six starting position.

The three third-place finishers in the elimination heat will start in the seventh, eighth and ninth positions. They are Viola McGregor, Bon Echo, and Whitta Pride.

The Black Diamond Stake race isn't the only thing special about the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's nine-heat racing card Saturday.

"We've got new blood in the form of 10 horses which haven't raced here before," said Club president Jack Jeffrey, "I think it's the best card of the year — it's well balanced and we should have some good close races."

Stinson's Bounced from Title Race

Less than one year after they captured the Commercial Softball League championship Stinson's Construction were eliminated from the league's semi-final playoffs in six games as league play indicates a direct turn-about from last year's results.

City Hotel drove the final nail in Stinson's coffin Thursday night with a 5-3 win and advanced into the championship series.

Meanwhile Point Anne Cementmen continued to make their second turn-about of the 1969 season by trouncing Ellis Juniors 6-4.

Point Anne had already rebounded from last year's abortion status to win the 1969 Commercial League pennant and Thursday night's win allowed them to even their best - of - seven semi-final series with the Juniors at three games apiece after dropping the first three games of the series.

Point Anne and the Juniors will tangle at 7.30 p.m. Monday night at Alemite ball park in the seventh and deciding game of their semi-final series for the right to meet City Hotel in the 1969 Commercial League championship playoff series.

Lethbander Bob Ethier handcuffed Stinson's with a four-hit nine-strikeout performance and escaped a seventh inning jam to insure City's win and entrance into the finals.

City Jumped on Stinson starter Bob Swan in the bottom of the third for three runs on singles by Larry Potter and Bob Growden and a pair of Stinson errors.

Two more Stinson errors, two walks, a wild pitch and another single by Growden gave City another pair of runs in the fourth inning as the Hotelmen never looked back.

In all City collected five hits as Swan issued three free passes and struck out three. Ethier didn't walk a man in his four - hit, nine strikeout performance.

Larry Potter, Pat Kellar and Bob Brooks hit safely for City in addition to Growden while Swan with a two - run triple and Larry Soule, Ken Genereaux and Neil Campbell with singles accounted for the Builders' hits.

Linescores:

POINT ANNE 8
ELLIS JUNIORS 4

Ted Wale threw a seven-hitter and the Cementmen got to Junior hurler "Scotty" Reid for 12 hits — nine of them in the three innings that they scored runs — as Point Anne jumped in front with three first inning runs and built up an 8-1 lead.

Ted Wale and Mike Cook each singled twice and drove in two runs apiece for the winners while Gerald Maher collected three singles, Larry Fraser two singles and Claude Carr a solo homer. Stu Muirhead and Tim McFee also also singled for the Cementmen.

Bob Parsons drove in a pair of runs for the Juniors with a solo homer and a sacrifice fly and Steve Ling contributed a double and single to the losing cause. Paul Goodfellow, Dale Duval, Scott Reid and John Campbell each singled for the Juniors.

Wale fanned four and walked one while throwing a seven-hitter while Reid gave up 12 hits, issued five free passes and struck out five.

Latchford Could Lengthen Distances

Orillia Majors may have the home field advantage in the fourth game of their best-of-five Ontario Baseball Association senior semi - final series with Belleville Joyces, but the series may seem just a trifle further for their home run hitters.

Leading the series 2-1, the Majors are used to making hay in their miniature park, with its 220 - foot centre and right field distances catering to Orillia's predominantly left - hand hitting lineup.

But Bill Latchford is not known for giving up too many hits, let alone home runs, and the Joyces' mound veteran is virtually a shoo-in to start Saturday night's 8 p.m. game in Orillia.

Latchford set the Majors down on four hits as the Joyces avoided elimination with a 5-2 Wednesday night win in Belleville. With the Picton school teacher sidelined with shoulder troubles, the Joyces dropped lopsided 8-2 and 16-1 verdicts not to mention a 20-2 thumping that was washed out when a Belleville protest was upheld.

The Majors have been unable to put a ball near the Belleville Fairground fences but in their "mini-park" it's been a different story.

Even pitcher Mike Bozet poked a pair of the six homers that accounted for 11 of Orillia's 16 runs in last Monday's home win.

Saturday night, the Majors will have to do their stuff against Belleville's best pitching.

City Soccer Attention Focuses on Zwick's Field

The emphasis on Minor Soccer Week in Belleville and, indeed the whole minor soccer season, will be focused on Zwick's Island Saturday.

Mayor J. Bansell Scott has officially proclaimed this week Minor Soccer Week in Belleville and the week's activity has consisted primarily of Cup elimination rounds leading up to Saturday's season's finale.

Saturday the Zwick's Island soccer pitch will be continuously used from 9 o'clock in the morning until approximately 8 o'clock in the evening.

The morning activity will centre on the Cup finals in each of the three divisions — Mosquito, Peewee and Bantam.

Station Square Food Market will meet Avon Jewellers at 9 a.m. in the Mosquito Cup final to kick off the day's activities. Belleville United will play Richard Ellis Printers at 10.15 a.m. in the Peewee Cup final and Uptown Billiards will tangle with the Falcons "A" team in the Bantam Cup final at 11.30 a.m.

In the afternoon all-star clubs representing each of the three divisions will get their second taste of inter-city competition when they play host to teams from Oshawa to complete their home-and-home series.

All three Belleville squads dropped the opening games of the home-and-home set in Oshawa to their powerful opposition, but are hopeful of a better fate Saturday. The Mosquitos play at 1 p.m., the Peewees at 2.30 p.m. and the Bantams at 4.15 p.m.

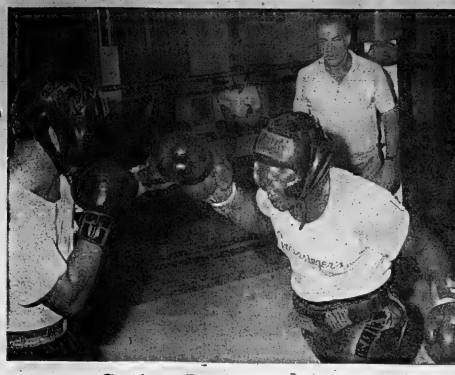
"I'd say we had a very good year considering we've only been in operation two years," said Belleville Minor Soccer Association vice - president Fred Jones, "and I expect we will make further changes and improvements next season as we progress in our formative years."

Jones added that he hopes there will be a district minor soccer organization formed next year and that the district will send entries into the Ontario playdowns.

Everyone is invited to come and view the Minor Soccer season's last big fling Saturday and the day will conclude with a senior game — a Trenton Challenge Cup semi-final match between Belleville United and CFB Trenton starting at 6 p.m.

Combines Await Verdict

It looks like there'll be an inter - shop battle for the Departmental Softball League playoff championship.



Thursday night the CN Combines trounced the Post Office 14-5 to win their best-of-five semi - final playoff series three games to two.

But that's not certain because the Posties protested the third game of the series and the outcome of the protest isn't known yet.

If the Post Office protest is disallowed the CN Combines will stage an inter-shop battle with the CN Turbos for the league championship starting Sunday with a 1.30 p.m. game at the CNR ball park.

Larry Marshall scattered 11 hits to pick up the win for the Combines. He issued four walks and fanned three men. Paul Williams and George Johnson shared the pitching chores for the Posties. They also allowed 11 hits while walking seven and striking out three.

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — Doctors told Nino Benvenuti Thursday that his right hand has healed completely and that he can go ahead with the defence of his world middleweight boxing championship. Benvenuti suffered a broken bone behind the index finger in losing a non-title, 10-round bout to former light heavyweight champion Dick Tiger at New York last May 26. After his examination the Italian champion expressed confidence that he would beat either Fraser Scott of Seattle at Naples, Oct. 4, and Luis Rodriguez of Miami, Fla., later in the year. "Then I plan to challenge Bob Foster for his world light heavyweight title," said Benvenuti.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — New Westminster Blues know they must stop high-scoring Brooklin, Ont., forwards Bill Squires and Elmer Tran tonight if they hope to prolong the Canadian senior lacrosse championships. Squires and Tran beat the New Westminster defence regularly in Wednesday's second game of the best-of-seven series for Mann Cup, scoring eight goals between them. Brooklin won the second game 14-10 and took the opening game 15-11. A win tonight would give the defending national champions a commanding 3-0 lead in the series. Fourth game is scheduled Saturday in nearby North Vancouver, a fifth, if necessary, will be played Monday.

TORONTO (CP) — Ten members of Canada's national ski team will leave for Europe Oct. 15 to prepare for the world championships Feb. 7-15 in Italy. "It is the earliest we've ever been to Europe," Ed Creed, the team's international competition chairman, said in an interview Thursday night. "We'll go where the snow is. They need the long running — miles and miles of runs they can't get in this part of the world."

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Quarry, knockout winner over Brian London in a world second round, says he is quitting boxing. Some ringside sports writers said the 25-year-old London should do the same after his loss in the Oakland Coliseum Wednesday night. London, the Englishman who has won 38, lost 19 and had one draw in a long heavyweight career, indicated that he would keep fighting but against lesser foes.

TORONTO (CP) — Two Canadian records were set Thursday night when the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society concluded its most successful summer yearling sales. A total of 171 yearlings was sold during the three nights. They went for $1,296,000, an average of $7,582. Both were records. The previous sale marks were set last year when 214 yearlings grossed $1,287,000 for a $5,923 average.

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike D'Amato, released by New York Jets of the American Football League, has joined Montreal Alouettes for a five-day trial, the Eastern Football Conference club announced Thursday. The 28-year-old D'Amato played college football at Stratford University in New York from 1964 to 1968. He was the 10th draft choice of the Jets and was used as a defensive safety with the Jets last season.

HAMILTON (CP) — Stratford Hoods advanced to the Senior Intercounty Baseball Association semi-finals Thursday by defeating Hamilton Red Wings 7-3 in the final game of their best-of-seven series. Stratford now plays Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers in a best-of-five series to determine who meets London Pontiacs for the championship.

Western Football 'Leopards' Will Try to Change Spots

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Can three leopards change their spots in Western Football Conference play that is the question?

In other words, can Calgary Stampeders resurrect their passing game, can Edmonton Eskimos win a home game, and can British Columbia Lions win a game—period?

Answers to the first two questions will be provided when the Eskimos play host to the Stampeders Saturday. Winnipeg's booming Blue Bombers deal with the third in Vancouver the same day.

Calgary is second in the WFC with a 3-3 record. Winnipeg follows at 2-3-1 and the Eskimos are 1-5. The Lions are 0-6. Saskatchewan Roughriders, WFC leaders at 5-1, play the Argonauts in Toronto Sunday.

The Stampeders lived by the pass in the days of Peter Liske. Jim Dunaway brushed up the running game after joining the club this season but now says: "We should be doing a little more passing."

The Stamps dropped the Eskimos 16-14 last Monday but Jerry Keeling picked up only 99 yards on 20 passes.

With injuries in the defensive unit, there's a question of how much pressure the Stamps can put on Edmonton. Linebacker Jim Furlong is out with a hairline ankle fracture. Wayne Harris and Ron Payne are limping.

Duncan was considering reactivating Bill Goods, former Calgary and Edmonton player who can go as linebacker or fullback and can replace Larry Robinson for placement kicks.

The Eskimos have lost five straight and haven't won at home this year. They've picked up Mike Gold, a 257-pound offensive tackle from Utah State, for a tryout. He could replace J. B. Christian.

Winnipeg, which tied Montreal Alouettes "24-24" Monday, has to replace guard Lary Slagle, who suffered strained knee ligaments, and perhaps split end Tommy Grant, who has a broken nose.

Ross Richardson will probably play offensive tackle, replacing John Pentecost, who takes Slagle's right guard slot. Another rookie, Glen Oris, could fill in for the veteran Bob Cameron.

In Vancouver, head coach Jim Champion faced lineup shuffles and was still muttering about his club's sixth successive loss, a 33-14 debacle at the hands of Saskatchewan in Regina last Monday.

"Some people aren't playing well enough to eat," Champion said after the game. Back home, he pointed a finger in the direction of troubled quarterback Paul Brothers.

"I don't understand about Paul," said Champion. "All through training camp he looked good. Now he's played three bad ones in a row and he's 0-6 and running out of time."

Trenton Hunting Course Will Qualify Novices

Any hunters or would - be hunters in the Quinte District will have a chance to brush up on their hunting procedures or learn the proper way to hunt this week in Trenton.

The CFB Trenton Fish and Game Club is sponsoring a Safe Hunter Course at the south side Social Center Monday through Wednesday at 7 p.m. each evening.

Examinations for hunting licenses and course certification will be held by Department of Lands and Forest officers Thursday in Trenton above the Police Station.

Those between the ages of 16-19 must have had a Safe Hunter Course to obtain a hunting license and all youths must also have both parents consent in writing to take the course and get a hunting license.

Parents and others who are interested may sit-in at no cost without obligation.

The fee for the course is one dollar, and movies, slides and other equipment will be employed to demonstrate proper hunting procedures during the three - night session.

Carmel Bantams Move Up OBA Ladder

Carmel's Bantam "C" baseball team has done so about face from last year's performance.

Carmel didn't even qualify for the EOBA playoffs last season, but this year the team swept through the EOBA playoff series undefeated and captured the Eastern Ontario championship in the playoffs.

Now Carmel will take on Kincardine Saturday at 2.30 p.m. in Carmel in the opening game of their best-of-three OBA Bantam "C" semi-final playoff series.

The series resumes the following Saturday at 2 p.m. in Kincardine. The date and site of a possible third and deciding game has not yet been set.

Junior B's Meet

The hockey season is drawing near and it's organizational time for many of the district's hockey leagues.

Monday evening at 8 p.m. the Eastern Counties Junior "B" Hockey League will hold an organizational meeting at the Belleville Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Harold Webster, the loop's convener, will chair the meeting and it is expected that the league will line up with the same six entries as last season.

The six teams are the Belleville Morrison Realtors, Trenton Golden Hawks, Kingston Frontenacs, Cobourg Cougars, Peterborough Don Byes and Oshawa Crushmen.

Deacon Tykes Top of Hill

Deacon Brothers walloped IBEW 12-2 Thursday to capture the East Hill 11-12 Baseball championship in two straight games.

Peter Hall and Joe Molaski — who combined to pitch the Deacon Brothers to a 16-4 win in the championship game — once again handcuffed the IBEW squad.

The pair limited IBEW to one hit, a single by R. Hamilton, while striking out a dozen batters and issuing seven free passes.

R. Cunningham, R. Hamilton and Dave Hall each had two-hitting chores for the losers. They allowed seven hits, walked seven and fanned seven.

Joe Molaski collected a double and single to pace the Deacon Brothers attack while teammate T. Britton singled twice. Peter Hall doubled and M. Smith and T. Bennett each singled for the winners.

Lacrosse Split

No Belleville player scored more than one goal, but Belleville squads still split a pair of exhibition games with Kingston clubs Thursday night in the Limestone City.

Larry's Imperials — the undefeated Belleville Juvenile champions — dumped Kingston 4-2 on single goals by Ray Muldoon, Danny Payne, Danny Coulson and Steve Cowan.

Atlas Van Lines — Belleville's peewee champs — fared a bit better. They dropped a 3-2 decision to Kingston. Kent Manning and Bob Cowan tallied single goals for Atlas Van Lines.

SACO Bantams Outlast Marmora

Four innings of no - hit shutout relief pitching by Ron McIntyre helped Belleville SACO Bantams edge Marmora Bantams 3-2 Thursday night in an exhibition softball game at Marmora.

McIntyre fanned three men and walked one. SACO starter Ken Johnson gave up two runs and two hits while fanning three in his three - inning stint.

Don Campbell and Gerry Doyle shared the mound chores for Marmora who play host to Cobourg Saturday in the first game of the Ontario Bantam "B" semi - finals. Campbell and Doyle gave up seven hits, walked two and struck out eight.

Dolan topped the SACO hitters with a single and double, Gerry Musclow and Ken Johnson each collected a pair of singles apiece and Phillips collected a single for SACO who eventually lead Peterborough one game to none in the Eastern Ontario Bantam "A" finals.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

A hospital is not a home. Most patients want to get out of there fast. Home comfort and convalescence seem to go hand in hand.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: You won't believe this. I had my appendix out on a Monday and came home by Thursday. What a wonderful feeling to be able to leave so early — and get in to my own bed. I think we should all be thankful for the new model surgery. — Mrs. G.

But I'do believe it. I think you'll be interested in a report made in Surgery by Paul T. Lahki, MD of Detroit. According to a digest of the article in Modern Medicine Magazine: "Of 611 patients with operative procedures ranging from lingual hernia repair to vagotomy and gastrectomy (major stomach surgery) — but excluding minor operations and bowel resections — 51 per cent went home on or before the first postoperative day and 68 per cent on or before the second.

"Most patients were able and anxious to return to normal work one to four weeks earlier than employers would permit."

Before the anesthetic was given to these patients they were told, "You may have something to eat as soon as you are awake. You may be up and walking this evening and will probably be able to go home tomorrow."

Before hospital discharge, each patient is given pills to take for pain. (The patients rarely used more than one or two.) And the patient returns to his doctor for removal of the sutures on the fourth to the seventh day.

While home, he may go up and down stairs, perform normal activities! But he is cautioned against heavy lifting.

Dr. Lahti's studies indicate, Mrs. G., that surgeons (as well as medical men) are not the "jailers" they were years ago. We don't confine our patients to long hospital stays.

For Mrs. L: Yes, young children can outgrow allergies. But it's best to keep shots them as they grow up. One of two causes for palpitation of the worst things parents can do is give up treatment too soon and fall back on the hope that the youngster "will grow out of it — that nature will take care of it."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is it true that after one has major surgery after the age of 52 that arthritis may develop? — Mr. T.

COMMENT: In some patients with a high uric acid content in the blood I have seen them develop an attack of gout before they left the hospital. Any severe stress is liable to do it.

* * *

For Mr. E.: At the age of 75 you are most likely to find one of two causes for palpitation of the heart. One is heart slips. The other is an irregularity we call auricular fibrillation. We have medicines which help control such irregularities. Treatment depends upon the underlying cause.

* * *

For Mr. E.: When you ask how we can tell the difference between heartburn and a heart attack: I presume you mean the difference between indigestion and heart attack.

* * *

History is important. Physical examination is important. But what clinches the diagnosis is a series of electrocardiograms and enzyme tests (like SGOT) which tell us whether or not the heart muscle has recently suffered any damage.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Losses outnumbered gains by more than two to one in light midmorning trading today as the Toronto stock market posted a moderate decline.

A sharp drop Thursday ended a five-day rally.

On index, industrials were down .55 to 174.92, western oils .45 to 244.86 and base metals .02 to 107.03. Golds gained 2.03 to 183.78.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 482,000 shares compared with 546,000 at the same time Thursday.

Banks, one of the weaker groups Thursday, advanced fractionally. Toronto-Dominion gained ¼ to 18¾, Bank of Nova Scotia ¼ to 22¾ and Canadian Imperial ¼ to 19. Royal slipped ¼ to 19¾ and Bank of Montreal was unchanged at 15.

Inco slipped ¼ to 38¾, Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Falconbridge was down ¼ to 123. Falconbridge at 51% per-cent interest in an oil strike in Texas.

The Toronto market interrupted a five-day rally Thursday, dropping sharply in light trading.

The market opened with a small loss and continued to fall under pressure from New York.

On index, industrials were down 1.02 to 175.47, western oils 3.70 to 245.31, base metals .43 to 107.05 and golds .02 to 181.75.

Volume was 1,922,000 shares compared with 2,151,000 Wednesday. Uncertainty over the immediate future of the market seems to be keeping investors away. Some observers are saying the market could take another plunge before the year ends.

Losses outnumbered gains 308 to 167; 255 issues were unchanged.

Eleven of the 17 industrial components were lower. Food processing, communication, merchandising, oil refining, steel and paper and forest stocks were slightly higher.

Banks and industrial mines were among the weaker industrial groups.

In banks, Canadian Imperial lost ¾ to 18¾, Bank of Nova Scotia ¼ to 22¼, Toronto Dominion ¼ to 18¾, Royal ¾ to 19¾ and Bank of Montreal ¼ to 15.

Among industrial mines, Falconbridge fell 4 to 79 and Inco ¼ to 39¾.

Negotiations are to resume Monday on ending a strike by Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge that began Aug. 21. Inco's Ontario operations have been shut down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Stelco gained ¼ to 23 and Algoma Steel was unchanged at 16. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

Hudson Bay Mining dropped 1¼ to 78, Cominco ¼ to 29¼ and Noranda ¼ to 33¼. The three companies raised their Canadian price for zinc to 15½ cents a pound from 14½ cents.

CAE Industries gained ¼ to 8¾. The company has been awarded contracts for about $4,000,000 from Canadian and United States government agencies for the development of aircraft radome systems.

Quinte Milk A rose 3 to 8½ and Quinte common 2½ to 10. Quinte Milk shares have been purchased from Horlicks Ltd. of England by a Canadian group.

Negro Charges Insult by Police

TORONTO (CP) — A Negro charged with assaulting and obstructing police said at his trial Thursday that two policemen called him a "black bastard."

Frank Bruce, 38, of Toronto, arrested during disturbances between Negroes and Portuguese here last July 18, also claimed that a policeman struck him on the head with a flashlight.

Parents Reject Private School As Solution in Language Case

MONTREAL (CP) — The St. Leonard Parents Association Thursday rejected the idea of a government-subsidized private school for English-language elementary pupils as a solution to the Montreal suburb's school problems.

The private school, proposed by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal last week, was rejected by the parents at a three-hour meeting with Therese Baron, associate deputy minister of education and Cardinal aide Luc Beauregard.

Neither would comment on the proceedings, but Robert Beale, president of the parents association, said in a statement the private school proposal was a violation of the basic rights of the citizens of St. Leonard.

Mr. Cardinal's proposal called for a private school to be set up by the parents which would be financed by heavy provincial grants, equal to 80 per cent of the cost of instruction in public schools.

However, Mr. Beale replied in his statement that "80 per cent justice is no justice."

At the same time, a French unilingualist group in St. Leonard indicated it would press on with its year-old campaign to eliminate English-language education regardless of any opposition by the parents association.

Raymond Lemieux, head of the Ligue pour l'Integration Scholaire, told a news conference that despite the possibility of violent opposition, a meeting disrupted Wednesday night by irate supporters of English-language education has been rescheduled for next Wednesday.

It would be preceded by a march down the suburb's main streets by sympathizers with the group's French-only schooling policy.

Mr. Lemieux added that the LIS is considering taking legal action against St. Leonard Mayor Leo Ouellet for what he called inadequate police protection at the meeting.

The LIS leader was among several persons injured when groups of French-speaking residents and Italian-Canadians — who make up a large part of the suburb's 35,000 population — began throwing chairs.

Mr. Lemieux said the St. Leonard police chief had been ordered not to eject the English-speaking immigrants who milled about the meeting hall, yelling insults.

"Our adversaries are not Italians, nor immigrants," he said, "but the race which colonized the country 200 years ago.

"It is time to ask whether it would not be better for everyone to close down the Quebec borders until our language problem is settled."

It was announced Thursday that a prominent leader of the Italian community had agreed to meet with a high official of the education department to discuss the possible opening of a bilingual school under the suburb's LIS-dominated school board.

Such a school would be opened under the condition that its classes contain slightly more instruction in French than in English.

Mayor Ouellet charged after Wednesday's violence that the government was purposely doing nothing to solve the growing educational crisis in the suburb.

Provincial police teamed up with municipal police to end the chair-throwing battle at the high school auditorium where the meeting was to be held. Two persons were arrested and several slightly injured.

Mayor Ouellet had warned the government of racial violence and he said Thursday that "if they wanted to find a way out of this, they could easily do so."

The suburb's Roman Catholic school board, brought under the control of the LIS in elections last summer, eliminated Grade 1 classes in English in September. Grade 2 is due to go this year.

Classes are scheduled to open next Monday.

Parents whose children were affected appealed to the government for help but the board has not been hindered in continuing its policy.

The parents opened basement classes for the 705 displaced youngsters and piled up a $20,000 debt.

Quebec Superior Court has upheld the board's right to make French the sole language of instruction if it so desires.

Both Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and the late premier Daniel Johnson have promised in the past that both English and French would have the right to educate their children in the language of their choice.

Mr. Bertrand has been unable to enforce this promise by law because of a threatened split in the Union Nationale government over the issue.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 6

Your birthday today: Expansion in your interests and activities is likely this coming year. Your drive to consolidate your position results in more work, requires more effort than you expect. Emotional ties deepen through the year. Today's natives, however expansive, usually follow a systematic approach to problems without much outer show of excitement.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): It is so easy today to run yourself ragged doing all the chores yourself. Get help. Find some time for visiting people and places you have not seen lately.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your circumstances are much smoother now. Beginning important projects is not favored now, as you do not have available the energy needed.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Use soft answers to make this a peaceable day. Catch up on correspondence, accounts. Leave money matters pretty much as they are for the moment. Gather friends for a quiet evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): This quiet, sociable day should be an interlude from serious concerns. You'll find many ideas and projects are overly optimistic, and some of them collapse.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Get busy on the kind of life you would like to lead. If given half a chance, your friends and loved ones are extraordinarily helpful in a quiet way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A change of tempo now — things move faster and, if you are alert, more profits by it. Money requires special attention today. Tonight relax and have fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Be intrigued rather than annoyed with your friends' curious notions about dress and fads. Take everything in moderation today — recreation, pastimes, study, and meditation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): While the vitality of most is at a relatively low level, press gently for what you want. Make a serious study of your goals and your present operations. Resolutions are in order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Pleasant news on some money matter is promised. Friends, relatives, neighbors are reasonably congenial but unlikely to lend you anything of real value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The most direct route is the only one. If you have clear knowledge of some upcoming changes, act now to earn a fee or a capital gain. Romantic feelings arise and flower, assuming reasonable situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The probability of new problems today is very low, so that there is opportunity to rescue yesterday's errors. Extra rest will be beneficial this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Anything speculative has a powerful attraction for you now — but for the time being you are unlikely to win at games or gamble. Your digestive system needs protection against excess of any sort.

Great Lakes Levels High

Rise and Fall of Inland Sea Is Expensive

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Upon the rise and fall of the waters of North America's great inland sea, the five lakes whose 95,000 square miles comprise the world's largest body of fresh water, depend the fortunes and well-being of millions of persons.

It's a cyclical movement that cannot be predicted with certainty nor are the cycles regular. A control system, under study for years in Canada and the United States, could be devised but the cost, experts say, would be prohibitive.

The level of Lake Erie now is the highest in this century. Lakes Huron, Superior and Michigan are only two inches below the 1952 all-time record. Lake Ontario is high but kept under control through the full sweep of water racing down the St. Lawrence River at its eastern outlet.

The result: Excessive damage to property and installations along the 10,000 miles of shoreline—estimates run as high as $61,000,000 for the ever-exposed American shore—and protests from property owners and small-boat operators that something be done about it.

Only five years ago there were protests about low-water levels that left wharves and piers high and dry in hundreds of lake communities and many beaches at resort areas stagnant and deserted. Shipping interests then were hard hit because of a drop of one inch in Great Lakes levels means a loss of 100 tons of cargo to a freighter.

A survey by The Canadian Press of key points along the Canadian side of lakes Superior, Huron and Erie shows many beaches out back sharply this summer, piers washed away and collapsed in some places awash. But damage, which could not be pinned down to an exact figure, was not as extensive, as that on the American shores of the lakes.

Great Lakes water levels are based upon sea level, rising from Ontario's 245 feet to Superior's 602—the jump from Ontario to Erie over the Niagara escarpment is 327 feet. That is "normal," with "benches"—or water-level gauges—around the lakes showing daily rises and falls.

This year, levels at most points are two to four feet above normal and that is important to boat owners who cannot get their cruisers out of boathouses because rising water has shortened doorstop clearances or cannot pass under canal bridges because of insufficient clearance.

In an interview in Toronto Thursday, Dr. Don Misener, director of the Great Lakes Institute which keeps a close eye on water levels, explained what has happened in 1959 and likely will occur in 1979:

"Heavy precipitation around Lake Superior the last two years, combined with less-than-usual evaporation over all the lakes, brought about a rise in the over-all level that man cannot control. Discharge channels such as the Detroit and Niagara rivers can take only so much water.

"Evaporation over the lakes runs about 31 inches of water annually. But the variability is 25 per cent, plus or minus. Evaporation happens to be low this year and there has been heavy rainfall. . . ."

Why is damage more extensive on the United States shore than in Canada?

"The U.S. has two-thirds of the volume of water in the Great Lakes. It has all of Lake Michigan and the international border runs down the middle of the other lakes."

From Ontario points come these reports of high-water damage:

Owen Sound—Water levels nearby Lake Huron and Georgian Bay resorts are two and three feet above normal. Cottage owners along Bruce Peninsula have been forced to build breakwaters with some basements flooding reported.

Windsor—Houses on the Lake St. Clair shore were threatened by high water and erosion and private wharves torn apart and set adrift by high water and storms.

Troops Breach 'Free Belfast' Barricades

BELFAST (AP) — British troops today breached the barricades of Roman Catholic-controlled "Free Belfast" for the first time in a major show of force designed to bring the Northern Ireland capital back under control.

Infantrymen with automatic weapons moved inside the barricades at the southern end of Albert Road, which forms the spine across the Falls Road Roman Catholic stronghold.

They told a crowd who tried to repel them: "It's tear gas first and then we fire."

At the north end of the road they met a jeering crowd of Roman Catholic vigilantes who have held the area for the last three weeks.

The troops brought up bulldozers and truckloads of reserves. But as yet they made no effort there to go behind the barricades.

The barricades have controlled one-eighth of Belfast since rioting broke out in mid-August. The military have been increasingly anxious to get them down for fear of a Protestant backlash.

Protestant areas are incensed by the Roman Catholic flying of the Irish Republic flag within the barricaded strongholds.

In East Belfast on the other side of the city, police dispersed an angry group of 1,000 Protestants who were advancing on a Roman Catholic section to tear down barricades.

About 1,500 British troops stood by but were not called in.

Police encountered some stone-throwing from the demonstrators. There were no reports of injuries or arrests.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark only hours earlier had appealed for calm. Protestant protests were mounting after Roman Catholics who feared attacks refused to dismantle barricades they had erected during last month's rioting.

For the second straight night vigilante groups patrolled their own areas in Protestant and Roman Catholic communities but were unable to prevent scattered burnings. Gasoline bombs damaged three shops.

Chichester-Clark spoke after an earlier clash in Belfast between British troops and Protestants who threatened to enter Roman Catholic areas if the barricades were not taken down. British troops dispersed them.

Chichester-Clark said: "In the days ahead every one of us must strive by every means in our power to ensure that no further incidents disfigure our streets."

His speech was supported by two members of the British Parliament from Northern Ireland, Gerry Fitt, a Roman Catholic who represents West Belfast, and Desmond Bacel, who represents the Protestant Shankill district.

Brazil Okays Envoy Swap

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's military leaders meet again today to discuss how they will free 15 political prisoners in exchange for the release of kidnapped United States Ambassador D. Burke Elbrick.

Foreign Minister Jose de Magalhaes is expected to go on radio and television after the meeting to announce details of the release of 14 men and one woman.

The broadcast had been set for Friday night but was postponed at the last minute. There was no explanation, but informants said some officers were annoyed at the junta's quick acceptance of demands by guerillas who kidnapped Elbrick Thursday.

Mexico and Chile have agreed to accept the 15 men and the Brazilian government has agreed to fly them out of the country. Two aircraft are standing by at Rio's Galeao International Airport.

Authorities said some of the prisoners were being held in cities as far as 1,000 miles from Rio and had to be brought together before the release could be made.

Elbrick's abductors, who identified themselves as members of two guerrilla organizations called the National Liberation Action and MR-8, made their demands in three notes to government officials. They said they would "execute" Elbrick this afternoon if their demands were not met.

The first note, left in Elbrick's limousine by three gunmen who forced him out of it and drove him away in another car, demanded the release of 11 unnamed political prisoners and publication and broadcast of an anti-government manifesto in Brazilian newspapers and on the radio.

The manifesto was published in newspapers Friday and broadcast intermittently on radio throughout the day.

The second note, found in a Rio church, demanded that the government agree by Friday afternoon to release the prisoners. The government replied that if the kidnappers would give the names of the prisoners they wanted freed, arrangements would be made to fly them to Mexico.

The third note provided a list of the prisoners' names. It was left in a supermarket suggestion box and an anonymous call to a newspaper told where the market was located.

Accompanying the second and third notes were letters from Elbrick to his wife, Elba. The first letter said: "I am all right and am hoping that I shall be liberated and see you soon."

But Elbrick added that Brazilian authorities should not try to find him because "these people are very determined."

The ambassador's second letter said it was "very good news" that the government had acceded to the kidnappers' demands "because it means that I will be released as soon as it is confirmed that 15 released prisoners have arrived in Mexico."

The kidnappers insisted that police call off their manhunt for Elbrick, and security force spokesmen said Friday evening that the search had been suspended.

"But after the ambassador is liberated we will start a thorough search for the terrorist group," a spokesman said.

Government sources said two of the prisoners listed by the kidnappers did not want to leave Brazil because they had a good chance of being released from the party for good behavior. There was no official confirmation.

Change or Die Chamber Told

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — William Hamilton of Toronto, president of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, said Friday the chamber must change with the times or die within 10 years.

He told the annual meeting of the chamber executives that local chambers have been too concerned with ideas that helped businessmen make money.

"We must provide leadership as people first and businessmen second," he said.

M. W. T. Turner of Waterloo, Ont., was elected president of the executives, permanent employees of Ontario chambers. He succeeded B. W. Gillespie of Hamilton.

Among the directors elected was O. F. Bradley, manager of the Belleville Chamber.

Stand-by Pay Won By OPP

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police will become the first major Canadian police force to give officers on call stand-by pay, it was announced Friday.

Under the arrangement, worked out by the OPP negotiating committee under Deputy Attorney-General Rendall Dick, a policeman will receive at least three hours pay if he has been ordered to remain at home and be available for prompt return to work.

Chinese Leave, Russians Arrive

HONG KONG (Reuters) — North Vietnamese today awaited the arrival of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin to join other Communist leaders paying tribute to the late Ho Chi Minh.

Kosygin and a Kremlin delegation passed through New Delhi, India, today en route to Hanoi and were scheduled to arrive in the North Vietnamese capital a full two days after a top-level Chinese delegation passed in and out of the city to pay its respects to the North Vietnamese president.

The Chinese delegation, led by Premier Chou En-lai, came to Hanoi Thursday and was expected to remain there until the funeral next week. But an unexpected announcement Friday by the New China news agency said the Peking leaders left the capital the same day they arrived.

However, observers here felt the Chinese might return for the funeral—which the North Koreans and the Cubans say will be held Wednesday. The North Vietnamese have not yet announced an official date.

If they do, Hanoi will be faced with a tricky protocol problem in looking after the ideological rivals from Moscow and Peking and managing any face-to-face meeting that may occur at the funeral.

Kosygin arrives in Hanoi for the beginning of a special mourning ceremony which the North Vietnamese news agency today called "a solemn service of requiem" for Ho, who died Wednesday.

The ceremony, the agency said, begins with placing wreaths in the centre of town by workers and Communist leaders. The agency also did not say where the wreaths would be placed, but it was believed they will be laid at the presidential Ba Dinh Palace where Ho's body lies in state.

The mourning ceremonies, organized by a 26-man funeral committee, set a precise time that various party organizations, worker groups and foreign delegations will "pay respects to the memory of President Ho Chi Minh . . . in the requiem ceremony," the agency said.

Fewer Farmers By '80s

OTTAWA (CP) — More and cheaper food produced by fewer farmers is the outlook for agriculture in the 1980s, three federal agriculture department specialists say in a study released Friday.

Food production during the next 20 years will increase by about 30 per cent, the same as the predicted population growth, bu the percentage of disposable income spent for food will drop is about 18 from the 30 per cent, the experts say.

The predictions of future agriculture trends were made by Dr. G. R. Purnell, director-general of the department's economics branch; and A. B. A. Andarawewa and R. A. Stutt, economists with the department.

They predict agriculture will decline in importance in the over-all Canadian economy.

In 1966 about 10 per cent of the population lived on farms. This is expected to drop to six per cent by 1980. As a percentage of gross national product, the agricultural industry is expected to drop to three per cent in 1980 from five per cent in 1967.

Dr. Purnell said the team's conclusions were reached by projecting recent trends into the future.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's educational television system will offer a new series for preschoolers in French as part of its 800 programs this year, it was announced Friday. The new series, entitled Le Monde des Petits — World of the Little Ones — will comprise 40 episodes, each 10-minutes long, which will be made available in areas where there is a French-speaking population.

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee on family life established by the Canadian Catholic Conference has produced a report supporting sex education in schools by well-trained teachers. While recognizing that sexual matters ought to be taught in schools, the committee said that parents must take initial and continuous responsibility for the sex education of their children too.

Transport Expensive Luxury

QUEBEC CITY (CP) — Canada is finding it less and less easy to afford the luxury of the over-provision of transportation, much of which is supported by taxpayers, Jack Pickersgill, president of the Canadian Transport Commission, said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Association of American Railroads' treasury division the commission's work might mean the phasing out of unneeded services.

On a per capita basis, Mr. Pickersgill said, Canadians had to support 11-per-cent more surfaced roads, 90-per-cent more miles of railway track and twice as many airline miles as Americans.

Moving A Coffer Dam

The coffer dam protecting construction of the bridge across the Moira River at Dundas St. is being relocated as paving of the first section nears completion. Fill deposited for the first dam is picked up by a loader and shifted further out in the river channel to dam the western side of the river before pouring of remaining concrete piers.

Party Line Stiffens

Dubcek and Fellow Reformers Face Disciplinary Purge

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The future of Alexander Dubcek and other liberals was in question today after a call by a disciplinary body of the Czechoslovak Communist party for a widespread purge of reformers.

The body—known as the auditing and control commission —wound up a two-day meeting Friday night with a communique urging anti-reformist purges at all levels in the party, government and economic apparatus of the country.

Although it made no mention of Dubcek, the statement was seen here as aimed at the former party leader and his followers who initiated the liberalizing reforms which led to the Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia in August last year.

The commission's meeting was believed to have met to end a reported split in the party leadership on how to treat Dubcek by working out a compromise proposal.

Usually reliable sources said Friday party leaders were worried over possible public reaction to any harsh measures taken against Dubcek, who is still enormously popular in Czechoslovakia.

Moves which observers thought might be made against Dubcek and two of his closest supporters, Josef Smrkovsky and Cestmir Cisar, include removal from their party functions and possibly even dismissal from the party itself.

Dubcek's hard-line successor as party chief, Gustav Husak, has accused the previous party and government leadership of being responsible for the Soviet-led invasion and occupation by ignoring Russian warnings of the danger in Czechoslovakia from ultra-progressives.

The absence of Dubcek's name from the commission's statement deepened the mystery over his future and over the postponement announced earlier Friday of a central committee meeting which was to have voted on his fate.

The communique came shortly after an announcement by the army that 30 liberal officers at the Klement Gottwald military-political academy would face disciplinary measures for their political and antisocial views. Among them was the rector of the academy, Col. Vladimir Mucha.

900 Years Old

St. John Brigade Has One Goal

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

(This is the seventh in a series of Intelligencer features on community agencies receiving support through the United Appeal).

St. John Ambulance has been serving humanity for more than 900 years, — ranking it as one of the oldest welfare organizations in the world.

Associated with St. John Ambulance for more than 11 years, president Frank Grandame explained briefly about the history of the order and how it began in Europe.

"First known as the Poor Brethren of St. John, the beginnings of the order can be traced back to the Crusades, when their treatment of the sick and wounded after battle became well - known", said Mr. Grandame.

"Through donations from grateful individuals, the order became centred around battle areas, which explains the semi - military look of the Brigade," he said.

"Perhaps the most important fact to remember about St. John Ambulance is that there is never any charge for service.

Actually, there are two divisions in the organization— one being the Brigade, the other the Association.

The Brigade consists of men, women and young people who volunteer their time and service to be on duty wherever crowds gather. This division is in uniform.

The Association is made up of doctors, nurses and several lay instructors — the "teaching" division.

Association members teach first aid to groups of Armed Forces, various companies and industries.

"Last year, in Ontario alone, the St. John Ambulance Association taught 70,000 people how to administer first aid. One hundred and fifty of those were instructed in Belleville", said Mr. Grandame.

"In our own community, many local professional people — doctors particularly — lend the association wonderful support.

Mr. Grandame stressed the importance and necessity of first aid training for everyone.

Most individuals who have fist aid training are prepared for any emergency. Not only that," he continued, "but they are prepared to save a life."

Despite the tremendous service the St. John Ambulance offers the community, they can't go it alone.

They must have volunteers to continue operating, and according to Mr. Grandame, there is a great difficulty in getting people to participate.

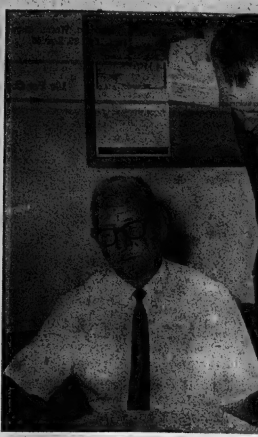
"They are either too busy, or don't want to be bothered."

The Brigade now has approximately 60 people serving as volunteers, in the ambulance, nursing and cadet division. Courses are available in First Aid, Home Nursing and Child Care.

The unsolved problem is secondary to the major stumbling block — money.

As a member agency of the United Community Services, the St. John Ambulance depends heavily on public donations to the United Appeal.

"We do receive public donations throughout the year, but they just aren't enough to keep up operations," says Mr. Grandame. We never charge for any of our service, so whether or not the United Appeal goes over the top is very important to St. John's.



"Not only does it mean that financially we can keep operating, and providing the service the public has come to expect. More importantly, it means that people are concerned about their community, and are willing to invest in it to improve it," concluded Mr. Grandame.

In the coming year, the St. John Ambulance Association will need $4,000 to meet expenses.

The Belleville branch of St. John Ambulance today announced it will be providing courses in first aid and home nursing for the general public at its headquarters, 161 Front Street.

The courses, running one night a week for eight weeks, will start for first aid Sept. 18 and Sept. 16 for home nursing.

Registration will be held at 161 Front St. Sept. 11 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Three Cabinet Ministers Belleville Week Guests

Three provincial cabinet ministers and a top civil servant will be attending activities during Belleville Week, Dr. Richard T. Potter, MPP, announced today.

Signifying their intention to attend have been the Hon. Thomas Wells, the recently appointed minister of health; the Hon. Robert Welch, provincial secretary and the Hon. Stanley Randall, minister of trade and development. Accompanying Mr. Randall will be James Mason, executive assistant.

"The province has recognized the tremendous growth taking place in the Quinte area," said Dr. Potter, "and feels it should play whatever role it can in bringing to the attention of others what can be done by enthusiasm, initiative and hard work.

"There isn't any question that the climate for growth which industrialists are finding in Belleville is a direct product of the collective goodwill of the citizens of Belleville."

The new minister of health will be on hand during the opening days of Belleville Week to meet Mr. Peter Ring, the English orthopaedic surgeon who is going to be in Belleville Sept. 26-27 to demonstrate his technique of hip replacement to many of the provinces 100 orthopaedic surgeons.

Mr. Welch will be in attendance at the civic dinner planned for Monday, Sept. 29. He will join the mayors of communities named Belleville in New Jersey, Illinois and Michigan. Also invited to attend will be all living ex-mayors and former aldermen of the City of Belleville.

Mr. Welch is expected to share speaking duties at the banquet with a representative of the federal government and the chief guest speaker whose name has not been released as yet by the Belleville Week committee.

Mr. Randall and his top assistant will be on hand for the industrial night which closes the eight-day promotion on Oct. 4. He also will share speaking duties. Expected to be on hand will be about 300 industrialists from the city, surrounding area and other points in Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

PAUL — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Paul, who passed away Sept. 6, 1965.

We had a son we were proud to own,
We have a home with no one else will never be known.
No better story our lives to share,
But in our hearts, he is always there.
—Treasured in loved in Your garden of peace.

For here on earth he was one of the best.
Please God forgive a silent tear.
For we can't forget a silent tear.
Sweet memories are all we have here,
But we can meet you in Heaven dear,
So we was cute and we loved him so.
—Mom, Dad and Marilyn.

FOX — In loving memory of a dear mother, Isabel Fox, who passed away Sept. 8th, 1967.

We know that she is happy,
We know that she's gone to rest,
Heaven holds a special welcome,
In the sunshine of His love.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Carolyn, son-in-law Paul and grandchildren Lisa and Paul Jarrett.

FOX — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Hazel Sept. 6th, 1966, who passed away

God put Your arms around her,
Keep her in Your care,
Make up for all she suffered,
And tell her we remember.
Sincere thanks to memories,
Always a silent tear,
Wishing God had spared her,
Just a few more years.
Sadly missed by mother, sister, Emma, Fred, uncles Russell and Clarence.

FOX — In loving memory of a dear friend, Hazel Fox, who passed away September 6, 1966.

Memories are sweet, dear Hazel we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies in a heart concealed.
—Always remembered by Ruth and Vinnie Pascoe and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to thank our friends, neighbors, St. Andrew's Church, W.M.S. and Pastor for their gifts, flowers and cards on the occasion of our 50th wedding anniversary. A special thank you to Mrs. William Mitchell.

PROCLAMATION

"SQUARE DANCE WEEK IN BELLEVILLE"

WHEREAS Square Dancing is a kind of living history which links us with the heritage of the past and gives us an opportunity to enrich that heritage and

WHEREAS it is enjoyable as a cultural activity and beneficial as recreation,

THEREFORE I hereby proclaim the week commencing September 6, 1969, as "Square Dance Week in Belleville".

Russell Scott, M.D.C.M., MAYOR.

DATED at the Mayor's Office this 6th day of September, 1969.

Taking A Closer Look

Only their second week at summer school, and it is inspection time already. Under the critical eye of Lieut. Percy Shepherd is Peter Rollinson-Lorimer, and next in line, his friend, Peter Stewart. Both boys were at HMCS Quandra, in Comox, B.C., for an eight week bandsmen course.

Summer May Be Nearly Gone But Not These Memories

By LINDA GILBART
Staff Reporter

For two sea cadets, both named Peter, this has been a summer they will remember a long, long, time.

It was the kind of summer many boys dream about, but rarely experience — something akin to faraway adventure.

But Peter Stewart and Peter Rollinson - Lorimer weren't dreaming when they travelled 3,000 miles to Canadian Forces Base Quadra, near Comox, B. C. to spend eight weeks immersed in music.

The two Belleville boys were among 100 other youths from various Ontario cadet corps trying to improve their musical ability.

The summer school, aimed towards band - training, has been in existence for the 15 years. However this was only the second year that cadets from Ontario have had the opportunity to take advantage of its courses. In the past, sea cadets from this area, and the rest of the province went to Cornwallis, Nova Scotia.

Commanding officer of the Belleville sea cadets, Lieut. Berry Bevvan, explained that the course centred around the practising, polishing and playing of music as part of a band.

"What actually happens is that the cadets act as the base band for the summer, participating in civic events and all parades," he says. "The whole idea behind the school", "is to sufficiently train these boys in musical competence, so that, from year to year, we eventually end up with a solid core of high calibre bandsmen."

The success of this musical education is making itself felt. Lieut. Bevvan commented that three new bands, composed of such musically trained cadets, have sprung up in Ontario.

"Our success has inspired sea cadets in the province of Quebec to start their own bands, too," he added. But it wasn't all work.

"While we were on the base, most of our time — about six to eight hours a day — was spent on music," said Peter Stewart. "It was great because we could work without interruption, tutored by experienced naval musicians."

The boys got leave, if they wanted it, and could travel around the countryside.

Most part of our summer touring about 100 miles up the B.C. coast giving concerts, which gave us a great chance to look around," said Peter Stewart.

"You just can't miss learning about music. The environment out there is fantastic, as is the leadership," added his companion.

"We even participated in the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver. I was impressed.

I like Vancouver — a lovely city. We met some really nice people," he continued.

Of course, for spending the summer in B.C. there are certain qualifications.

"For summer training schools like this," said Lieut. Bevvan, "to be in the running to qualify, each boy should have a certain degree of musical competence before he joins the cadets. If not, we train him from scratch."

"The main thing is that he reach the required level, if not more. Then it's just a case of filling out an application form, having it reviewed, and being accepted."

This is only one example of the opportunities open to a boy who joins the Sea Cadets, says the commanding officer.

Although not widely advertised, the Corps attracts a good number of interested youths from the ages of 13 to 19 years of age.

At present in the Belleville cadets, Lieut. Bevvan revealed, be has 45 boys under his command.

Besides learning basic seamanship, cadets absorb courses on citizenship, signalling, naval aviation and so on.

As Peter Stewart put it: "It's really a great organization. there are cruises and exchange cadets, plus all the other sources offered during the year as well as the summer."

Square Dance Opens United Appeal Drive

A square dance as the market opener will open to open the 1958 United Appeal Campaign officially on Saturday, Sept. 20.

This event will wind up the week-long pre-campaign celebrations and events sponsored by the United Community Services that will have included activities for everyone from a fiddlers' contest to a beauty competition.

On the kick-off night Mayor J. Russell Scott and Miss United Appeal 1958, selected in the contest on Sept. 13, will officially open the campaign.

Also on hand for the opening ceremonies will be Mrs. Van Smith, lady in charge of Appeal Campaign chairmen.

Following the opening all church bells in the city will ring for 15 minutes announcing to all the beginning of the 1958 campaign.

And after the ceremonies the 8th Hussars are expected of 500 square dancers will fill the market square for fun and frolic.

Music will for the event will be provided by Garnet May and Ralph O'Hara, two noted Belleville square dancing movement supporters. Master of ceremonies will be Jimmy Ketcheson.

There will be no admission charge for the dance and, in case of rain, the event will be moved to Centennial Secondary School.

Attendance Climbs at PE Fair

PICTON (Staff) — Paid attendance is up nearly 30 per cent this year at the Prince Edward County Fair according to fair secretary Phil Dodds.

"The fair is definitely a financial success," he added. "It is expected fair attendance will surpass last year's figures if today's events draw the usual crowd."

However, cloudy skies in the Picton area this morning hinted that Sunday fair could become a possibility. But the fair will continue tomorrow only if horse classes and other outdoor events are rained out. When this situation occurred last year attendance rocketsed for the Sunday show and directors approved of the idea of holding fair events on that day.

A Sunday fair date at one time was considered a possibility for this year's fair but objections from local clergymen resulted in a reconsideration by the fair board, and it is now likely that the show will continue Sunday only if rained out today.

The fair officially closes this evening unless the weather conditions force cancellation of the horse events.

Youth Hurt In Fair Scuffle

PICTON (Staff) — A scuffle in the midway at Picton fair sent a Prince Edward county youth to hospital for treatment last night.

Apparently one of several local youths involved in a disturbance at one of the midway concessions, Gary Findlay of Picton was struck by a piece of metal pipe by a midway worker. He was taken to Prince Edward Hospital for treatment and remained as a patient. Picton police failed to apprehend the assailant.

Following the incident several midway concessions were closed down for the remainder of the night.

Trenton Defends Trophy

A 23 - member Trenton Kiwanis Club delegation will be on hand to defend their team championship Wednesday at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club in the 11th annual Kinsmen Invitational Golf Tournament.

At stake is the Corby Distillery trophy which goes to the team with the low gross total based on the four best scores of each team.

Competitors will come from Oshawa Kiwanis Club in the west to Montreal in the east. The entry list is expected to match or exceed last year's total of 92.

There is no limit to the number of competitors from any one club and Tournament Chairman "Everett" Fairman said that a dinner banquet would be held at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club following the tournament.

The first group will tee off at 11 a.m. and the last group is expected to come off the course shortly before 7 p.m.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY YOUR CHILD CAN MAKE

Children are natural "discoverers." They love to learn about, and to use new ideas. They like to solve problems. They need action.

This is why children love Christian Science. It involves action. It also involves discovery, the most important discovery of all: the nature of God and man's relationship to Him.

In our Sunday School children learn by research and by faith, and to find it how to apply those discoveries, and to prove their worth.

Your child will enjoy being with the "discoverers" in our Sunday School classes. They are welcome, any time.

Olympics for Deaf

It Was Fun and Games for OSD Sextet

All the city's school children had a summer holiday but nothing like the one experienced by six students from the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The six — Merry Lee Mosiuk, Bonnie Tucker, Sharlene MacDuff, Gloria Jarvis, Jim Snyder and Ted Mankelow — were members of the Canadian team which competed in the 11th quadrennial World Games for the Deaf in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Their experience was a lengthy one, for they left Belleville Monday, July. 30, and returned on Tuesday, August 26. The four-week stay overseas included a week's training period before the Aug. 8-16 competition and a nine-day tour of Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland and England following the competition.

OSD physical education director Hyalie Bryant and instructor Betty Lalonde accompanied the Belleville students — Bryant as the coach of the Canadian track and field team and Miss Lalonde as a spectator and photographer.

The group's first impression of Yugoslavia was one of tight control and military dominance because an unusual number of soldiers were seen. However the group's fear of the army was soon dispensed when it was explained that Belgrade is Yugoslavia's army training centre.

Bruce Williams, the Canadian Ambassador to Yugoslavia entertained the entire Canadian team — 35 athletes plus coaches and officials — at the Canadian Embassy Thursday, Aug. 7, and Saturday, Aug. 9, the Canadian team marched in the opening parade resplendent in their green and white uniforms.

Sharlene MacDuff came through with the best performance by a Belleville student when she high jumped 1.35 metres — 4' 5" — to capture fifth place in the competition sponsored by the Comite International des Sports Silencieux and recognized by the International Olympic Committee.

The Federation of the Silent Sports of Canada sponsored the national deaf team which competed in track and field, swimming, table tennis, shooting and volleyball.

None of the six students attending the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville had ever been overseas before or competed in a track meet of that stature.

"The youngsters were very nervous and wide-eyed at first but they calmed down and performed well under the circumstances," said Hyalie Bryant.

"The nine-day trip on motor-coach and boats and in various hotels in such places as Heidelburg, Lucerne, Montreux, Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Calais, Dover and London was an experience in shared living and exchange of money which our pupils handled very well," Bryant added.

"Winning was actually a secondary thing on this trip — the educational and athletic experience for those involved was very worthwhile and more than offset the failure of our students to win any medals," Bryant concluded.

This Is How It Started

Ho Chi Minh

It is not often a man earns the respect of his enemies. Yet such is the case with North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

Of frail physique, Ho was obviously a giant of a man in spirit. His career was as remarkable as was his single-minded dedication to his country.

As the leader of North Vietnam sought to unify the country by absorbing South Vietnam (the country was partitioned following the defeat of the French colonial forces in 1954.

His death is Communism's loss and while Westerners can admire Ho the patriot, the ensuing power struggle could be Western democracy's gain. Still, there are other men ready and able to fill his shoes and Communism inevitably will continue to pose a threat both to South Vietnam and to all neighboring countries.

The war itself remains the ugly sore it has been on the world scene for nearly a decade. We dare say Ho Chi Minh was a humane man, but it is one of the facts of political and military life that the men at the top have little control over events in the field. In the last few days for example it has been reported that a number of children and their parents were executed by North Vietnamese troops retreating before U. S. marines.

That is the kind of thing where respect for the North Vietnamese and Communism at large stops short. By the same token, it is one of the reasons why the United States and its allies are fighting in Vietnam. Communism in all its guises knows little of compassion or humanity.

Lost in Desert

It would be encouraging for anyone setting off into remote regions to know that if lost he could be traced by use of the supernatural. Hard facts unfortunately militate against this.

Dr. James Pike, retired Episcopal Bishop of California, has been missing in desert country near the Dead Sea since Monday night. His wife Diane who trekked to safety after their car got stuck on a rocky trail said if her husband had succumbed she would have received some inner message.

The Pikes have long been associated with the occult. Meanwhile a family friend in the United States said he had seen Pike twice in a vision; he was in a cave, alive but sick and badly in need of water.

Yet no trace of Dr. Pike has been reported after an extensive search by Israeli troops and trackers.

The hot Judean wilderness does not seem an ideal place for a rented car, not to mention the hazards of the military confrontation between Arabs and Israelis in that region. For Dr. Pike it is a sad ending to a remarkable, if controversial career.

Imports from Japan

Japan's economic dominance in Asia and its position as one of the leading industrial nations of the world is borne out by increasing imports of Japanese goods to Canada.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in its Commercial Letter points out that although the major source of Canadian imports is the United States — which supplies about 75 per cent in dollar terms — there has been a significant upsurge in imports from Japan.

The value of products from Japan in the first half of 1969 increased about 40 per cent over the corresponding period in 1968. Certain classes of Japanese motor vehicle imports increased more than threefold in the first five months of the year.

Japan's rapid progress is one of the success stories of our day. Just as Germany rose from the ashes of war to compete in the markets of the world, so too has Japan, a feat that will be crowned with the opening of the Expo 70 exhibition in Osaka next year.

Disaster !

The disaster that all women fear — being seen together wearing identical outfits has befallen no less than two pairs of Miss World contestants. At least, Miss Kansas, Margo Schroeder, and Miss Missouri, Frances Blessman, who showed up for registration in Atlantic City wearing red coat suits, come from neighboring states, and both incidentally have German-sounding names making for something else in common. For Miss Ohio, Kathy Baumann, and Miss Minnesota, Judith Mandenhall, in white coat-suits, the element of geographical and racial togetherness was more tenuous. Still, all four apparently took the calamity with good grace, and who knows one of them in tonight's finale may become Miss America.

Ottawa Offbeat

Dialogue with Dissent—or the Dignity of Office?

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It must be a combination of the man himself and his troubled times that Pierre Elliot Trudeau has been pushed around and pelted with obscenities and garbage as no other prime minister in living memory.

He has been roasted by anti-American student hosts in Halifax, driven to cover by bottle-tossing separatists in Montreal, insulted in Regina, confronted by four-letter words by hippies in Ottawa, buffeted by severe-mouthed hooligans in Vancouver and reviled here and there in filthy phrases until recently found only on washroom walls.

The mindless idiocies of the anarchists of the New Left — a spectrum of violence that ranges from the derelicts of separatism to the gutter-snipes of hippiedom — twice has prevented the prime minister from appearing among his people.

Whether it was a personal decision of discretion, or a reluctant bowing to the urgent demands of his bodyguards, the prime minister twice in both anger and regret, has accepted "invitations" to not appear in Montreal and in Sherbrooke.

His bodyguards — and he is the first prime minister to be escorted by a strong arm protective squad in plain clothes — blame Trendy Trudy and his mod times almost equally.

He insists, against the earnest advice of his deeply worried guards, on deliberately going out where he says "the action is." Into the sick-minded circle of dissent, protest, revolt and barbarian hell-raising.

Go looking for the troublemakers, they have counselled him, and do not expect not to find trouble.

It has taken him a bit more than a year to re-adjust his sights and broaden his perspective.

Suddenly in anger and frustration, he tears stripe off these agents of anarchy.

He has possibly discovered that these weirds and beards, these hooks and spooks, these hippies and yippies are not really concerned with legitimate social protest but only in the blind fanaticism of violence and destruction.

And he seems to have realized, finally, that he has other people to worry about, like the taxpayers both working and retired.

If it works out this way, his bodyguards — and his concerned cabinet colleagues — can relax, a little more confident that one of these lunkies is not going to clobber or kill him.

But can you see Lester Pearson, John Diefenbaker, Louis St. Laurent or Mackenzie King tempting fate by dialoguing with deadbeats?

Never.

They had too deep an understanding of the dignity and responsibility of the highest office in the nation.

It was little more than 12 years ago that Stanley Burke, recently the voice of CBC National News, but then a new-come Ottawa correspondent fresh in from Vancouver for The Sun, was staggered to see Prime Minister St. Laurent walking around Ottawa like any other man at peace with himself and the world.

"Imagine," cried Burke in amazement, "there he was ambling down Wellington street tipping his hat to the ladies and not a cop in sight!"

It was true, of course, but not a bit surprising.

It was not that "Uncle Louis" was not ever heckled — all prime ministers are, some unmercifully — but just that a gentle, courteous, dignified gentleman in a grey fedora and a conservatively-cut immaculate business suit simply was not the type to invite much less tolerate, foul-tongued abuse demeaning not only his exalted office but wounding national pride.

Mackenzie King was a cold, unloved man and he was called many things, but never an obscenity.

He was prime minister, and nobody was ever allowed, for a moment, to forget it. And that's the way it should be.

Lester Pearson lived an unsheltered life in the East Block and on the campaign trail, but had the presence of a personality never to let protest or dissent descend to the four-letter word level.

John Diefenbaker was the greatest mixer of them all. Anybody who wanted to meet him could. Each was a new delight to him. Even the hecklers. He knew how to handle them. But again, this just wasn't the kind of man the unwashed-and-unbarbed felt free to insult and obscenely curse.

Why is Trudeau? He doesn't it and does not have to stand still for it. But until now, has.

Adding to the equipment of the local law enforcement officers new tear gas equipment consisting of gun and long and short range cartridges or shells, was received by the local police department this week.

The city of Belleville will sponsor a tourist advertising booth at the sportsmen's show at Cleveland, it was decided by council.

Early erection of the long proposed incinerator in the city was urged by members of the local Board of Health. A recommendation to this effect was passed and forwarded to council and to the incinerator committee. There was a brief discussion in council as to the site of the proposed incinerator but Mayor Storey pointed out the College Street stone quarry had been chosen as the location.

First concrete indication that hostilities had begun came violently to Britons today in the announcement that the Montreal bound liner Athenia, with 1,400 Canadian and American passengers aboard, had been sunk by a German submarine. News papers gave the news that the German prowler had struck at the refugee-laden liner 200 miles off the Hebrides at dawn. Great Britain's first blow at Germany was declared officially to have been successful. A communique issued by the Ministry of Information stated that Royal Air Force bombers carried out a daring daylight raid yesterday against the German Fleet at the entrance to the strategic Kiel Canal linking the North Sea with the Baltic.

Now—Pollution in Algonquin

Ottawa Journal

A rising bacteria count in the Lake of Two Rivers has forced the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to prohibit swimming in the lake, the most popular resort area of Algonquin Park. One of the main sources of the pollution were six of the Department's own out houses, which were within 25 feet of the water. The chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission said they were dumping sewage into the lake "pretty well raw." Poor septic tank systems at a provincial campsite and private lodge, as well as more primitive disposal systems at 14 cottages around the lake, may have added to the pollution.

That the Department was directly responsible for a good part of the pollution reveals gross incompetence. As for other possible sources, Lands and Forests and the Health Department had time and more than enough authority to prevent pollution.

Are other lakes in "wilderness" areas in the same shape? How many will have to become open sewers before the provinces get tough? The Dominion's step into the pollution fight must not be taken by the provinces as an excuse to sit and wait for a national "master plan."

Enjoys Office, Friends Say

Efficiency, Not Crisis, the Aim of Strong Man Trudeau

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will be back at the grind next week—likely Tuesday or Wednesday—after a Mediterranean holiday.

It helps that he likes the grind —most of the time, anyway.

He likes being prime minister, friends say, not for the sake of the power at his disposal but for the intellectual challenge in trying to fit all the Canadian political blocks into place.

Mr. Trudeau has told friends that he wants to stay in office as long as this challenge exists.

It will likely be some time before all Canadian political blocks are fitted into place. Thus Mr. Trudeau is not likely to run out of challenges in the next few years.

"He'll never quit," a close associate said. "He's as tough as steel."

Mr. Trudeau finds his office easier now than a year ago and expects to find it still easier—if easy can ever be applied to the prime ministerial office—in the next two or three years.

This is mainly because of his overhaul of the cabinet committee system and of the office itself. Four-fifths of cabinet decisions now are made in committees of cabinet, thus providing the government more time for quiet discussion on policy issues.

Moreover, Mr. Trudeau does not have to worry about any possible threat to his leadership.

Friends say he did not lose a minute's sleep over the resignation of his former transport minister, Paul Hellyer, and report him as saying with a shrug: "He missed the Liberal leadership himself so there was nothing left for him to do but resign."

Informants say that Mr. Trudeau's main objective during his first year in office was to give the country confidence in the operations of government, to make Canadians feel the administration was in firm and capable hands.

One of the operative words for the Diefenbaker and Pearson administrations was crisis.

Mr. Trudeau has been able to defuse in advance most if not all potential critical situations and associated claim, to bring a coolness and calmness to the capital.

Sharpening Resistance Shown To Change in U.S. Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sharpening resistance is showing up lately to changing customs and methods in American churches. Although the tide of reform still runs strongly, it is meeting more opposition.

It appears widely in survey returns and individual letters to church journals.

"A revolt is going on against the political, social and economic programs the church has taken on," writes a Rapid City, S.D., lay woman in a denominational monthly, the Episcopalian.

There is an upsurge of conservatism among Christians, says Rev. Dr. Billy Melvin of Wheaton, Ill., executive director of the National Association of Evangelicals. Calling such counter-efforts essential, the association's 1969 convention said:

"New theologies, new moralities and new forms of worship have corrupted the Christian religion scorned almost past recognition."

Rev. Dr. A. Dale Fiers of Indianapolis, general minister of the Christian Church (Disciples), says there is a growing "lack of patriotism within the church." He cites a trend of reaction against church social action.

Besides tensions on that score, much of the criticism, both in Protestantism and Roman Catholicism, has focused on changes in outward forms—on new liturgies and modernized ways of worship.

"We are facing a crisis in the liturgy," says a Roman Catholic group, Una Voca in the United States, deploring what it terms "radical liturgical practices."

A broad sampling of the dissatisfied Roman Catholic sentiment turned up in a recent national survey, the first of its kind, on whether Roman Catholics favor dropping the rule requiring mass attendance on holy days.

"Please God, no more changes," pleaded one respondent.

"What has happened to our old religion?" said another.

A tentative analysis of the results indicate a majority of laymen want to stick to the rule, although official findings still are to be made known.

With a thoroughly revised Roman Catholic missal—a new order of worship for the mass—scheduled to go into effect Nov. 1, the head of the Vatican office on worship, Benno Cardinal Gut, says the period of liturgical experimentation will end.

However, Rev. Joseph M. Goldmijn, the associate director of the liturgy secretariat for U.S. bishops, says: "The reform and renewal of the liturgy is at about the half-way point."

He says the rest of the program will be in implementing changes already authorized.

Several Roman Catholic groups have sharply assailed the new order of the mass even before it goes into general use.

Dedication Attributed To Quaker Background

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drew Pearson, who took pride in being called a muckraker, was eulogized Thursday as "more than a journalist." He was, said former senator Wayne Morse, a citizen-statesman dedicated to the service of mankind.

The syndicated columnist died Monday of a heart ailment.

Morse, an Oregon Democrat, told mourners at Washington National Cathedral that the columnist's life, "in keeping with his Quaker background, was dedicated to the service of mankind according to the dictates of his conscience."

After the memorial service, the ashes of the 71-year-old columnist were to be taken to his suburban Maryland farm.

Ancient Mexican Sanctuary Plagued by Subsiding Soil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — In 1531, the Virgin of Guadalupe was reported to have appeared on a hilltop before an Indian peasant, telling him to pass on to the bishop of Mexico her request that a sanctuary be built upon the site.

Now, centuries later, it is apparent that, for construction purposes, she could have chosen a better location.

The sanctuary, which originally was a small chapel at the foot of Tepeyac Hill, since has grown to huge proportions and still is growing.

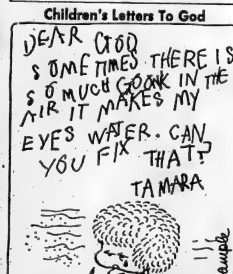
Its problem is that it rests on a slippery clay subsoil, and buildings are sinking at disproportionate rates. The Roman Catholic Church and government now are engaged in a massive program to restore the complex, raise sinking buildings and make the site more beautiful.

Jose Cano, engineer in charge of the project which began six years ago, said he doesn't know when it will be finished. Original estimates set the cost at $1,000,000, but it is certain to be much more, Cano said.

The complex, located only about four miles from downtown Mexico City, ranges over the foot of Tepeyac Hill and up onto the hill itself. The government of the federal district—Mexico City—and the Banco Nacional de Mexico are working to clear the grounds around the shrine of decrepit dwellings and vendors' stalls, replacing them with hillside gardens, parking areas and roads from which the shrine can better be seen.

While work continues, an estimated 15,000 daily visit the shrine, many traversing its huge courtyard on their knees. On Dec. 12, Day of the Virgin, the number than 1,000,000 devout visit the shrine.

The first restoration to be all but completed is that of the chapel of the pool, built over a sulphurous spring near which the Virgin is reported to have appeared to the Indian Juan Diego for the fourth time.



The original chapel of Tepeyac is being restored now, but will require much work. Part of its walls and foundations still stand and will be reinforced after excavation beneath it, where Juan Diego and others were said to have been buried, is completed by archeologists.

Next to the basilica, begun in 1691 and finished in 1709, stands the convent of the Capuchin Order, erected between 1782 and 1789. Its rear to the north rests on bedrock of the hill of Tepeyac, while its southerly front is sinking.

It is in the basilica where what the religious consider proof of the apparition is displayed.

There, above the altar, is a robe in which the Virgin appeared to Juan Diego to carry to the bishop as proof she had appeared. When Juan Diego opened his bundled robe before the bishop of Mexico, Fray Juan de Zumarraga, the roses fell out and on the surface of the robe remained a brilliantly colored image of the Virgin. Pigments to this day have not faded—nor been identified.

COLLEGE COMMENTS

"We are none of us infallible, not even the youngest." — a former Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge.

* * *

Now with the coming of September, summer closes her doors, and the more or less general routine of living begins to function again in earnest.

Such as going back to school.

This feeling was felt more so than usual, when we happened to chat with several college students preparing to go back to their studies, at various Canadian universities.

The question arose, what about college social life?

"Well, I for one," answered one spokesman, "say that you learn lots of things as a freshman, as I was last year. I studied quite faithfully, and will admit the exams did not concern me too much. But I also will admit, I sort of let the social side go, and learned one thing: If you want to join in the social swim, you do it the first two weeks, right off. Otherwise, you are left behind — far behind."

"Yes, that's it," chimed in a classmate. "The fact seems to be, we have to undergo some frightfully demeaning ordeal. The worst for me was everything three blocks by leap-frog; yes, jumping over each other's backs, with your hands in the gravel or what have you. And anyone passing along kicks you in the ribs or wherever. But for all that, I quite hate on sight fellows from any other college but our own. Now I have the college spirit which I certainly didn't have when the term first began."

What is the chief service of universities to society?

"The chief service of universities to society and their chief glory," declared a president of a Canadian university in a convocation address at University of Manitoba recently, "is the understanding and nourishing of the traditions of civility on which all civilization in the end depends. University education should be, above all, a training in civility."

Will, or rather what will bring stability to not only the university world, but the world in general?

Lady Barbara Ward-Jackson, well known economist in a series of lectures at another Canadian university, feels that reason will soon win. That people the world over want to reach out in "reason and cooperation. The community of humane men pursuing truth was small, but it is growing."

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT KEITH BROWNLEE

Brownlee — Burns

Christ Church, Belleville was the setting on Saturday, August 30, at 3.30 p.m., when Deborah Elaine Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan H. Burns of Belleville became the bride of Robert Keith Brownlee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brownlee of Corbyville. Rev. D. Hawkins officiated at the ceremony and the wedding music was rendered by John Noakes who also accompanied the soloist Robert Burke.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a full length gown of peau de sange lace featuring a bouffant skirt and lily-point sleeves. A chapel veil was caught to a headdress of calla lilies and pearls and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Maid of honor Miss Patricia Burns, sister of the bride wore an A-line green brocade dress with matching bow headdress and veil and carried a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums. The bridesmaid Miss Sharon Brownlee and junior bridesmaid Miss Karen Brownlee, both sisters of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the maid of honor, but in pink brocade.

Gary Wood of Toronto was groomsman and the ushers were Wayne Green, and Barry Brownlee, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the A.N.A.F. Hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a pink lace coat and dress ensemble with navy accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a blue two-piece lace dress and coat with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip the points east, the bride chose a blue crimplene dress and coat ensemble with navy accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee will reside in Belleville.

Young People Hold Rally In Napanee

NAPANEE — Approximately 20 young people, active members in the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada had a rally in Napanee over the weekend. They have, at present, been working in Quebec in what is known as the Gaspe Outreach. Miss Fern Parker was active there for four weeks this summer.

The home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Parker of the River Road was more or less the centre of activities for the rally. Although other church members assisted in billeting the young people. Seventeen of them were with the Parkers Saturday night, completely filling their large home and two cottages. On Saturday evening corn roast was held there with other young people of the church joining in.

Sunday the Gaspe Outreach young people took over all services which were well attended. A noon dinner was served them in Springside Park followed by an outdoor service which was also well attended.

Several of the visitors were members of the Italian church in Montreal.

Late Summer Weddings Popular

KENNEDY — HARWOOD

The wedding ceremony was solemnized in St. Albert College chapel on Saturday, August 30, 1969 of Mary Estelle Harwood daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William Harwood, Belleville, to George Haswell Kennedy, son of Mrs. Francess F. Kennedy, Kingston and the late Mr. Kennedy. Rev. Alfred Postler officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by William Connors.

Given in marriage by her cousin Dr. Geoffrey W. Eaton of Princeton, New Jersey, the bride wore a sleeveless gown of nylon sheer over taffeta cut in straight lines with a slight fullness falling from the back waistline and enhanced with a Chantilly lace bodice with scoop neckline. Highlighting the gown was a full coat of matching lace swallowed down the front from neck to hemline and terminating at back into a chapel length train. Her headdress was a crown of sheer organza lilies caught with peau de gole leaves and seed pearls, which was caught to a four-tier organza illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, with white sophanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Carolyn Harwood, sister of the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of aqua Italian moire with full round neckline and set-in sleeves and accented with matching velvet bow and streamers down the back. Her headdress was straw type adorned with seed pearls and brilliants with matching shoulder length veil. She carried a crescent bouquet of white sheetaia and pink miniature carnations. The bridesmaids the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Kennedy, sisters of the bridegroom were dressed identically to the maid of honor but in pale pink and princess blue respectively.

Cordell Hull of Kingston was groomsman, while the ushers were William Stephenson of Kingston and Jim Kiewer of Collins Bay.

At the reception at Sun Luck Gardens, Belleville, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing an aqua ensemble consisting of sheath dress and matching lace coat with aqua tulle hat, white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias and pink sweetheart roses. The mother of the bridegroom assisted, wearing a rose pink lace over silk dress with matching coat, white accessories and a corsage of white miniature carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Maritimes and New England States, the bride chose a pink printed linen dress, matching picture hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink delight roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will reside at 131 Hotch Hill Rd., Apt. 407, Kingston, Ontario.

FARRAR — INWOOD

College Hill United Church, Belleville, was the scene of the recent wedding of Evelyn Marian Inwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Inwood, 67 Bertram Blvd., Belleville, to Albert William Farrar, son of Mrs. Alice Farrar and the late Burton Farrar, Rochester, N.Y., and the late Burton Farrar. The organist was Mrs. I. Blakely.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length A-line bridal gown of triple chiffon over ribbon taffeta. The scooped neck, short sleeves and empire waist were trimmed with fine Belgian lace and pearls as well as a cathedral train falling from the waist. She wore a long veil of silk illusion trimmed with silk thread embroidery. The headdress was a satin bow with Belgian lace trimmed with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a white lace covered Bible crested with red roses

Matron of honor was Mrs. Marilyn McLeod, sister of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of peppermint chiffon over ribbon taffeta. The empire waist was highlighted by white and peppermint daisies centred with seed pearls. The headdress and bouquet were yellow shasta mums.

Flower girl was Miss Kim Inwood, niece of the bride. She wore a floor-length gown of yellow polyester. The empire waist was highlighted by white daisies centred with yellow. The headdress and bouquet were white shasta mums.

Best man was Alex McLeod, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Wilson Inwood, brother of the bride and Larry Farrar brother of the bridegroom. The ring bearer was Shane Farrar, nephew of the groom.

The reception was held in the social hall of College Hill Church. The bride's mother received the guests dressed in a yellow dress and coat ensemble of imported nylon eyelash lace. She wore a white corsage of woburn abbey sweetheart roses and white accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an ice green coat and dress ensemble of lace over silk with white accessories and a corsage of golden garnette sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Nashville, Tennessee the bride wore a deep mauve crimp-knit suit and mauve orchid with white accessories.

Upon their return they will reside at 17 Lyons Street, Kingston, Ont.

Grandmother Mayor Candidate

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Campbell, 56, a grandmother who polled more votes than anyone else besides Mayor William Dennison in the last civic election, Thursday became the first declared candidate to enter the mayoralty contest for the Dec. 1 election.

A crowd of about 2,000 turned out in support of Mrs. Campbell as she made known her decision to try to become Toronto's first female mayor. Jean Newman was defeated in 1963 in the first attempt by a female to become mayor of the city.

Fashion Line-up

A feature of Belleville Week will be the Futurama Fashion Show to be presented by Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. Three participanis, Ann Davy, Ann Acton and Margaret Anderson model some of the outfits to be shown.

Great Extravaganza of Fashions To Be Shown Belleville Week

Another major activity for Belleville Week has been announced this time in the form of a Futurama Fashion Show. The Beta Sigma Phi Sorority is sponsoring a show including fashions for the '70s.

The show will feature several "Firsts" for Belleville. Billed as the "longest fashion runway in North America", the show will be staged at Centennial Secondary School auditorium on Tuesday, September 30.

For the first time in Belleville male and female models will strut down the illuminated runway wearing the fashions of tomorrow. Three local men have already agreed to be Belleville's first male mannequins. Two male models well known in the "show" circles, are Roy Higgins, director of the Belleville Theatre Guild and radio personality Milt Johnston.

Anne Acton, speaking on behalf of the Sorority said "our girls are very enthusiastic about the show. We have acquired the services of Marjorie Kent a well known high fashion model of Montreal and Toronto who will be co - ordinating the entire production".

Miss Kent has promised to produce a great extravaganza of fashion. Local women will model along with a number of high fashion professional models from Toronto, all working under the direction of Miss Kent.

"Local merchants are being contacted to present sample garments from their major fashion houses. The co - ordinator is already working with metro designers and manufacturers to obtain outstanding garments for our Fashion of the Seventies" added Mrs. Acton.

Included is the presentation will be sports wear, swim wear, street wear, peek-a-boo, see thru unisex match coordinating under the direction of Miss Kent.

Tickets are available from any member of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

Ann Landers

Parents Rightfully Oppose This Marriage

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22, have just completed two years of college and am fighting off two families, my girl's and mine. Here's the problem — and if you can't help me, forget it.

I don't need any more negative opinions.

Laura will be 19 in November. She has one more year of high school. I want to marry her before school starts. And don't say she is too young. You've never met her. This girl is mature and solid and more of a woman than any college chick I've ever dated.

If Laura and I got married she could find a good job and I could continue working part-time and devote all my time to studying. It's very tough to work and study, too. Laura could get her high school diploma through the mail or go back to school later — after I graduated.

She is willing, but her folks are violently opposed and so are mine. How about a helping hand? — T.N.T.

DEAR T.N.T.: You don't need a hand. You need a foot, brother, well placed. You want a 18-year-old girl to quit high school, go to work and help you through college, and she can get her diploma through the mail or go back later, eh?

If Laura has one operating brain cell in her head she will stay in school where she belongs and tell you to get lost.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Dad died ten days before graduation. He had cancer and knew for several weeks that he wasn't going to make it. That made Mom promise that she would not go into mourning and that she would make us kids go on with our normal schedules after he died. His philosophy was that life is for the living and that when a loved one dies the family should waste no time sitting around crying.

My heart was heavy, but I went to the senior prom. My sister was invited to the Annapolis graduation and she went, also. Now my two aunts are mad at my mother and won't speak to her. They say we are rotten kids and it is Mom's fault for allowing us to be disrespectful to Dad's memory. Mom told them Daddy wanted it that way but they say he didn't really — that he just said it.

Please express your opinion. Our whole family has respect for you. — PHILADELPHIA.

DEAR PHIL: Your mother deserves credit for having had the courage to follow your father's instructions. An orchid to her, a bouquet of roses to your wonderful dad — and a bunch of thistles to your aunts.

Successful Living

Benefactor Is Advised to Withdraw Now

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: With a lot of love and understanding. Al (33) managed to get Jack (13) to give up glue-sniffing, car stealing, drinking and related items. He also brought Jack's family together beautifully — so that now it is a family and not just a group of people. He has written me that one of the big reasons for his doing this was to win Jack over as a brother (Al has never had a family to speak of) but he got carried away and excluded himself; and brought father and son together.

Every time Al returns from a weekend with this family, he writes he is very empty—blue and depressed. He goes to visit Jack; yet Jack goes ahead with his planned weekend. Al is left to fend for himself. He writes that they keep insisting that he should return as soon as possible, but the only time he sees Jack is at bedtime. The last night they spend together usually extends to several hours of conversation.

I owe a lot to Al. It is thanks to him that I am human. He brought me around where I could love and accept people; now I want to help him.

Now before you tell me to mind my own business, do you think (1) it would be understandable if I sent Jack the parts that concern him in Al's last letter concerning his visit? Or (2) should I advise Al to try to cut this relationship off? — Help For a Pal.

Dear Help: (1) Good grief, no! Even if it weren't a breach of confidence, it would only be resented.

(2) Just to taper off a little. While the family is hospitable, they obviously have other things to occupy their time.

At 15 Jack has different interests, and his weekends are doubtless precious to him.

Al has done a big job for these people. Now he must let them go. A one-sided affachment is a washout. What he needs from you is understanding, a pat on the back, and a push to strike out again on his own.

Dear Doris: I wrote you several weeks ago asking about careers in home economics. Your reply was certainly helpful and appreciated!

Is there anything I can do for you? — Grateful Student

Dear Grateful: You've done it! A response like yours is precious. Write again, ask me anything, and I'll blow a fuse finding out the answer for you.

Confidential to Worried: In many cases it is possible for sufferers from homosexualism to be helped. Much depends on the history of the trouble, and the strength of the individual's determination to accept help.

Write in again, enclosing 10 cents and a return envelope, and I'll send you an article I wrote on the topic after consultation with a psychiatrist.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Readers Request Variety of Previous Recipes

By MARY MOORE

Request from several readers!: Please repeat Margaret Hegler's Sweet Gherkin recipe given several years ago.

ANSWER: Gladly.

MARGARET HEGLER'S SWEET GHERKINS

(reprinted from August 1958)

NOTE: During the brining period the gherkins shrivel, but after standing in the vinegar-sugar solution for some time become firm and plump.

Two qts. fresh gherkins (approximately 2½ lbs.), 1¼ cups salt, 2¼ qts. boiling water, 4 cups mild vinegar (cider is recommended), 1 tsp. powdered alum, 4 cups brown sugar, ½ tbsp. each whole cloves, whole allspice, celery seed, ¼ cup white mustard seed. Wash the gherkins well and cover with the hot brine made from the 1¼ cups salt and the 2¼ qts. boiling water. Let stand 24 hrs., then drain. Mix the remaining ingredients including the alum and vinegar, bring to boiling and pour over the gherkins. Put into sterilized jars and seal. Yield: 4 pts.

LETTER: This little experience really prompted me to write to express my appreciation of your efforts. I was in a store in a large city near us and there was a lady passing out samples of manufactured macaroons and was going on about how incrpensive they were etc. I told her of your excellent recipe for the Golden Macaroons (which I usually double as it is a favorite of ours). She said, "Just a minute till I get a pencil and some paper to copy it down." Wasn't this a switch? — Mary B.

ANSWER: It sure was. I dug out the recipe for Golden Macaroons because I know your comment will whet the appetites of our macaroon lovers.

GOLDEN COCONUT MACAROONS (36)

2 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
¼ cup unsifted all-purpose flour
2 cups flaked or feather-strip coconut
½ tsp. salt

Heat oven to 350 deg. Fahr. Lightly grease two cookie sheets. In large bowl with mixer at high speed, beat eggs with sugar, just until well blended — about 1 min. Then fold in flour and coconut and salt. Drop by tsp. to make 30, 1½" apart and pat together a bit with spoon. Bake about 13 min., or until set and golden. Immediately remove from pan with broad spatula.

Know Your Antiques

The table illustrated is a candlestand lamp or night table and it was a general utility item of the 18th and 19th centuries. Tables were made small, light and stove the height of a chair arm so they could be moved readily to provide a place for a candle or lamp wherever needed.

In the 18th century before dining rooms became common candlestands were used only at meals, evolving into the larger tea table for that special purpose. In the 19th century candlestands became a social point and took a place in the centre of a room as a lamp table cluttered with books, knickknacks, and other impedimenta that almost engulfed the lamp.

The table illustrated is decorative, though crudely made by someone in a home workshop. The legs were cut with a band or fret saw, both inventions available after 1860. Fret work became increasingly popular towards the end of the 19th century.

Band-sawing was used commercially almost to the exclusion of other methods after 1875. Just prior to this date there was a craze for turned legs, turned spindle decoration, applied and half-spindles. All were available, mass-produced in large quantities by using steam-driven equipment.

Band-sawing depressed the furniture industry. An effort was made to cut costs by making one cut of the band saw shape each component part.

Picture Credit: Dundurn Castle Restoration

Candlestand Table First Used as A Utility Item

If legs were curved the band saw cut them off in identical shapes from a large block. Cabriole legs which had hitherto had a generous, attractive curve cut out of at least a quarter-cylinder by turning, appeared as flat slices curved in one direction only.

The price of manufactured furniture fell. Competition at the lowest prices flattened reduced quality. Even spindle-turning was too expensive. The style of the period, angular "Eastlake Gothic" appeared in flat, band-sawn designs. By 1900 bedroom suites of dresser and mirror, double bed and washstand were $12.50. Bevelled mirrors cost 40 cents more. The best three-piece parlor suites cost from $17.75 to $21. Lamp tables of the size shown were 85 cents in hardwood, usually oak, and became known as parlor tables.

The table illustrated probably was made about 1900 by someone with a sense of style. The redwood was cut on a band saw in a hexagon to which six legs, six top supports, six curlicues and a finial were applied. It is a pleasing and sturdy example of a candlestand made at notwood. If you are lucky you can find one for about $20. Don't be surprised if you have to pay more.

Employment News

By J. J. COLLINS
Manpower Counsellor

During the week, we have seen the quiet, tranquil atmosphere of rural areas transformed into the familiar hives of activity.

We see the groups of students either on foot or in large yellow buses — reminding us of our own school days. This, and the importance of these formative years to the student who will, in a few short years, be the adult citizen of our communities.

In this rapidly moving, and technological age, the value and necessity of an education cannot be overstressed by parents, guardians, teachers, Manpower counsellors, and, anyone in any way dealing with our student generation. Unfortunately, there is always too large a number of young people who are capable of but unwilling, to avail themselves of the tremendous opportunity of education.

The harvesting of various farm crops is still a major program in the rural area. The picking and canning of the tomato crop is not yet complete and workers are still required. The apple season is about to commence.

Besides the harvesting and canning operations, some of the female employment opportunities are:

Retail sales clerks for full and part - time work which includes some evening work: house - to - house or domestic sales of well - known household products, on a commission basis; data processing unit records supervisor for a neighboring town; typists; plant production workers: teller for a trust company and various openings in the service occupations.

In the male listings, vacancies include:

Trainees for management and other types of work: a 4th class stationary engineer; driver salesman (bondable); plant production workers; construction workers; service station work here in Belleville and attendants for Trenton area.

There are a few seats still available in the commercial refresher course at the local Adult Education Centre commencing the later part of September. This course is designed as a refresher program to meet the needs of those people considering re-entering the labor market, with previous training and experience in the commercial clerical field.

Anyone interested in any of the above mentioned opportunities or seeking employment as an entry or re-entry employee applicant will be given guidance and assistance at the local Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville, telephone 962-8681.

Generals Lose Three

U.S. Scholarships Skim Junior Cream

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Scholarships offered by United States universities are enticing players with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series to go south of the border.

"I guess you could put together a pretty good team from all the players they've taken," said Paul Emms, coach of Niagara Falls Flyers, Friday.

Emms said the Flyers have not been hurt as much as other teams in the series but he had heard that Lloyd Bentley, a member of the Flyers last season, has decided to move to the U.S.

He said he has also received letters, from several players who were invited to attend the Flyers' training camp but had accepted scholarships to play in the U.S.

Phil Wilmmer, general manager of Montreal Junior Canadiens, said his team has lost defenceman Gary Connolly to Michigan State University.

Said Wimmer: "I don't know what kind of marks they take down there. Sometimes it surprises me that some people can get into school with the marks they have."

Toronto Marlboros have lost defenceman Rick Jordan and goalie Jack Ellenbaas to U.S. universities.

Matt Leyden, general manager of Oshawa Generals, meanwhile said that his club will lose John Clayton and Gerry Welsh as well as Pete McNamee, a Junior B player last year.

Leyden said he believes that Clayton, Oshawa's captain last season, will play at Michigan State. Welsh, a right-winger, will go to the University of Denver and McNamee to the University of Pennsylvania.

Howard Darwin, manager of Ottawa 67s, said his club has lost Pete Harasym who will play for Cornell University.

Darwin was critical of U.S. universities "raiding" Ontario teams.

"These boys come in here, set up a room at a hotel, then have the nerve to call us to get a list of our players to interview," Darwin said.

Herb Warr, manager of Peterborough Petes, said that the club has lost Dave Roy to the University of Minnesota while London Knights report the loss of Jim Stead, a left winger.

Hamilton Red Wings are the only team which so far this year has not lost a player to a U.S. university.

Manager Eddie Bush said he has "no fear whatsoever of American schools."

He said if a Canadian boy wants to become a good hockey player he would stay "where hockey and school facilities are the greatest."

Ashe, Laver Favored for Tennis Title

ARTHUR ASHE

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Arthur Ashe was counting on his big service to offset Rod Laver's speed and quickness today in the semi-finals of the second U.S. open tennis tournament—the match most people believed would determine the championship.

"I serve better," Ashe said in a dumbo-tall analysis of the two games. "Rod is quicker then I am. But the backhands are about the same. I think I have a better forehand."

The rail-thin Negro Davis Cup star from Richmond, Va., doesn't discount his chances against the 31-year-old recognized king of tennis, who has won 26 matches in a row and now is seeking to add the American to his Australian, French and Wimbledon titles for a pro grand slam.

Ashe, who won the title last year as an amateur in an affront to the pro stars, was serving phenomenally Friday days when he erased veteran Ken Rosewall of Australia in straight sets, 8-6, 6-3, 6-4. He lost his service only twice—in the first game of the match, and the eighth game of the third set when he had the decision virtually in hand.

The second men's semi-final match can't be played until Sunday because two days of torrential rain Wednesday and Thursday put a crimp in the schedule.

Third-seeded Tony Roche of Australia, who eliminated Pancho Gonzales 6-3, 10-12, 7-5, 6-0 in a postponed fourth round match Friday, was to play unseeded Earl (Butch) Buchholz in a delayed quarter-final match today.

Then the winner must go against the survivor of a marathon 3½ hour quarter-final duel between second-seeded John Newcombe and Fred Stolle of Australia, who were halted by darkness at two sets each and 10-10 in the fifth. It was to be finished today.

Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., gets a chance to break an overseas stranglehold in the women's singles final Sunday when she plays the heavily-favored Margaret Court of Australia.

Miss Richey, who after years of playing in the back court has recently adopted a net-rushing attack and loves it, turned back Rosemary Casals of San Francisco Friday 7-5, 6-3, while Mrs. Court, seven times Australian champion, crushed defending titleholder Virginia Wade of England 7-5, 6-0.

Untrained Finns No Match for Nats

HELSINKI (CP-Reuters) — The line of Wayne Carleton, Larry Wright and Chuck Hamilton led the Canadian nationals team to an easy 6-1 victory over the inept Lions of Finnland in an exhibition hockey game Friday night.

The Canadians proved far too superior against the still largely-untrained Finnish nationals, skating through their defence with little effort.

Lindstrom opened the scoring for Finnland when he scored an unassisted goal at 1.30.

Morris Mott and Phil Roberts countered for the Canadians before the first period ended.

Wright, Fran Huck and Carleton added to the Nationals lead in the second period and Chuck Lesley closed out the scoring in the final period.

Defenceman Jim McKenny was voted the best Canadian player and received a prize at the end of the game.

A crowd of about 4,000 cheered the skillful Canadian passing display throughout the game.

Sports On All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Cleroux, former Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, went into retirement for the second time Thursday. Cleroux, 31, said if his retirement announcement that this time he will stay out of boxing for good. He retired from the ring in 1963 with a 40-5 won-lost record, but came out of retirement in July 1968. During his comeback he made it back into the top 10 in the heavyweight division winning nine fights and losing one.

* * *

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins said Friday that veteran left-wing Ron Murphy, who announced his retirement at the end of the 1968-69 National Hockey League season, has changed his mind. He will report to the team's pre-season training camp next Thursday at London, Ont., with the rest of the squad. Murphy decided to retire because of constant soreness in his shoulders, both of which had been operated on during the last few years. The 36-year-old veteran of 16 NHL seasons said the pain disappeared after a summer of relaxation and soaking up sun, however, so he decided to play again.

* * *

SEATTLE (AP) — The mayor of Seattle threatened Friday to dispossess Seattle Pilots of the American League from their stadium here unless they provide $980,000 in rent by Monday.

* * *

EDMONTON (CP) — A committee will be formed to work out a new financing arrangement for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, CAHA president Earl Dawson of Rivers, Man., said Friday. Mr. Dawson said that the CAHA should not be required to support itself from a share of playoff gates receipts. He said the funds should come from CAHA members and not from professional hockey or government sources.

* * *

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — New Westminster Blues stormed back into Mann Cup contention with a 13-11 senior lacrosse win over Brooklin, Ont., Redmen Friday night, cutting the visitors' best-of-seven series lead to 2-1.

* * *

EDMONTON (CP) — Ron Butlin, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, Friday denied a claim he is responsible for a rift between the WCHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Mr. Butlin said in an interview all the teams in the WCHL are appralised of the league's position and support it. He said an agreement between the CAHA and the outlaw WCHL has not yet been signed, but he hoped it would be soon. CAHA president Earl Dawson said as Edmonton meeting the eight WCHL teams "have shown sincerity" in their desire to return to the CAHA. The WCHL operated independently last season when it insisted players should be allowed to play until their 21st birthday as of Dec. 31 of the playing year. The CAHA maximum is 20 years old on or before that date.

Vancouver Bid 'Cinch'

SEATTLE (CP) — Vancouver's bid for a National Hockey franchise for the 1970-71 season was described here Friday night as "a lead-pipe cinch."

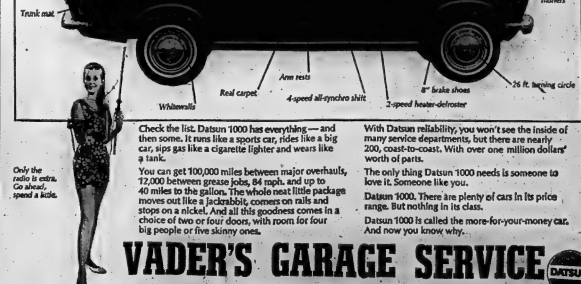
Keith Allen, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers, told hockey writers here for a testimonial dinner:

"Vancouver is a lead-pipe cinch to get one franchise. The other city will probably be Baltimore. They're going to put both new teams in the Eastern Division and shift one Eastern Division team into the West."

Allen, a former player, coach and general manager with Seattle Totems of the Western League, said the Vancouver franchise will cost about $6,000,000.

The dinner, to honor retiring WHL president Al Leader, buzzed with franchise rumors. Some sources said Toronto or Chicago will be the team moved into the Western Division.

Speculation was that the NHL board of governors would make an announcement concerning Vancouver's bid sometime next week.



NHL president Clarence Campbell who attended the dinner could not be reached immediately for comment.

DATSUN 1000

$1845 from

SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICE PACIFIC, VANCOUVER, TORONTO, MONTREAL, ST. JOHN, N.B.

You think maybe we left something out?

Only the radio is extra. Go ahead, spend a kicke.

Check the list. Datsun 1000 has everything — and then some. It runs like a sports car, rides like a big car, sips gas like a cigarette lighter and wears like a tank.

You can get 100,000 miles between major overhauls, 12,000 between grease jobs, 84 mph. and up to 40 miles to the gallon. The whole neat little package moves out like a Jackrabbit, comes on rails and stops on a nickel. And all this goodness comes in a choice of two or four doors, with room for four big people or five skinny ones.

With Datsun reliability, you won't see the inside of many service departments, but there are nearly 200, coast-to-coast. With over one million dollars' worth of parts.

The only thing Datsun 1000 needs is someone to love it. Someone like you.

Datsun 1000. There are plenty of cars in its price range. But nothing in its class.

Datsun 1000 is called the more-for-your-money car. And now you know why.

Special Visitors Bring Brian Memories . . . Not All Good Ones

TORONTO (CP) — The five big men filled into the room. They wore white gowns and spoke from behind gauze masks, but 13-year-old Brian Stockton knew who they were —Toronto Argonaut football players.

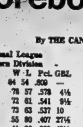
Lying in his bed at Sick Children's Hospital Thursday, Brian thought it was all a dream.

Here were five of his heroes coming to tell him they were members of the Brian Stockton fan club. Tom Wilkinson, Frank Cosentino, Bob Swift, Jim Thorpe and Danny Nykoluk had come to present him with a football signed by all the players of the Eastern Football Conference team.

Brian smiled as quarterback Wilkinson produced a camera and took some pictures of the presentation.

He still wondered if it was just a good dream, instead of the bad dream which kept coming back about the night his legs were burned so severely they would never be legs again. In early June he had stepped on a metal plate at a hydro substation and 16,000 volts passed through him.

Doctors said it was a miracle that he lived.



And Brian thinks what has happened since that terrible night is a miracle.

Besides Argo visitors, Frank Mahovlich of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League has dropped in to see him and a Toronto area minor soccer association is staging a 30-team tournament this weekend which bears his name.

Proceeds from the tournament will go to the Brian Stockton Fund. Mr. Brian will make his first trip out of the hospital today to launch the tournament and express his thanks.

Before the accident Brian played soccer, swam, practised gymnastics and was a hockey and football fan. Now he accepts that playing games must be just a memory.

Lone Run Unearned

Expos Losers in Patented Style

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Expos did it again.

St. Louis Cardinals edged the Expos 1-0 Friday night in National League baseball action, giving Montreal its sixth straight loss and 13th in 14 games.

To make matters worse, the winning run was unearned.

It came in the eighth inning when Mike Shannon walked and came around to score when Expos first baseman Ron Fairly threw wild to second on Julian Javier's sacrifice bunt.

Nelson Briles (14-12) pitched a three-hitter for the Cards.

Elsewhere Friday, Dennis Menke hit a two-run homer in the ninth to lead Houston Astros to a 2-0 victory over San Francisco Giants.

Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds remained 1½ games behind the Giants in the Western Division. The Dodgers lost 4-1 to San Diego Padres while Cincinnati dropped an 11-3 decision to Atlanta Braves. The Braves are two games behind, while Houston is fifth, 4½ games back.

In the East, New York Mets split a doubleheader with Philadelphia Phillies, winning the first 5-1, then losing 4-3 to move to within 4½ games of Chicago Cubs, who lost 9-2 to Pittsburgh Pirates in the only afternoon contest.

Menke slammed his ninth homer after a one-out single by Doug Rader. The clout ended the Giants' winning string at three and sent Fergy to his 12th defeat. He has won 18.

Joe Niekro scattered 10 hits and Nate Colbert hit his 18th homer of the year, a two-run shot in the eighth.

Willie Davis, whose consecutive game hitting streak was stopped at 31 by the Padres Thursday, got four straight hits and scored the lone Dodger run on a single by Bill Sudakis.

Atlanta's knuckleballer Phil Niekro limited the Reds to seven hits—Tony Perez' two run homer in the first inning—in gaining his 13th victory. Niekro, who has lost 12, faced only 30 batters. He walked one and struck out 8. He retired 14 in a row before Woody Woodward reached on an error in the eighth.

blast, as the Padres whipped the Dodgers for the second straight night.

Ron Santo, who has driven in 11 runs in his last 10 games, blasted a two-run homer in the first inning—in gaining his 13th victory. Niekro, who has lost 12, faced only 30 batters. He walked one and struck out 8. He retired 14 in a row before Woody Woodward reached on an error in the eighth.

Oakland Won't Throw in Western Towel

Oakland Athletics aren't going to give Minnesota Twins the American League Western Division title without a fight.

The Athletics were trailing the first-place Twins 4-3 after seven innings Friday night and were in danger of dropping 4½ games off the pace.

But they rallied for two runs in the eighth and had men on first and third and two out. Bert Campaneris then slashed a Ron Perranoski pitch on the ground near the mound. The pitcher got his glove on it but couldn't handle it, and it went for a game-winning single in the 5-4 triumph.

Oakland built an early 2-0 lead when Cater singled home Dick Green, who had doubled, and Tito Francona homered.

After Minnesota got an unearned run in the fifth, Tony Oliva tied it with his 19th homer to lead off the sixth. Before the inning was over the Twins had scored twice more.

Dave Johnson batted in five runs with a pair of doubles and Frank Robinson hit a two-run homer, his 31st, for Baltimore, the runaway Eastern Division leader, as Mike Cuellar survived a shaky start for his 20th victory. Don Wert belted a three run homer and Al Kaline a solo shot for Detroit.

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — Tony Adamowicz will carry a slender four-point lead over Sam Posey into Sunday's Formula A Continental championship car race at Le Circuit, in this Laurentian mountain resort area 80 miles north of Montreal. Adamowicz, a five-year racing veteran at 28 from Willsea, Conn., has picked up 39 championship points in the first nine races of this year with his Eagle Chevrolet. Posey, a 26-year-old native of Sharon, Conn., who began his professional career at Le Circuit in 1966, tightened up the championship standings with his victory at Lime Rock Park on Labor Day in his Chevrolet-powered McLaren MBA.

TORONTO (CP) — Bev Boys of Oshawa, Canada's top woman diver, Friday captured the British national 10-metre platform diving championship at Blackpool, England. The second half of the competition, the three-metre springboard event, goes today.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The opening-round Friday of the first women's Canadian open golf championship produced a finish that had the sponsors patting themselves on the back as they started counting the gate receipts for the weekend.

The leader with a sensational six-under-par 67 was Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., first Canadian to crack the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour and LPGA Rookie-of-the-Year in 1968.

But 23 other golfers turned in 6,281-yard Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club course into a pitch-and-putt playground to stay within six shots of the pace.

There was Sherry Wilder, a Titusville, Fla., pro who says she'll stay on the tour "until I find a rich, eligible man." She was five-under 66 with eagles on the par-four second hole and the par-five 18th.

Judy Rankin, a Midland, Tex., housewife and mother who has been on the tour since she was 17, had 34-36—70. Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Gerda Whalen of Monroe, Tex., Sharron Moran of Batavia, Ill., and lanky Carol Mann of Cincinnati, Ohio, leading LPGA money winner, all had 70s.

A crowd of 2,150 was scattered over the course for the first round and officials were predicting 10,000 would be on hand for the final 36-holer today and Sunday to help pay the bills in the $25,750 tournament, which carries top money of $4,612.

Miss Post, who admitted she is nervous playing in Canada, reeled off six birdies for "my first round in a while without a bogey."

There was a tie-up on 18 and I was playing 'he loves me, he loves me not' with some zinnias. My caddy came over and told me to cool it and concentrate on my game."

Miss Post, who has won $7,710 in 15 tournaments this year, banged in birdie putts from three feet on each of the par-five first and ninth holes and sank another one from 18 feet on the short eighth for a 34 at the turn.

Sandra Post Is Women's Open Cinderella

Bowerman Shares Third

HALIFAX (CP) — When Bob Brown plays golf, he talks to himself. He tells himself that he can always recover from a shot, no matter how bad.

And Friday, the 30-year-old professional from Woodbridge, Ont., talked to a par 73 at the Oatchell Golf and Country Club near here and a share in the lead after the first round of the $5,000 Atlantic Open.

Brown holds the lead in the three-day, 54-hole tournament with Lawrence (Butch) O'Hearn of Dartmouth, N.S., Bob Cox of Quilchena, B.C., and Robert Holmes of Manchester, Mass.

Nine golfers, including leading amateur Graham MacIntyre of New Glasgow, N.S., are tied at 75.

Also at 75 are professionals John Munroe of New Glasgow, Dave Clayton of Toronto, Phil Giroux of Montreal, Alvie Thompson of Bayview, Ont., Belleville native Gary Bowerman of Toronto, Jay Dolan of Leicester, Mass., Gary Dozier of Lyncayan, Bahamas, and Vaughan Trapp of Vancouver.

Canada Cup Entry Cost Multiplied 11 Times

TORONTO (CP) — The cost of entering Canada's Cup competition has multiplied more than 11 times since a group of Toronto yachtsmen ordered a 96,000 cutter rig to answer a challenge from the United States in 1895.

A Canadian syndicate headed by Acmilius Jarvis of Toronto went to Scotland that year to find a designer and the 37-foot Canada was built at Oakville, Ont.

Canada won the best-of-three series against Vencedor of Chicago and the Canada's Cup was established as the perpetual challenge trophy for yachts from U.S. and Canadian clubs on the Great Lakes.

The 1969 Canada's Cup defender Nanticoke, which meets Niagara of Cleveland in the first of a best-of-five series Sunday, was designed and built in Toronto and Burlington, Ont., and is worth $70,000.

Manitou and Niagara are both rated by the Cruising Club of America as Class 37 yachts. This is the waterline length of each boat at cruising speed.

The first race, over a 21-mile triangular course, begins about 7½ miles off Toronto Island on Lake Ontario. The second race is scheduled for Monday over the same course. Each of the first two races is worth one point to the winning boat.

The third race, worth two points to the winner, is scheduled for Tuesday over a 300-mile course, with a final race if necessary over the 21-mile course next Saturday.

There is considerably more money and prestige involved in this year's race than in the Canada-Vencedor series in 1958.

In addition to Manitou's market value after this year's race, her records will be worth about $25,000 to an interested buyer or considerably more through leasing royalties.

Designed by George Cuthbertson and George Cassian of Toronto and built by Eric Ruckmann of Burlington, Ont., Manitou is owned by a Royal Canadian Yacht Club syndicate headed by Perry Connolly.

Connolly, owner and skipper Bruckmann-produced Red Jacket, will also skipper the Manitou. Red Jacket, with virtually the same crew that will sail Manitou, won the SORC championship in 1968.

The RCYC won the Canada's Cup in 1954 and the 1969 challenge from the Cleveland Yacht Club is the first since that time. The trophy was originally for competition between eight-metre yachts and the declining popularity of this type boat discouraged competition for 15 years.

Lunge Took A Plunge

This muskellunge took a plunge right onto Ron Smith's fishing line at Sears Lake Wednesday evening. Robert Smith helps Ron, who lives at RR 1 Corbyville, hold the prize catch which tipped the scales at 26 pounds and measured 47" in length.

Salmon Plant Success

SAANICH, B.C. (CP) — Federal fisheries officials have been watching a transplant experiment with coho salmon fry which could greatly improve fishing in Saanich Inlet at the southeastern tip of Vancouver Island as early as 1971.

The Millstream River, which drains the Sheringham Lake system flowing into Mill Bay, has been planted with 17,000 coho fry from the Goldstream River, and more are to come.

It may sound like a case of robbing Peter to pay Paul, since both rivers flow into Saanich Inlet, but fisheries guardian Stan Ratcliffe says it isn't so.

Mr. Ratcliffe said the Goldstream was literally jammed with fry this year—"more fish than ever before."

"Just about any salmon egg must have hatched."

The problem with the Goldstream is that during a dry year there isn't enough water in which to rear the abundance of coho fry, and thousands would be pushed out to sea to die.

The transplanted fry had to be backpacked in from the highway to be placed in the Millstream at two points, one upstream and one near the mouth.

Next spring, fisheries officials will block off the mouth of the Millstream with nets to get an accurate account of the fry survival to the smolt stage.

If 3,000 or more smolt have survived, it is likely the existing natural barriers—falls—may be removed to make way for the return of the coho at spawning time.

These Anglers Exceptions to Rule

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The department of lands and forests reports poor fishing across the province but it anglers consider all fishing slow this year then perhaps they'll change their minds.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters runs a big fish contest annually and up to late August some of the top entries were:

— Frank Kastriner of Burlington, Ont., a 15-pound seven-ounce pickerel while trolling in the Nottawasaga River with a yellow leaf worm harness.

— Dalton Johnston, of Nipigon, a pike weighing 32-pounds eight ounces, caught in the Nipigon Straits of Lake Superior.

— James Smith of Bracebridge, a six - pound 12¼ - ounce specicled trout caught in Algonquin Park.

— Alfred Fuss of Dubuque, Iowa, a 34-pound four-ounce lake trout caught in Lake of the Woods.

— John Aaron of Niagara Falls, N.Y., a 38-pound muskellunge hooked in the north channel of the French River.

— Werner Rudat of Waterloo, a 14-pound two-ounce rainbow trout which he caught in Georgian Bay near Coldwater.

—Pete Spangler of Bedford, Penn., a seven-pound three-ounce largemouth bass, caught in the west bay of Otsego Lake.

— Ian Park of Toronto, a five-pound 11-ounce smallmouth bass hooked in Balsam Lake.

While all the fish mentioned are far below world or Canadian records, they are lunkers when are enough to tell others that big fish still exist.

Fishing, except for most of northern Ontario, continues to be poor.

Reports from the department's eastern district:

KEMPTVILLE — Ottawa and Rideau rivers fronting Carleton County, pickerel and pike poor, perch good, smallmouth bass fair. Rideau River fronting Grenville County, all species fair. Lanark County, White and Mississippi Lakes, pickerel poor, bass and pike fair, panfish excellent. All species poor throughout rest of district except for good bass fishing in Long Sault area.

LINDSAY—Kawartha Lakes and Rice Lakes areas, pickerel and muskellunge fair and bass and panfish good. Haliburton County, pickerel, bass and muskellunge fair and all trout species fair to good.

TWEED — Specicled trout good in Carnarvon area. Pike good in all waters. Pickerel good in Fifth Depot, Beaver, Ingleshy, Whetstone and Baptiste Lakes. Bass good in Fifth Depot, Bear, Norway, Paudash, Baptiste, Limerick and Lingham lakes. Muskellunge fair in Sisco and Whetstone lakes and Ottawa River.

Fun afloat
with Stan Davies

Remember this—a few ounces of gasoline vaporized in an enclosed space has the explosive force of a stick of dynamite. In fact, weight for weight gasoline has more destructive power than commercial explosives.

A gasoline fire on any boat is one of the gravest of emergencies and frequently is fatal. Already this summer at least four people have died and more than a score injured due to the ignorance or carelessness which results in a fire afloat.

Almost without exception boat fires and explosions start by the ignition of fuel vapors that have settled into the lower parts of a boat during refuelling operations.

Gasoline vapor is heavier than air, and will flow like some viscous invisible liquid through cracks and openings into the bilges or cabin and there lie in wait like a bomb waiting for a spark to set it off.

But it's all so easy to prevent:

(1) Make sure all fixed fuel tanks in the boat are properly vented and grounded;

(2) Ventilate engine and tank compartments;

(3) Follow rigidly a safe ventilating procedure when refuelling.

The first rule means that fill pipes should open above deck so that fumes which may spill out will roll over the side. The tank must be vented through the side or deck of the boat so that vapor in the tank which is forced out when gasoline pours in, will not flow into the boat.

But venting the tank itself is not enough. Some fumes are still certain to accumulate in the engine compartment and they must be blown out, either by a mechanical blower or ventilation ducts.

The increase in pleasure craft fires due to inadequate ventilation caused the Department of Transport to issue safety recommendations last year to amplify the requirements in Small Vessel Regulations that engine compartments "shall be efficiently ventilated."

The recommendation closely parallels the U.S. Coast Guard's "two ventilation ducts" system which is actually law in the U.S. Briefly it requires one vent duct to carry fresh air to the very bottom of the bilge and another duct as far from the other as possible to exhaust the fumes.

Another thing, make sure the fuel tank and fill pipe are grounded by a wire leading to something in contact with the water. When filling, hold the nozzle metal tightly against the fill pipe. This is to prevent a spark of static electricity.

Here's a typical refuelling and ventilating procedure for a boat that has built-in gasoline tanks:

1. No smoking
2. Moor boat securely to prevent spilling.
3. Move all passengers ashore.
4. Close all hatches, doors to keep out vapor.
5. Don't touch electrical switches or equipment, prevent sparks.
6. Put out all stoves, or open flames.
7. Keep constant check that nozzle is firmly against fill pipe.
8. Don't overfill.
9. Wipe up carefully every drop of spilled fuel.
10. Open up boat as much as possible to vent it and thoroughly.
11. Sniff cabin and bilges as a test for vapor.
12. Start engines.
13. Take passengers back on board.

The procedure for outboard motor boats with portable tank is much simpler . . . just put them ashore to be filled. Then there is no danger.

HITTING FROM SOGGY TURF REQUIRES PRECISION

Playing a ball from soggy (wet) turf requires a precise swing. The idea is to merely clip the ball off the ground, taking little or no divot. If the clubhead strikes even a fraction of an inch behind the ball, the shot will finish well short of the target.

Take one club "more" (a 7-iron, instead of an 8, for example) than you'd usually use for the required distance, because you will not swing as forcefully. Dig in your spikes for solid footing. Play the ball forward, off the left foot. Take the club back very low and be especially careful to hit the ball first.

Wanton Killing

Wildlife Officer Sees Man at His Worst

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — A. E. Walroth, Lindsay district forester for the Ontario lands and forests department, wrote the following article for the district's weekly report, under the heading A Time to Live and a Time to Die:

For all of us there is a time to live and a time to die, and it should be that way for wild game too.

The problem is that there are humans roaming the woods in the guise of hunters who have never learned when to stop killing.

We see evidence of it along back roads—a deer carcass with the hind quarters cut away or bits of bones left from a "summer" kill. You see it in the duck marshes—ducks left at the landing that would not fit into a man's legal limit. We see it in the hardwood—a partridge gone to waste because a man shot it, far for a clean kill, and we too far for a clean kill, and we rivers—a dead mink or weasel with a bullet hole in its head..

You hear it where men gather to sip beer and talk about the big kill, the easy kill or the illegal kill. We hear it in small - and medium-sized towns, even big cities, for the men who can't stop killing are never definable by the size of the community, nor by the cut of their clothes.

You can't set the activity apart by species. Anywhere there is something wild in the bush you can bet your best shotgun someone is figuring out a way to kill it without being caught. It happens with squirrels and rabbits as well as deer and the occasional moose.

The man who kills within the framework and limits of the hunting regulations is a different breed of cat. He tempers his killing with respect for the animal he pursues. He sees a wild thing not only as a target but as a living, breathing creature with more freedom than he, himself, will ever have. He takes that life and that freedom if he can, only if the law permits, and he may even do it with some regret. He stands with the majority of hunters. But the others?

These are the so-called men who seemingly can't stand to see any bird or animal alive in the woods. They will blast an otter into eternity while standing for ducks! They will riddle a heron with bird shot if there is nothing else in the air to shoot! They will kill simply because, while carrying a gun, they have found something with life which can be rendered dead!

And what about the careless anglers! He is the unthinking fisherman who pollutes pure streams and lakes with garbage and beer cans or is the cause of a wild forest fire which, in turn, fills once-pure waters with hot ash and silt, killing all fish and perhaps destroying future spawning beds.

The eager young lad, with his crude, tree-twig rod and bent-pin hook, with all his inexperience is often better than the self-styled angler. The "spoiler" pulls them in beyond the legal limit and, instead of throwing back the small ones, leaves them on the bank to rot, to stink in the sun and add to the general assault on nature's beauty.

These are the "bad guys" of sportsdom: the fishery poachers . . . the encroachers . . . on the rights of others.

Conservation is not a mere empty word, or way of life of the pious do-gooders. It is the vital heartbeat of fish and wildlife management programs; the wise use of natural, renewable resources.

GET OUT AND WALK

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Council for Walking says Canadians spend too much of their vacations in cars, thereby missing the natural and made made landmarks which their cars whiz past. Man walked on the moon and Jacques Cartier and his coureurs de bois discovered this country mainly on foot, the council says.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Every wife and mother is a potential Florence Nightingale. I have said this often, and its truth is underlined by my own experience in practice and by the many letters I receive from readers. The trouble is that most husbands and children won't listen — until it's too late. Here is another example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have just finished reading your column about the man who is 30 pounds overweight, has high blood pressure and won't listen to his wife's and doctor's advice.

I, too, was 30 pounds overweight with high blood pressure and would not listen to my wonderful wife. I have just returned from a local hospital where I spent the last three weeks flat on my back due to a heart attack. I will not be able to return to work for at least three months.

My doctor warned me, and my wife begged me, not to overeat but I would not listen. My pressure at one time was 190 over 120. I weighed 174 pounds with a 42-inch waist. I am 5 feet 4 and am 52 years old.

Now I have to refrain from sugar and starches in addition to salt and fats, because I have become a diabetic. I do not have to take insulin, as pills and diet will control the malady.

I am recuperating now at home under the wonderful guidance of my wife. You can be sure I will listen to her forever more. I yearn again to move about and get going but will not until my heart heals.

If you wish you may publish my letter so that it may be read by the husband of the woman who is justly worried about him.

Glad to have another chance. I am yours sincerely, Mr. Y.

COMMENT: An aside to you, Mr. Y. I have known men who made similar resolutions while they were still convalescing, yet reverted to their old bad habits when they were well enough to return to work. My advice: keep listening to the Florence Nightingale you have in your home.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: I know of no link between lung cancer and routine chest X-rays.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: For the past three months my husband has been getting headaches. He takes his temperature and it's 97. As the day goes on sometimes it gets up to normal.

He has been to two doctors and they don't seem to be concerned about his temperature. It worries my husband. Can you give us some advice?

Mrs. A.

COMMENT: Perhaps the doctor will take a basal metabolism test or other test for thyroid function. It may be indicative.

There is no such thing as a normal temperature of 98.6. Some healthy people have a temperature between 99 and 100 all their lives; while others like your husband, have a temperature on the low side. If his doctors aren't concerned, your husband should worry less.

Nine Briefs Say Yes

Maritime Union Needs More Study

FREDERICTON (CP) — Only nine of 28 briefs submitted to the Maritime union study group call for a political merger of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Six of them say a firm no. The remaining 11 recommended varying degrees of co-operation between the provinces.

That was the low-score after the three-man group headed by Dr. John J. Deutsch, Queen's University principal, finished three days of hearings on the proposal.

Twenty-three personal submissions were heard in five public sessions held in Halifax Wednesday, Charlottetown Thursday and here Friday.

When it was over Dr. Deutsch said: "It's a very complex question that requires a lot more investigation before conclusions can be reached." He hoped a final report could be given to the three provincial governments next spring.

"A lot more investigation" is already under way. Thirty-three professional research projects are in progress on topics ranging from public services and education to tourism, medicine and licensing procedures in each province.

Dr. Deutsch termed the result of the hearings "a kaleidoscope of opinion," some of well documented and some of it superficial.

Plumping for political union were the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council, the Atlantic Co-operative Council, the Canadian Manufacturers Association Atlantic Division, the city of Moncton, the Amherst, N.S., and Saint John, N.B., boards of trade, the Southeastern New Brunswick Development Council, a group of Saint John high school students and a Halifax carpenter.

Opposed or with serious reservations were the Charlottetown Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Société Nationale des Acadiens, College de Bathurst, a Nova Scotia member of Parliament, a Moncton management consultant and a French-speaking private citizen of New Brunswick.

Hearings here Friday brought opposite opinions from spokesmen for the French-speaking Acadians of New Brunswick, some of whom fear their submersion by an English-speaking majority if this province unites with Nova Scotia and P.E.I.

Said President Leopold Lecavalier of College de Bathurst: "To accept the union of the Maritimes would be to agree to a mass suicide and we maintain that this prospect has nothing to gladden the Acadian population of Northeastern New Brunswick."

On the other hand Dr. Alex J. Boudreau, director of the Memramcook Institute for Adult Education, said political union would improve the economic lot of the Acadians.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 7

Your birthday today: A mixed year begins now; personal energy is strewn over several activities, which sustain many interruptions and passing moments of crisis. The later months produce a personal success story of more stable mood and better public acceptance. Today's natives tend to be adaptable, versatile, intuitive and generous politicians.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Attend your accustomed religious observance early this day then spend the rest of the day seeing that what is new is the cultural side of your community.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Start early and enjoy a full day of visiting your friends, doing something to make your home more attractive, writing to overdue correspondents.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your mind is active, so make it a lively day to match. Gather your friends for pastimes of a social nature. Carry through with a gala evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Try to encourage a trip by land or water. Your intuition comes in sharp and clear concerning recent acquaintances so if there's a warning here, do not waver in reacting.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Better your share in the community expression of faith, enjoy the day with friends. Is there a party to attend this evening?

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You finally come to a time for settlement of outstanding conflicts between nearby and faraway interests. You need sound professional counsel on expanding or consolidating what you hold.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This Sunday is mild and pleasant. Shed a bit of your reserve and informally join your friends. Younger people appreciate you more today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go early to visit people you've neglected lately, particularly if you have a friend in the hospital. At least lay out some scheme for creative work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): If you don't mind being left out of things temporarily, this Sunday has its own reward for you. Check travel plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The little extra move you make toward people is well received this pleasant Sunday. Stay aware and alert for surprises. No detailed plan works out quite as expected, but the scrambled results are almost as good and interesting.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Make this a long and full day without any sudden ejection or over-action. Creative projects catch your main interest.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This should go into your book as "relaxation Sunday." Enjoy yourself with peace - in - spirit friends. Make a journey to a sports event or an outdoor show.

For September 8

Your birthday today: You have the prospect of new achieving a level where you make decisions for others in your specialty. You will have help and encouragement — all the moves as you adjust and turn your energy into more productive directions. Romantic interests come through quietly and strongly this year. Today's natives are generally well aware of the opportunities to advance and usually well skilled in managing groups.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today contains a streak of luck, which is favorable in many subtle ways. Information is to be used as well as you have the story. Something you acquire proves to be of lasting value.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your ideas are easier to present now and likely to find receptive listening. Make yourself more fully known. Home improvement takes a share of your attention. In the evening quietly strength-en emotional ties.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Attend to all the little errands you have accumulated over the weekend. You are apt to meet interesting new people. The mail may bring useful advice. Romantic interests thrive.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Something favorable is coming up in your vocation or career. Your opinion is possibly more accurate today than the official version. Give some attention to your diet; make sure you are not missing any essential elements.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Decisions you made long ago and forgot bear fruit today. Get most of the job done early while the going is good. Put your strongest qualities forward; make the most of a high tide in sociability.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The contacts you make and develop today tend to be turning points which are not critical or dramatic at the time; but in retrospect, they are important as moments of change in direction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today's introductions can be of permanent significance in determining future conditions. Seek the return of whatever you have lent. Gather good friends about you for the evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Business matters should go well today. Put in steady, consistent effort. Consultations with specialists are favored. Romantic interests come alive for those who are eligible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Secrets surface all day. You may be presented a sudden opportunity to move in another direction in your career. Give it careful thought. Try something original this evening.

AUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Clear away nagging questions: call in consultants, mediators. Get competent answers and act on them promptly. Communication is easier with everyone. Romance beckons.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Be active but subtle today. Make use of all that has been offered, particularly by specialists. Your diet needs review, to see that you are getting all the basic nutrients. Listen carefully this evening.

French School Opens

TORONTO (CP) — The city's first French-language public high school, housed in unfinished portable classrooms, has started on an ultra-modern teaching program.

Principal Lionel Bernillard Thursday started running his students through a full day's timetable in one afternoon "to see if it worked." It did.

Ecole Secondaire Etienne Brulé is using books prescribed for separate schools and books from Europe as well as those already printed in French for Ontario public classrooms.

Mr. Bernillard said in an interview his pupils would get a better education than they would in an ordinary English-language school in the city.

"The students will get two or three interpretations of historical events. They will get the French and English views of the battle of the Plains of Abraham and Canada's conscription crisis.

"They will get the European viewpoint of some U.S.-Canadian problems," he said.

The founding of the 300-student school followed an 18-month fight by French-speaking parents. They ran into stiff opposition from an English-speaking taxpayers' committee led by Toronto school trustee Alan Archer.

Mr. Archer opposed the school on the grounds that taxpayers should not have to pay for a French-language high school.

School Language Compromise Draws Immediate Criticism

QUEBEC (CP) — An 11th-hour compromise in the St. Leonard school-language dispute, announced Friday by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, already has attracted a salvo of criticism.

The Minister outlined a resolution passed Sept. 3 by the St. Leonard Roman Catholic school board which would "provide a special course in English as a second language beginning with Grade 1 for 50 minutes a day . . .

Classes in the Montreal suburb are scheduled to start Monday.

The board also offered to establish a special class for Grade 2 children who attended English-language basement classes during the last term.

Robert Beach, president of the St. Leonard parents association, saw the proposal as "out and out fascism" designed to make Mr. Cardinal appear to be doing "something concrete."

And William Dobie, chairman of the Montreal Federation of English Catholic Teachers, found it "completely unacceptable."

The St. Leonard board was "continuing to pursue its policy of unilingualism and of denying the rights of neo-Canadians to choose the language of instruction for their children," he said.

The schooling hassle began last September when the unilingualist board eliminated bilingual Grade 1 classes, affecting 326 English-language students.

It further announced its intention to pursue its French-only policy this fall with the elimination of bilingual Grade 2 classes.

Parents reacted by setting up basement classes for the Grade 1 students, thereby piling up a $20,000 debt, and appealing to an unsympathetic Quebec government.

Tensions reached a peak last Wednesday night when English-speaking crowds clashed with adherents of the French-only plan at a meeting in a local high school auditorium.

Chairs were thrown, several persons were injured and two were arrested.

The French-speaking group had gathered to voice its opposition to a government scheme which would have created a heavily-subsidized private school for the displaced English-speaking students.

Mr. Cardinal has emphasized that the basement classes were illegal and would not be tolerated.

St. Leonard's population of 35,000 contains a heavy concentration of English-speaking immigrants, most of them Italian-Canadians.

The compromise outlined Friday stressed that public teaching in the suburb would remain in French, but the earlier policy of abolishing English instruction would be relaxed.

English-language specialists would provide a special course in English as a second language for 50 minutes a day for parents who made the request.

This would be an exception to existing education department regulations which ban the teaching of English as a second language may only begin in Grade 5.

The board also would maintain the status quo on existing bilingual classes unaffected by the drive towards unilingualism — namely Grades 3 to 7.

Following his statement, Mr. Cardinal said Quebec society had not really made up its mind on the language question raised by the St. Leonard crisis and concluded:

"I find it extremely unfortunate that 326 children are being used to force the government to pronounce itself immediately on the question of principle."

Lawyers Make No Major Moves

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1969 Canadian Bar Association convention faded into history Friday, leaving little visible imprint.

After five days of generally desultory discussion, lawyers and judges began returning to their offices across Canada, a few of them with critical pronouncements on the annual meeting.

The Young Lawyers Conference Friday issued a statement deploring the "grossly inadequate" grant they receive—$700 a year—and advocating an extensive program of seminars in high schools to teach students the nature and purpose of the law.

Some individual delegates noted the shortage of funds for research by the provincial sections and criticized the expenditure of more than $20,000 on a simultaneous translation system.

Prof. Gerald L. Morris of Toronto, following the defeat of his resolution urging a constitutional definition of federal spending power, said he doubted whether the association was attuned to the pressing issues of the present.

Approved were resolutions urging:

—Punishment of persons publishing material that could prejudice jurors against the accused.

—That alcoholism or drug addiction for a three-year period be grounds for divorce, eliminating the requirement that there be no reasonable prospect of rehabilitation in the foreseeable future.

—A substantial reduction in the number of persons required to pay bail or remain in prison while awaiting trial. Another resolution would lead to increased use of a summons rather than arrest for persons accused of lesser offences.

Eskimos Treated For Poisoning

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal bacteriologist flew to Frobisher Bay Friday with a shipment of serum to treat Eskimos threatened by botulism poisoning after eating bad seal meat.

Five Eskimos have died in Cape Dorset, N.W.T., since Thursday and seven others were flown to a hospital in Frobisher Bay for treatment, a Montreal hospital spokesman said.

Dr. Douglas Cameron, physician-in-chief at Montreal General Hospital told a news conference Dr. Philip Stuart, a hospital bacteriologist, has gone to Frobisher Bay to treat the Eskimos.

Earlier, a Nordair aircraft attempting to reach the stricken Eskimos to bring them to Montreal was unable to land at Cape Dorset because of a violent snowstorm.

The aircraft landed Friday and the seven surviving Eskimos were taken to hospital in Frobisher Bay.

If necessary, some of the Eskimos will be flown to Montreal, where they could be kept alive through respirators, Dr. Cameron said.

Mayor Sues Look

NEW YORK (AP) — Look magazine says in its Sept. 23 issue that Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco is "enmeshed in a web of alliances with at least six leaders of La Cosa Nostra."

In a statement issued in San Francisco, Alioto said the article was "an incredible tissue of lies, half-truths and false innuendos" and said he was suing the magazine.

The mayor said his lawyer had filed in United States District Court a suit against Gardner Cowles, editorial chairman; Cowles Communications and Look for libel and slander for $7,500,000 actual damages and $5,000,000 punitive damages.

In an article released Friday, Look charges that Alioto, 53, has provided Mafia leaders "with bank loans, legal services, business contacts and opportunities and the protective mantle of respectability."

"In return, he has earned fees, profits, political support and campaign contributions."

Alioto was elected mayor in 1967. He is considered a possible challenger to California Gov. Reagan next year.

Look says Alioto's ties with the mob "go back almost a quarter of a century" and "have not been broken."

Flights Restarted

GENEVA (AP) — Nigeria has agreed to International Red Cross relief flights direct from Cotonou, Dahomey, to Biafra, but reserves the right to call in any plane for a spot check at Lagos, an informed source said Friday.

The source said this is the basis of the accord announced Thursday by the all-Swiss international committee "with all parties to the Nigerian conflict."

Lions on Loose Ignore Visitors

ROCKTON, Ont. (CP) — Neighboring farmers have only one complaint about the lions roaming loose in Canada's only open zoo here. Passing cars dust up their fields.

For a $4 entrance fee a family can drive around a 450-acre game farm and take a close look at eight-foot-long, 400-pound lions playing, lying, sleeping and doing lion things —provided you keep your doors and windows tightly shut.

Col. John Dailley, who manages the African Safari and Game Farm Ltd., said in an interview Friday it is "an opportunity to see African animals freely living as they do in their native homes."

The lions pay no attention to the staring humans, however, since most of them were brought up in zoos.

Once a day the animals are fed bullocks' heads, providing them with the 13 pounds a day of fresh meat the average lion lives on.

Neighboring farmers, who were consulted and given details of the project before the gates opened Aug. 22, have only complained about the dust kicked up by visitors' cars.

There have been 5,000 visitors to the farm about 10 miles west of Hamilton.

Wells Outlines Fund Dispersement

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — About $30,000,000 of the $175,000,000 a year that Ontario expects to get from Ottawa for joining the federal medical care plan will go to stabilizing health insurance premium rates at their present level, Health Minister Thomas Wells said Friday.

But the newly-appointed minister told a news conference that he is not at present considering using more of that federal money—or other provincial tax sources—to reduce premium rates.

Mr. Wells said that as a result of the 15-per-cent rise in doctor's fees announced by the Ontario Medical Association last April 1, health insurance premiums for a single person might have had to go up to $7 from the present rate of $5.90 a month if Ontario had not joined the federal plan.

For families, the increase might have been to $17 from the present $14.75 a month.

The present premium figures he was using were those of the Ontario Medical Services Insurance Plan. Premier John Robarts promised last spring the OMSIP premiums would not be increased when the province enters the federal medical care insurance scheme on Oct. 1.

Mr. Wells' estimates are the first attempt by the Ontario government to clarify just how the $175,000,000 a year will be used by the province.

The health minister said $40,000,000 will go to the assistance program under which persons with no taxable income get back the full costs of their medical care insurance premiums and others get partial or temporary assistance.

The remaining $105,000,000 will help pay amounts once covered by federal health grants under the Canada Assistance Plan, and will go to doctor training, improved health facilities and providing medical services in areas with few, or no, doctors.

About $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 could go to the five Ontario universities with medical schools.

Riot Act Read at Fair As Violence Threatens

Body Found

James Pike Died at Peace

JERUSALEM (AP) —Rev. James A. Pike, who lost his battle with the Judean desert which he had hoped would yield a fuller meaning of Christianity for him, "did not fear death and now he is at peace."

The words came from his 31-year-old third wife Diane after the body of the former Episcopal (Anglican) bishop of California was recovered from a ledge of a deep canyon Sunday. The spot was two miles from where she had left him to go for aid last Monday night.

"There was no more appropriate place for Jim to die, if he had to die," said Mrs. Pike. She told reporters her 56-year-old husband remarked before they set out on the trip: "If I die here, I will be happy and at peace."

The Pikes came to the Holy Land to do research for a book on the life of Christ.

"And now Jim has died in the place where Jesus found consolation," she said. "The book must be finished. My brother and I will do it. It will be a memorial to Jim."

Police Inspector Salman Abu Yaman said Pike apparently was trying to climb out of the canyon and fell about 80 feet to the ledge.

Last Saturday, Pike's undershorts were found not far from where the couple abandoned their car Monday when it became stuck in a dirt track about five miles from the Dead Sea.

Mrs. Pike went on for help after her husband collapsed, and found a camp of road workers after walking all night.

Toronto Girl Said Abducted

TORONTO (CP) — A 14-year-old girl, the daughter of two professors at the University of Toronto, has been missing from her home since Saturday night. Police believe she was abducted.

Police said today they are investigating reports that the girl, Hannah Davis, talked to someone in a car Saturday night about two blocks from her home.

Her parents, Prof. Chandler Davis and his wife, Natalie, an economics professor, have offered a $1,000 reward for information about their daughter.

Police Escort Called

By Margaret Haylock
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Police escorted the Peter March Midway from Picton Fair Sunday morning after a near riot Saturday night was averted by the reading of the Riot Act.

County Clerk Thomas Walker read the Riot Act at 10:20 p.m. Saturday to youths assembled in the midway, after rumors circulated that members of a motorcycle club intended to help Picton youths "wreck the midway."

Six members of the Picton police force cordoned off the midway early in the evening, assisted by 12 members of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

According to Picton police local teens "had it in" for the midway following a fight near one of the concessions which sent Gary Findley, a Picton boy, to hospital. He was allegedly struck on the head by a midway worker with a piece of metal piping.

Peter March, owner of the midway, told fair secretary Phil Dodds that the incident occurred when a local youth burned the concessionaire's chest with a lighted cigarette. Picton police investigated this fight but failed to apprehend the carnival worker who reportedly struck the youth.

When police arrived at the fairgrounds early Saturday evening, a number of teens were walking through the midway shouting. At 10:30 p.m. County Clerk, Thomas Walker, read the Riot Act to youths assembled in the mid-

Israeli Embassies Bombed

From AP-Reuters

Israeli embassies in The Hague, The Netherlands, and Bonn, West Germany, and the Israeli airlines office in Brussels, Belgium, were targets of bomb attacks today.

Major damage was done to the El Al Airlines office in downtown Brussels. Four persons were injured by a double bomb blast. No one was killed and first reports said two persons, one a 13-year-old boy, were arrested. Police said the front of the building was shattered.

A bomb intended for the embassy in The Hague exploded inside the balcony of the adjoining house of a West German diplomat.

Kosygin Meets Viets

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin today was reported to have discussed Vietnam war policy with Hanoi leaders as five Communist delegations from Eastern Europe headed for the North Vietnamese capital to attend the funeral of Ho Chi Minh, believed scheduled for Tuesday.

Hanoi today was a city without song or laughter as thousands flocked to Ba Dinh Square where Ho's body now lies on a purple velvet pall in a glass coffin, a North Vietnamese news agency report said.

St. Leonard Parents Reject Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — In a series of 25 secret meetings this weekend, frustrated English-language parents in suburban St. Leonard voted to keep children in Grades 1-7 out of school.

Regular classes in the northeast suburb resume today, but Robert Beale, president of the St. Leonard Parents Association, said the meetings voted overwhelmingly to keep the 2,000 to 2,700 English-language children out of the elementary system until the government offers an acceptable solution.

He said the meetings were held secretly to avoid violence which would likely occur at a large general meeting.

Senate Honors Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate put aside its work today to honor one of its best known members, Everett McKinley Dirksen, 73, who died Sunday five days after an operation for lung cancer.

For 16 years Dirksen was leader of the Republican minority. At the peak of his power, during two Democratic administrations, the senator from Illinois fashioned that minority, and his own talent for oratory, drama and political manoeuvring, into a force that made him one of Washington's most influential figures.

Dirksen, ever the showman, was "an old pro," said Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, , announcing the Senate would forgo business today to honor Dirksen who died at Walter Reed Army Hospital of cardiac and respiratory arrest.

President Nixon called Dirksen a giant in the history of Congress. "To politics and government he brought a dedication matched by few and a style and eloquence matched by no political leader in our time," the president said.

The funeral is to be held at the National Presbyterian Church, and Dirksen's body is to lie in state for one day at the rotunda of the Capitol. He will be buried in his hometown, Pekin, Ill.

Members of Congress, officials and leaders of both parties joined in praising Dirksen and in expressing sympathy to his wife, his daughter, Janice, and his son-in-law Senator Howard H. Baker (Rep.-Tenn.).

Governor Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, 68, is likely to succeed to the minority leadership on an interim basis. The decision will be made at a conference of 42 remaining Republican senators inthe 100-seat body.

Hostages Freed

Ambassador Back in Office

From Reuters-AP

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP) — U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick was back in his embassy today, bearing a scar on his forehead from a pistol whipping but otherwise unharmed after almost 78 hours in the captivity of Brazilian guerrillas.

Elbrick was freed by his kidnappers after 15 political prisoners reached Mexico.

But if Elbrick's troubles were over, Brazil found itself faced with the threat of new strike and mounting violence by both left-wing and right-wing forces.

The urban guerrillas who staged the successful kidnapping vowed that they now would intensify their activities, "extending them to the country where we will awaken the enormous revolutionary potential of the rural workers."

Political observers here agree that the success of the rebels could provoke militant reactions from right-wing army officers opposing the conservative government.

Saturday night a group of partisans seized the government radio station and broadcast an anti-government manifesto condemning the surrender to the guerrillas' demands.

Added to this is Brazil's recent history of right-wing violence, with police murder squads which have executed more than 1,000 petty criminals while Communist hunting squads have concentrated on leftists and liberals.

Elbrick, 61, was released Sunday night in the northern suburb of Tijk and told not to move for 15 minutes. But he immediately began looking for a taxi and returned to the embassy, seven hours after the 15 Brazilian political prisoners who were his ransom arrived in Mexico City.

"To coin the understatement of the year, I'm glad to be back," Elbrick said as he arrived at his residence, haggard and unshaven.

"And I'm grateful to the Brazilian government for taking the action necessary to bring about my liberation."

Officials said afterward that Elbrick had received the cut on his forehead from a blow from a revolver when he was kidnapped Thursday afternoon.

They said Elbrick told them that he had been kept for four days in a 10- by 13-foot room in an unknown part of Rio.

Prisoners Unaware of Swap

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Fifteen weary Brazilian political prisoners, delivered in handcuffs into exile here Sunday in exchange for the release of the U.S. ambassador to Brazil, began their first day of freedom here today eating a hearty four-course breakfast in a small hotel.

The 14 men and one woman, who arrived here several hours before guerrillas in Rio de Janeiro freed U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick, carried only small valises or paper parcels containing their belongings. None had any money. All were blue denim prison uniforms.

The Mexican interior ministry will pay for their food and lodging for a month, after which the exiles may either find work in Mexico or choose to leave the country. Some are expected to go to Cuba, but others said they wanted to return to Brazil to fight the "dictatorship."

The group said it spent the 21-hour flight aboard a Brazilian Air Force DC-8 twice plane in handcuffs, but did receive a meal. Some of the men had slight bruises on their wrists which they said were caused by the handcuffs.

After waiting in the plane 25 minutes for customs clearance, the refugees were taken to a hotel near Chapultepec Park here, given a substantial dinner and provided with facilities for a hot bath.

All of them said they did not know at first about the kidnapping or why they were taken from the prison. Only one man of the group, 70-year-old Communist Gregorio Bezerra, knew before he boarded the plane in Recife that the 15 were being swapped for the freedom and life of the U.S. ambassador.

Bezerra, who said he spent five years in solitary confinement, during which time he could not see his family, was jailed in 1964 for "agitation" among peasants in the country's northeast area and was dragged naked through the streets of Recife at the end of a rope.

Loyalist Begins Third Year As Quinte Community College

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College began operation this morning, faced with its greatest student capacity to date.

According to Loyalist president J. K. Bradford, classes will begin today and end tomorrow after orientation this morning. On Wednesday, student initiations will commence.

In his opening remarks to students this morning Mr. Bradford said the school timetable had to be extended to handle all the students (325 new faces in all) from eight a.m. each day until six p.m.

In laboratory areas three classes operate simultaneously in some instances, he added.

However, registration to Loyalist will remain open for the time being to enable some students to enroll.

Mr. Bradford told students that as long as seats were available students would be admitted.

He told them of a new system at the school whereby each student will have a faculty advisor who will help him with any problems throughout the year.

The college president prompted the students to set a new level of achievement at the school and to discover how to make the most of themselves as skilled people and individuals.

Mr. Bradford reminded the students that university chancels were open to them if they had the proper achievement.

Enrolment at the college shows an almost equal balance between those in technology and technician programs and the number of students in two or new three-years arts and business programs. So far there are 421 students registered.

Spaces are still available in several courses and the arrival of students either returning for second or third year programs and students earlier accepted for admission will add to the total.

Mr. Bradford also noted the "planning and foresighted" ness of the board of governors who, after making a considered analysis of the long-range needs of the area, decided to establish a strong technological background in the college."

"While registrations in technology have been dropping markedly in both the universities and colleges, the proportional distribution of the two divisions of Loyalist College have remained very close in actual numbers," he said.

Three Hurt In Mishaps

PICTON — A one-car collision on Highway 49 near the White Chapel Saturday afternoon sent a Deseronto man and his daughter to hospital.

Taken to Lennox and Addington Memorial Hospital after their car crashed off the road were Russell Brant, 43, and his daughter, Patricia, both of Deseronto.

A Belleville man was taken to hospital early Sunday morning following a two-car collision on Pete's Point Road.

Ed Barnett, 19, Belleville, passenger in a car driven by Alfred Dagostar, 25, R.R.1, Belleville, was taken to hospital with shoulder and neck injuries. The car, say provincial police, left the road and struck a hydro pole. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $750.

Two Back from B.C. To Face Consecon Holdup Charges

PICTON (Staff) — Two Brantford area youths have been returned to Picton from Vancouver to face charges of armed robbery at a Consecon bank.

Dennis Belcher, 18, Brantford, and Mark Anthony Kewall, 19, of Paris, have been in the Prince Edward County jail since Saturday.

The pair are charged with armed robbery following a holdup at the Bank of Nova Scotia Consecon branch which prompted a massive three-day search in Prince Edward County.

The youths were returned from Vancouver where they were convicted and sentenced to four years each on armed robbery charges in the west coast city.

They are scheduled to appear in magistrates court here before Judge T. T. Wills on Wednesday.

way. Under this act they were given 30 minutes to disperse. Anyone remaining after the specified time was subject to arrest. Maximum penalty under the Riot Act is life imprisonment.

When the act had been read the youths retreated to the main entrance of the grounds where they lined the sidewalks on both sides of Main Street East. Several motorcyclists wheeled around the entrance, all of them local. A passenger on one of the bikes was finally arrested and taken from the grounds in a police cruiser.

A spokesman for the town police said today that as the young people milled around the grounds a riot seemed at hand. "We didn't have enough men to hold them," confided the constable. Both Belleville and Napanee provincial police detachments were alerted to the situation, and were prepared to move in if necessary.

Picton police today said they had charged a carnival worker, John Paul Boudreault, with assault.

By 11.30 p.m. most of the gathering had dispersed with only a few cyclists circling the area.

No out of town motorcyclists appeared at the fairgrounds despite the rumors circulating among the crowd. Police continued to guard the main gates at 1 a.m. Sunday and remained on the grounds until approximately 9.30 Sunday morning.

Police constable George Wright stated that he saw six members of the Satan's Choice Club ride through town at 2 a.m. Sunday but they seemed uninterested in the recent disturbance.

All midway vehicles received a police escort from the county. A member of the Picton detachment said he believed the vans were headed for "someplace north of Pembroke."

Prince Edward County Fair had gone off without a hitch until Saturday's near riot according to officials. The 'Doc' William Show, under way in the Community Centre when the Riot Act was read, drew a crowd of about 1600 persons, many of whom left the grounds through a side gate at the entertainment's close, unaware of the policemen on the grounds.

The midway was emptied about two hours earlier than usual because of the riot threats.

A former fairboard member remarked on Sunday that in the 35 years he had been associated with Prince Edward County fair never before had there been an incident comparable to Saturday's demonstration of hostility.

Three in Night Car Crash at Bayside

A Trenton driver escaped injury late Sunday evening when his car went out of control on Highway 2 near Bayside.

Steven Henley, of 9 Baptiste St. Trenton, escaped unharmed when his car veered off the highway into the ditch.

His two passengers, Sperca Karelios, 16 and Richard Knack, 22, both of Trenton were taken to the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Karelios sustained head injuries, and Mr. Knack suffered injuries to his right arm. He was treated and later released.

Three Hurt in Tweed Area

TWEED (Special) — Three persons were admitted to Belleville General hospital last night following a two-car collision on Highway 7 three miles east of Actinolite.

In intensive care with chest injuries are Clifford Robinson, 50, of Actinolite, driver of one of the cars involved.

In the second car were David Jeanes, 22, and his 15-year-old brother Brian, both of Ottawa who are being transferred today to Ottawa General Hospital.

Police said the accident took place about 8 p.m. opposite the Land of Lakes restaurant as one of the cars was being driven off the restaurant lot.

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE — In loving memory of my dear father, Jacob Albert Maracle, who passed away Sept. 7th, 1964.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his time was near;
Only those that have lost can tell
How hard it is to say farewell.
—Always remembered by son-Douglas, Mary and family.

CAINES — In loving memory of Bessie Caines who passed away September 8th, 1968.
Are very sad to find,
That what we love most if we could
Are very hard to find.
Hello Maria in the same old way
Just to say we are sad and lonely today.
To sit and chat and never part
To be with her and chat awhile.
Deep in our hearts her memory is kept
To be sad and quietly
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Jayce, Fred, Gwin, Gladys, Joe and Mr. and Mrs. McKay.

MILLS — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away September 8th, 1968.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last
The world's weary troubles and trials are past
In a place where sickness, in patience and pain
Will God called her home to suffer
no more.
—Lovingly remembered and always remembered by Jayce, Fred, Gwin, Gladys, Joe and Mr. and Mrs. McKay.

MILLS — In loving memory of a dear mother, Eva, who passed away September 8, 1968.
We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our memory,
For Mary we do not think of you,
As
Are very hard to find.
If all the world we have were to give,
We'd give it, yes and more,
To have you here with us dear,
Never smiling through the door.
—Always remembered by daughter-in-law Jayce, Bill and grandson Ricky and Rosalyn.

WHITE — In loving memory of a dear mother Vera White, who passed away Sept. 8, 1968.
Sweet memories are all I have,
And treasure deeply, dear,
Of days we spent together,
He looked down on the earth,
And saw your tired face,
So put His arms around you,
And told you to rest.
For you have been so beautiful,
For God loves only the best.
—Always remembered by your daughter Charlie and daughter-in-law Hazel.

Problem for School Board

Demand Delays Installation of Portable Classrooms

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Portable classrooms have become a way of life in today's school system, and there's no sign their numbers will decrease in the immediate future.

But the situation in Hastings county doesn't come close to that in Metro Toronto, where on school has 55 satellite portables in use, completely covering the playground area.

The county board this year bought 13 new steel portables, and has a total of about 29 in use — some of them rented only for this school year.

"We will always have some portables in use in the county because of the population shifts we experience here," says board chairman James Clarke.

"Portables are an economical way of coping with a growing population," adds director of education Eric Runacres. "We can use them to accommodate pupils until the population increases sufficiently to make construction of a new school feasible."

But creation of county boards this year has placed so great a demand on the suppliers that even portables could not be rushed in time for the opening of school last Tuesday.

The board ordered the 13 new portables last May after they were approved in budget debates. But almost every other board in the province, faced with the demand for more kindergartens and other special programs, was in the market for portables. A boldup on steel and the supplier's difficulty in hiring workmen to put up the units, resulted in an installation delay.

A unit slated for Tyendinaga Township School on the Shannonville Gravel Road will be two weeks late in getting into operation. The portable there was necessitated by the addition of kindergarten, called for last spring by the task force for southeast Hastings.

Grade 5 pupils, who are to be accommodated in the portable, are being bused to Douglas Atkins School until the portable is available.

Rather than have their children bused to the other school, some parents in Tyendinaga kept them at home for the first day of school. The county board has been criticized for the added expense of the bus.

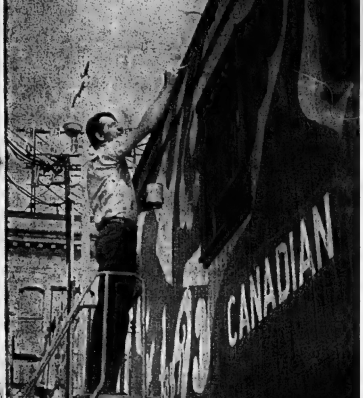
"Do you make an educational decision strictly on a financial basis?" asked the director of education. "Our responsibility is to get the pupils to school on opening day, and we felt no good purpose would be served by asking them to delay entering school for two weeks."

The 13 steel portables ordered by the board this year are superior to those available previously. They are safer, last longer and are easier to maintain. They are supplied complete with electrical heating, lighting and blackboards.

"The portables are bigger and brighter than many of our regular classrooms," says Mr. Runacres. "Their only drawback is the inconvenience of moving pupils in and out from the regular school building. For this reason we put senior pupils in the portables and the kindergarten and primary grades in the regular school."

Price of each portable, installed, was $8,850, about $1,-000 cheaper than the price charged Metro Toronto boards.

With the province imposing a freeze on construction, portables will be in use for some time in the future.



"Our board made a wise move in buying the portables when it did, before capital funds were frozen," says Mr. Runacres. "Boards across the province that didn't move when ours did will be in trouble in the future."

Also waiting for the installers to arrive are two portables at Moira Secondary School and two at Centennial in Belleville. There are 10 portables in use in Tweed and four at Madoc to take care of problems while the addition to Centre Hastings Secondary school is under construction.

In the meantime, the board has instigated a survey of accommodation needs in the county over the next five years. When the report is completed, the board will begin the fight for capital grants from the province.

In the meantime, some of the county's education administrators are housed in the same type of accommodation they are asking their pupils to use.

The former Belleville Public School board office at 208 Dundas St., chosen last January as administrative headquarters, was too small to accommodate the centralized administrative and office staff. The solution, now in use, was a portable classroom, of course.

Cabinet Trio at UIC Opening

Three federal cabinet ministers will be in Belleville Wednesday for the official opening of the Unemployment Insurance Commission's new regional office.

Attending the official opening will be Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, Finance Minister Edgar Benson, Minister of Public Works Arthur Laing.

The three cabinet ministers will fly to Trenton from Ottawa.

Wednesday evening the ministers will attend a reception at Sidney township hall sponsored by the Sidney Township Liberal Association. The reception is open to the public. There will be no speeches by the cabinet ministers but Joel Mazer, president of the Hastings Liberal Association said they would answer questions.

Indian Rights

While Indian civil rights campaigner Kahn-Tineta Horn has been cleared of a charge of carrying an offensive weapon arising from last December's demonstration at the international bridge on Cornwall Island, Miss Horn is evidently upset because she was not afforded an opportunity to present her prepared defence.

Such a defence doubtless would have been a renewal of her frequent condemnation of her people's secondary status in the land they first peopled long before the coming of the white man.

Much has been made already of the government's refusal to honor the long-standing Jay Treaty permitting Indians free access across the Canada-U.S. border, of the question of Cornwall city police trespassing on Indian soil and of the entire issue of land ownership in the area. The Indians contend Cornwall Island belongs neither to Canada nor the U.S. but is Indian territory. And so on.

Now Miss Horn has raised other issues. If her day in court was brief (after many remands and delays) and in effect left her speechless, she lost no opportunity of saying her piece to newsmen. Thus, even before she had entered court she tore into "greedy land speculators seeking to steal Indian lands - - -"

To back up such contentions the young Mohawk woman is always ready with facts and figures and this occasion was no exception. She said Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien was aware annual land rentals for golf courses and garbage dumps in the Mohawk reserve at Caughnawaga near Montreal total only, yet they should exceed $500,000 a year in revenue for Indians.

"The minister knows that the revenue does not come to $20,000 a year, and no one can explain why white men get $480,000 a year profit from Indians on the one reserve alone."

Miss Horn has a point here that should be investigated by the federal authorities. If Indian reserves are being exploited in this fashion, with the profit going to non-Indians, there is something very wrong in this sphere alone.

The whole relationship of the Indians to white society in this country of course is a complex one. One trouble is that the Indians are scattered as they are in many reserves throughout the country, do not speak with one voice. Miss Horn is very much a lone campaigner and she has been speaking out in this fashion for the past six years or so. True, Indian civil rights has latterly come to involve more of the Indian population and other spokesmen, but there remains this lack of unanimity among the Indians as a whole.

Student View

A letter to The Globe and Mail from a 16-year-old high school girl, reprinted on this page today, is a remarkable document.

It sets out in erudite fashion just what school is all about. Teachers, Miss Beckwith says in effect, are not supermen, but they do lead students into realms of knowledge which the students themselves can explore more fully in the course of their own studies.

The letter suggests that school, for all its faults, is no place for sowing the seeds of anarchy. It makes a good case for any discipline which exists, for without it the students would be lost.

More particularly, Miss Beckwith portrays in herself the kind of responsible attitude and desire to learn which the majority of students possess today, and which are absolutely necessary if they are to attain their education-al goals.

School for such students is an interesting place. With this kind of positive attitude there is nothing a young person cannot achieve. One who is so endowed is the student who wrote the letter reprinted on this page.

Individualists

Here is an interesting observation of a Japanese girl, one of three visiting this country who will be hostesses at the Canadian pavilion at Expo 70 in Osaka next year. North Americans, says Keiko Saeki, put more emphasis on individual action than the Japanese. In Japan the family is more closely knit and there is always someone to ask for advice. Carried to its logical conclusion, what a boon this would be if each family had its professional people—electrician, TV repairman, electrician and so on!

How to Make the Best of Things...

Or Getting an Education Without Bucking the System

Letter in The Globe and Mail

I have evolved a theory (which is all it is now) of compromising, as a student, with the school system as it stands. Since I would find, unless I suspected myself to severe self-discipline, the atmosphere at a "free school" not right for me, I have to make peace, somehow, with the establisher system.

Really, it's remarkably simple, if one remains true to one's desire to learn and convinced that the reasoning behind the compromise is not faulty. Teachers are meant to present a skeleton of facts to students—who vary from those wanting to learn all there is to those who couldn't care less, with all the rest middling in their attitude toward attaining knowledge — and the students can do with these facts whatever they wish. Teachers are not meant to be great sages who can set themselves up to be very knowledgeable and able to give all their mass of knowledge to the students: such creatures, and in such quantity as some seem to expect, do not exist at teachers in our society: they are merely suggestors; the students must act on their own initiative in order to learn what they can in the areas presented to them.

It has always been the habit with real desire to gain knowledge have discovered on their own will, and skill which they want to know. Certainly, in an area such as history, where, in Grade 13 one is filled with dates and names and a bare outline of circumstances in the history of England, one can fill in the monstrous gaps by extra reading; all the letters written by the monarchs, plays by Shakespeare, literature, historical and political pamphlets written during the era being studied: the teachers cannot be expected to bring all this to the classroom, mainly because most students would feel that the study was too intensive, too detailed, and would lose any interest in the topic which they might have had at the beginning, and also because it would be an act of over-indulgence, of giving too much, instead of stimulating.

The need the teachers give students may be given in a very dull, dry manner, but it is, all the same, a need, and those who do really want to approach erudition cannot unless they treat the material given them by the teachers as only a basis, the groundplan, of what they could learn if they put a little of their own effort into their aspirations. That is what I will try to do at school next year; to reach their standards and try to reach mine; to put some meaning into what before has always been without meaning.

I am 16 years of age and am entering Grade 13, so I feel that I am qualified, by being what I am, to speak, not for the general conception students seem to have of the school system — of expecting too much from it — but for a method of compromise, of accepting, of applying a reason of my own for an institution which has already its established reasons for being what it has been said to be; if there are any students really wanting to learn and be learned, and if they are sick of wasting their energies in fighting the schools with the "solution" of total freedom (without having tasted responsibility and the disciplins which must accompany the acquisition of freedom), then they will, at some time, discover that all they need to alleviate these frustrating feelings (perhaps only to bring about search for knowledge — but along with it, satisfaction) is to use a little imagination in order to create a system of their own built around a system with which they cannot agree.

Only a little foresight is needed to see where the path of absolute freedom, almost without guidance, will lead; it is not a pleasant place, to my mind.

(Miss) Robin Beckwith,
Toronto

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 8, 1949

For the second time in three years a Belleville rink skipped by Jerry Hyde captured the Trenton Lawn Bowling Club's annual mixed rinks tournament silver trophy thereby adding to the impressive score of successes being made this year by members of the local club at the various district tournaments.

Ed Pike, well-known speedboat driver of this city, drove his hydro Maple Leaf to victory during the Silver Cup races in Detroit. Pike won the first and third heats in the .225 Division II class finishing ahead of the second heat to Count Christo driven by John Christoff of Pontiac. Nine boats started in the race which consisted of three nine-mile heats. Pine was clocked at 67.720 miles per hour.

30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. C. R. Crooks of this city and her sister Mrs. Mary Stewart of Toronto, left for Montreal and will sail shortly on the steamship Doric for Belfast, Ireland.

Owing to the continued high water in the Bay, Victoria Park has been under water to a considerable extent during the summer, making it impossible to hold picnics there or to sit and enjoy the scenery and the breezes.

Thunder Bay May Be Core of Future Development

Toronto Star

Eric Kierans once said that if there is anything that should make a man want to remain a Canadian in face of the seeming advantagers of becoming an American, it's the challenge of developing half a continent. For all we can be proud of what we have developed so far — or for what others have developed for us — we've gone about as far as the little boy taking his initiative bite out of the first apple of the season: it's almost as if we were waiting for someone to persuade us that the tangy taste is really good before gobbling the rest. John Diefenbaker almost had us convinced a few years back with his Northern Vision, but the going got rough when everybody caught on he couldn't lead a raid on the ice-box.

If we're lucky, the group of industrialists meeting in Thunder Bay might convince us — or if they've convinced themselves— that the tangy taste is the sweetest taste. If so we'll have Toronto lawyer Richard Rohmer to thank, for he's the one who originally came up with the idea for a mid-Canada development corridor that's being discussed at the meeting called by a private foundation with provincial backing.

Thunder Bay (formerly Port Arthur and Fort William), with its 119,000 inhabitants, is a logical site for the talks, as it's one of a half-dozen growth poles in a corridor that stretches from Labrador City in the northeast to Inuvik in the northwest.

Most of the municipalities, including Rouyn-Noranda, Hay River, Flin Flon and Whitehorse are there simply because of some accident of geography or some lucky mineral find.

A preliminary study sparked by Mr. Rohmer indicates that if they were strung together for a 4,000 - mile railway line — or some more sophisticated means of transportation — they could become the main centres of a new economic belt for east-west Canadian development.

If the current meetings in Thunder Bay result in the governments involved sponsoring a thorough assessment of the area's human, geographical, water, forest, mineral and agricultural assets, Canadians just might be persuaded to take up this stage of our development ourselves. We just might take the second bite instead of passing the apple on to someone else.

The French Fact in Ontario

Ottawa Le Droit—The awakening of English-speaking people to the French reality in Canada is becoming more evident every day, at least in Ontario. Much of this awakening may be attributed to the unflagging efforts of the University of Ottawa which, by bringing anglophones and francophones into contact, has demonstrated to the former that the latter were not the ignorant monsters that preceding generations wanted to see in them.

The royal commission on bilingualism has also contributed by its work to this awakening, as has the Pearson administration and now the Trudeau administration. But it is to awareness on the part of the provincial authorities, above all, that we can ascribe the phenomenon we are witnessing, a phenomenon that would not be occurring, however, if the French-Canadian Association of Ontario had not been harrying Queen's Park all these years.

The Anglo-Ontarian awakening to the French reality is so great that we are at the point of asking ourselves if we ought not to cite to Franco-Ontarians the example of certain English-speaking compatriots. Thus, to the numerous Franco-Ontarians who are sulking at present about the French high schools in the province, we offer the testimony of Mr. S. Handleman, of the Carleton school board, who has recently declared "that it is absolutely necessary to speak French in the Ottawa region." To this testimony, let us add that of Mr. Noel Bennet-Alder, assistant superintendent for curricula in the Ontario education department. He says that in the English schools of the province "French must be envisaged as a means of communication, and a vehicle of instruction in various subjects."

If we understand him correctly, Mr. Bennet-Alder wants French to be used as a language of instruction for certain subjects in the schools of our English speaking compatriots. Now, those French-speaking people who are afraid their futures will be jeopardized if they attend French-speaking high schools, what do they say to that?

Potash Discovery Should Boost British Economy

Toronto Star Syndicate

Enormous deposits of potash have been located in England 3,500 feet under the county of Yorkshire and the North Sea. What effect the discovery will have on Canada's vast deposits of the mineral so vital to the manufacture of fertilizer isn't known, but it could be great.

Potash mining ir Saskatchewan is a relatively new industry but has become a big mainstay for that province's economy.

However, huge stock piles are a reflection of a smaller world market than was anticipated.

The United Kingdom is dependent on imports of potash from Canada, Germany, Israel and Spain. Preferential tariffs have been a boom to Canadian exports, but the Yorkshire discoveries will give Britain all the potash she needs by 1975.

There is an upsurge of interest in re-working old mines — particularly the centuries - old tin deposits in Cornwall.

New techniques and world demands for base metals may bring a 200 million industry to a nation which desperately needs home production to be earned abroad.

Cleveland Potash Limited, a subsidiary of giant "Imperial Chemical Industry" and Yorkshire Potash Limited, plans a potash mining operation in Yorkshire. It is estimated Cleveland will produce a million tons a year shortly after 1973, the start of operations.

Britain's home demands for potash for fertilizer is about 700,000 tons a year, so there'll be 300,000 tons available for export sales. Another 300,000 tons a year for an already depressed world market isn't going to help Saskatchewan production.

$81 Billion For 5 Years In S-E Asia

Davenport (Iowa) Times - Democrat

When the fiscal year ended June 30, the United States poured out more than $81 billion on "special Southeast Asia" military spending in five years. The term in quotation is a euphemism from the Pentagon for the Vietnam War.

How much is $81 billion?

To United States taxpayers, it has meant spending an average of $44.4 million per day.

Here are other ways of looking at what otherwise is a mind-boggling figure:

If the $81 billion were distributed equally among the 203 million men, women and children in the United States today, each would get a cheque from the treasury for $398.51.

If distributed among the 26 million Americans estimated to be living under the "poverty line" each would get a windfall of $3,115.38.

For a poor family of four, the total would be $12,461.52.

It took the federal government 134 years — from 1790 to 1925 — to spend its first $81 billion, and that included the costs of waging both the Civil War and the First World War.

Of course, a dollar was a lot further in those days. Many accused the Franklin Roosevelt administration of wild spending. But from fiscal year 1934 through 1941 the New Deal managed to spend just $60 billion, and part of this was the Pearl Harbor military buildup.

The $81 billion spent so far on Vietnam can be measured in other ways. All currency in circulation in the country today totals no more than $50 billion.

And if $1 billion one-dollar bills were placed end to end, they would form a chain 7.7 million miles long—the equivalent of 13 round trips between earth and moon.

And even the exorbitant costs in dollars are not the whole part.

Too many lives have been lost — more than 36,000 American, more than half a million Vietnamists. And the $81 billion doesn't include physical loss sustained by the Vietnamese and Vietnam.

A large and apparently growing group of our citizens now feels we ought to stop this outlay in lives and lives.

That, widened consensus is based upon an altered view of the globe — a discard of assumption that we have police the world: a revision of our old convictions about monolithic communism; and the testimony of a host of informed observers, former defense secretary Clark Clifford the latest among them.

Ending those staggering expenditures merits highest priority from those who run this nation.

Today in History

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Harvard University was founded 333 years ago today — in 1636—when the British North American colony of Massachusetts voted to set up a college. It took a generous gift in 1639 from a local Puritan minister who bequeathed half his estate—and half his fortune to the new college the preceding year. The first graduates, included in 1642 and Harvard's history runs unbroken since then. The college's enrolment is falling, built in 1650, was for Indian education and a translation of the Bible into an Indian language is thought to have been printed there in 1661.

Jamboree Jams Them In

Square Dancers Flock to Belleville

By LINDA GELBART
Staff Reporter

More than 700 square dancers jammed the Belleville Arena to swing out their partners Saturday at the Quinte Twirlers third annual Jamboree.

Dancers came not only from the Quinte area, but points in the United States — like New York, and Ohio.

"This is our third year for the jamboree," enthused chairman Bob Whiten, "and from all appearances this year is the most successful yet."

The whole thing started in 1967 as a Centennial year project. The idea went over so well it looks like the jamboree may be here to stay.

These square dancers, some of them coming from long distances, have come to Belleville just for the chance to dance, and take advantage of the opportunity to meet others who enjoy this same kind of recreation," explained Mr. Whiten.

Square dancing is an international pastime that millions enjoy all over the world.

As Mr. Whiten commented: "An individual who knows how to square dance can visit any country, and feel right at home. It is a wonderful way to meet people — through their common interest."

At present, there are six square dance clubs in Belleville, with the Quinte Twirlers Association the central organization.

"We have a full range of clubs," said Mr. Whiten. "you can start when you are eight years old and still be going strong when you can't quite get one foot out of the grave."

Right now there are approximately 300 children in Belleville who are active club members, with another 300 expected to join the ranks shortly. Belleville is one of the few cities offering single people their own club, and a chance to become part of a social group.

"Square dancing started here with Bob and Bea Williamson, who invited interested couples to their home. It began with 43 individuals back in 1960, and there are now 600 active dancers," he continued.

Trying to organize a national central square dance association proved impossible, because of Canada's wide expanse.

"The best we could do on a national scale was to get together a central information bureau, which channels information bulletins to clubs all over the country."

"We sponsor a float in the Christmas parade, assist the firemen with toys for needy children."

"We also have a special class for retarded children in which they learn the basics of square dancing — they are quick to learn, and have an innate sense of rhythm," added Mr. Whiten.

Not only is square dancing healthy recreation, but it provides an opportunity for the family to do something together, he says.

"It requires no special skills and is relatively inexpensive. Perhaps one of the best things about it is that if you go for an evening, you can count on being home fairly early, which makes it easier on baby-sitters — and gives parents a greater chance to go out together," said Mr. Whiten.

Take Your Partners!

Square dancers took over the floor of Memorial Arena Saturday night in Belleville. Big jamboree drew enthusiasts from around Quinte district, and as far away as U.S.

Air Search to Continue For Family Lost in Bush

TRENTON — The search for a Toronto family of three missing since August 29 on a flight to Kenora will be continued this week by both military and civilian aircraft says a search and rescue spokesman at the Canadian Forces Base, here.

Missing are W. Lorne Gray, 45, a vice president of the St. Lawrence Starch Company, his wife Judy, 37, and their son Gordon, 4.

Captain A. L. Seward, search director here, said a concentrated search over the weekend failed to turn up any trace of the missing plane.

Search headquarters is now based at the Lakehead with planes working north of Lake Superior and east to Wawa.

"It's a rugged country filled with trees and rocks—a plane could come down in the bush and never be seen," said the officer.

"We are hoping that the plane came down on some lake in the bush country."

Authority Gets $1,500 Grant

PICTON (Staff) — Approval has been announced of $1,500 provincial government grant to the Prince Edward County Regional Conservation Authority for a preliminary investigation of ground water conditions in the county.

The authority, and the engineering staff of Queen's University will make tests in the county's big swamp area. These will indicate the water-bearing capacity of soil deposits and initiate a monitoring system for certain area wells.

This initial study will help determine whether future investigations are justifiable and whether funds can be made available for this purpose.

All member municipalities of the county have been designated as beneficiaries and will be levied the authority's share of the costs.

Girl Injured

PICTON — A Picton girl was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital following a one-car crash on Union St. early Sunday.

Maureen Clapp, 17, Picton, passenger in a car driven by Gary Herbert Day, 28, Picton, was taken to hospital with facial lacerations. The driver and two other passengers, Marion Kent, Picton, and Archie Soules, Waupoos Island, were uninjured.

First Mission Is Marked

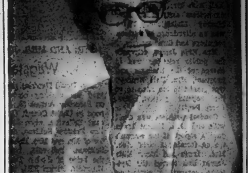
PICTON — The white man's first toe-hold on Quinte territory was commemorated Sunday with the unveiling of a historical plaque honoring Kente Mission to the Cayugas at Consecon.

The Kente mission was established by members of the Society of St. Sulpice on Consecon lake in 1668. Rev. J Claude Labrecque, College de Montreal, representing the Society, unveiled and dedicated the plaque, provided by the Ontario public records and archives department.

The ceremony in the village park in Consecon was arranged and sponsored by the Prince Edward Historical Society whose president, David R. Taylor, was program chairman.

Bands of Iroquois Indians migrated from their homeland south of Lake Ontario about 1650 and established villages on the north shore. The hunting grounds north of the lake were richer, and after their Huron enemies were scattered by the British, the area was opened to the Iroquois.

Some Cayugas crossed Lake Ontario and established a village near Consecon, whose Indian name was probably Kenlio or Kenta, and was called Kente by the French. It was later changed to Quinte by the English.



Two Sulpician priests found ed a mission to the Cayuga band in 1668. It was abandoned 13 years later when the Jesuits gained the upper hand in ecclesiastical affairs in Quebec.

Among those participating in the unveiling were Chief Earl Hill of the Tyendinaga Mohawk band, George Hees, MP Prince Edward - Hastings; Norris Whitney, MLA Prince Edward Lennox and Prince Edward County Warden, G. H. Foster.

Couple Enjoy Kinsmen Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bleecker of Tweed recently attended the 49th National Convention of the Association of Kinsmen Clubs held at the Skyline Hotel in Toronto.

A highlight of the convention was the presentation of a cheque for $250,000 to the Canadian Mental Retardation Institute. This project was instituted in 1964 as a national project with contributions from all Kinette and Kinsmen Clubs in Canada.

This Institute is scheduled to open in 1970 during the Kinsmen golden anniversary year.

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE

RYLSTONE — Rylstone Women's Institute held its September meeting in the Institute Hall with Mrs. Ernest Rowe as hostess assisted by Mrs. Murray Metkiejohn. There was an attendance of thirteen members and two visitors.

Mrs. Ellis James, convener for public relations was in charge of the business and program. Mrs. Earl Brunton was pianist in the absence of the regular pianist, Mrs. Percy Reid.

General business was dealt with and Mrs. Ernest Irvin gave a report of the committee on forming a girls' club. Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Ellis James had toured the Rylstone community contacting the girls.

They met with a favorable response from the girls and their mothers. Mrs. Irvin also introduced the girls' club leaders, Mrs. Douglas Brunton and Mrs. Reid, who spoke briefly about their training school held recently in Maple. Inaugural meeting was planned. The place and time of further meetings will be decided by the girls and their leaders.

Mrs. Jack Whalen gave a comprehensive report on the Guelph conference which she attended earlier in the summer.

Mrs. James introduced Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, President of the Stirling Horticultural Society, who spoke on several horticultural subjects. She also distributed pamphlets from the agricultural office on several lists of horticultural and donated several flower slips and bulbs to the group. Mrs. James extended thanks to the speaker and presented her with a gift.

Mrs. Ernest Rowe and Mrs. Raymond Stewart gave humorous readings and Mrs. Earl Brunton and Mrs. Murray Metkiejohn both gave current events.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ernest Rowe and Mrs. Murray Metkiejohn.

The October meeting of the Women's Institute will be held in the Women's Institute Hall on Wednesday evening, October 1. Mrs. Howard Mould, convener for historical research will be in charge. Special speaker for the evening will be Russell Rowe, M.P.P. who was a former teacher at Rylstone Union School (now the Women's Institute Hall). This will be an open meeting.

DOING FINE

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Laurie Schinmoeller, 23, and expecting her second child, was being taken to a hospital by her husband in the midst of the morning traffic. As Mrs. Schinmoeller sat in the bucket seat of the car about half a mile from the hospital, a baby girl was born. Within the next two blocks, another baby girl was born. The doctor had not predicted twins. They finally got to hospital and the mother and daughters were fine.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN DOUGLAS WAGSTAFF

Wagstaff – Sullivan

Rev. David Hawkins performed the wedding ceremony on Saturday August 30, at 12 noon in Christ Church (Anglican)- Belleville, when Jacqueline Frances Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Sullivan, Belleville, became the bride of John Douglas Wagstaff, Picton RR1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wagstaff of Strathroy, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of Chantilly lace featuring a scalloped square neckline and long pointed sleeves with full skirt having tiers of lace billowing out to afull chapel train at back. Her headdress was a cluster of flowers, buds and leaves of peau de soie caught to a fourtier nylon illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses mingled with fern.

Miss Mary Clarke of Picton was maid of honor wearing a full length yellow chiffon over taffeta gown in empire style highlighted at the back with a flowing panel of chiffon extending from the shoulders. Her headdress was a wedding band of matching fabric with short veil and she carried a bouquet of white 'mums. The bridesmaids Mrs. Joan Long, cousin of the bride of Belleville, Miss Lynne Wagstaff, sister of the bridegroom of Strathroy and Miss Lynn McDowell of Belleville were dressed similarly to the maid of honor but in melon shade chiffon.

Barry Ryckman of Picton was groomsman, while the cousin of the bride of Belleville, Michael Sarsfield of Selby and Terry Whattam of Picton.

A reception was held in the Pinnacle Room at Quinte Hotel, where the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a green and gold brocade ensemble of matching coat and dress with dark green and beige accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-toned brown dress with turquoise accents and matching coat with dark brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride wore a beige linen dress with matching coat, dark brown accessories and a corsage of roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagstaff will reside at Cedarvale Trailer Park, Picton.

Leering – Thompson

TWEED — The summer wedding was solemnized in Madoc Pentecostal Church recently, when Beverley Dianne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Thompson, of Actinolite, was united in marriage to Anthony John Leering, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Leering of Ajax. Rev. Murray Stacey officiated at the ceremony. Miss Magdaline Flanagan was organist and Mrs. Gloria Stacey soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length silk organza gown with lace applique and A-line skirt. The empire bodice, skirt and sleeves were enhanced by French petal point lace. A cathedral train of matching lace fell from her shoulders. Her headpiece was a four-tier veil of silk organza petals and stand up leaves of lace trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Danny Thompson, sister-in-law of the bride as matron of honor, Mrs. Rick De Rattie, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Miss Barbara Thompson, sister of the bride as junior bridesmaid, were identically gowned in pink, blue and green respectively, silk lace with taffeta underskirt, round neckline with elbow length bell sleeves. The empire styled gowns were appliqued with matching satin trim at the bodice and sleeves. Their headpieces were of matching flowers and circular veils, and they carried bouquets of matching 'mums.

Arthur Bowers, of Belleville was groomsman and the guests were ushered by Danny Thompson of Tweed and Lloyd Johnson of Foxboro.

For the reception at St. John's Anglican Church Hall, Tweed, the bride's mother received the guest wearing a coat and dress ensemble of lilac brocade with white accessories with a corsage of yellow carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a white and black crepe dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

For a wedding trip to points east the bride chose a white rayon lace dress with mauve accessories and a corsage of mauve tinted carnations. The couple will reside in Downsview.

Maxi Coat Drawing Comment From Fashion Experts This Season

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

For a fashion that isn't expected to sell well, the maxi coat is drawing a lot of comment from fashion experts this season.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by the Canadian Press, manufacturers and retailers across the country mentioned it as a trend tester, something worth watching but not yet ripe for popularity.

A Montreal retailer commented: "It's the young ones who are interested in the longer hemlines."

Otherwise, hemlines are as they have been for several seasons—worn at the height the wearer likes best.

The layered look is back, but with a difference. Long-torsoed sweaters or tunics or jackets are to be worn with pants or skirts or separately, as minidresses.

Pleated skirts are popular. Flared pants are the only styles, and are cited by a Winnipeg fashion consultant as further indication that the maxi look is coming back. For evening, says Ottawa, they appear in printed evening pyjama suits and ankle-length chiffon culottes.

The whole costume will have a busy look, with flapping flared pants, floppy-brimmed hats, pleated skirts, chains and pearls and scarves, belts and strapped, buckled shoes.

Color predictions vary within a general agreement that clothes will be colorful but more subdued than summer styles. Halifax, Saint John and St. John's all name browns, greens and wines as the season's notable favorites. Montreal says black will be back. A Vancouver department store spokesman says anything in the purple range will be popular.

A Regina buyer says the see-through look will be worn by the "independent-minded" —but with underwear. Winnipeg says see-through styles are sellouts in several stores.

A Montreal source says bras and girdles are disappearing and a nude impression is becoming a favorite.

Less spectacularly, the clutter-ed appearance extends to individual styles. The many-pocketed safari fad appears in handbags as well as jackets and dresses. Last year's hardware clanks again on coats, shoes, hats.

A Toronto consultant says scarves are the big accessory for the fall, especially for the young. They can be any length, made of anything, worn over or under other clothes.

For hats and hoods, fur trim on coats and "fun" furs will be on the scene. So will leather, in coats and long vests, especially.

Shoes continue to be chunky, trimmed with straps, chains or buckles. The patent-leather look is fashionable. The biggest change is that heels are higher than they have been.

Boots will continue to be an important part of a cold-weather costume, their height varying with their owner's style.

The Pill May Cause Blood Clots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women who use oral contraceptives are four times more likely to suffer blood clots than women who do not, a United States government advisory committee reported Thursday.

But the Food and Drug Administration advisory group said the oral contraceptives appear to meet American federal safety requirements because their benefits exceed the risk.

The group's study of 175 matched pairs of women in five cities is the first major American survey linking blood clots to oral contraceptive pills.

The findings parallel those of several British studies that reported a seven to 10 times great clot risk for pill users.

The committee's investigators, headed by Dr. Phillip E. Sartwell of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, said the clot danger is further heightened with so-called sequential formulations.

With sequential preparations, the female hormone estrogen is administered alone for part of the menstural cycle, then combined with another hormone for the remainder.

Other oral contraceptives combine the two hormones at all times.

The committee concluded that the clot danger from the pill is relatively small: only three deaths in every 100,000 per year among women of child-bearing age can be attributed to contraceptive-caused clots.

The committee said it is still unclear whether the contraceptive pills have any link to cancer.

Other effects of the pill on such organs as the liver, thyroid, adrenal glands and kidneys appear to pose no serious health hazard, the committee said.

Everybody Requires A Build-up

By DORIS CLARK

"Everyone should wear a banner on his breast saying, 'I need to feel important!'" That statement is borrowed from a specialist in human relations.

Makes you think, doesn't it? All of us crave recognition — the two-year-old, the adolescent, the 30- or 80-year oldster.

We need a build-up, a feeling of worthwhileness.

I hear from all ages and stages — from little kids to teens, sweethearts, youths, career people, mothers, uncles grandparents. Often what they need most, our troubled ones, is to recognize their own worth, their place in the scheme of things. With improved perspective they often find themselves in a position to handle situations which well nigh overwhelmed them before.

A pat right thing about giving a "cut on the back is that it often stimulates a return pat. Let's have an Accentuate the Positive week!

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 19, and going with a boy 17. I read in your wonderful column where you advised a 18-year-old girl in love with a 17-year-old boy to find someone her own age.

I've tried, Doris, but all the boys my age are wolves. Lem is not a bit like that, but sweet and considerate. We've never had an argument and have been going with each other for almost seven months.

I don't consider that fact anything to brag about, but at least it's better than most steadies who claim to be in love. I will not say I love him because I have said it too often about previous boy friends.— Tired of Being Hurt

Dear Tired: You are beginning to know yourself — and that's something!

There are exceptions to every rule. Usually it is better for a man to be a little older than the women he marries, but I know some dandy marriages of women older than their men.

Just hold off on going all out until you are grown up and able to know your own mind for sure.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 32 now and still at home. When people come and we are talking, I try to join in. Usually my mother glares at me and my father just acts as if I'm being stupid.

I was sick in a mental hospital before but I'm fine now and working. My mother is always trying to belittle me, and no matter how hard I try this still happens.—I Give Up!

Dear I Give Up: Oh, don't give up! Parents may think they have to make excuses for a family member who has been mentally ill. They hinder rather than help.

Not only people who have been ill, but children, young people, all shy ones, need encouragement to get into the conversation. Belittling any person just discourages him.

Perhaps now is the time for you to plunge into some activities outside your home. The first break-away is the hardest; and you'll find friends in your Y or church group. Try something.

Swimming Awards Presented

MARMORA — Awards to children taking advantage of the Red Cross swimming program at Legion Park were presented at the Park on Friday evening. The six weeks' program of swimming instructions was sponsored by Marmora Recreation Committee, and presentations were made by Roy Frost of the committee, to the following candidates:

Royal Life Saving Bronze Medallion Awards — Patty Lou Scanlon, Debbie Harris, John Maloney, Derrick Hickle, Doug Rothernel; seniors — Ellen Collick and Christine Scanlon; intermediates — Chris Doyle, Shawn Doyle, Judy Deering, Bart Bell; juniors — Kimberly King, Heather King, Charlene Deering, Justin Hanley, Monty Rothernel, Ann Doyle, Tom Tokarevics, Jim Tokarewicz, Barry Bell, Christine Kerr, Peter Empey, Donna Tarrion; beginners — Roy Speckbauer, Cathy Cook, Larry Sommerville, Julie McKenzie, Faye Maxwell, Colin Derochie, Katy Mumby, Dick Derry, Cathy Walker, Shelly Quinlan, Perry Provost, Scott Derrah, Carole Moore, Bruce Cook, Carolyn Gordon, Mike Vaneff, Rick Empey, Randy Maxwell, Marlene Maxwell, Glenda Maxwell, Laurie Elliot, Heather King, Kim King.

The senior groups were tested by Dene Getzas, Red Cross examiner of Napanee. Beginners were examined by Mrs. Alex Tokarewicz, director of the summer swimming program.

Betsy Rothernel was swimming instructor, Cathie Jones, water safety leader and Susan Draper the playground supervisor.

A huge bonfire near the beach with members of the Recreation Committee serving hot dogs and marshmallows followed the presentations.

Adding interest to the summer program was a poster contest on water safety, and later in the season, a pet show.

Reader Questions List Re Husband's Faults

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the letter from the woman who listed her husband's faults in one column and his good points in the other. Under good points she wrote: "No

ANN LANDERS

Richard Burton in the bedroom but plenty good enough."

Please tell me how she knows what Richard Burton is like in the bedroom. What are the criteria? Handsome? Well built? Multiple marriages? Screen performances? Don't these dum-dums know that none of this adds up to a pile of dead flies?

I'm not mocking Burton, understand. He may be the greatest, but I can tell you from experience, Ann, the world's most sensational lovers are the ones you'd never suspect. — A LADY WHO'S BEEN AROUND.

DEAR LADY: Where have you been? Do tell. I'm sure to receive hundreds of letters from people who will want to know. What shall I tell them?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are middle-class people in modest circumstances. Our daughter is marrying a fine young man and we are busy making plans for the wedding. We want it to be beautiful but we refuse to go in debt to impress anyone.

The ceremony will be in a church, followed by a dinner for relatives and close friends. Yesterday the groom's mother sent her list of dinner guests and it ran to 180 people. I could scarcely believe my eyes. When we discussed plans I asked her to please keep her list to immediate family and intimate friends. (I kept my list to 50.)

I phoned the groom's mother this morning and expressed surprise at the size of her family. She said, "Actually we have very few relatives. Most of the people on the list are my husband's customers. They are very important to us."

What should we do? We can't afford a dinner for 220 people and I can't cut my list any more. — CALIFORNIA CALAMITY.

DEAR CAL: Since your daughter's future-in-laws wish to use the wedding as a business booster suggest that they give a dinner or reception when the newlyweds return from their honeymoon. They can then invite the whole town if they wish.

For now, politely inform the groom's mother she must cut her list to 65 — which gives them 15 more than your side.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you know that more people have been killed on our highways than in all our wars? Please print this letter. It could save a few lives.

Too many automobile owners do not realize that motor bikes are not bicycles. When a driver sees a motor bike coming toward him he often thinks he has plenty of time because he equates the speed of the bike with a bicycle. So he pulls out and there's a head-on collision.

Motor bikes can go as fast as cars and they are harder to stop. I paid a terrible price to learn this lesson. I'm passing it on for nothing. Beware — DETROIT.

DEAR D.: Often we need to be reminded of things we think we already know. Thanks for writing.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Cream Puffs Need Hot Oven

By MARY MOORE

Why would I receive two requests on the same day for the proper way to make cream puffs? Both bakers were in trouble: their Cream Puffs did not puff. One asked, "Could it be the humid weather?" The other girl told me the recipe specified 350 deg. Fahr. as the baking temperature.'

To make Cream Puffs (and Chocolate Eclairs) puff I always have baked mine at a high temperature for the first 10 or 15 min.

Those that I made yesterday puffed to perfection and retained their shape so I hope my enquirers follow my lead.

CREAM PUFFS (8 large)

½ cup butter
1 cup hot water
½ tsp. salt
1 cup sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
4 large eggs

Measure butter and hot water into pot and bring to boil. When butter is melted stir in flour and salt all at once, stir constantly until dough clings together in a rough ball and comes away from sides of pan. Remove from heat and stir in eggs, one at a time, until smoothly blended. Drop onto buttered baking sheet in eight high mounds. Mine were approximately 2½" in diameter by 1¼" high. They must be about 3" apart.

Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. at centre of oven for 10 to 15 min. or until well puffed and rich gold, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 30 min. longer to make crust strong, with no tendency to collapse.

NOTE: Before removing all puffs from oven remove one and let it stand on the counter for a minute to see if it shows any signs of falling. If so leave remaining puffs in oven a few minutes longer.

Cool on rack. Slit sides and fill with sweetened whipped cream or ice cream topped with fruits in season — for instance sliced peaches or apricots this month. Later when fresh fruits are out of season these are lovely filled with ice cream and fresh frozen sliced strawberries.

NOTE: To make Chocolate Eclairs shape Cream Puff Dough in elongated ovals and bake as above. Fill with a custard filling and frost with chocolate icing.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is saying talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days without pills or drugs. No weight loss in the first four days but you will definitely drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every ten days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Refined and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon fats, sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startingly successful diet including suggested menus can be obtained by sending 25c to: DIET PLAN AWAY, Dept. 54-B, 1138 Main St., Winnipeg 4, Manitoba.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

If after trying the diet you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days, another 5 pounds in the next 7 days and 3½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Year out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth. Diet plan also available in French.

Pageant Signals New TV Season

NEW YORK (AP) — Time was when the Miss America Pageant was a pleasant, easy-winding up the season of a resort town. Since it has been televised, however, it has become the unofficial signal that summer and television reruns are just about over.

Anyway, Miss Michigan, Pamela Anne Eldred was crowned, and the tears of happiness and all went pretty smoothly during the two-hour NBC program Saturday night. That was only one of a quartet of evening specials the network presented during the weekend to help the living-room audience get back in wintertime TV form.

The programs covered considerable territory, starting Friday night with an ambitious and rewarding 90-minute portrait of pianist Artur Rubinstein.

Saturday's Miss America goings-on were preceded by an hour of circus acts. And on Sunday there was an unusual memoir of Britain's defence against the Nazi Luftwaffe almost 20 years ago.

The Rubinstein program showed a vital, vigorous artist of 83, in love with his music, his wife and his life. It was a portrait of a happy man. The artist reminisced, philosophized, joked and talked about music. He played but most of the time that was almost incidental or to illustrate a point.

The high point of the program was Rubinstein playing Chopin's Polonaise in A flat to an audience of students in Israel.

The All Star Circus the following night was standard but superior—jugglers, aerialists, tight rope performers, animal acts—handsomely photographed and with Tony Curtis as host.

The Battle of Britain, pegged on a motion picture soon to be released, used the simulated scenes to retell effectively the story of the determined resistance of the outnumbered RAF in 1940 and the danger and hardship undergone by the people of London.

Scattered through the commentary by actor Michael Caine were some interesting footnotes on the problems of maintaining accurately events of 20 years ago—of finding Spitfires and Hurricanes of the planes that saved Britain, and of reproducing effects of a bombed-out London.

"Shall we engage in some wife-swapping? For the next rubber, that is."

"If they valued their customers, they'd put bicarbonate of soda in their fortune cookies."

Feuding Returns to Boiling Point As Young Protestant Dies in Belfast

BELFAST (CP) — Sectarian feuding was back to boiling point in Belfast today, and British troops moved to the centre of the city after a young Protestant was killed during an apparent gunfire bomb attack on a Roman Catholic home.

British Army officials said the man was killed by unknown gunmen firing from a car. A companion was wounded and taken to hospital. Police said windows of the house were broken and three unexploded gasoline bombs lay near the dead man's body.

Neighbors identified him as Jack Todd, 23, a member of a Protestant "peace patrol." Several of these groups have been patrolling Belfast since last month's riots.

Other reports described him as a Protestant vigilante.

Todd was the ninth person to die in Northern Ireland since sectarian strife peaked in mid-July riots and arson in mid-August.

An angry Protestant crowd gathered after the shooting and army patrols hurried to the scene, but Joseph McKeagie, Belfast Unionist MP and Defence Association, a militant Protestant group, persuaded the crowd to disperse.

The army said it was leaving the investigation to the Royal Ulster Constabulary which posted men armed with automatic weapons at each end of the street. The police said they were treating the case as murder at this stage.

The shooting took place in the Ardoyne district in west Belfast where both Protestants and Catholics live. The area has been one of the flashpoints in recent riots and today some families were moving and going to refugee centres or exclusively Catholic areas.

At least eight buildings, including a hotel, were set ablaze during the night by gangs of Protestant and Catholic extremists who roamed the streets. The fire damage was not extensive.

During the night the troops extended their control to more than half of Belfast as they struggled to hold the Catholic and Protestant gangs apart. Police reported several cases of looting, and Catholic owners of two taverns and a restaurant said they received threats that their establishments would be burned.

As another week of tension and economic strain began in Northern Ireland, there were fewer barricades on the streets.

For the first time in the capital, British troops fired tear gas cartridges Sunday at a Protestant crowd of about 3,000 that threatened to invade a Catholic district.

The jeering crowd ignored demands to move back behind their barricades but scattered when the gas went off.

The clash was the first between British troops and the Northern Irish since the army moved in to take control after the fighting last month between Catholics and Protestants.

The new barricades, some of them within 100 yards of the city hall, appeared in mark a new stage in the situation in the capital. Barricades cut off some districts for three weeks.

By putting up new barriers—decorated with Union Jacks, bright bunting and pictures of the Queen — Protestants appeared to be trying to force the British Army to take action against the Catholic barricades that fly the flag of the Irish Republic to the south.

More than 20 of Belfast's double decker buses have been burned and jammed across streets. All bus service has been suspended, adding to the economic strain.

The use of tear gas raised immediate protests. Moderates on both sides of the barricades said the gas incident and the erection of new barricades had wiped out days of determined public relations work by the army in trying to reduce tension and open Belfast's streets.

William Cardinal Conway, Archbishop of Armagh and spiritual leader of Ireland's Roman Catholics, appealed for calm in a message published today.

Police meanwhile said they failed to track down Radio Orange, a clandestine station from which a woman called "Orange Lily" exhorted Protestants to take the law into their own hands and "defend themselves from the Catholic hordes."

There are two other clandestine radio broadcasting in Belfast. They are believed to be based in Catholic districts.

Pike Died as He Lived: In Quest of Biblical Truths

JERUSALEM (AP) — Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal (Anglican) bishop, was a doubter of Christianity's cherished tenets and found no man's ability to communicate with the dead. He died in quest of what he viewed as theological truths.

To some the wiry, restless churchman was a heretic because he assailed the granite of Christianity.

To others, he was one of the world's great thinkers, a seeker of truth, a warm rumpled gentleman without a trace of guile.

Pike was bishop of California—actually a 230-mile long section from San Francisco south—for eight years. In 1958, he decided it was time to give up the post.

In the summer of 1965, Pike had found himself on a pulpit at a church where dozens of clergymen of his diocese. He denounced hypocrites, sinners and blasphemers who went to church on Sunday and ignored God the rest of the week.

Then he mentioned the Virgin birth and the Resurrection.

Pike wrote at least a dozen books and was planning three more. In one, Three of Christian Candor, Pike assailed the Trinity and Eve theory of the beginning of man. He called the story "absurd and incredible," saying only a cruel God would punish two human beings for eating an apple.

"As to such a 'God' who could so behave, a person reasonably intelligent and ethically sensitive would be forced to be an atheist," he wrote.

The Father, Son and Holy Ghost concept of the Trinity, he said, is "outdated, incomprehensible and non-essential."

Of the Virgin birth, he said:

"I don't see anything special about the birth of Christ. He was a man whose openness was such that in Him God broke through totally."

Pike's enemies were the conservatives of the church and the laity.

Pike was born a Roman Catholic in Oklahoma City, Okla. His father, James, died when Pike was a child. The family moved to Southern California and the boy attended Hollywood high school.

After graduation, Pike gave up a chance to go to Harvard on a scholarship, choosing instead to study with Jesuits in what was then a small Catholic college north of Santa Clara—because "I understood they would honor the Pope more than the Bible I had begun to question."

All the years that followed Pike found it more difficult to accept the Roman Catholic position on birth control and the concept of papal infallibility.

In 1932, after only two years, he left Santa Clara, having "lost that faith in Rome quickly" lost his Christian faith and become an agnostic who neither rejected nor accepted religion.

He was graduated from the University of Southern California with degrees in arts and law and then earned a doctor of law degree at Yale. He became a lawyer for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission before being admitted to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Association with Franklin D. Roosevelt New Deal reformers fired Pike with the need to "seek the meaning for my life in a career and a zeal for social reform," he once said.

But he wasn't satisfied. He rediscovered Christianity as "the most plausible perspective on reality."

There is no information on Pike's first wife—he never spoke of her and left her out of all his biographies. Even close friends never learned her name or the dates of the marriage and its annulment.

In 1942, Pike was married again—to Esther Yanovsky, a former student of his at George Washington University. He soon decided to return to the ministry.

The Second World War interrupted, but Pike was in a hurry. While serving as a naval intelligence officer on the secret destroyer Ault, he was admitted as a postulant in the Washington Episcopal diocese.

Later he was elevated to the priesthood and in 1953 became dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

He was named Bishop of California in 1958, and remained a headline figure until the end of his life.

Pike stepped down as bishop of California in 1966 to begin a new role as theologian-in-residence of the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara.

The was the year that Pike's son died himself—a death in a Manhattan hotel room, reported A. Pike Jr., 23, had gone "through torments trying to find himself, and failed."

Two years later, Pike touched off another storm when he took for his third wife Miss Diane Kennedy in a Methodist ceremony. With her he wrote a book, The Other Side, which he said he had communicated through a medium with his dead son.

From this experience Pike broadened his interest in psychic phenomena and concluded Jesus' Resurrection could have been a spiritual one rather than a bodily return.

The marriage saw a falling out of Pike and the man who succeeded him as St. Pressel as co's Grace Cathedral, Bishop C. Kilmar Myers. Bishop Myers refused to perform the marriage, refused to bless the union and sought to have Pike barred from diocesan pulpits.

Finally, this year, Pike decided to leave the church altogether. He announced he was going to be ordained by the Federated Galilean Church.

Plant Sets Up Fund To Assist Fishermen

LONG HARBOR, Nfld. (CP) — The company blamed earlier this year for pollution of northern Placentia Bay with waste from its phosphorus plant here Saturday announced it will set up an investment of a $300,000 fund to provide compensation to fishermen.

The announcement by the Electric Reduction Co. of Canada denied the company has any legal responsibility for damage to losses in fishermen's income.

"Nevertheless, the company has expressed sympathy with fishermen through no fault of their own, have been subjected to hardship and it is the company's wish, as a responsible member of the community, to make a contribution to the relief of this hardship," the statement said.

Last week, about 100 Placentia Bay fishermen retained a lawyer to prepare compensation claims against Erco.

The fishermen say a closure on fishing last spring by the federal fisheries department because of pollution. It was given a clean bill of health by federal scientists in July after Erco stopped production and agreed to dispose of plant waste in settling ponds ashore. The plant is back in operation.

The company proposed that "an impartial assessor" acceptable to fishermen draw up a scheme of compensation payments from the fund.

It suggested as a basis the payments already made to fishermen by the federal government.

Raimey Runs Rampant Over Regina

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three touchdowns each by halfbacks Dave Raimey of Toronto Argonauts and Vic Washington of Ottawa Rough Riders in two weekend games set the tone for a two-game series between the two Eastern Football Conference clubs who now share first place.

The Argonauts travel to Ottawa Saturday and the Riders return the visit the following weekend.

Raimey picked up his three touchdowns and a total of 165 yards rushing in a 34-15 victory Sunday over Saskatchewan Roughriders before a capacity crowd of 33,135 at CNE Stadium.

Washington's 18 points came as Ottawa trounced Montreal Alouettes 47-21 Saturday.

Also playing important roles in the Toronto and Ottawa victories were kickers Dave Mann and Don Sutherin, who each picked up 10 points.

Mann booted two field goals, three converts and a single for Toronto to match Sutherin's one field goal, six converts and one single for Ottawa.

Mel Profit scored a touchdown to round out the Toronto scoring.

The Roughriders still hold first place in the Western Conference on five wins and two losers, but the Toronto victory kept intact the EFC record of holding WFC clubs winless in interlocking games.

Ottawa and Toronto, with five wins and one loss each, moved into first place with 10 points, one ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who start a western tour Wednesday at Winnipeg. The Als hold fourth with two points on four losses and two ties.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster was good on one touchdown pass to Hugh Campbell and Bubba Wyche, who replaced Lancaster late in the game, picked up the other touchdown on a third-down gamble. Jack Abendschan converted both touchdowns and scored a single on a wide field goal attempt.

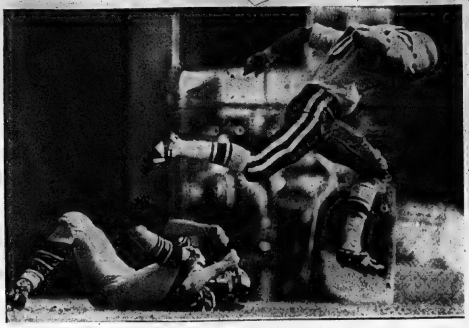
The Toronto defence stuffed the Roughrider rushing game, allowing only 40 yards while the Argos picked up 215 yards along the ground.

Quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Frank Cosentino, who took over in the fourth quarter, picked up a total of 263 yards passing to 200 for Lancaster and Wyche. Toronto picked off two interceptions while Saskatchewan grabbed one.

Whit Tucker, Margene Adkins and Jay Roberts scored touchdowns as Ottawa humiliated the Als with a 45-1 score by the end of the third quarter.

Quarterback Carrol Williams replaced Dick Wade for the fourth quarter and threw touchdown passes to Peter Dalla Riva, Gary Lefebvre and Peter Howlett.

John Baker kicked Montreal's point early in the second quarter on a wide field goal attempt and converted all three touchdowns.



Bill Van Burkleo, who went in at quarterback in the third quarter to give Russ Jackson a rest, kicked a single point to complete the Ottawa scoring.

Van Burkleo threw 10 times for five completions, gaining 82 yards. He had two passes intercepted. Jackson completed 13 out of 19 for 336 yards.

Williams completed nine of 18 passes for 210 yards. Wade was good on five of 13 for 57 yards and had two passes intercepted while Williams had none.

Lions Snap Streak At Bombers' Expense

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia Lions won their first Western Football Conference game in seven starts Saturday, but Edmonton Eskimos continued to founder as they lost to Calgary Stampeders in the other weekend game.

The Lions scored a winning touchdown at 13:42 of the fourth quarter to defeat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 11-7 before 25,651 fans in Vancouver.

In Edmonton, before 20,089 fans Saturday, the Stampeders moved closer to first place with a 20-10 triumph, the sixth successive setback for the Eskimos.

Sunday, Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference whipped Saskatchewan Roughriders 34-15 in an interlocking game at Toronto.

The weekend results left Saskatchewan in first place in the WFC with 10 points, two more than Calgary and five ahead of Winnipeg. British Columbia and Edmonton have two points apiece.

The Eskimos, beaten 16-14 by the Stampeders in Calgary last Monday, could not score a touchdown and missed three of five field goal attempts in their latest setback.

Quarterback Jerry Keeling of Calgary, who had three passes intercepted by safety John Wydareny, got two touchdowns for the Stampeders and Ted Woods added the other. Larry Robinson kicked two converts.

Dave Cutler booted two field goals, one from 37 yards and another from the 22-yard line, while missing three attempts from 42, 22 and 15 yards. He added two singles on the wide field goal tries.

Dave Cranmer conceded a safety touch for Edmonton's remaining points.

Calgary intercepted four passes thrown by quarterback Corey Colehour, including two by Wayne Harris.

In Vancouver, quarterback Paul Brothers engineered the Lions' only touchdown with assistance from Jim Evenson.

Evenson capped a 57-yard drive when he caught a four-yard pass on the goal line, staggered out into the field and then fell back to score.

Ted Gerela got his seventh convert of the season and picked up the Lions' other points in the first half on a 31-yard field goal and a single on a wide 26-yard field goal attempt.

Winnipeg's only points came when quarterback Wally Gabler flipped a four-yard touchdown pass to Ken Nielsen at 14:48 of the second quarter after a 64-yard drive. Pierre Gudnon converted.

Gabler was good on 20 of 31 passes for 235 yards and gave up three interceptions. Brothers got 184 yards passing as he completed 15 of 27 attempts. In rushing, Evenson gained 98 yards on 19 carries.

Western Juniors Out in Cold Again

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Five western Ontario Junior A hockey teams Saturday formed the Western Ontario Junior A League to operate independently of the Ontario Hockey Association.

The OHA Friday refused the re-entry of three of the teams into its jurisdiction.

Sarnia Legionnaires, Chatham Maroons, St. Thomas Barons, Brantford Forresters and Guelph Royal Kings last year withdrew from OHA jurisdiction to play in the Canadian Hockey Association, but this year they applied for re-entry into the OHA.

Guelph, Sarnia and Brantford were rejected by the OHA Friday for failure to comply with conditions stipulated at earlier talks. One condition had been that the teams attempt to negotiate a working agreement with junior B teams in their respective cities.

The new league will seek advice from Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson concerning legal action against the OHA for expenses and damages.

Tubby Schmaltz president of the OHA when told of the formation of the new league, in a telephone interview, said the OHA was "rid of a headache."

Art Lawson, general manager of London junior A and junior B teams for six years, Saturday was appointed president of the new league.

The 56-game league schedule will begin Oct. 3 with Chatham playing at St. Thomas.

Laver Needs Open for Slam

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Rod Laver went after his 30th straight match victory today and the last leg of a professional grand slam, the U.S. Open tennis championship, as he faced fellow-Australian Tony Roche for the $16,000 first prize.

Laver qualified for the title round Sunday by quickly winning two remaining games from Arthur Ashe Jr., the defending champion in the match that had been called Friday because of darkness. The final score was 8-6, 6-3, 14-12.

Roche outlasted a fellow Australian, second seeded John Newcombe, 3-6, 8-6, 4-6, 8-3, 9-7.

Roche, 24, has a 5-2 record against Laver this year and 6-3 since he turned professional two years ago.

But nobody has beaten the red-haired Rocket of Rockhampton since Newcombe turned the trick at Queen's Club in London, a Wimbledon prep match, last June. Laver has won the Australian, French and Wimbledon titles, the first three legs of a grand slam Don Budge et. achieved as an amateur in 1938 and Laver in 1962, also as an amateur.

Margaret Court of Australia established herself as best of the women by drubbing Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-2, 6-2, in the women's singles final.

Turk to Deal Aces

GUEBEC (CP) — Walter 'Turk' Broda, former goaltender for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Sunday signed a contract as coach of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

Broda succeeds Vic Stasiuk, now coach of Philadelphia Flyers of the NHL.

Broda, a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, retired in 1952 as goalie with the Maple Leafs.

He has since been coach of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for 10 seasons during which the Marlboros won the Memorial Cup three times.

Soviets Say Nats' Behavior 'Shameful'

MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Sovietsky Sport has accused Canadian national hockey team of "shameful bargaining" and of trying to pick up a $5,000 fee during its recent visit to Leningrad.

The newspaper says the Canadians demanded this sum for a return match with the Leningrad Army Club. The match was "properly" rejected by the Soviets.

The Canadians played five exhibition games in the Soviet Union, losing one and winning four, including a game against the army club. It left Leningrad for Helsinki last Thursday.

A Canadian source here said the return match with Leningrad Army would have been a change in the original playing schedule and a dispute developed over this. He said he did not know the details of the dispute.

Sovietsky Sport quotes John Ahearne, head of the International Hockey Federation, as saying that an effort to collect side fees on the Canadian team's official tour would be illegal. He said that the team was obliged to play whatever team the Soviet hosts named and that the case would come up for discussion at a forthcoming congress in Canada.

Good Thing Trotters Can't Reason

There are times when an inability to think can be an advantage.

Take the case of Early Lake's Pride. If the three-year-old brown stallion could have listened to the harness racing experts, he would have seen the reason behind their picking Alpha Cape the favorite in Saturday night's Black Diamond Stake.

After all, the Ottawa mare has a best lifetime mile about two full seconds under that of the pride of Earl Lake's Elgin stable.

Fortunately for both of them, neither Lake nor Pride paid any heed to the 'rabbirds' logic, and teamed to win the majestic Black Diamond Stake trophy and winner's share of a $1,900 purse in the featured race on Saturday night's Quinte Riding and Driving Club card.

Lake drove to the wire in 2:13, edging out surging Jimmy's Boy, with favored Alpha Cape running third.

The stake — postponed by rain from Quinte Exhibition week — will hereafter be known as the Harry Greenleaf Memorial, trophy donor Donald Joss announced Saturday night.

More - than $3,100 of the $25,894 pushed through the pari-mutuel Saturday was bet on the Black Diamond Stake by the 7,218 (paid) customers.

A second Lake entry — Ondelin Killean — was one of two scratches from what started as a nine-horse field. Viola McGregor was the other.

The win brought back memories for the Elgin owner - driver, whose Early Lake's John took the Black Diamond event four years ago in a record 2:05. Early Lake's Pride is the first son of John.

A Lot at Stake

For owner-driver Earl Lakes of Elgin, the spoils of Saturday night's Black Diamond Stake win included this handsome trophy presented by Donald Joss and the winner's share of a $1,300 purse. Early Lake Pride did the work, turning in a winning time of 2:13 at the Belleville Fairgrounds track.

Captains of the three division cup winners in this year's Belleville Minor Soccer Association play know that it takes more than feet to win. Here, Bob Crawford, captain of the winning Richard Ellis Peewees, and David Jones, captain of Mosquito champion Station Square admire Falcon bantams' Kevin Parry's headwork.

Hundreds of Local Reasons Soccer Most Popular Sport

There are several hundred local reasons why soccer is the most popular sport in the world, and most of them were at Zwick's Island Saturday as the Belleville Minor Soccer Association wound up a highly successful season.

From the moment Mayor J. Russell Scott officially kicked off the day's activity, there were more feet flying than the Zwick's Island park has seen in its brief existence.

First on the agenda was the settling of three division cup championships. Station Square used a hat trick by Stirling Wilson to capture the Mosquito title with a 3-0 win over Avon Jewellers.

The peewee championship was pretty much a Crawford family affair, with brothers Bobby, Peter, and Mark sharing the scoring in Richard Ellis Printers' 4-1 win over Belleville United, who got their one goal from Bill Williams.

An exciting climax was provided for the house league championships when Kevin Parry scored a sudden-death overtime goal to give the Falcons a 2-1 over Uptown Billiards and the bantam group title. Brother Kevin Parry had given the Falcons the tying goal on a penalty kick, after Paul Post had given Uptown a 1-0 lead in a goal-mouth scramble.

After dinner, many of the same boys donned all-star uniforms to take part in a three-game exhibition series with visiting Oshawa teams.

The Mosquitos partially avenged an earlier loss to Oshawa by earning a 2-2, come-from-behind draw on goals by Bobby Crawford and Paul Hipkin.

An unhappier fate was in store for the city peewee all-stars, who dropped a 5-1 decision after holding the visitors to a 1-1 first-half score on Peter Crawford's goal. Twisted ankles suffered in earlier games by a couple of Belleville "big boots" told the tale as Oshawa put in four unanswered goals in the last half.

Belleville's bantams overcame a quick 1-0 deficit and then looked back in their 4-1 win. Bob Foster drilled the opener in from centre field, and John Thompson rolled up three in a row, including a pair of headers.

Joyces Given Good Reason Why Playoff Trail Is Over

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

ORILLIA — There were many reasons why Belleville Joyces shouldn't have been as far into post-season play as they were, but Orillia Majors finally provided the most convincing here Sunday.

The Majors ended Belleville's Senior baseball season with a 16-5 win over the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association champs to take the best-of-five OBA semi-final series 3-1.

Plagued by sparse lineups all year, due to everything from fracture (Ralph Plane) to football scholarships (Terry Wellesley), the Joyces brought 19 players into Orillia Sunday to absorb a 32-hit attack by the Majors.

Even mound mainstay Bill Latchford fell victim to Orillia's "mini - park" watching four of his deliveries sail over fences barely 290 feet from home plate before yielding to reliever Garnie Adams in the fifth.

Latchford only struck out one — a rarity for the ace who hurled the only Belleville win of the series — a 3-2 four-hitter at the Fairgrounds last Wednesday.

He gave up one walk before leaving the game with the Joyces trailing 10-0. Adams fanned a pair, giving up runs on nine hits.

In addition to their patented home-park homers that accounted for 7 of 32 runs scored in their two home wins ,the Majors used their most potent weapon against the Joyces.

Former Class A pro Mike Baird won his third game of the series against no losses. The 22-year-old right-hander struck out eight Belleville batters, and gave up eight hits, including Larry Mavety's leadoff solo homer in the fourth, and Pat Asselstine's three-run shot in the eighth.

In three games, Belleville hit three homers off the Orillia ace — two more than he has given up in 150 innings all year.

Significantly, Orillia could not manage a homer in the two series games played in Belleville.

John McKibbon and midgets Paul Hall and Terry Meagher contributed singles to the Joyce attack Sunday. Meagher's driving in the first Belleville run in the third.

Third baseman "Moe" Hunter saw his hitting streak stopped at 19 games in Sunday's game, which was to have been played Saturday but was postponed by Orillia because of the threat of rain that never came.

The Majors got a pair of homers each from leadoff batter Chuck Beaudoin, and first-baseman Nick Owen, while Buist added his third of the series Ken Hipwell's three-run blow in the sixth came at Garnie Adams' expense.

Orillia now meets London Pontiacs in the OBA final.

SACO Bantams Take East

If it was a bad week for Belleville's baseball representatives, the SACO bantams painted a rosier softball picture.

The city's bantam 'A all-stars captured the Eastern Ontario OASA championship by trimming Peterborough UEW 11-1 at the Alemite Saturday.

Ken Johnson went the nine-inning route on the winner's stab, restricting Peterborough to four hits, while striking out 12 and walking three.

Garth Penn's homer and Ken Vos' triple were the big blows in Belleville's eight-hit total. David Dolan contributed a pair of singles.

Peterborough pitching chores were shared by Randy Spencer, Fred Vivah and Brian Simmons, who walked 11 and fanned five. Simmons' double was the only extra base hit yielded by SACO's Ken Johnson.

Belleville now advances to the Ontario semi - finals against Scarboro's North Bendale bantams, with dates to be arranged.

Ellis Midgets Ousted By North York

Belleville's Ellis Printers were blotted from further OASA Midget "A" competition Saturday when they dropped a lopsided 24-6 decision to North York to lose the best-of-three quarter - final series in straight games.

The winners rained 23 hits on Belleville pitchers Bill Buchanan, Al Travis and Ron Rodgers, who struck out four batters and walked seven among them.

The Ellis player who appeared to have the key to winner Brian Cochrane's deliveries was first - baseman Geoff Morton, whose homer, triple and single accounted for three of Belleville's five hits.

South Hastings at Wire

The South Hastings Baseball League championship is to be decided in more limelight than league organizers ever imagined.

With the senior baseb a l l Joyces eliminated from further playoff competition, and the Commercial Softball League taking a breather before its final playoff series Wednesday, Shannonville and Read will stage a fight-to-the finish Tuesday night at the Belleville Fairgrounds with virtually no competition for a healthy share of the city's sporting spectators.

Read bounced back from a 7-5 Saturday night loss to the Shannonville pennant-winners to grab an 8-4 verdict Sunday and leave the best-of-seven set in reuare, at 3-3, with a pair of ties.

Tomorrow night's game will be played to the finish under the Fairgrounds lights, beginning at 7:30.

A three-run, eight-inning outburst sparked Read to their Sunday win behind Frank Farrell's sevenhitter on nine strikeouts. A pair of homers by Bod Hill and one circuit clout by Bill Barberstock were Farell's only serious mistakes.

Shannonville reliever Bill Barbersfick absorbed the brunt of Read's 12-hit attack, giving up five runs on 10 hits, while fanning six and walking one. Slugger Dave Lewis also touched for three Read runs on two hits in his one and one-third innings.

Carm Milligan's homer and brace of doubles, and Steve White's homer and single were the best Read plate performances.

Saturday night, Shannonville got two-runs on Doug Dafoe's two-out homer in their half of the first extra inning for the 7-5 win, after counting three runs in the bottom of the ninth to knot the score 5-5.

Winning pitcher, Dave Lewis and loser Harold Pascoe each tossed nine - hitters, but Lewis Farrell's seven-hitter on nine held Read to nine singles, three by Pascoe. Lewis struck out 11, Pascoe 6.

Bill Barberstock clouted a homer and double for the winners, while Glen Barberstock hit a double, and Lary Lewis knocked two singles.

Bowerman Picks Up $310

HALIFAX (CP) — The 1969 professional golf season in Canada could easily be called the year of Bob Cox.

Cox, a 29-year-old professional from Richmond, B.C. added a fourth title to his winnings Sunday as he won the $5,000 Atlantic open golf tournament at the Oakfield Golf and Country Club near here.

He fired a three-under-par 70 in the final round to defeat runner-up Lawrence (Butch) O'Hearn of Dartmouth, N.S., the leader following the second round of play.

Cox, who has already won the Alberta and Saskatchewan Opens and the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship, finished the three-day 54-hole event seven strokes under par at 212.

O'Hearn set a competitive course record during the second round on Saturday, but faltered badly in the final round, taking a three-over-par 76 and finishing five strokes off the pace.

Phil Giroux of Montreal scored a 70 Sunday to boost him to third place.

Jack Bryant of the Ashburn Club in Halifax was the low amateur in the tournament with 230, 11 strokes over par.

Belleville native Gary Bowerman—now assistant pro at Toronto Maple Downs G. C.—was all alone in sixth place at three-over-par 222 to earn $310.

All Approaches Blind

CHATANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Nick Genovese of Hamilton, Ont., shot a 27-hole total of 163 Sunday to win the A Flight section of the 26th national blind golf tournament by a 13-stroke margin.

Redmen Hope to Repeat

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Brooklin Redmen are confident of winning their second straight national title when the Canadian senior lacrosse final resumes here tonight.

The Redmen took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Mann Cup series by winning Saturday's fourth game 15-8 and now feel they can eliminate New Westminster Blues.

Gaels Breeze by West

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — With "Oshawa Green Gaels" engraved on the Minto Cup for the seventh straight time, Jim Blabop has sealed his career as Oshawa coach just the way he wanted it.

His Gaels nipped South Vancouver Legionnaires 11-9 Saturday to win the Canadian junior lacrosse championship, beating off the first real challenge of the Western team after three games of lacklustre play.

Blabop now takes over as executive-vice-president of Detroit's Olympia, home of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

First Leg to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A practised start that came off perfectly Sunday gave Toronto's Manitou an advantage that left Niagara of Cleveland plowing through her wake for the entire 21 miles of the opening Canada's Cup yacht race.

The first two races are over similar courses. They round a single point each to the winner. Tuesday's third race over a 200-mile course counts as two races with two points at stake.

A fifth race, if necessary, is scheduled over the 21-mile course next Saturday.

Niagara and Manitou, defending the trophy won by Venture II of the RCYC in 1964, were both built to specifications by the Cruising Club of America Class 37 for this series.

Lowly Padres Knock Dodgers Down

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lowly San Diego Padres played the part of spoilers as they downed Los Angeles 4-2 Sunday and 3-1 Saturday, dropping the Dodgers from third to fourth place in the tight National League Western Division race.

The two victories completed a four-game sweep by the Padres.

The Dodgers now trail San Francisco Giants by 2½ games with Cincinnati Reds in second place, 1½ games back, followed by Atlanta Braves two games behind the leader. Houston Astros are 4½ games behind.

Montreal Expos, 40½ games down in the Eastern Division, also played giant killer as they blanked league champion St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 Sunday after a 3-2 victory over Bob Gibson Saturday.

In other Sunday action, Atlanta drubbed Cincinnati 7-3, Houston nipped San Francisco 7-6, Pittsburgh 2-1 in a 12-inning game, Chicago 7-5 in 11 innings, trimming the Cubs' Eastern Division lead to 2½ games over New York Mets who walloped Philadelphia Phillies 9-3.

Rusty Staub hit a three-run homer on a 3-0 pitch from Steve Carlton in the third inning for all the game's runs as Montreal's Bill Stoneman blanked the Cards on five hits.

Orlando Cepeda's two-run double and a two-run error by Tony Perez gave Atlanta four runs in the first inning and the Braves held on as Ron Reed posted his 15th triumph. The Braves scored two more runs in the fourth and Hank Aaron unloaded his 39th homer—and 540th of his career—in the seventh.

Houston fell behind San Francisco 6-4 when the Giants scored all their runs in the fourth against Don Wilson and Jim Bouton. But Tommie Davis doubled a run home in the last of the fourth and the Astros caught up with five in the sixth. Rector Torres won it in the last of the ninth with a two-out, bases-loaded pinch single.

Matty Alou raced home from a second on Don Kessinger's error with one out in the 11th and Richie Hebner singled home an insurance run as the Pirates sent the skidding Cubs to their fourth consecutive defeat.

Harmon Hammers Oakland

Harmon Killebrew exploded two homers, one a grand slam, and drove in seven runs Sunday to lead front-running Minnesota Twins to a 16-4 rout of Oakland Athletics.

The performance virtually ruined Oakland's chances in the American League Western Division race. The Athletics now trail the Twins by 8½ games with about three weeks to go in the regular season.

Killebrew, who boosted his American League-leading RBI total to 128, a personal season high, hammered a three-run homer in the first inning and drilled his grand slam in the second. He had to leave the game, however, after bruising his knee in the fourth inning.

In other Sunday games, Baltimore Orioles toppled Detroit Tigers 6-5 on Mark Belanger's 14th-inning single, Del Unser's two-out homer in the 10th gave Washington Senators a 3-2 victory over Boston Red Sox, Cleveland Indians snapped a tie with a run in the seventh and scored three more times in the eighth to beat New York Yankees 7-3, Billy Wynne pitched Chicago White Sox to a 4-1 victory over California Angels and Seattle Pilots rallied for two runs in the 10th inning to nip Kansas City Royals 7-6.

In Saturday action, the Twins downed Oakland 8-5, California blanked Chicago 2-0, the Royals defeated Seattle 6-2, Detroit beat Baltimore 5-4 and New York nipped Cleveland 1-0.

Moody Wins Golf's World Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Orville Moody, a second-year pro from Killeen, Tex., came on strong Sunday with a three-under par 67 for a two-stroke victory in the World Series of Golf.

His 36-hole score of 141 earned him $50,000 and pushed him near the $130,000 mark for the year in unofficial winning.

George Archer finished with a 69 for 143 while first-round leader Ray Floyd was slipping to a 73 for a tie with Tony Jacklin of London, England, at 145.

Archer's second-place finish was worth $15,000 while PGA titlist Floyd and British Open champ Jacklin, who shot a 72, split $12,500.

Moody, who played almost flawless golf with 15 pars and three birdies, said he putted better than at any time he's been on the tour.

The turning point could have been the par 4 No. 2 hole on the demanding 7,180-yard Firestone Country Club layout.

The Car Buyers Problem:
THERE'S AN EASY WAY TO GET YOUR CAR STOLEN
Jim Patterson
Leave the keys in it with the door unlocked.
Of the more than 600,000 cars stolen in the United States last year, more than half the owners obligingly assisted the thieves in this manner and 90 percent of all stolen cars were left unlocked by their owners.
Sixty percent of the cars stolen were used in holdups and other crimes. The thieves simply looked into parked cars until they came across one that was unlocked with the keys in it. They had to only get in it and drive away.
The FBI estimated that car thefts could be cut in half if motorists would lock their car and take the keys with them, even if they are going to be absent only a short time. In communities where "lock-your-car" drives have been put on, car thefts have been reduced up to 60 percent.
Even though your car is insured against theft, you cannot escape the inconvenience. Since it costs the insurance companies an average $200 dollars in recovery costs in cases when the car is found and replacement cost in non-recovery, the motorist is eventually paying the full cost in his premium rate, now at the highest level in history.
Here's another interesting statistic if you think you'll get your stolen car back in the same shape as you left it. The percentage of stolen cars involved in accidents is 200 times greater than for non-stolen cars.
Do your part and lock up.

Legionnaires Lose

It was "just one of those days" for Belleville's Branch 90 Legion Beantown Sunday, as they committed an unbelievable 11 errors to help Kitchener coast to a 21-4 win in the first game of the Ontario Baseball Association semi-finals.

Starter Brian Cousins yielded 12 runs on seven Kitchener hits, Mike Burley two on six, and Ron McTaggart a seven on six while the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association specialists seemed to do everything wrong.

At Wood — who played first base, shortstop, and left field for the Legionnaires during the game — helped event together with a fine embezzlement with his solo homer in the last inning. Wood's earlier double gave him two of Belle's six hits, the others going to Mike Burley, Eric Tugnett, Bob Moore, and Danny Lipenotte.

The second game of the best-of-three set is scheduled for Parkdale at 2 p.m. next Saturday, with a third, if necessary, at 2 p.m. the following day on the same Belleville field.

Carmel Kids Edged

Despite being outhit by a whopping 19-6 margin, Carmel showed they belonged in the Ontario Baseball Association Beatam "C" semi-finals by forcing Alan Kincaid in to relievers 11 innings before losing the best-of-three series' opener 5-4 Saturday.

Pitcher Dale Bamber kept Carmel in the game, striking out 14 over the 11 inning route.

Dale Tummon and Mike Hayes each hit safely twice for Carmel, while other hits were contributed by Bamber, and John Masterson.

Pierce was relieved of his pitching chores by Kincaid in after the visitors found themselves tied 3-3 in the first inning. Green threw a three-hitter the rest of the way, walking one and fanning nine. McLeod, Pollock and Green each collected three hits for the winners.

Second game in the best-of-three set will be played next Saturday in Kincardine at 3 p.m.

Busy Weekend for Betty

It was a successful, if busy golfing weekend for perennial Bay of Quinte Country Club champion Betty Ingram.

Saturday, Mrs. Ingram carded an 82 gross to top the field in the Port Hope Ladies' Field Day for an unprecedented third straight year, Belleville's Ena Corke was low net winner.

Then Sunday, Mrs. Ingram teamed with husband Alec to join 12 other Quinte Club

Don't Do Own Experiments; Diet Under Doctor's Control

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I was married at 17, and now at 37 have three children. A rather runner-up in a local beauty contest before marriage, I am now a hateful (to myself) "fatty".

What do you think of my taking appetite-control pills (drugs), thyroid, and injections to remove excess fluid from my system? I've also been thinking of taking daily purgatives to drive the calories out before they settle down. — Mrs. R.

COMMENT: I don't think you'll like me for what I'm going to say, Mrs. Y. I disagree with each one of your suggestions for weight loss.

Appetite depressants are only temporary crutches. One who takes thyroid experiments with a potentially dangerous drug. Diuretics? Remember they produce water loss, not fat loss. Purgatives will upset and inflame your lower bowel. The excess fat will pile on anyway.

With all these negatives, what is the positive answer? Obviously, you can't starve, but you can't stand the heat, better get out of the kitchen." To paraphrase Dr. Allen, people who have obesity problems are "If you can't stop opening the refrigerator or pantry door, better stay out of the kitchen."

For it's overeating — whether snacks or at meal time — which produces the insidious collection of fat. With pencil and pad note every bit of food and drink you have been in the habit of taking for a week. You will find an inordinate amount of extra calories. Eliminate these and you can kick your problem: it is as simple as that.

Here are some practical tips: Be patient. Don't go in for "crash diets." Otherwise, you will fail. You must have enough will to acquire good eating habits you are willing to follow for the rest of your life.

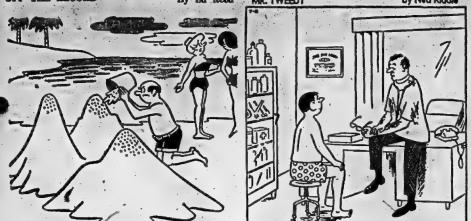
Eat only the lean portion of meat. Drink skim milk. Do not eat potatoes, rice, butter, bread, peanuts, candy, pies, cakes, fatty foods, sausages, gravies, nuts, cream, sauces, doughnuts, popcorn, sugars, syrups, etc. Eat a well-balanced diet of meat, fowl, fish, fruits, cereals. It's all a matter of will or won't power.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have osteoarthritis. I am 68 and have been taking aspirin a day for over 35 years. Never had any bad effects. Aspirin makes me feel good. Shall I stop it? Lately I've heard it's bad for the stomach. — Mr. G.

COMMENT: If you doctor says it's right, keep on with it. And be thankful there is such a blessing. It is true that some people can't take it without getting some stomach complications like gastritis, heartburn, bleeding, etc. But when you consider how many millions take it day after day, and are helped, better forget the few you hear about who are allergic to it.

* * *



For Mr. T.: I don't go along with the saying that "hard work never killed anyone." I think that at the age of 46 you are inviting serious trouble by moonlighting. Two jobs with only four hours of sleep a night, are bound to get you down after a while.

* * *

For Miss G.: Like many other girls at an early age you are the victim of harassing old wives' tales about the "menace of menopause." At 37, better forget it. But remember this, though: at least 90 per cent of women sail blissfully through this era, if other than stormy ones, at the time of their change of life.

* * *

For Mr. A.: Yes, I still believe that a wife should keep nagging a sick husband until he agrees to see a doctor. He may get angry, but will keep thank you for it later. Besides, as I keep repeating: it's better to be a nagging wife who has a live husband around than a widow, rather than be a lonely, ageless widow.

MPs Visit Huge Arctic Tanker Sailing in Canadian Waters

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleven members of Parliament returned here Sunday night from a flag-waving expedition to Canada's northland, convinced they had helped establish Canada's claim to Arctic waters.

Chairman Ian Watson (L—LaPrairie) led the Commons committee on Indian Affairs and Northern Development on the Arctic expedition to make it clear to the American tanker Manhattan that the ship was sailing in Canadian waters after she entered Lancaster Sound south of Devon Island.

They accomplished that with a radio message from an aircraft circling the 1,000-foot tanker after she entered the fog-shrouded waters of the sound Friday night.

The committee reaffirmed the welcome with a personal visit to the Manhattan Saturday, as she slipped through relatively ice-free waters in Barrow Strait about 20 miles west of Resolute.

The MPs were given the grand tour of the floating laboratory on which Humble Oil Co. spent $40,000,000 in an attempt to prove that Alaska oil can be shipped through the Northwest Passage on a year-round basis.

Mr. Watson, in an interview aboard Manhattan before leaving by helicopter for the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Labrador, said the Humble people had no wish to become involved in a dispute over the sovereignty question but were caught in the middle as a result of their voyage.

As Manhattan cruised slowly through Barrow Strait waters within sight of land, she flew no flags of any kind.

This raised the ire of Robert (Bud) Orange (L—Northwest Territories) who considered it a "discourtesy" for the ship not to fly a Canadian flag on her foremast while sailing in Canadian waters.

Mr. Orange said it was traditional practice for a ship to fly the flag of the country in whose waters she was sailing.

Questioned lack of any flags aboard the Manhattan, Stanley Haas, project manager for Humble's Arctic venture, said it was "standard practice not to fly any flag in international waters." His position was upheld by Capt. Tom Pullen, official Canadian representative aboard Manhattan.

Eight members of the Commons committee and a Canadian press contingent spent most of Saturday aboard Labrador, cruising around the tanker as she poked around looking for ice pans to smash with her bow.

The transfer to the tanker from Labrador was made by helicopter in two and threes. At a brief reception the MPs presented Capt. Roger Steward, Manhattan's master, with an Eskimo carving and a rusty square nail.

The nail had been extracted the night before by the three MPs from a plank that had floated ashore in Cambridge Bay from the nearby wreck of the Mand, a ship used by Capt. Roland Amundsen who was the first to sail through the Northwest Passage, but in another vessel.

After a quick meal, the MPs returned by helicopter to the Labrador.

During their visit north which began last Wednesday, the MPs spent a day visiting the Pan Arctic Ltd. oil drilling site on Melville Island.

They watched supplies being unloaded from the freighter Lord Dan and later flew over one of Pan Arctic's more promising drilling sites. The well was spouting gas and water from a recent blowout which drilling crews were attempting to control.

Nigerian Civil War

U Thant Pleads for Peace Talks

From Reuters-AP

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (CP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant called Sunday for talks to end the Nigerian civil war, A Biafran spokesman promptly declared his state is ready to send a negotiating team here if its safety is guaranteed.

The Biafran spokesman told a press conference here of the Organization of African Unity that Biafra wants the OAU to create the necessary atmosphere for talks between responsible authorities on both the federal Nigerian and Biafran sides.

He said Biafran leader Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu cannot leave the country without guarantees for his safety.

The Biafran delegation earlier made it clear in a statement it was insisting on unconditional talks. The Nigerian head of state, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, however, told the six-mile Saturday night: "It is not possible for us to compromise on the principle of the territorial integrity of Nigeria."

Thant appealed for an end to "that dreaded cycle of starvation, disease and death" in war-torn Nigeria and Biafra.

Only OAU initiatives can end the civil war, Thant said.

The organization is pledged to maintain Nigeria's original boundaries. Biafra once was part of Nigeria.

Thant said OAU recommendations "should lead to the cessation of hostilities and the successful negotiation of arrangements for a permanent settlement. . . ."

"For that reason, I must once again express the earnest hope that notwithstanding the passions and the bitterness engendered by the hostilities, fruitful negotiations pursuant to the initiatives which have recently been under the aegis of the consultative committee, will be carried out, with a view to bringing the strife to an end and to assure the security of all the people of that country."

Thant's speech, the summit went into closed session to begin four days of private talks on Nigeria, economic sanctions and guerrilla action against white-minority governments of Southern Africa. Israel's occupation of parts of Egypt — a member of the OAU — the plight of more than 1,000,000 refugees in Africa and other items.

Multi-Millionaire Denies Mafia Links

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Mayor Joseph Alioto, a prominent Democrat and possible candidate for the California governorship next year, discounted Sunday charges he is linked with the Mafia by stating that his entire $6,000,000 fortune is a product of his law practice.

Alioto made public his finances after filing a $12,500,000 libel suit against Look magazine and its publisher, Gardner Cowles.

An article in the forthcoming edition of Look alleges the 53-year-old mayor is "enmeshed in Mafia business with at least six leaders of the La Cosa Nostra. . . ."

The mayor, in a declaration in The Examiner, placed his net worth at more than $6,000,000 including holdings in ranches, country clubs, warehouses, theatres and rental units.

He said his law firm, special-izing in anti-trust work, had blossomed into an "extremely lucrative" business. Over the last five years alone he received three separate fees of $1,000,000.

U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole, chief federal prosecutor in Northern California, and San Francisco police Chief Thomas Cahill have backed Alioto in denying the Look allegations.

The mayor told a news conference Sunday: "I categorically deny that I have ever had any connection, direct or indirect, with Mafia or underworld activities of any nature whatsoever."

But the magazine stood by the five-page article and refused to hold it back despite Alioto's demands that he be allowed to look it over before it went to press.

Cowles, in a cabled response to the mayor, said the two freelance reporters who wrote the article had thoroughly researched it and that their work had been checked.

Province As Unit Said Out of Date

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor James Service of Peterborough declared dissolved provincial governments as out of date, calling for stronger ties between municipal and federal levels of government.

At an urban-affairs conference sponsored by the Don Valley Liberal Association, Mayor Service said that at a time when Metropolitan Toronto is more populous than all but three provinces, provincial governments are outdated.

"Aside from the French-English question, the most important issue we face in Canada today is to create a system of government in which municipalities have a voice in the constitution.

"When the Fathers of Confederation set up provinces, Canada was a country of hamlets. Soon 80 per cent of our population will live in cities in five economic regions. It is the job of the federal government to work out with the provinces plans to overcome the regional disparities in Canada."

Robert Kaplan, Liberal member of Parliament for Don Valley, said the conference was called to test public reaction to the resignation last April of Toronto Controller Paul Hellyer because of the government's failure to implement recommendations of the federal inquiry into housing.

He said the conference indicated to him that "most people seemed to think that municipal governments should be given greater powers to deal effectively with the federal government directly."

Strictly Personal

It Is Easy to Feel Better

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Nobody is really quite sure how he feels (or how he looks) until somebody tells him. We are the most impressionable creatures on God's green earth, and a kind word can set us up for a whole week.

This verdant thought occurred to me yesterday, when I took a medical examination for some new life insurance. My company's physician not only found nothing wrong with me, but added at the bottom of his paper: "Healthy and vigorous in general appearance."

For a few days before that I had been feeling terrible — slightly dizzy and headachy, with a strange twinge in my back muscles, which I attributed to too much tennis and not enough sleep over the week-end.

I had also begun to brood silently about the possibility of cancer of the mouth, inducted by smoking two packs of cigarets a day, so that my tongue felt like those old cloth bags used for beyonet practice.

But when the doctor wrote "healthy and vigorous," I promptly took a deep breath, skipped briskly about the room, and began telephoning to work up a game of doubles match. With maybe an all-night poker session to follow.

The curious thing is, happens just as easily. You are feeling perfectly fine, an old friend walks by and says, "You're looking sort of peaked," and all your vigor runs out at your heels. One remark of that kind and men have been known to hie themselves off to the Mayo Clinic, will in hand.

"You're looking thinner," somebody will say, and you begin to fret about possible emaciation. Or, if you tend toward corpulence, an innocent "Haven't you put on some weight lately?" will make you feel as if you are surreptitiously ballooning up hour by hour.

Every student of feminine psychology knows that a woman can be made to feel pretty simply by telling her how nice she looks when she comes down dressed for the evening. She may have taken her analyst-couch apart to the discarded flour sack to herself, but a gallant insincerity turns her into a blooming beauty.

The worst people — demagogues and nihilistics — know the tremendous impressionability of humans; but the best people — lovers and parents — have barely learned how to use it. One compliment, as the Chinese never said, is worth 1,000 complaints.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 9

Your birthday today: Your experience in the year ahead promises to be less demanding than last year's...with more opportunity for reflection. Your earnings should stabilize at higher levels now. You may find yourself choosing to travel rather than stay at home and working alone rather than in company. This is a matter of prudence and philosophic in their living.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Much can be accomplished today so put forth your most efficient efforts. Your emotional ties manifest themselves sharply and clearly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): If you are going to improve your property be sure that you have a full understanding with everybody. It's an excellent day for getting things done in this area.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Confusing conditions come and go — do not let them lead you into snap decisions. Stick with your plans and continue to stay busy. Home and family life are strongly favored this evening.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Stir yourself a bit today as there is much to gain even at the cost of effort. Your work will require an extra spurt. Travel connections are erratic.

LEO (July 22 — Aug. 22): The inclination is to daydream. Travel, particularly on water, is hazardous. Wait for the whole story before you pass judgment about a partner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Resolve today to find a sound personal improvement program; further study, if you are not at present pursuing one. Keep a steady course, a conservative philosophy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Sometimes your friends see things that you miss; give and take advice. Persuade people to attempt more in planning their lives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your personal touch is essential to your financial affairs today — do not delegate any activity. Take enough time for decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 22): Expect others around you to change their minds. Journeys may be delayed or cancelled. Somebody you care about puzzles you. Business is tense. Tonight find a quiet place to study.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Efficiency today. Endeavor to collect whatever is due you. Wear something new. The evening lends itself to gaiety, mild sport.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Put in a full day as early as you can. Dealings with friends can be constructive today. Be careful that there are no misunderstandings. Diplomacy will be needed.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is one of those days where you go along with younger people instead of trying to push them your way. Somebody at close range will be temperamental or erratic, so prepare to cope with a tantrum.

Paisley's Turn

Devlin Quits Tour Over Fund Handling

LONDON (AP) — Bernadette Devlin, Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic civil rights fighter, cut short her fund-raising tour of the United States because she was worried about how the money she collected might be used, The Observer says.

The Observer says that halfway through her tour, Miss Devlin discovered the National Association for Irish Justice that arranged her schedule was involved in fund-raising for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The newspaper says she returned home to set up an interdenominational committee to make sure the money would be used only for relief in Northern Ireland.

It quotes her as saying in an interview: "I didn't feel I could go to Boston, where there was a hugely generous Irish-American community just waiting to be tapped for money, nor to Washington, where there was a lot of sympathy for our cause, when I could no longer guarantee to people how their money might be used."

The Observer quotes her as saying that in California she overheard an organizer from the National Association for Irish Justice say over a telephone: "Never mind, play her along. We've got the money and that's all that matters."

The newspaper says Miss Devlin then started opening bank accounts marked Northern Ireland Emergency Fund. Money from them could be transferred only in her name, The Observer says.

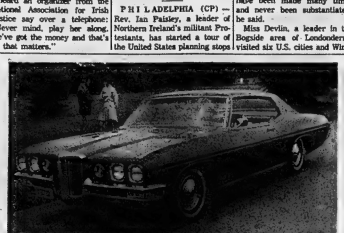
The newspaper says that after Miss Devlin was told in New York that she would have only one vote on a committee formed to decide how the funds should be used, she cancelled the rest of her visit and flew to Northern Ireland.

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Rev. Ian Paisley, a leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestants, has started a tour of the United States planning stops at the same cities visited earlier by Roman Catholic activist Bernadette Devlin.

He launched his tour here Saturday night by calling Miss Devlin "the nearest thing to a Communist in the Roman Catholic Church that I can see."

Paisley, moderator of the Free Presbyterian Church in Belfast, also said Ulster Catholics do not accept the constitution of Northern Ireland.

Catholic charges of gerrymandering and unequal civil rights have been made many times and never been substantiated, he said.



Miss Devlin, a leader in the Bogside area of Londonderry, visited six U.S. cities and Windsor, Ont., in a tour to raise $1,000,000 for refugees from last month's Ulster riots between Catholics and Protestants.

Paisley said the only real barricades in Ulster are in the Catholic portions of Belfast. The Catholic sectors were being run as communes and neither police, the army or city officials were allowed to pass through.

He said he is seeking to raise money for the Northern Ireland branch of the International Christian Relief Fund.

Paisley said on leaving for the U.S. that he hopes to rally Protestant support during his tour. He said he hopes to meet United Nations Secretary-General U Thant.

Iraq Executes 3 Spies

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters) —Iraq executed three convicted spies, apparently all Moslems, at dawn today as agents of the United States and Israel.

The executions raised to 54 the number of Iraqi nationals executed as spies for the U.S., Israel or Iran this year.

The Syrian news agency, quoting the official Iraqi news agency, did not specify the method of execution. In the past, civilians have been hanged and military men have been shot.

Judging by the names of the three men—Kanber Karam, Ahmad Abbas and Mohammed Ridha Haydar—all were Moslems, observers here said.

Previous executions have evoked worldwide concern because many of those convicted were Jews or Christians.

Even some Arab states were dismayed by Iraq's behavior after the first set of executions in January, when the government publicly displayed the bodies in Baghdad and Basra and encouraged rejoicing in the streets.

There was no report here of a trial of the three men executed today. Their names were not among the last group of 12 men —nine Christians, two Jews and a Moslem—who were reported last month to have been sent for trial before a revolutionary court.

Pontiac Has Many Series

Pontiac offers its widest model choice ever for 1970. Series names for full-size Pontiacs will be Bonneville, Executive, Catalina, Safari, 2+2, Parisienne, Laurentian and Strato-Chief. Wheelbases will be 125-inches, 122-inches or 119-inches, depending on model. Standard engines will range from a 250-cubic-inch-Six to a 445-cubic-inch V8. Pontiac's personal luxury car, the Grand Prix, is on a 118-inch wheelbase with a 400-cubic-inch standard V8. The 1970 Pontiac Parisienne hardtop coupe is shown above.

Vietnam Fighting In Pause

SAIGON (Reuters) — The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands said today that they were scaling down their military operations to the same level as the Viet Cong's during the three-day Communist ceasefire in mourning for Ho Chi Minh.

The commands earlier reported half a dozen scattered guerrilla attacks after the Communist ceasefire went into effect at 1 a.m. (1 p.m. EDT Sunday). They included fighting near Da Nang, a mortar attack on a district town and four minor incidents.

Mystery Train on Prairies Only People Seeking Solitude

CALGARY (CP) — A Canadian National Railways spokesman said Sunday that a CNR train which became cloaked in mystery through weekend radio reports was only a charter for "a group of private individuals who want to be left alone."

Jim Pitts, CNR manager for Alberta, said in an interview in Edmonton he was distressed that the group had chosen to ensure its privacy in the way it did, since the outcome was a great deal of publicity during the weekend.

A radio station reporter in Calgary said Sunday that, while attempting to obtain a story on the train, he approached to within about 100 feet of it at a Calgary marshalling yard and asked a man on the train whether, if he came closer, he would be shot.

Dale O'Hara of CKXL said the man replied "probably" and "didn't smile when he said it."

Mr. Pitts, when asked about Mr. O'Hara's report, said that "if such a thing was said I'm sure it wasn't any of our (railway) people."

Mr. O'Hara said CHED radio in Edmonton first broke the story on the train on the basis of information received from a CNR source.

He said he discovered the train was at the Sarcee marshalling yard in Calgary and drove there in his car. It was there he talked with an unidentified man on the train about the possibility of getting shot.

Mr. O'Hara said he was able to find out only a few details about the train.

He said the train has 14 cars, pulled by three diesel engines. The cars are all passenger cars except for one dome car, one baggage car and one caboose.

The train left Calgary, apparently empty, at about 2 p.m. Saturday. It stopped at Beiseker and Conrich, two hamlets north of Calgary, and arrived in Edmonton with about 60 persons aboard.

The train Sunday night was completing a second Calgary-to-Edmonton trip, and Mr. O'Hara said his sources told him the procedure was to continue until Wednesday.

Eldorado

Mr. and Mrs. George Whyte and family spent the weekend as a company trip.

Mrs. C. D. McCrae is spending a few days with Mrs. Elgin Post of Madoc.

Mrs. Cyril Shaw and Mrs. Harley Blackburn attended 4-H Leaders' Training School in Madoc at the Sacred Heart Parish Hall on August 26 and 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chambers and Lori spent a day recently at Bracebridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pigden were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pigden.

New Proposal

No Veto on Intelsat

NEW YORK (CP) — A task force set up by a private philanthropic foundation recommended today that the International Telecommunications Satellite consortium be transformed into a bigger, more comprehensive and better-integrated system capable of providing total communications services for all nations.

The task force of the Twentieth Century Fund urged that no single country have the right of veto over any Intelsat decision. This proposal would rule out virtual United States control of the consortium of 61 nations including Canada. The U.S. now exercises such a veto by virtue of its 53-per-cent investment in the system.

The report also urges an international managerial staff for Intelsat through the gradual withdrawal of Comsat, the American private corporation set up by the U.S. Congress, as Intelsat manager.

Prof. Edward McWhinney, director of McGill University's space law centre, was a member of the Twentieth Century Fund's task force, which was headed by Professor Harold Jacobson of the University of Michigan.

The report is the first of a series of fund publications intended to stimulate public interest in critical problems and the first report by an independent group on the future of satellite communications.

Canada is represented in Intelsat by Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp., which has a receiving and sending station at Mill Village, N.S.

Twentieth Century Fund was founded in 1919 and endowed by Edward A. Filene. A board of trustees administers its funds as a public trust, devoting them mainly to research activities.

Incident Upsets Councillors

Picton Council Asks Review of Adequacy of Police Force

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The adequacy of the Picton Police Department will be the subject of a survey by the Attorney General's office if a request by town council is acted upon by the provincial department.

Action by council in requesting the review followed remarks at last night's meeting when Councillor Mrs. B. F. Ackerman told council of an incident that involved her with the town police earlier in the day.

Mrs. Ackerman told council that her daughter was on her way home from school when a boy approached her, took her by the arm and told her he carried a switch blade. He insisted she accompany him to the fair grounds where he said four other boys were waiting to pay him $10 for bringing her there, Mrs. Ackerman said.

The councillor said her daughter was able to free herself from the boy's grip and hurried home to report the incident.

Mrs. Ackerman said she reported it to the police moments later and in 20 minutes time was told by Police Chief George Pitt that a youngster had been brought to the station. Mrs. Ackerman told council she became upset when she learned the boy would not be held in custody and was to be released on bail.

The councillor said she became angry when the police chief told her that her daughter must identify the boy in a line-up and arrangements for this would take time.

Reeve Bernard Hepburn, who then told council he had been contacted by Mrs. Ackerman, said he went to the police station where the boy was being interrogated and insisted that a line-up be arranged at once.

Subsequently the boy was placed in custody without bail.

Mrs. Ackerman complained to council that the Hill street area where she resided "is like a drag strip every night and I wonder about the effectiveness of our police force . . ."

At this stage Deputy Reeve Donald Thompson told council "it wouldn't cost a nickel to have the attorney general's office make a survey of our needs."

A motion for the survey was then drawn up and carried by council.

Crowd Helps Save Truck As Firemen Fight Blaze

Fire Destroys Storage Shed

By HARRY MULHALL, Staff Reporter

Investigators today were probing the ruins of one of Belleville's oldest railroad buildings, spectacularly gutted by fire last night.

Cause of the blaze that erupted through the one-time Emily Street freight sheds of the Canadian National Railways was still unknown this morning.

"What caused it we have yet no idea," said Fire Chief Leo Cubane, awaiting the findings of fire inspectors he sent to the scene.

Estimates of loss in the blaze — that mobilized all city fire units on a general alarm — were still being tallied today. Officials were reluctant to quote a figure, although one unofficial estimate said the loss could range into several hundred thousand dollars.

The building, made obsolete by a new freight terminal more than three years ago, was a huge but dilapidated structure.

Loss will be geared to its contents at the time of the fire — electrical equipment used by CN's signal department. Railroad officials this morning were taking inventory of equipment destroyed to discover cash value of the real damage.

But the spectacular and dramatic implications of the big blaze were out of proportion to the real loss, officials believe.

Israel Raids Egypt Soil

From AP-Reuters

Israeli aircraft and armored units thrust into Egypt across the Gulf of Suez today in a raid on Egyptian army positions, the Israeli Army announced.

It was the biggest action reported on the Egyptian-Israeli front since the 1967 Middle East war.

The 10-hour operation ranged over a 30-mile stretch of the Egyptian shore, a military spokesman reported.

One Israeli plane was lost and the pilot parachuted into the Gulf of Suez, he said.

The attack began at 2 a.m., and lasted until noon, the spokesman said in making the disclosure in Tel Aviv.

The Israelis used naval vessels to take their armor across the 25-mile-wide gulf.

He listed Israeli casualties as one soldier wounded and claimed dozens of Egyptian soldiers were killed or wounded and "heavy damage caused" to Egyptian equipment.

The planes bombed and strafed artillery batteries and units of the Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles, he said.

The action raged between El Hasayer and Ras Za' Farana, 60 miles south of the port of Suez at the southern end of the Suez canal.

The Israelis said they destroyed army bases and encampments, vehicles, radar stations and bridges.

The Egyptians put up no air or sea resistance, the spokesman said.

This was the biggest attack by Israel on any Arab power since the raid into Jordan in March, 1968, when Israeli forces hit an Arab commando base at Karameh. This day-long action, also supported by tanks and planes, killed more than 120 guerrillas, the Israelis claimed then.

Israeli diplomatic sources denied reports that a full-scale invasion of Egypt was under way. Rather, they said, it was a raid, larger than usual, against Egyptian positions.

Egypt's Middle East news agency said only that Israeli planes made successive raids on Egyptian coastal observation posts along the Gulf of Suez and that Egyptian air defences engaged the Israeli aircraft.

Monday, Israeli naval forces ventured into the Gulf of Suez to engage Egyptian naval craft. Israel claimed sinking two Egyptian patrol torpedo boats in the first naval battle between the two countries in nearly two years. Cairo said one Egyptian craft was hit but did not sink and the Egyptians said they sank an Israeli vessel.

The Columbia Broadcasting System carried a report over its radio network that Israeli Army units, backed by tanks and under cover of aircraft, "invaded" Egypt this morning.

CBS said Israeli military sources gave first news of the landing, said to be the largest since the six-day war in June, 1967. The exact location was not disclosed.

But a spokesman for the Israeli embassy in Washington denied the military action was an invasion.

"This is no invasion," he said. "This is a raid, maybe a bit larger in scale, but a raid."

The raid was directed against a string of Egyptian military positions in the Gulf of Suez area.

Anthony Hatch, CBS newsman in Jerusalem, said the sources reported that the Israeli action involved armored units including tanks and other support vehicles which were landed from assault vessels under the cover of Israeli warplanes.

Hatch reported that a high foreign ministry official said the attack was "to improve our position along the canal, to set a high price for Egypt's aggression and to prove that their side

Pension Changes Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — Hong Kong veterans who have a disability would be entitled to a 50 per-cent minimum pension under terms of a government white paper made public today.

If their disability warrants it they will receive a higher pension. . .

The white paper, setting forth a new deal for Canada's 126,800 war pensioners, was made public by Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube.

Among its sweeping proposals was one by which 100-per-cent pensioners would receive annual or lump-sum payments of $400 to $1,200 a year for "specified amenities."

In proposing them the white paper recognized that some 100-per-cent pensioners suffer unusual social and psychological disadvantages in addition to their physical disabilities.

Ho's Will Says Victory Certain

HONG KONG (Reuters) — More than 100,000 persons packed Hanoi's Ba Dinh Square today to attend funeral services for Ho Chi Minh and hear his uncompromising last testament, which called on North Vietnam "to fight U.S. aggressors until total victory."

In the will read by Le Duan, Communist party, first secretary, Ho said that victory over the United States was an "absolute certainty," though he predicted that hardships and sacrifices still lay ahead.

Referring to the bitter ideological split between Russia and China, Ho said he looked forward to the day when they would be united again.

In the will, dated May 10, Ho said "despite the hardship lying ahead, our people will win certain victory. Our fatherland will be unified."

"Resistance against U.S. aggression may entail great sacrifices by our people. In any case, we must be resolved to fight against U.S. aggressors until total victory."

Mass Meeting Ban Defied

Hate Stations Jammed by British Troops

BELFAST (CP) — The British Army today silenced voices of hate by jamming the broadcasts of three clandestine extremist radio stations that were accused of exacerbating tensions between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland.

The three radio stations—two of which urged Protestants to "meet fire with fire" against Catholic neighbors — were reduced to feeble buzzing as British troops began jamming operations.

The stations were Protestant Radio Ulster, Catholic Free Belfast and Protestant Radio Orange.

The latest move to cool the rising tensions in the capital followed an agreement between the Ulster and British governments. The army was believed for some time in favor of such action.

An army spokesman said the decision was taken in the interests of law and order. "These radio stations are drawing crowds out on the streets," he said. "They can easily cause trouble."

At the same time 500 troops were moved from Londonderry —flashpoint of sectarian warfare which has claimed nine lives—to reinforce the 2,000 on duty in and around Belfast.

As the new troops began arriving, tension was still high nearly 24 hours after a Protestant vigilante was shot and killed, the ninth person to die in Northern Ireland since riots last month.

Police said that several shots were fired just before dawn in a street adjoining a Protestant area.

"Troops moved in to investigate and reported that no one had been hurt," a police spokesman said.

A crowd of 3,000 Protestants waving British flags marched to the sound of flute and accordion bands through city streets until the early hours in defiance of a government ban on mass meetings.

But attempts to invade Catholic areas were stifled by troops and peace-keeping vigilantes. A number of isolated gasoline bomb attacks were reported. None of them caused serious damage.

Leaders of the two religious factions called on the authorities for tougher measures to stamp out civil strife.

They said that all persons arrested for having firearms be refused bail and held in custody until tried and that a curfew be imposed by the military authorities "in such areas and at such times" as the army judges proper. .

In addition to the curfew, the conference asked that all liquor stores, bars and clubs be closed at 8 p.m.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, army commander and director of security operations, met with members of Belfast city council. He was faced with a barrage of demands for tougher action to break down the street barricades, both Catholic and Protestant, which are daily increasing despite three weeks of army control.

Gerda Heading For Cape

NEW YORK (AP) — Hurricane Gerda picked up more speed today and raced toward New England on a course that could bring her to the Cape Cod area by noon.

The Washington weather bureau reported that Gerda had increased speed to 40 miles an hour and continued moving north-northeast.

At 8 a.m. EDT, she was about 150 miles east of Cape May, N.J.

Highest winds were about 90 miles an hour near the centre and conditions favored further intensification, the weather bureau said.

One Vote Makes Difference

Council Rejects Bid to Block Extension of City Services

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

City council by a close 6-5 vote yesterday turned down a motion from Alderman Arthur Keegan which would have ruled out extension of city services to rural townships until completion of a joint study on the feasibility of either annexation or amalgamation.

The recommendation was originally presented in notice of motion from earlier in the summer but was referred back for re-drafting when council considered the wording too harsh.

But the alderman still felt extention of services to the townships would be a mistake. He claimed if it occurred 800 to 1,000 acres of city land would remain forever undeveloped.

But other councillors took a different view, claiming Belleville should not completely shut the door against city services in township areas.

Alderman Paul Russell said council should consider each application from the townships on its own merits. Otherwise, the whole area might lose out on a large industry, he said.

Alderman Gerald Joyce took the same attitude.

"It is not only city tax money involved here, but job opportunities as well," he said.

He assured council would not give anything away but stressed that the city could not afford the luxury of losing a big industry.

Even if an industry located outside Belleville boundaries workers would be Belleville, he said.

Alderman Boyle said Alderman Keegan was simply endeavoring to formulate policy. He said it would be a serious mistake to allow townships to hook into services paid by city taxpayers.

Alderman Donald Williams claimed wording of the motion was in effect, demanding amalgamation.

"Amalgamations are not brought about by force," he said.

In any event the city would be charging for services extentions.

Alderman Keegan pointed to dry and polluted wells in the Canniton area and said that it was owners of these who should be demanding amalgamation with the city.

The alderman referred back to the proposed north-end plaza development — being opposed by Oshawa Wholesale, parent of Towers Discount Department Stores. He said the city should have refused to extend water services when Towers was built outside weekend Belleville.

"It is time council woke up and fought for the future of the city," he said.

On a recorded vote Mayor J. R. Scott and Aldermen Douglas Boyle, Robin Jeffrey, Arthur Keegan and Kenneth Sodon voted for the motion. Opposed were Aldermen Enos David, Richard Ellis, Gerald Joyce, E. A. Orr, Paul Russell and Donald Williams.

Mayor Says Mortgage Money Assured

Lending institutions may have cut back the amount of mortgage money available for many municipalities across Canada, but this will not apply in Belleville.

This was indicated yesterday to council by Mayor J. R. Scott who said that as a result of a special request, banks, loan and trust companies had assured that mortgage money would be available in this city.

In view of the critical need for additional housing in Belleville the mayor said a private meeting had been held with builders in the city.

Following this more than 20 letters had gone out to various lending institutions. The letters stressed the growth potential in Belleville and noted as much as $10 million in mortgage money would be needed.

"The response was tremendous," stated Mayor Scott. "We have already received 23 letters in reply.

As a result of the request and the expressed special need, Belleville will be well taken care of, according to the mayor.

"There will not be the problem of mortgage money in Belleville," he said.

All Area Municipalities Agree to Discuss Problems

Mayor J. Russell Scott and City Manager J. R. Reynolds will set a date for a meeting with adjacent municipalities to discuss regional government and planning problems.

The meeting was proposed prior to the summer recess by Ald. Arthur Keegan and all municipalities contacted have agreed to meet with city council for the discussions.

The town of Trenton has requested the city to invite the reeve and deputy reeve of Murray township for the discussions. The request was in view of the fact Trenton's growth is to the west and any development taking place will probably be in that direction.

Also the township of Thurlow has asked that an agenda be prepared advising what subjects are to be discussed at the meeting.

City Manager Reynolds felt the initial meeting should be one for general discussion covering all topics of general interest following which an agenda could be prepared for future meetings.

Consumer Is Often Prey for Gimmicks

An advertisement offering a cure for arthritis has been under investigation for some time by Metro Toronto and Ontario Provincial Police, Paul Jones of the Consumer Protection Bureau of the Ontario Department of Finance and Commercial Affairs told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Mr. Jones said he did not think newspapers were liable for such advertisements but he thought they should endeavor to screen them.

Mr. Jones surveyed the terms of reference of the Select Committee of 1963 which heard briefs from businessmen and consumer groups. Their briefs were mainly on the subject of consumer credit and door-to-door selling as these seemed to be the areas in which abuses were prevalent.

The growth of consumer credit, said Mr. Jones, came as a by-product of changing times bringing with it many benefits. However, its easy accessibility extended by volume-conscious lenders to uninformed and uneducated consumers, brought destitute conditions and tragedy in some cases.

Unethical door-to-door sellers, operating with convenient credit packages opened with the first rebuta of spring to entice customers. All too often, said Mr. Jones, the latter happily assumed they had driven good bargains, but what they often received was slipshod work, flimsy articles and materials, hollow guarantees and exorbitantly high bills.

The Consumer Protection Act, he said, provides protection against such situations, insisting for example, on proper contracts and rebates where necessary.

Mr. Jones said that while provisions had been made for the control of false, misleading and deceptive advertising, consumers should exercise caution and examine all the facts.

"Consumers often succumb to free offers and gimmicks which invariably lead to 'buyer's remorse.' Too late they learn all that glitters is not gold and that the supposed free gifts are conditional on other purchases, or in fact, not free at all."

The speaker said the Consumer Protection Bureau had handled a wide range of complaints.

"In these cases, we appeal to the morals of the parties concerned for redress after a careful, unbiased analysis is made. A few companies have had their hearts and do nothing, but by and large some form of settlement is made.

"We are able to research areas of abuse and those practices of industry which do not clean their own houses leave themselves open to closer scrutiny - - "

Dedicate Park To Foreman

PICTON — The town of Picton will dedicate Memorial Park Field in memory of late town foreman Angus Le Heup Sept. 13.

Dedication service will be by Anglican rector Rev. Robert Stewart. A plaque will be unveiled by members of the late Mr. Le Heup's family.

Mr. Le Heup, who died suddenly last winter, was keenly interested in youth activities and town council considered dedication of the Delhi Park a suitable tribute to him.

Bid to Restore City Grants Lost

Local organizations who missed out this year on their regular city grants may have to struggle along a while longer without municipal help.

Last July Alderman Donald Williams introduced a notice of motion to council asking for a special committee to suggest what disallowed grants could be paid this fall from treasury surpluses.

But yesterday Mayor J. R. Scott ruled the motion out of order claiming that it was contrary to this year's budget deliberations.

The same attitude was taken by City Manager J. R. Reynolds who said council should not now reverse decisions made at budget time.

Also, at the present time, there was no city surplus, he added.

Alderman Williams, obviously unhappy about his motion being ruled out of order, said council on two occasions during the meeting had approved expenditures for items not included in the budget.

At budget time city council as part of an austerity drive, cancelled grants to a number of organizations. Alderman Williams' motion was an attempt to keep some of these bodies receive municipal funds if there was a city surplus at the year end.

Police Arrest Three

PICTON (Staff) — Three Prince Edward County men were charged with causing a disturbance by Picton police yesterday following a fight at the corners of Main and Bridge Streets.

Police sent two constables to the scene at 5:15 p.m. Picton police were assisted by four members of the Picton OPP detachment, police chief George Pitt said.

He said a large crowd of people had gathered to watch the fight, but the policemen were pushed and shoved as they tried to break it up.

Taken into custody were Robert Shelley, of Picton, Donald George Marchand of Picton, and Dennis Frost of RR1, Milford.

Chief Pitt said the men seemed to be fighting for no apparent reason. A traffic snarl at the top of the town hill occurred during the fight and Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn, also on the scene, directed traffic until the men could be removed by police.

A Queen For A Year Was Here

Mary Vincent toasted Belleville yesterday — in milk of course.

After all, she's Britain's 1969 Dairy Queen.

The attractive young Britisher was in the city yesterday for a one-day visit — part of her final official duties before going home.

She's been in Canada since mid-August, participating in dairy events as the Coca-Cola Ontario Dairy Princess competition.

Mary toured the Foxboro Cheese Factory and Black Diamond Cheese plant here and later was scheduled to dine with local milk committee officials. On the guest list for the dinner was Dianne Gunning, this year's Hastings County Dairy Princess and runnerup in the CNE competition.

Before taking the flight home, Mary will visit Ottawa and Montreal.

A native of Norwich where she grew up on her father's dairy farm, she attended university in Switzerland and majored at Norwich in business studies.

City Hall Pays Rental To House PUC Buses

City council has misgivings about renewal of a lease contract with Rawson Bus Company Ltd. for Belleville Transit Commission garage accommodation.

The lease renewal is for $650 per month — an increase of $200 per month over the previous figure. The matter was referred to the city manager for a report on the feasibility of purchasing the building.

Ald. Douglas Boyle said that in view of the sharp increase in the rental figure the city should consider either purchasing the building or erecting its own accommodation for city buses.

Mayor Scott said it was a revelation to him that although the garage accommodation was for use by the transit commission, the lease was with the corporation.

City manager J. R. Reynolds also felt the arrangement was strange. He said the fact that the agreement was with the corporation "disturbed" him.

City Vetoes Bid To Cut Street

Belleville city council yesterday refused the request of Bay of Quinte Towers Ltd. for permission to cut into the concrete pavement on West Bridge Street hill to make additional water and sewer connections for their new apartment structure.

Mayor J. R. Scott asked if it was not true that sewer and water connections for the proposed apartment structure had not been put in before the street was newly paved last year.

Police Can't Have New Car

PICTON — Mayor McFarland last night assured town council that the contract between town police and the Picton Police Commission has been officially signed.

Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1969, it provides policemen with a salary increase of $1,000 over a two year period. Working hours will be shortened next year to give police a 40-hour week. Current work week is 45 hours.

The mayor referred to "new rules" in the police department which require reports to report more frequently to commission chairman Judge Wilfred S. Lane.

The police department has been restricted from spending money beyond a specified figure unless the chairman is first consulted. This rule was made after police authorized a $500 repair job to their cruiser without discussing it with the chairman. They can't have a new car for '69," emphasized the mayor.

He said he would be a serious mistake to allow townships to hook into services paid by city taxpayers.

Alderman Donald Williams claimed wording of the motion was in effect, demanding amalgamation.

"Amalgamations are not brought about by force," he said.

In any event the city would be charging for services extentions.

Firefighters huddle down against searing heat to contain blaze as flames race through CN shed. Fanned by stiff breeze, fire spread rapidly out of control, although possible threat to nearby homes did not materialize.

Railroad Sheds Destroyed by Fire

Fanned by a stiff breeze, flames raced through the ancient structure — sited on an open land bloc — posing a positive threat to nearby homes and sheds along the railroad siding.

Natural luck was on the side of firefighters struggling against odds to contain the rampant blaze. The breeze blew flames and volleys of sparks across the open area — away from the houses.

"If that wind had swung around we'd have had a real problem," conjectured Chief Culhane. "It would have been on to those houses."

To guard against any threat from burning, breeze-born debris in the immediate area the chief stationed firefighters on nearby Bleecker Ave.,

The dimensions of the blaze drew crowds from blocks around to watch the battle on the fire lines.

Firemen smashed windows in a small fleet of trucks locked and parked overnight outside the building as the flames erupted outwards.

Railroaders and youths from the watching crowds helped firemen push the vehicles to safety.

A shunting engine was despatched from the nearby main station yards to haul away railroad wagons threatened by the blaze.

Chief Culhane believed the blaze started in the centre of the building near a partition. The building had been locked for the night when the fire broke out, racing out of control by the time firefighters scrambled to the scene at 9:50 p.m.

Contract for Data Processing Sparks Debate at School Board

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A contract for data processing service by International Business Machines Company in Kingston, signed by director of education, Eric Runacres, sparked sharp debate at the Monday night meeting of Hastings county board of education.

The contract for the 1980-70 school year will provide payroll and accounting services only - - - for a cost of $17,000.

Mott Dinner Supported

The Hastings county board of education will support the dinner Sept. 17 sponsored by the Mayor's Committee to introduce the Mott program to the Quinte area, but not to the extent the committee wished.

Trustees decided last night to contribute $200 and waive the fee for Centennial Secondary School for the evening.

The chairman of the Mayor's Committee, Donald G. Williams, asked the board for a $300 contribution. Cost of the dinner, to be attended by leading education and council officials from the counties of Northumberland, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Hastings, is expected to be about $1,200. Municipalities and school boards in the four counties are being asked for contributions to defer expenses.

The Mott program in Flint, Michigan, promotes total use of schools in a community development for all ages.

"Since the Mott program concerns use of the schools, we are glad to be specifically involved in this in the future," remarked Mrs. Miriam Graham of Belleville. She urged full support of the dinner.

But Mrs. Glynn of Belleville said the board's contribution should consist of waiver of the fee for Centennial and $200.

An amendment to his motion, proposed by Milford Waller of Thurlow and Everett Fairman of Belleville, calling for a contribution of $300 and waiver of fees, was defeated.

The separate school board has contributed $100 for the dinner and the city of Belleville $400.

All trustees and senior administrative staff of both the public and separate school boards in the county will be guests at the dinner.

Trustee Paul Flemming, representing separate school supporters, charged that the matter should have been brought before the board before the agreement was signed.

"Too much has been done without the knowledge and consent of the board", he said. "This is a costly enterprise and the board should have been informed".

In his 15-page report on computer trends in education, the director said "the administration will follow the agreed principle of not committing the board to a final, or long term, program; the board will always make decisions of this nature".

Chairman James Clarke noted that the former Bay of Quinte High School Board had used the service last year.

"This is no radical departure," he said. "It merely confirms an existing practice."

Mr. Runacres asked the board to endorse an investigation into a total information computer service that could handle the administration's needs in finance, personnel, student accounting, facilities and curriculum research.

The board eventually approved the investigation after being told purchase of machines of their own would cost over $30,000.

"And then you would be buying people and horse-and-buggy machines that would soon be obsolete," remarked Mr. Runacres.

The decision to sign the contract for the Kingston IBM service was a short-term decision, he said, dictated by the necessity to have a payroll and accounting service ready by the September school opening.

He added that the administration would not commit trustees to buy people or machines; "until you know where you are going".

"The board will have the say in any long-term decisions, he promised.

School Caretakers Now CUPE Local

Caretaking staff of the Hastings County board of education has been certified as a local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The Ontario Labor Relations Board recognized their certification last weekend, Mrs. Miriam Graham, chairman of the non-teaching staff negotiating committee, told the board at its meeting last night.

Excluded from the union are head caretakers, office staff and part-time caretaking employees.

At a later date a vote of the part-time staff will be taken to determine if they want to be included in the union.

Members of the caretaking staff of the former Belleville Public School Board were members of the union, and since merger of all individual boards in the county into the new amalgamation has been completed, have sought to organize all caretakers into the union.

Certification has been pending since last spring.

Busy Lines Locked Doors

Increased business at city hall is plugging up telephone lines. Both incoming and outgoing calls, in some instances, are delayed as long as 20 minutes.

The situation was brought to the attention of city council yesterday by Alderman Gerald Joyce who asked Bell Telephone be requested for a survey and recommendations for improved service.

He said all-over-crowded telephone lines must be aggravating to callers — particularly those calling long distance.

The same alderman also objected to the policy which sees city hall doors locked at 4:30 p.m. — even when council was in session. He felt that the city hall doors should be open any time council was in session.

Mayor J. R. Scott agreed on both points.

He said he had been forced to wait as long as 20 minutes in making a call from city hall.

He said city hall doors should remain unlocked any time any civic body was in session.

HAROLD HARRISON POTTER

Harold Harrison Potter, R. R. 7, Belleville, died yesterday in Belleville General Hospital following a two and one - half year illness. He was in his 57th year.

Born in Carleton County, he was the son of Mrs. Jean Potter and the late John Lawrence Potter. A resident of Ottawa, he moved to Belleville 25 years ago.

Besides his mother, he is survived by his wife, the former Gene Mary Babcock, one son, Harold E. Potter of Burlington and one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Carolyn) Jackson of Oshawa. He is also survived by one brother, William Potter of Ottawa, two sisters—Mrs. William (Olive) McEwen of Ottawa and Mrs. Herbert (Janet) Rothwell of Ramsayville and three grandchildren.

Mr. Potter was a carpenter at CFB Trenton for 20 years. He enlisted in 1939 in the Royal Canadian Artillery in Ottawa and was discharged in 1946 in Trenton.

The funeral will be held Sept. 11 at 2 p.m. in the chapel of John R. Bush Funeral Home, with Rev. James Cullen officiating. Interment will be in Albury Cemetery.

ROBERT O'RIORDAN SR.

After a brief illness, Robert O'Riordan Sr. of Madoc died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, Monday. He was in his 81st year.

Born in Madoc, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Riordan. He is survived by his wife, Carmel Heraw.

Surviving him are four sons, James of Copper Cliff, Felix and Robert, both of Madoc, and John of Kingston. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Ray (Rita) McCoy of Belleville, and 18 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mr. O'Riordan is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. G. (Helen) Stoklosar and Miss Olive O'Riordan, both of Madoc. He was predeceased by two daughters, two sons, two sisters and three brothers.

He operated O'Riordan's Grocery in Madoc, since 1916, and was well-known and highly regarded in his community. Mr. O'Riordan was an active member of the Sacred Heart of Mary Church in Madoc.

Resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, until Requiem Mass at 10 a.m. Thursday in Sacred Heart of Mary Church.

Interment will be in the Sacred Heart of Mary Cemetery. Officiating will be Father O'Neill.

REV. D. S. WARTMAN

Funeral services were held Friday at the Trinity United Church, Napanee, for Rev. D. S. Wartman. He was in his 78th year.

A native of this area, he was born at Wesley, son of George Wartman and Ida Rooke. He is survived by his wife, the former Margaret Anderson of Roblin, and one daughter, Mrs. Glendyne Phillips of Victoria, B.C., two grandchildren and a great-grandchild. Two brothers, Ward R. Wartman and Hubert M. Wartman of Napanee, and several nephews and nieces, also survive. One brother Dr. Alvin Wartman predeceased.

Forced by failing health to seek an early retirement from his pastorate in Branford, he spent his retirement years in Napanee.

Mr. Wartman entered the ministry in 1918, and served nine years in the East Ontario Conference at Harrowsmith, Greenwood, Bethanen and Verona. He then responded to a call to the Saskatchewan Conference, where he spent 22 years. Nine of these years were served as superintendent. Under his leadership the Moose Jaw Bible College was established.

Officiating at the funeral service was Rev. Gordon Hammond, Rev. E. S. Bull of Toronto and Rev. Paul Johnston of Ottawa, the East Ontario Conference Superintendents, assisted.

Bearers were R. G. Babcock, L. C. Ball, Glen Buffam, W. J. E. Daw, A. B. Moffatt and W. R. Schamerhorn. Over 23 ministers representing several denominations acted as guard of honor. Interment was in the Newburgh Cemetery.

Sentenced On Charge Of Assault

A Belleville-area man arrested last May on a manslaughter charge, today was sentenced to six months for assault occasioning bodily harm.

Bruce Wayne Casselman, 37, pleaded not guilty to the manslaughter charge before Mr. Justice Henderson at the current fall assizes in Belleville.

He pleaded guilty to the second count.

Casselman, of RR 2, Belleville, was charged after Francis E. Hewton, of Madoc, was found dead in a farmhouse north of Highway 7.

Terrorist Warning

is more vulnerable than is ours."

Hatch said the action followed growing Israeli casualty figures along the canal, caused by what Israel has said are Egyptian violations of the ceasefire.

For nearly 2½ years, Arab armies and guerrilla groups have been pinpricking Israel with almost daily gunfights, ambushes, minings, artillery and mortar-barrages. The Israelis answer in kind.

Warning foreigners that their lives would be in danger if they travelled by Israeli ships or planes, the Popular front for the Liberation of Palestine today declared an all - out offensive against Jewish interests around the world.

A spokesman for the most left wing of the Arab guerrilla organizations told a news conference in Amman "the front will not be responsible for the lives of tourists and foreigners who use Israeli means of communication—regardless of their nationality."

The next phase of operations against Israeli and Jewish interests would be carried out regardless of the cost in foreign lives, the sources said.

New Use for Caboose ?

If the wishes of at least two city aldermen are realized, that psychedelic railway caboose at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets could end up as an adjunct to the steam engine attraction at Zwicks Island Park.

The idea was broached at city council last night by former parks board chairman Ald. Donald Williams and turned over to the parks board for consideration.

Several councillors agreed that a caboose at the Island could eventually be of real historic value. Belleville has always been a railway town and it was felt that some day cabooses may no longer be in use.

But a big block to the idea is that the parks board has already ruled against positioning of a caboose at the Island.

Parks board member Ald. Paul Russell said the reason for the board's previous decision was the cost of moving a caboose to the Island and maintenance problems.

The CN caboose was moved to the Central Taxi stand in downtown Belleville for use as a headquarters for the upcoming Belleville United Appeal.

Alderman E. A. Orr said the problem of moving a caboose to the Island was now partially solved.

"It's already halfway there" he quipped.

Council May Back Builder on Appeal

Should a local builder who has begun construction of a triplex apartment with its foundations too close to the street line be allowed to continue?

The city's committee of adjustment has ruled against the builder but city council apparently would like the case closed eye view of the matter.

Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. has commenced construction of the triplex on the west side of Westmount Drive with the footings ranging from 1.48 to 3.67 feet too close to the street line, council was told. Regulations call for a triplex to be set back 25 feet from the street line although the requirements for a single family dwelling is for only 20 feet front yard.

The construction firm is requesting a variance to the regulation to allow the triplex to be placed.

In view of the housing shortage council members would like to see the project go ahead but with the committee of adjustment decision feet that their hands are tied.

Outcome of the matter was passing a motion to the effect that if the builder appeals the committee of adjustment decision, council will give a letter of support to the builder.

ESTATE
The Little Things That Sell Houses

ED McKINNEY
J. E. McKinney
& Son Ltd.

Experience in showing homes to prospective buyers confirms that the process of buying a home is a highly emotional experience.

When buyers are looking over a nicely decorated home — a place the vendor has obviously taken pride in — they almost always fit themselves into the mental picture created by the atmosphere around them.

Furniture, fixtures, colors and the "feel" of the place are important.

This doesn't mean because you're thinking of selling your home that a redecorating job is in order. It means only that little things — often inexpensive little things — can mean a lot.

A young couple, for instance, had been intending for years to build a planter between their living room and their dinette. When they decided to move to a bigger house, they put in the planter — try and all — as a "lure" to buyers.

The addition has cost the number of people who remarked on it and it was a very special feature that finally helped to sell the house.

An experienced and knowledgeable realtor who is used to seeing many houses in the course of a week is a good person to ask for an opinion or suggestions on decor if you are putting your house up for sale.

Political Pawns

Pawns of international politics in recent days have been United States ambassador to Brazil C. Burke Elbrick and Irish civil rights campaigner Bernadette Devlin.

Mr. Elbrick has been released by a clandestine organization in Brazil in return for the release of 15 political prisoners. The latter were flown to Mexico and have been granted asylum there.

The incident was another blow to U.S. prestige on the one hand, and on the other cause for nervousness among Brazilian government circles, beset as they are by left-wing agitators such as the group just released.

The Brazilian government acted promptly and correctly in releasing the men and woman, but as we have noted it has been embarrassing for both countries to have to bow to this kind of blackmail.

As for Miss Devlin, she is reported to have returned home early from her North American lecture tour because of fears the money collected for the aid of people dispossessed in the recent riots in Northern Ireland may be put to less worthy causes. She said in Belfast that while staying at the home of a wealthy U.S. nightclub owner on the West coast she overheard a phone conversation between one of the National Association for Irish Justice organizers travelling with her and the office back in New York.

He said: "Never mind, play her along. We've got the money and that's all that matters." She also discovered one of the NAIJ organizers was also raising funds for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

For all her own left-wing radicalism, Miss Devlin seems sincere in her desire the funds raised will go only for the relief of those who have lost their homes and that sort of thing. However, that she is in danger of becoming involved with less scrupulous persons is clear from this incident. That is frequently the case when politics, as with Miss Devlin, becomes a blend of demagoguery and inexperience.

Focus on Noise

Besides air and water pollution another form to which more attention is being given these days is noise pollution. The "rock" music of the younger generation is a case in point. The noise from jet aircraft is another.

Most of us however can tolerate a moderate degree of noise, to the point even of being completely unaware of it. Nevertheless people living on busy routes must put up with some aspects of noise that irritate.

Ambulance and fire sirens are necessary and are not overly disturbing. But screeching tires can be "an annoyance, particularly at night all of a sudden," as it quips.

Living in the country is the answer for many. The noises there are nothing so insistent or nerve-wracking as the chirping of crickets or whatever it is that crickets do. Dogs bark and sometimes they howl but the country is big enough to absorb that, not to mention the singing of birds and the familiar chug of tractor motors.

Rural dwellers in this region enjoy as quiet and pleasurable a countryside as any. The morning mists across the bay in Prince Edward, for example, the children waiting for bus to school, the gently-rolling hills and the orchards remind one of some old print, something from an earlier time — far from the madding crowd.

On the Rednersville Road, near Carrying Place, the Bay of Quinte widens and the view at sundown for example is one of great beauty and tranquillity. On the low-lying ground on the far side is Canadian Forces Base Trenton where aircraft take off constantly for places far and wide, and beyond is the hill country.

At night, just south of here there is another scene of rare charm. It is from the Old Picton Road when darkness falls and Belleville appears as a ribbon of light in the distance across the bay.

Noise pollution there may be in this world, but there are still quiet places to explore. Yet after all some degree of noise is necessary, even for the maintenance of mental health, and most of us find a happy medium.

Long Haul

We have come a long way in 50 years. Half-a-century ago, Inspector John Phillips of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police based at Herschel Island in the Arctic visited his parents in Belleville. Leaving his post on May 7 the Inspector took nearly four months coming out, arriving early in September. What a contrast with today's marvel of space travel in reaching the moon in three days.

Kierans Still Under Fire

Post Office: A 'Giant Step Backwards,' Says Critic

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It is still "rockit - to - Eric - Kierans - time" in the National Capital, with the postmaster general getting his lumps from some of the finest rap artists in the business.

Among them, Prime Minister Trudeau, a sudden and surprising turn of events that should — but probably will not — have Eric Kierans wondering and perhaps, glory be, worrying.

For when your own prime minister goes on national television to say, in only a half-kidding way, what a lousy job you are doing as a cabinet minister, you can begin losing sleep.

Kind of makes for the shakes. There was Pierre Trudeau taking delivery of the Canada Games Flame at Halifax from the last of a string of relay runners who had carried it out of Ottawa 17 days before.

"Pretty fast delivery time," cracked the prime minister, "good thing it did not come by mail."

Eric Kierans made like he thought that was a ha-ha.

But he has not been laughing at the absolutely devastating attack made on him by Ald Ottawa pro Walter Turnbull.

Walter Turnbull is a real 30-minute-egg of an orator.

He was hard-boiled in five pressure-cooker years as Prime Minister Mackenzie King's principal secretary.

And Mackenzie King, as you may remember, was the oddest cat of any of our prime ministers. But deeply.

It was just the best possible place for Walter Turnbull to learn how to go for the throat.

Mackenzie King "borrowed" Turnbull from the Post Office where he had worked 21 years, and when he "returned" him to the mail service it was as deputy postmaster general.

Just the best DPG, the PO still swears, it ever had.

So just the other day, Walter Turnbull blew his stack.

He could not stand still another minute for what Eric "The Wrecker" Kierans has been doing to his beloved and once proud Post Office. Turnbull prose samples:

"Kierans the saboteur would not dream of asking someone who knows something about the Post Office.

"Kierans considers the fellow with zero knowledge has to have the fresh viewpoint.

"And the more zero minus the savvy the fresher it seems to get."

With those kind words, Walter Turnbull was only warming up.

"Kierans is offering a prize for a name for his communications satellite — what we really need is a PMG who will remain on earth and on the postal job instead of watching the stars go by."

As "one of the few in the Post Office business who knows a letter from a parcel," Turnbull says Kierans has so stuffed the place with "know-nothing experts, there is no room for such working-stiff types as mail sorters."

"The duffer these experts, the hooker their ideas, the nimbler the way Kierans goes for them.

"The Post Office is so grossly over-populated with wood-heads who could not tell a mailbag from a mailplane, MacMillan-Bloedel should open a pulp-mill.

"Kierans has consultants consulting on consultants, task forces working on task forces, studies being made of studies.

"To the working mail handler and letter carrier the PO has become a land of Oz with Kierans its unwonderful wizard."

Walter Turnbull fired these torpedoes into Kierans in the columns of the Ottawa newspapers, Journal and Citizen, which happen to be delivered by special messenger every afternoon to Prime Minister Trudeau's East Block desk.

He can scarcely have missed the message, as it came in a half page of 10 point type under red block letters.

"From their mail walks and letter bins the workers can see only an extravagant executive and committee scale, deep wall - to - wall carpeting on every office, new and sinfully costly furniture bought with the taxpayer's inflated dollar by Eric's empire-builders. Busy playing their expensive game of keeping - up - with - the - civil-service-Joneses.

"Personal prestige not pride of performance is the sacrifice to which Kierans has hitched his cabinet wagon."

And that was about it, except that Walter Turnbull signed off with the final word on the matter that Eric Kierans would best be remembered for taking the Post Office on "a giant step backward."

It was just after this wrathful read-out of Kierans that the prime minister got off his not-so-funny ha-ha about the worse-than-H-day mail service.

So perhaps there is hope yet that the prime minister may "reform" the Post Office by getting Eric Kierans out of it.

Attention John Turner — wiretapper at work!

Curbing The Eavesdropper

Peterborough Examiner

Justice Minister John Turner's promise to the Canadian Bar Association this week to protect the individual's right to privacy against the "greatest data-gathering, privacy - invading society ever" is more than welcome, even if it is more than a decade behind the technological advances which make such protection necessary.

But, in spite of the urgency of the need to control electronic eavesdropping we cannot help but look forward to such legislation with some apprehension.

It is impossible that any legislation be presented which would make privacy - invasion, regardless of the circumstance and regardless of who is in charge of the invasion, illegal in all instances.

Another Reprieve For Man and His World

Montreal Gazette

Most Montrealers will applaud Premier Bertrand's decision to subsidize a 1970 version of Man and His World. His decision is based upon the more stable indices provided by its operation this summer.

It not only managed to stay within the deficit projections but also clearly attracted sufficient tourists to make the effort worth underwriting at the same time it gave to Montrealers and Quebecers a locale of pleasure which has become as necessary a part of every big city as its parks and museums.

Anyone who visited Man and His World this summer knows that it was markedly better than the 1969 version. It was clean er, better organized, and more satisfying.

The 1968 version had created justifiable misgivings. Its failure to live up to projections made even those who believed that Man and His World should be kept ponder at what cost. There were legitimate fears that it would be too costly to maintain with the scope and quality which would not be a disappointing parody of better days.

But the Man and His World of this summer is an adapted beast of those fears, and has clearly justified Premier Bertrand's decision to guarantee its existence into 1970.

Lesage's Resignation

A Schism Among Quebec Liberals

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The leader of the Quebec Liberal party, Mr. Jean Lesage, caused a real flap . . . when he announced that he was stepping down from his post and was calling a caucus meeting Sept. 15 to choose a date for a leadership convention.

Since the defeat of the Liberal party in 1966 the leadership of Mr. Lesage had been contested constantly, so that he had to spend most of his time trying to stay in the saddle. . . .

We said (earlier) that the Liberal party would become the party of division of Mr. Lesage resigned. We believe it more strongly than ever. There are within this party a good half-dozen candidates, more or less ambitious, who were only waiting for Mr. Lesage's departure to start shining their wares. These men will not rally around a new leader easily. One name that must appear on this list is that of the former justice minister, Mr. Claude Wagner, who can claim much of the credit for the political assassination of Mr. Lesage. . . .

We don't see how the Liberal party of Quebec, or what is left of it, can rally around a leader now that discord and treason seem to have become the golden rule in the party.

It is often said that politics is a bankless profession. Before the fest of June, 1966, as though he were the only one responsible. . . .

The resignation of Mr. Lesage marks the end of an era. It must recognize that this man has served his province and his country well, and can depart with his head held high. We cannot say as much for certain people who are getting ready to share the spoils.

Wagner Possible Successor

Quebec L'Action: The member of the National Assembly for Louis Hebert, Mr. Jean Lesage, has just resigned as leader of the Quebec Liberal party. . . .

The door now is open to Mr. Jean Marchand, who has always wanted to make a career in the Quebec Liberal party but didn't want to risk it while Mr. Lesage was leader. Now he can permit himself this experience. In our humble opinion, although it is perhaps too early to take a stand on the subject, Mr. Marchand has little chance of becoming Mr. Lesage's successor. Surveys conducted by L'Action reporters lead us to believe that the people are well satisfied with the services rendered by Mr. Marchand as a federal minister, but are totally uninterested in his entry into provincial political life. . . .

Who then will succeed Mr. Lesage? . . .

In the present climate of our society, it appears that Mr. (Claude) Wagner has an excellent chance of being chosen. His name was mentioned by nearly everyone we questioned on the subject over the last two days. Mr. Wagner personifies the strong, radical man, qualified to bring order to a society that suffers from lack of discipline and sometimes appears headed toward anarchy.

A Look at the Grocery Bill

Des Moines Register

Food is today's best buy. The cash register tape from the supermarket keeps going up but so does the number of non-food items. For example, my "grocery" bill recently was over $24. This included: 59 cents, dog food — Rover used to eat scraps; $1.79, bug spray — we used to swat, swat, swat; 29 cents, paper napkins — we used to have cloth and wash and iron; 89 cents, fabric softener — we used to hope for a windy day; $1.50, Band - aids and shampoo — we used to go to the drug store for these; $3.73, Thermos bottle and light bulbs — used to go to a hardware store.

Deducting these, my groceries cost less than $15.

I spent time in the supermarket to estimate the floor space devoted to food, luxury foods and non-food items. I was amazed to discover that one-fifth of the area was used for what I call luxury and prepared foods. We, the consumers, pay for this preparation and should not include the wages of a hired girl in the cost of food as such. =

Parliament assembled to hear the usual task of passing upon the Government's plan to throw Canada's resources into the war against Nazi German by the side of the United Kingdom, Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir read from the text of the speech from the throne. Social Volunteers Aid in Viet Nam

SAIGON (Reuters) — Foreign voluntary agencies ranging from the Salvation Army to the YMCA are helping to alleviate the suffering to civilians caused by the Vietnam war.

The American buildup and the intensification of the war in the last five years has been matched by a rise in the number of humanitarian relief organizations serving here.

In 1964 the number could be counted on the fingers of one hand. Today, 21 agencies are registered with the South Vietnam government.

West Germany, apart from the United States, supplies most of the volunteers and resources for this humanitarian work.

The agencies are largely dependent on Americans for transport and other assistance coming under the category of "logistic support."

Nevertheless, volunteers from such countries as Canada, New Zealand, Britain, West Germany, the Philippines, Switzerland and India might just as easily find themselves giving help or medical aid to pro-Viet Cong villagers as to those who support the Americans.

Three-quarters of the agencies' resources are devoted to refugee relief and social welfare work.

In addition to providing humanitarian social services, many agencies give training in farming, community development, education and public health.

Their contributions to these and other projects will total nearly $20,000,000 this year.

More than 500 foreigners and 2,000 Vietnamese now are working full-time in South Vietnam for the 21 agencies.

Nearly one-third of all the non-American foreigners are West Germans.

Some of the organizations have only one foreign representative in Saigon—for example, the YMCA and the foster parents plan, both represented by Canadians.

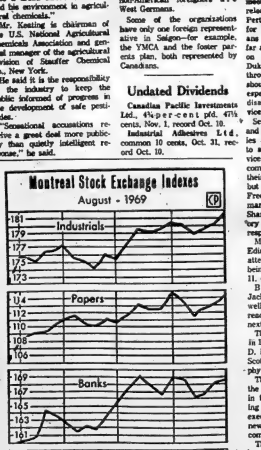
Pesticide Industry Threatened

MONTREAL (CP) — The pesticide industry is threatened by "uninformed citizens" who think pesticides are a threat, industry executive Daniel J. Keating said Monday.



"The pesticide industry has been confronted by a totally new species of antagonist in the last few years," Mr. Keating told the annual meeting of the Canadian Agricultural Chemicals Association.

"He is the uninformed who sees a dread threat to himself and his environment in agricultural chemicals."

Mr. Keating is chairman of the U.S. National Agricultural Chemicals Association and general manager of the agricultural division of Stauffer Chemical Co., New York.

He said it is the responsibility of the industry to keep the public informed of progress in the development of safe pesticides.

"Sensational accusations receive a great deal more publicity than quietly intelligent response," he said.

Utilities dragged their heels somewhat, but industrials, bank and papers showed healthy increases on the Montreal Stock Exchange during August. Although utilities' gains were not as impressive, they did move ahead to 145.79 from 143.92 at the end of July. Industrials were up to 181.78 from 172.65, banks up to 168.63 from 159.64 and papers closed August at 114.22 compared with 105.70.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Reports of renewed fighting in the Middle East sent prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange to a moderate loss in light mid-morning trading today and into their fourth consecutive downward session.

On index, industrials were down .59 to 172.45, western oils .96 to 239.62 and golds .62 to 193.11. Base metals gained .18 to 107.64.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 585,000 shares compared with 496,000 at the same time Monday. Losses outnumbered gains 160 to 88.

OSF Industries declined ¼ to 14 and Seaway ¼ to 8¾. OSF said it has cancelled its plans to acquire Seaway through a share exchange. Seaway said it is dropping its plans to acquire the Vic Tanny operation in Canada.

ANAF News

Two months ago the Dominion President, J. C. Lundberg, received an invitation from the West Point Military academy to pick out two boys to send them on an all expenses paid trip to Annapolis for a full week.

Doug Nickle, son of Cdr. W. Nickle of Unit 301, Belleville and Gordon Spafford, son of Cdr. M. Spafford, member of a Toronto Unit, were chosen as the young ambassadors of Canada. A number of other countries were also invited to send youthful representatives and Canadians, especially Bellevillonians, can be proud of the fact that they received the highest marks of all the invited countries present. The Dominion President has now received word from the West Point commanding officer that the Canadians made such an impression, he was willing to accept them as cadets. No word has been received yet as to whether either boy has accepted as yet but Unit 301 is very proud of these boys.

Monday the Dominion President was to meet the Minister of Veterans Affairs who will discuss and lend him a copy of the Woods Report and the discussions and eventual decisions reached by the examining committee. Later there will be a press meeting when this will be released to the reporters. Pertinent points will be up for discussion by all veterans organisations and, as far as possible, will be passed on to the members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit through the ANAF News. It should be of interest to all, especially those who were disabled through active service.

Sept. 14 is Decoration Day and all veterans, their families and friends are welcome to attend this Memorial Service in special honor to the comrades who returned to their homes in this district but have since passed on. Free buses will leave the market square at 1.30 p.m. Share a few minutes in memory of those you loved and respected.

Members of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit are urged to attend the general meeting being held on Thursday, Sept. 11, commencing at 8 p.m.

Building superintendent Jack Feeney now enjoying a well earned holiday, will reach the half century mark next Saturday.

The following comrades are in R.C.H. B. Fischer, A-Tuck, D. Belnap, F. Armstrong and Scotty Wilson while H. Dumphy is still in Kingston.

There will be a meeting at the Darts League members in the club auditorium starting at 8 p.m. Sept. 8. A new executive is to be elected and new plans discussed for the coming season.

Thursday, Oct. 2 will be a big Initiation Night with entertainment and refreshments after the ceremony. Plan to attend.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID MARK WHITEHEAD

Whitehead – Jones

St. Thomas' Chuch, Belleville, was the scene of the recent wedding of Nancy Lee Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Jones, Belleville, and David Mark Whitehead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Whitehead, Belleville. Rev. Peter M. Tett officiated at the ceremony. The organist was Mr. Donald W. Davenport.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk corded ottoman featuring a slim sheath dress in empire styling with a Swiss lace ruffle on the bodice and a short jacket. The gown had long sleeves with Swiss lace cuffs and a ring collar with the train attached at the shoulders. She wore a pillbox of Swiss lace with a four-tier silk illusion veil, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby white carnations surrounded with ivy.

The maid of honor was Jennifer Whiten, Belleville. Bridesmaids were Patricia Potterff, sister of the bride, Toronto, Jacquelin Lundberg, Belleville and Cheryl Fry, Belleville. The flower girl was Robin Ann Masterson, niece of the bride.

They were all dressed identically in Victoria style gowns. The maid of honor's dress was of yellow georgette over matching silk while the bridesmaids' dresses were mint green. They all wore a headdress of yellow and mint green ivories and carried a cascade of 'mums as well.

The flower girl was dressed identically to the bride with a Victorian cap for a headdress. She carried a white basket of yellow sweetheart roses and miniature carnations interlaced with ivy.

Best man was Ralph Wood. Ushers were Gary Pottruff, Toronto, Paul Whitehead, brother of the groom and Eugene Cummings, Belleville.

The ring-bearer was Master Robert Masterson, nephew of the bride.

The reception was held at the Shrine Club with Mr. J. C. Lundberg as toast master.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a gown of pastel pink French crepe and imported lace, a white tulle turban hat and white accessories. Her corsage was yellow sweetheart roses interlaced with ivy. The bridegroom's mother wore a shrimp colored tortrel dress and coat ensemble with navy accessories. Her navy picture hat was of silk illusion which was complimented with an orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride changed into a pastel aqua fortrel and cotton dress trimmed with deep aqua and black with patent accessories. Her corsage was of yellow sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside at 230 Moira Street West. Apt. 25 E, Belleville.

Major Seasonal Fashion Showings Have Own Unique Characteristics

PARIS (CP) — The big seasonal fashion showings in the three major style capitals, New York, Paris and Rome—have their own unique characteristics and qualities which reflect their national backgrounds in the eye of a Canadian observer.

New York shows are characterized by American efficiency, Paris gives an air of the French capital's cool detachment and Rome features the wildly extravagant romantic emphasis of the Italian designers.

The New York fashion picture owes its special vibrance to the recognition of the broad spectrum of clients ranging from working girls to wealthy luminaries of the entertainment world. Many of the New York designers have European backgrounds but declare their independence with individuality.

Regardless of background, the New York presentations offer clothes shaped to the daily requirements of a many-faceted society and country.

American designers, infected with the national desire to get there first, pick up trends often ahead of the two big European centres.

The pant-suit is a case in point. It originated among the mods of Britain, but the New York trade picked it up and won wide acceptance two years ago for what now is a staple of every woman's wardrobe. Curiously, the pant-suit was being shown in Paris and Rome this summer as if it were a new invention.

Just as Italian music, art, food and decoration differ from those of the Americans, British and French, so the Italianate opulence and love of the rococo, of beautiful precision of line, featured the Rome showings.

Even the surroundings—as in the Grand Hotel's grand ballroom of mirrors and murals of discreetly clad gods and goddesses—echoed the classic qualities of swishing maxi coats and formal gowns paved with beading and jewels.

While the New York and Rome showings are held mainly in a centrally located hotel, the Paris couture collections are presented exclusively in each designer's salon. A special mystique surrounds the salon showing, with photo-bearing identity cards needed for admittance and the guests sworn to solemn oaths of non-sketching.

The salons are scattered over an area of foursquare miles, with scant time between scheduled showings. Covering the Paris collections calls for talent in geography, track shoes, vitamins and a naturally sturdy constitution. With the showings often in 90-degree temperatures, the salons are airless.

The three fashion capitals vary too in the sound level of their displays. In Paris a reverential hush prevails. In New York the spectators accord respectful attention to the parade on the runway while pianists or small combos provide pleasant background music.

But the Rome showings, dominated by the presence of eager buyers, are ear-shattering in the noisy babble of conversations in half a dozen languages. Rising decibels greet any creations of popular appeal, and it would take a 100-man symphony orchestra to top the noise at the more popular showings.

Commentary enhances the American fashion presentations, often conducted by the designer and the head of the house itself. Few can match an Oleg Cassini show in the wit and the mass flirtation he conducts. Adele Simpson, Larry Aldrich, Jerry Silverman and Jo Copeland also give their own commentaries; otherwise it is done by a person identified with the firm or by Eleanor Lambert, director of American Fashion Designers, or Mildred Sullivan, press director for the New York Couture Business Council.

Rome and Paris commentary is nothing more than a statement of the catalogue number announced by an automation-voice, usually concealed as to identity. The number is repeated in German, French and English at the Rome shows; in German and English at Paris. The multilingual voice will occasionally mention accessories with phrases such as, "Capelli . . . Bibi" (hats by Bibi) or "Macquillage de . . . " (make-up of . . .), but never an adjective in favor marks even the most breath-taking of ensembles.

Kaye Rowe, fashion editor of the Brandon Sun, has been on a European tour.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE R. MORRIS

Morris – Blaind

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the scene of the recent wedding of Wilma Marjory Blaind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Blaind and Clarence Raymond Morris, son of Mrs. Cecil Kellar, Belleville. Rev. Peter M. Tett officiated at the ceremony. The organist was D. W. Davenport.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an A-line gown of silk organza over satin with satin appliques in rose design, with wrist-length sleeves of organza. The hip length veil was identical to the gown. She carried a bouquet of red roses with ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Fatal Mouch. The bridesmaids were Miss Keitha Little, cousin of the bride and Miss Ruth Kellar, sister of the groom. The maid of honor wore a gown of pastel pink moire imperial. It was sleeveless A-line. Her flowers were pink and white 'mums. The bridesmaids wore the same style dress in pastel blue with blue and white 'mums.

Best man was Cecil Keller. Ushers were Robert Wittaker and Peter Blaind.

The reception was held at the Belleville Yacht Club. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue crimplene dress with matching lace coat and hat and beige accessories. Her corsage was white and blue 'mums. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue crepe dress with matching lace coat, white accessories, a corsage of white 'mums.

The couple will reside at 18 Albion Street, Belleville.

Veterinary College to Accept More Women

GUELPH (CP) — Dr. Dennis Howell, newly appointed dean of the Ontario Veterinary College, of the University of Guelph, announced Thursday an easing of restrictions on the number of women students.

"Women will no longer be refused admittance because they are women," he said. "Applicants will be judged on marks and qualifications in the same manner as any other student."

Nine girl freshmen, largest in the history of the college founded in 1862, will be registered this fall. The increase enrolment is a swing from former years when girl students averaged about five in the freshman year.

Dr. Howell said the entire curriculum of the veterinary college will be changed within two years.

He said there will be more emphasis on research and disease prevention.

Magazine Does Share For Equality

TORONTO (CP) — Convergence, a quarterly magazine published by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, is doing its bit to bring equality to women around the world.

But the magazine's latest issue shows there are great variations in the rate of progress towards integration in the 100 countries where it has subscribers.

Printed in four languages, the publication goes to subscribers involved in United Nations educational and cultural organizations and to persons connected with adult education programs.

An article from a Japanese correspondent shows there now are 10,000,000 women gainfully employed in that country—double the 1955 figure.

This gain is attributed to the growth in Japan's economy, industrial development and a drop in the national birth rate.

But East African women find their husbands are the main obstacle to higher education. Once men understand that they and to gain by having a better-educated wife, however they generally become enthusiastic.

An article from the U.S.S.R says 85 per cent of all persons in the medical profession are women, with 72 per cent in education and 47 per cent in engineering.

"In higher education women constitute 46 per cent of the 4,500,000 students," the article says. "Women students enjoy special benefits including one-year maternity leave.

"There are today 65,000 post-graduate students in science and 2,200 doctors of science among Soviet women."

Justice Annie Jiagge, of the Supreme Court of Ghana, reports that there is a need for a review of the content of education for women and girls in Africa to prepare them for their domestic, social, economic and civic responsibilities.

"There is malnutrition in Africa and many children die each day. The problem is not so much that there is lack of food as that there is ignorance about the nutrients available in the various foods necessary for the growth of a healthy body and an alert mind. Ignorance of the mother is a great handicap."

SOCIAL And PERSONAL

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. David Whitehead was honored with a shower held at the home of Mrs. Robert Whiten, Belleville. The co-hostesses were Jennifer Whiten and Lynn Trueman. Another shower was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Whitehead, Belleville. Co-hostess was Linda Whitehead.

Presentations were made by co-stenographers of the Belleville Detachment O.P.P. at a dinner held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, and by officers of Belleville Detachment O.P.P.

Presentations were made to the groom by the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Previous to her recent marriage Mrs. Joseph C. Arsenault (nee Shirla Marie Switzer) was honored at three showers. These included one given by the doctors and nurses at Ajax General Hospital; one at the home of Mrs. Robert Reid of Broughay, Ontario given by members of the Royal Canadian Legion Auxiliary of Claremont, and a linen shower held at the home of Mrs. Grace Lawrence, Marysville, with Mrs. Rod Kellar as co-hostess.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Alexander Ward, Belleville R. R. 1, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Muriel Doreen, to Iain Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. announce the engagement William Alexander Paterson of Willowdale, Ontario. The marriage will take place October 4, 1969, at 3 p.m. in Redeserville United Church, Redeserville.

A Little Bit of Work--Drudgery or A Privilege?

By DORIS CLARK

At 12, Joan rebelled when her mother handed her an apple-sorting job, after she had already done the dishes. Work was such drudgery!

"All right," said her mother, "You don't want to work. For two weeks you'll not be allowed to do anything."

Joan lazed about, read books watched with a superior air while others did the chores. Then time began to hang heavily, and on the fifth day she was ready to give in.

"Oh no!" said mother. "We are managing fine and you've still over a week to go."

By the end of two weeks Joan's attitude to work had changed for good. She had learned something that some folks never do — that one of life's great satisfactions is doing a necessary job, and doing it well.

Even a holiday is only pleasurable against a background of work. Idleness palls upon many retired people and they plunge desperately into new careers — if they can find them.

Isn't it a shame that anyone should have to reach retirement age to find out that work is a privilege?

Dear Doris: Although I knew my husband would take a drink, he never came home drunk and always said where he had been, but ever since last spring when he went on a hunting trip without telling where he was going, he's been terrible. He went with a fellow that goes on "bints", and I can imagine all the hunting done would be for another bottle.

Since then he gets home anywhere from 12.30 to 5.30 a.m. and this has happened at least a dozen times, and he smells like an old brewery.

We have a lovely home, but I'm ready to toss it all up if he doesn't come to his senses. Just this morning he came home at 3 a.m. He had been drinking; wouldn't say where he'd been.

I told him it wasn't right to go away and me not know where to get him, in case of need, and the answer I got to that was, "I just wouldn't get him then." I told him I wanted an answer yes or no whether he was going to continue as he was doing and the answer was, "I don't know."

I'll be 60 this year and although my husband is four years younger everybody thinks he's much older. — Going to Pieces.

Dear Going: After 35 years of marriage and children this kind of behavior is a bit thick. Perhaps he has become an alcoholic. Perhaps he thinks he is having a last fling. In any case what's sauce for the gander — —!

Could you be gone the next time he returns from a bash? I have known times when a wife's walk-out was the means of bringing a gallivanting mate to his senses.

Visit a friend, take a holiday — one way or another do the disappearing act and see what happens.

Ann Landers

Number of Arguments In Every Family

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me what is wrong with a woman who, after 18 years of marriage, still asks her husband if he wants mustard or mayonnaise on his ham and cheese sandwich. Also, she cannot seem to remember whether he prefers it on white or rye.

Five years ago I told my wife to ask the dryclesaers not to crease my sleeves. More often than not the suits come back with the sleeves creased. Her excuse: "They must have forgot."

This same woman expects me to remember her birthday, our wedding anniversary, Valentine's Day, Mother's Day and Ground Hog Day because that is the day we met.

We argue a lot and get nowhere. What does this sound like to you? — HAL.

* * *

DEAR HAL: The average American family.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in your advice to the woman whose husband thought vacations were for getting drunk. He insisted on annual cross-country motor trips with the whole family in the car and he wouldn't let anyone else drive.

The big jerk started on beer immediately after breakfast and was bombed (at the wheel yet) every day for two weeks.

You suggested that the woman pray for a minor accident — one in which nobody is injured, but one that would teach her beer-guzzler a lesson. For the past six years I've been praying for a major accident — one that would put my husband in the hospital for about six months. He gets smashed at least five night a week and makes life hell for everybody. I can't remember the last time I had an uninterrupted night's sleep. My husband comes home swearing at the children at 3 a.m., cusses, throws furniture and demands that I cook him supper. How he manages to get up in the morning and do a day's work is beyond me.

I don't drink a drop and I'm half dead from exhaustion. I have begged him to get help but he refuses. Once you printed the name of an organization for wives and one must live with alcoholics. I clipped it out and misplaced it. Will you print it again please? — FRAZZLED NERVES.

* * *

DEAR FRAZZ: The name of the organization is Al-Anon. The national headquarters are in New York. The address is P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010. Write and find out where and when you can attend a meeting. It could change your life and his, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Six months ago my husband passed away. We had no children and my entire existence revolved around him. When he died, part of me died with him. I am depressed and lonely.

I've been offered an appealing position as a housemother in a dorm on campus. Friends say it would be ideal. I did counsel-ing several years ago and enjoyed it thoroughly. But I can't make up my mind. There are times when I feel I'll go crazy if I don't get away from my memories. Then again I can't bear to leave my lovely apartment where my beloved husband and I shared so many wonderful times. Help me decide. — HYACINTH.

* * *

DEAR HYACINTH: Keep the apartment intact and try the dorm for one year. If you aren't happy, you can return. It's worth the gamble.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am burning over your advice to the 32-year-old jerk who can't find a decent girl. You told him, "Decent girls aren't riveted to bar stools or discotheques dancing with other men. You've got rocks in your head.

I am 26, not bad to look at and I consider myself decent. According to your standards, however, I ah a tramp because I go to bars and discotheques to meet people.

You have been out of touch with me in college or belong to a country club or travel in a social set that plays polo and goes to ski lodges. Working girls have to do what they can to meet men. Bars are where the men are. Get with it, Kid. — DECENT ENOUGH.

* * *

DEAR ENOUGH: O.K. Buttercup — work the bars, and you'll meet men who are also working the bars. And the best of luck to all of you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in love with a girl who is engaged to marry someone else. The announcement appeared in the paper Sunday and it nearly killed me.

I went with B. for two years. There were times when I didn't treat her exactly right but unfortunately, I was uptight about several things and I drank a little too much. I accidentally hit her (she really ran into my fist during an argument) and we broke up over that misunderstanding.

B. has known this guy only a few months. I am sure she is marrying him on the rebound. He's nothing to look at and square besides. I called her three times last week and she refused to meet me to talk things over. (She's afraid if she sees me she'll weaken.) Please be my fairy godmother and tell me what I can do. — PANHANDLE.

DEAR PANHANDLE: You can stop making a pest of yourself. I have no magic wand for a guy who mistreats a girl then bawls his head of when he loses out to someone decent.

THE MAXI LOOK — The maxi is the latest look for fall this year and this belted plaid model worn with a black fox hat and long scarf is destined to turn many a male head. The coat was part of a collection shown in Toronto recently at a preview of Eaton's fall fashions. (CP Photo)

Ottawa Mother of Five Children Special Kind of Female Militant

OTTAWA (CP) — Eleanor Dunn is a practising activist and a special kind of female militant.

Mrs. Dunn's dynamo activity is guaranteed by five children, a full-time daily newspaper job, labor union executive involvement and a position as president of a new Progressive Conservative constituency association.

Her brand of feminine militancy is revealed when the small, dark-brown-haired young organization worker talks about an outside-the-home career—and her conviction that performance rather than protest is the way to remedy any inequalities women may face in that career.

"I don't think people should join any organization unless they want to become personally involved," Mrs. Dunn said in an interview. "That is, unless they are willing to take executive positions.

"I became involved because in the first three years of my marriage, my husband Paul (also a journalist) was working the night shift. If you have a husband on shift work or on uncertain hours, you're pretty well forced to provide a life for yourself because you can't depend on him to provide those contacts with the outside."

Mrs. Dunn, 32, studied journalism at Carleton University and her first outside activities after marriage were as a weekly newspaper editor and a community "mover and shaker."

She later became assistant women's editor of the Ottawa Citizen, an officer in her local of the American Newspaper Guild and then—although initially a supporter of the New Democratic Party—president of the Ottawa-Carleton Conservative Association, the first woman since Confederation to hold that post.

Mrs. Dunn, daughter of the late Stewart Bates who served as deputy minister of the federal fisheries department and president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., has also been elected to the executive board of the Ontario Federation of Printing Trade Unions.

Energy and organization seem to be the keys to the well-ordered bustle characterizing her coping—she has occasional domestic help—with career and home life. That includes cooking, gardening, house-cleaning and attending five children ranging in age from Peter, 10, to Tracy, 3.

At work, it didn't take her long to speak out against inequalities between men and women engaged in news-gathering.

"I really think that in many areas women do not have all the rights they should," she said. "But I don't think they are going to get them by picketing, protesting . . . and such actions.

"The day of protest is gone. There's no legal restriction on us any more. We don't have to have children. The time has come to prove ourselves by performance.

"I'm opposed to militant women's groups starting up because they set women's cause back 100 years."

Nor would Mrs. Dunn presume to advise other women to go out and work as she did.

"It should be the woman's choice."

In the field of politics, a subject on which she presented a brief to the royal commission on the status of women, Mrs. Dunn says she thinks women wil inot get anywhere if they stick to women's political organizations where "you're thought of as a sandwich-maker and an envelope-stuffer."

"Women have to go into the constituency organizations and be really prepared to get themselves elected to executive offices."

It was "disgraceful" the way the women's organization had been treated at the annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada last March, she said. The young Conservatives were given a vote in the general proceedings but the women were not.

Mrs. Dunn said that if the federal government decides to put a limit on campaign expenditures, it will open the door for many people—especially women—to run for election to Parliament.

SPECIAL KIND OF FEMALE MILITANT — Eleanor Dunn holds jobs ranging from full-time newspaper work to president of a local Progressive Conservative constituency. The Ottawa mother of five feels militant women's groups will set the women's cause back 100 years. Mrs. Dunn says performance, not protest is the way to remedy women's inequalities on the job. Greek Historian Aware Of Today's Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Don't be fooled by Prof. Mary White's scholarly reputation and devotion to Greek antiquity. She's acutely aware of what's going on in the world today.

Prof. White, one of the world's leading Greek historians, is head of the University classics — the first woman ever to head any graduate department at this university.

She is also founder and editor of Phoenix, one of the most respected journals of classical studies in the world and, scholars say, one of the hardest in which to get published.

Prof. White, who, for 40 years has occupied a modest office at the university's Trinity College, has been a pioneer in archaeological digs. She became the recognized authority on the Athenian general Themistocles, who lived in the sixth century BC.

But Prof. White's mind is not entirely absorbed in the past. With equal ease, she can discuss the economics of Greek colonization, the language of Thucydides or Tacitus, modern politics and student power.

"No one who teaches fifth century Athenian history can fail to know about the origins and institutions of democracy. Its complexities and its strengths and weaknesses," she explains. "Participation in and criticism of policy-making is essential, and I am glad to see students actively interested in both public and university policy.

"Fearless expression of opinion is good, but the right to speak carries with it the obligation to listen and the willingness to settle issues by responsible discussion and not the path of violence. Democracy is peculiarly vulnerable."

Her feelings about the role of the university and student activism are strong. The danger arises, she says, as with democracy, simply from too much talking. Real issues become shrouded under a veil of platitudes.

We become so involved in endless discussion of our aims and our grievances that we neglect what we are in the term Dept., 60 Front St. West, Toronto 1, Ontario.

Prince of Wales Torte Which Serves Ten

By MARY MOORE

After you make this you will understand its name.

It is supposed to serve 10 but at the rate our crowd asked for second helpings it did not stretch that far. When Elizabeth served the original last winter it did serve 10 and prompted my request for this recipe.

The finished product looked complicated but I was surprised at the ease with which it went together.

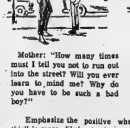
PRINCE OF WALES TORTE

BATTER:
¼ cup butter
½ cup granulated sugar
4 egg yolks
½ tsp. vanilla
1 cup sifted cake flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
5 tbsps. cream

MERINGUE:
4 egg whites
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
1 cup granulated sugar
About ½ cup whole blanched almonds

FILLING:
One 14-oz. can grapefruit sections drained
2 bananas
½ pt. whipping (32 per cent) cream

To make Batter into bowl measure butter and sugar and beat until creamy and light. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating until pale. Add vanilla. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and fold in, in thirds, alternately with the cream.



Butter two deep 8" (or 9") Teflon layer cake pans. If you do not have Teflon, line bottoms with buttered wax paper. Spread batter evenly in pans. (Do not bake yet). Make Meringue by beating egg whites until stiff with the salt and cream of tartar then gradually add sugar until very stiff. Spread evenly over unbaked batter. Stud ONE all over with almonds, point down, to give a crown effect. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. on centre shelf, 35 min., or test with broom straw to be sure bottom batter is baked. Remove from oven and cool in pans.

Near serving time loosen edges and invert one, meringue side down, on fancy cake plate. Cover with drained grapefruit sections. Cover grapefruit with sliced bananas dipped in a little of the left-over grapefruit syrup to prevent browning. Cover with unsectioned cream, whipped until stiff. Cover with second cake, almond - meringue side up. A little of the cream squished on but look attractive. Chill until dessert time.

This is another gorgeous any season torte to add to your company dessert file.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "How many times must I tell you not to run out into the street? Will you ever learn to mind me? Why do you have to be such a bad boy?"

Mother: "Run on ...ee side-walk or around the yard, but stop when you get to the curb. Look both ways before you go into the street. You never know when a car may be coming."

Emphasize the positive when instructing a child. A "do this" is more likely to be remembered than a "don't do this."

School Aid Plan Ends

TORONTO (CP) — A program that in six years built 400 vocational secondary schools for 235,000 Ontario students has come to an end, but several more will be constructed before final details are cleaned up in five or six years.

In a September report, Education Minister William Davis said municipal requests for approval of new vocational school projects—eligible since 1961 for special 75-per-cent cash grants —were cut off March 14, 1968. Those boards which had submitted projects by that date had until Aug. 29 this year to submit sketch plans.

The report said no cash grants for construction and architect's fees on approved projects would be made after Aug. 31, 1971, and no grants for furniture and equipment would be paid after March 31, 1973.

However, a department spokesman is involved in the grants program said it would be impossible to meet the deadlines. There are many school projects in various stages of development still eligible for the grants program and it may be five or six years before the province is finished with them, he said.

New facilities began popping up all over Ontario after June, 1961, when the province entered a federal cost-sharing agreement for construction of technical and vocational facilities.

With Ottawa paying 50 per cent of the cost and the province 25 per cent, money from municipal school boards was immediate. Grants in 1962, the first full year, totalled $116,830,945. There was a drop in the third year to $24,000,000, then another spurt to $92,000,000 in 1967.

In the spring of that year, its funds for the purpose exhausted, the federal government withdrew from the agreement. The province was richer by 400 schools, the senior levels of government poorer by $560,000,000.

Under pressure from the provinces, Ottawa agreed to eliminate the program over two years, continuing to pay cash grants for projects which had already been approved.

Ontario, still facing protests from school boards which had many projects planned but not yet submitted for approval, decided to continue the program for the same two-year period, putting up in cash 75 per cent of approved costs. It was estimated that the two-year, go-it-alone policy would cost the province another $200,000,000.

Alioto Speeds Suits

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (Reuters) — Mayor Joseph Alioto, accused by look magazine of allying with the Mafia, federal court permission Monday to speed up his libel suit against the magazine.

He also got permission to ask questions of two of Gov. Ronald Reagan's press secretaries.

Alioto, a prominent Democrat, has charged that advance copies of the Look article were leaked to the press by aides of the Republican governor.

The court action Monday, federal Judge Carl Harris granted a request by Alioto for a reduction of the 30-day waiting period customarily set between the filing of a libel suit and the taking of depositions.

Alioto filed his $12,500,000 suit Friday.

Alioto, 52, issued a point-by-point denial Sunday night of much of the five-page Look article, rejecting it as a story that "reads like crime comics and bears little relationship to the truth."

The article claimed that the mayor, a nationally prominent Democrat and wealthy lawyer, has had business dealings with at least six Mafia leaders, all of whom is identified by name.

Outlet Park: The Picnic's Over

Fall Might Not Be Here But Signs Are

The shades of night are falling faster these days.

But those are not the only signs that summer '69 is drawing to its close in the Quinte district.

The portents are abundant.

Actually, summer doesn't officially end until September 23.

Fall this year starts at seven minutes past midnight in the Quinte area.

But no one waits on the calendar. The change of seasons already has been evident for weeks.

Factory parking lots are no longer desolate stretches of concrete. Industry some time ago returned to peak production schedule.

Fall fashions are in the store windows, replacing the bikinis and beach garb of what is now yesterday.

Beaches, crowded only recently, now only draw lingering weekend visitors. Summer now comes only on weekends.

It seems only days ago they were turning them away by the hundreds at provincial parks — The Outlet, Sandbanks, Algonquin. Now, tidying-up operations are underway. Picnic tables are stacked, recreation areas mostly deserted.

Municipal parks are being bedded down for another year, play equipment stored, grass plowed.

In the Quinte north the bustle is slowing down at the holiday resorts— the cottage sites. Soon it'll be chore time — time to break camp for another summer.

Not that the weather has changed drastically. There's still plenty of warmth in the Quinte air.

But the people have gone — back to work, to school and the nights are drawing on.

Suddenly, summer is a series of snapshots in the family album.

Guild Hopes to Attract 100 Young People to Theatre

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

With the arrival of Roy Higgins, new resident director of the Belleville Theatre Guild, the young people of Belleville will have an opportunity to participate in "youtheatre", one of the new fast growing movements in the world.

Beginning tonight Mr. Higgins will attempt to educate and involve Belleville's young people in the theatrical arts by forming a "youtheatre" in this city.

He hopes to have at least 100 people ranging in age from 12 to 24 years, arriving at the Pinnacle Playhouse on Pinnacle Street tonight to begin reading for Dark of the Moon, a play to be performed and produced entirely by young people.

And there's more to it than just the production of a play.

"We're trying to give the young people of Belleville an education in theatre," Mr. Higgins said.

And in that vein the entire production of Dark of the Moon will be done by young people from producer all the way down to the stage sweeper.

Because it is an educational experience persons interested in youth theatre do not require experience. All that is needed is a willingness to contribute time and energy to the venture.

In 1968, there were only five "youtheatres" in the world. They were in Moscow, London, Brussels, Paris and in the village of Newcastle here in Ontario.

The set-up in Newcastle was begun by Mr. Higgins in 1968 and he brings that experience to Belleville.

And now the movement is catching on although Newcastle has the distinction of being the first in North America.

In the past four years Mr. Higgins has directed 24 shows, mostly with young people and all without a single flop. A Torontonian by birth, he spent eight years of his experience in the theatre and movie industry in California.

And testifying to the confidence that such a director inspires, two members of the Newcastle organization, Dave Paddick of Newcastle and George Ferguson of Cobourg, have moved to Belleville expressly to take part in his Belleville "youtheatre" work.

Mr. Higgins has expressed hope to become involved with teachers at high school who are this year teaching theatrical arts and who could assist in "youtheatre".

But, the activity of "youtheatre" will not be easy.

"Rehearsals will be extensive," Mr. Higgins said. "We'll be working a great deal on weekends."

And the play, Dark of the Moon, is a perfect choice for Belleville's initiation into this art form. It supplies versatility of activity — drama, music and dance.

Folk singing talent will be needed for this play as there are three or four musical sections in it.

Beginning tonight at 7 p.m., when the first get together begins, everyone will have to pull together for a unified production, a must in the directorial philosophy of Roy Higgins.

Picton Considers Meter Maid

PICTON (Staff) — Town council has under consideration a Picton police commission suggestion to hire a meter maid.

The idea was forwarded by the commission after a request by town police for an increase in force personnel because of reduced work hours in 1970.

Under a newly-signed contract, town police now work ing a 44-hour week will work a 40-hour week in 1970.

Police representatives also told the commission that, because of man power shortage, enforcement of the meter bylaw has been neglected. These facts prompted the commission to suggest a meter maid who could strictly enforce the bylaw.

The commission also urged town council to place a time limit on Main Street parking. It stated the limit "would give relief to the merchants who depend on active people who come to town to trade rather than let the deadwoods park their cars on the streets and get away with insulating the stores from the buying public."

Last month town council noted substantial reduction in parking meter revenue. A survey followed. Conducted on Aug. 12 it showed that in a 30 minute period 22 meters on Main Street had expired and five parking violations were noted. No policeman was seen by the committee during this survey.

This prompted a recommendation in the public works committee report that the commission consider someone to attend meters and parking and to reduce the existing police force by one man.

At last night's meeting of town council committee member Donald Thompson remarked "we might have to add a man in view of what's happening lately."

New Industry Is Discussed

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland revealed to council last night he had mentioned the names of two prospective industries for Prince Edward county at yesterday's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

The mayor could not name the industries but did tell his councillors that one of them would employ about 35 people all year round. He confessed that he had no idea of the number of workers that the second industry might hire. Both would locate in Picton if they decide to come into the county.

Five Indian Bands Form New Association To Petition for Redress of Grievances

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The federal government's recent move to phase out the department of Northern Affairs and Indian Development and turn control of Indian matters over to provincial government has prompted a strong response from the Indians of Tyendinaga.

Their chief, Earl Hill, has been instrumental in forming a new Indian body to foster unity among the Indian people and make their voices heard in Ottawa.

The Iroquois and Allied Indian Association was formed Aug. 23 and now includes representatives from the elected councils of five reserves.

Already the group, representing 15,845 Indians, has sent a brief to Ottawa outlining its grievances against the government's white paper proposing provincial takeovers.

The brief states the association's disagreement was that the white paper was "presented without proper dialogue with the Indians."

It calls for a conference with the proper authorities, "to place before them our feelings and our rights before any further action be taken on this policy".

During the first meeting, and a subsequent one last Saturday at Tyendinaga, the association members discussed their grievances regarding treaty rights and claims and surrender of Indian reserve territories over the past 150 years.

Bands represented are the Oneida, of Caradoc Agency near London, the Mississaugas of New Credit near Brantford, the St. Regis of Cornwall, the Six Nations of Brantford and the Mohawks of Tyendinaga.

"The Indians don't want to come under provincial jurisdiction — we want to stay with the federal government," says Chief Hill. "In any case, the government should settle our territorial disputes before handing any portion of reserve over to the Ontario government."

The association plans to investigate the loss of reserve land over the years, and seek redress.

Among the territorial disputes the association is concerned with are the surrender of large acreages along the Grand River near Brantford, the 1836 in 1949 of 5,400 acres from the Oneida reserve and the loss of 73,000 acres from the northern part of the Tyendinaga reserve.

The St. Regis Indians are seeking an accounting of all monies for undocumented surrenders of land amounting to 72,800 acres from their reserve. The Tyendinaga Mohawks are also pressing an investigation into the loss of all the islands of the Bay of Quinte, deemed theirs by the Gunshot Treaty of the late 1700s.

Another issue is band membership. The association favors the right of each reserve to have a say in who should be declared band members, and wants the band membership list kept in Ottawa. It also wants all Indian land held in trust by the federal government.

The Indians have also expressed concern over the method the provinces might use to distribute Indian funds.

"If all monies are put into one pot and shared out, from the common pool, improper distribution might result," says Chief Hill.

"The Indian is often criticised because he doesn't pay income tax," adds the chief. "But governments forget that 98-per cent of our Indians (in Tyendinaga) work off the reserve and pay full income tax, and all Indians pay every kind of indirect tax going."

Association membership is open to all Ontario Indians. Although the Caughnawaga band near Montreal sought membership, it was advised to join a Quebec association and work with the authorities of the province slated to take over its jurisdiction.

Chief Hill is seeking affiliation for the newly formed association with the Union of Ontario Indians, of which he is a vice-president.

Officers of the new association are: president, Norman Lickers of Six Nations; vice-president, Earl Hill of Tyendinaga, and secretary, Frank Benedict of St. Regis. In addition, each band has appointed two spokesmen to the executive to act as advisors.

Near Riot Disturbs Picton Mayor

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland told town council last night that he was "very disturbed" by the near riot in the midway at Prince Edward County fair.

"I am sorry we have those sort of toys in the county, if that is where they came from," he said.

Mayor McFarland added: "It's their fair too, and someday, as taxpayers, they will pay for the damage we pay for now."

He stressed the necessity of greater law enforcement, and more police backing.

"A boy appears in court, sometimes with many charges against him and is fined $10 and a few days later is at it again," observed the mayor.

The mayor asked, "Who wants to be a policeman today?"

He referred to the hazards of the job in view of present circumstances and suggested critisism of the police by the public is often unwarranted.

Finally, Mayor McFarland expressed his opinion that judges and Crown Attorneys should consider in a different manner the boys brought before them. He mentioned leniency for a first offender but leaned toward harsher treatment of a constant lawbreaker.

Bobby Hangs Up Cleats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Mitchell, the top pass catcher in the National Football League's active ranks, Monday retired from Washington Redskins.

Mitchell, 34, said it "is a sad moment."

"After 20 years of playing, it is hard to turn loose something you love."

The Redskins said Mitchell will remain with the club in a front-office job.

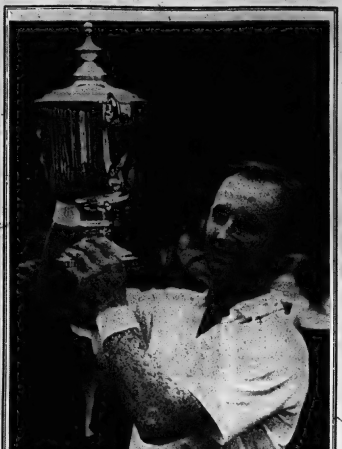
Mitchell had been the top active receiver in the NFL with 521 catches for 7,953 yards.

His 546 points also made him the leading active scorer.

Mitchell still will rank No. 2 behind retired Raymond Berry of Baltimore Colts on the pass-catching list. And he is also No. 2 behind a former team-mate, Jim Brown of Cleveland Browns, in the total yards gained department.

"I couldn't stand being on the team and being on the bench," Mitchell said as he announced his retirement at a news conference.

Coach Vince Lombardi said Mitchell could have played for other teams that would have claimed him if he were put on waivers, but added:



"I wasn't about to offer him to them."

Mitchell was a standout running back at Cleveland from 1958 through 1961, gaining more than 500 yards each year.

He came to Washington in a trade for the late Ernie Davis and was immediately here, leading the NFL in pass receiving in 1962 with 72 catches for 1,384 yards.

In 1967, the Redskins' tremendous trio of Charley Taylor, Jerry Smith and Mitchell finished 1-2-4 in NFL receiving. But Mitchell lingered on the bench most of last year after an abortive attempt by former coach Otto Graham to reconvert him to running back.

Mitchell's 14,028 yards in pass catches, running and kick returns rank him as the second greatest ground-gainer in NFL history behind Brown's 15,459.

Laver Ready to Quit After Second Tennis Slam

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Rod Laver, the world's No. 1 tennis player and acclaimed by many as the greatest of all time, is ready at 31 to quit.

"I have three years to go on a five-year contract," the left-hander said after beating fellow Aussie Tony Roche 7-9, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 Monday for the United States Open crown and his second grand slam.

"I intend to play those three years at least — cutting down perhaps on my tournament schedule. After that, well, we'll just have to see.

"I love tennis — but I also love my wife: I have been travelling the tennis circuit for 13 years, since I was 18. I think it's time I start having a home life."

Laver's wife, Mary, whom he married in June, 1966, in San Francisco, is in Corona Del Mar, Calif., awaiting the couple's first child.

He is under contract to the National Tennis League.

Laver, whose $16,000 first prize in the U.S. Open boosted his year's winning to a record $116,030, predicted that in five years purses will be doubled and even quadrupled.

"This year I won all four of the big ones," he said, referring to the grand slam events of the Australian, French, Wimbledon and American titles. "Next year I may not win any."

Manitou Crew Superior On Second Leg of Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Skipper John Lovett ran his weathered hand through his wiry grey hair Monday, hedging guesses about his yacht and his crew and finally admitting that he was being beaten by a better sailor.

"I mean what else do you expect me to say, but that it's my fault?" the Cleveland yachtsman asked after Canada's Manitou won her second consecutive race over his Niagara in the best-of-five series for the Canada's Cup.

"I've got a good crew, a good boat and I'm being beaten. If you want me to quarterback the situation it's simply that I'm being out-sailed."

It was evident during the second race of the series Monday that the Canadian yacht, owned by a three-man syndicate from Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club, was definitely winning on tactics and superior crew ability.

Manitou, with co-owner Perry Conolly as skipper, beat Niagara by about half a length on the starting gun Monday and by more than 30 seconds Sunday.

Manitou won Monday with a margin of two minutes and 40 seconds. The Canadian boat took the first race by more than eight minutes.

The third race, which actually counts as two events, begins at noon today over a course that could vary from 150 to 250 miles according to wind conditions.

Should Niagara win the long-distance race, a fourth race over a 21-mile triangle, similar to that for the first two events, will be sailed Saturday.

Tightening NL Races Prompt Advance Math

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National League Eastern and Western Divisions are beginning to look alike, which could lead to the most complicated windup to the pennant races in baseball's 100-year history.

New York Mets and commissioner Bowie Kuhn were the instruments of the latest developments Monday, the Mets tightening the eastern race even further by defeating first-place Chicago Cubs 3-2 just hours after Kuhn had announced multiple plans covering all playoff possibilities.

Those possibilities moved closer to becoming probabilities—and forcing the first double playoff in history—as the Mets trimmed another length off the Cubs' lead.

The Mets' victory drew them even with the Cubs in the loss column, just 1½ games behind the leaders—the closest they've been since the third day of the season. At the same time, Pittsburgh Pirates closed to within 6½ of the top with a 6-3 triumph over Montreal Expos.

In the west, meanwhile, the juggling continued with Cincinnati Reds taking over first place from San Francisco, by one-half game, with a doubleheader sweep over the Giants by identical 5-4 scores, although the nightcap took 15 innings.

Los Angeles Dodgers moved into third, just 1½ behind, by edging Atlanta Braves 2-0 while in other games, Houston Astros stayed up there with a 8-2 win over San Diego Padres and St. Louis Cardinals nipped Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

Under baseball's new four-division format, if two teams tie for first in any division, a one-game playoff on Oct. 3 will determine the winner. In a three-way tie, two teams will meet head-on Oct. 3 while one draws a bye and meets the winner Oct. 4. If four teams tie, there will be two games Oct. 3 with the survivors meeting Oct. 4.

The Mets closed in on Chicago as Tommie Agee whacked a two-run homer in the third inning, then scored the winning run in the sixth.

Jerry Koosman, 13-9, got the victory with a seven-hitter after the Cubs had tied the score in the top of the sixth.

The Reds won the opener when Johnny Bench tagged Giants' starter Juan Marichal, 17-10, for a two-run homer in the eighth inning.

Then, after being held hitless for 19 consecutive innings by San Francisco relievers, the Reds put the finishing touches on the 15th on an infield hit by pinch hitter Ted Savage, a sacrifice, an intentional walk to Pete Rose and Bobby Tolan's single.

Jim Maloney, 13-9, got the victory in relief after Jim Merritt, 4-3, went the distance for the Reds, who gave the Giants their first defeat in 10 games, by coming from behind in the ninth inning on a grand slam homer by Jose Martinez.

A two-run home run by Ted Sizemore brought Los Angeles its victory over Atlanta.

The Astros put it out of San Diego's reach with a four-run first built on triples by Joe Morgan and Jesus Alou, a wild pitch, a walk and a homer by Curt Blefary. That was enough for Tom Griffin, who posted his 10th victory despite two homers by Nate Colbert.

Redmen Win Mann Cup Before 600

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Dan Sandford scored two overtime goals to lead Brooklin, Ont., Redmen to an 11-10 victory over New Westminster Blues and the Canadian senior lacrosse championship Monday night.

Brooklin won the best-of-seven series for the Mann Cup 4-1. About 600 watched the final game.

Sandford broke a 9-9 tie with a goal and then scored again to break a 10-10 tie with just over two minutes to go in the 10-minute overtime period.

Bil Squires, named outstanding player of the series, led Brooklin with four goals, while Elmer Tran scored three times. Vegi Armstrong added the other two.

Not Even Rain Stops Orioles

Baltimore and Minnesota didn't do very much Monday night—the Orioles were rained out and the Twins lost—but still drew closer to the expected October playoff for the American League pennant.

While the Orioles were washed out of their scheduled meeting with Washington Senators, the second-place Detroit Tigers moved to New York Yankees 3-2 and fell 15 games back. Baltimore's magic number to clinch the Eastern Division dropped to eight.

In the west, California Angels whipped Minnesota 6-4 but runner-up Oakland Athletics lost to Kansas City Royals 9-8. The Twins remained 8½ games in front and their magic number is 16.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox nipped Cleveland Indians 5-4 and Seattle Pilots swept Chicago White Sox 3-1 and 5-1 as Miguel Fuentes, a 20-year-old rookie, hurled a seven-hitter in his first major league start.

Mike Shannon's two run homer boosted the Cardinals lead over the Phillies to a 4-0 in the sixth inning and turned out to be the clinching blow.

Dies at 61

Kilrea Helped End Longest NHL Game

DETROIT (CP) — Funeral services will be held in Detroit Thursday for Hector (Hec) Kilrea, former National Hockey League star and war hero, who died here Saturday at the age of 61.

Kilrea, eldest of three brothers who played in the NHL, broke into hockey in 1927 with the Ottawa Senators. After playing for the Toronto Maple Leafs, he joined the Detroit Red Wings for the 1931-32 season and remained with them until December, 1939, when he was put on waivers.

When his NHL career ended at the age of 32, Kilrea had played on three Stanley Cup winners. The first was with Jack Adams as a team-mate at Ottawa in 1927. Under Adams as manager, he was a member of the 1935-36 and 1936-37 Red Wings when they won the trophy.

In the 1936 Cup playoffs in Montreal, Kilrea's pass set up Mud Bruneteau's winning goal against the Maroons and ended the longest game in hockey history—176½ minutes.

Kilrea's brothers, Jimmy and Walt, also played for the Red Wings.

He received the Distinguished Service Cross, second-highest U.S. award for heroism, and was also awarded the French Croix de Guerre and a Purple Heart.

Goodbye Tardif, Houle!

Baby Habs Defend Title Minus 8 Regulars

MONTREAL (CP) — Can Montreal Junior Canadiens pick up where they left off last year? This is one of the main questions on the minds of hockey fans in the Montreal area as the nights begin to get cooler and longer and another season lies just ahead.

The Junior Canadiens won 18 playoff games, tied three and lost only one last spring on their way to capturing the Memorial Cup, emblematic of supremacy in Junior hockey in Canada.

Despite the fact the club has lost eight players from last year, including scoring aces Marc Tardif and Rejean Houle, Canadiens general manager Phil Wimmer is confident that it will be a contender in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series in 1969-70.

"We've got a good nucleus back from last year," said Wimmer. "Our first-string goaltender is back, three of our five defencemen are returning and so are six forwards."

Back with Montreal for the coming season are goalie Wayne Wood, defenceman Jocelyn Guevremont, Claude Moreau and Serge Lajeunesse, and forwards Gilbert Perreault, Rick Martin, Normand Gratton, Richard Lemieux, Bobby Lalonde and Robert Guindon.

Perreault scored 37 goals and added 60 assists to finish fifth in the OHA scoring race. Guindon had 38 goals and added 40 assists for 78 points and was third in team scoring, behind Houle. Junior Canadiens will be Pierre Lajeunesse was an all-star defenceman in the OHA last year. Guevremont led the defencemen in scoring with 11 goals and 40 assists.

Among the new faces with the and Perreault.

Brindamour, a 53-goal man in the Montreal Metropolitan Junior A League.

A total of 89 players have been invited to the Junior Canadiens camp, which opens next Monday at the Forum. The camp, the largest organized by Montreal, will consist of 12 goalies, 23 defencemen, 18 centres, 17 right wings and 18 left wings.

Canadiens play their first exhibition game with Ottawa 67s in Ottawa Sept. 22. They meet two provincial rivals, the Globe, Granby on Sept. 28 and Cowansville Oct. 2. Their regular season opens Oct. 9 against Ottawa in Montreal.

Junior Canadiens' farmers they meet in National Hockey League action this season. The pro Canadiens grabbed Houle, Tardif, Guy Charron and Ted Tucker from the Junior Canadiens, while Boston Bruins drafted Art Ouequechi, Chicago took Jean-Pierre Bordeleau and New York claimed Andre Dupont.

Last-minute Stalling Likely to Remain CFL Privilege

TORONTO (CP) — Last-minute stalling in football is a right guaranteed under Canadian Football League rules, and the chances of doing away with it are slim.

A team is guaranteed 20 seconds to put the ball into play—the absolute minimum necessary in the opinion of top football executives.

But it's a ruling that has been abused. For instance:

A team finds itself two points ahead, in possession of the ball and with less than a minute on the clock.

They huddle for the allotted 20 seconds—and as much more time as they can fudge —then take the five-yard penalty.

On the play immediately following such a penalty, however, time is not called in until the ball is snapped, so the team runs a nice, safe ground play and goes back into the huddle for another 30 seconds.

It's a slow, sorry ending to what was probably a roaring, fast-breaking game up to that point.

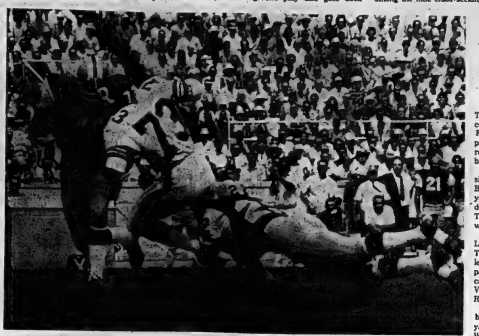
Next month, CFL Commissioner Jake Gaudaur goes out among the nine clubs seeking recommendations and amendments to the rules.

In the first week of January, the CFL rules committee meets to act on suggested changes. It's the only procedure for changing the rules.

Gaudaur admits there has been a good deal of late-game stalling recently—"there have been so many close games the last couple of years."

There has been so much of it this year that "people within the league" have brought up the subject with the commissioner.

Football experts see no way of removing the 30-second rule, but suggest that—within the last three minutes of a game—the penalty for stalling might be increased.



Suggestions have been to lengthen the penalty to 15 yards or to force the offending team to give up the ball.

The clubs may vote to amend the rule; to put teeth in the penalty involved.

On the other hand, when it comes time to vote, club officials may hesitate.

After all, it could be their team two points ahead, in possession of the ball and with less than a minute on the clock.

Old Pro Tommy Joe Sets Scoring Pace; Argos' Raimey Top Ground-gobbler

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats' Tommy Joe Coffey continued to set the Eastern Football Conference scoring pace, but Dave Raimey has Toronto Argonaut believers bubbling over with Grey Cup fever.

Raimey, a recent Argo acquisition from Winnipeg Blue Bombers, broke loose for 165 yards and three touchdowns during the weekend in a 34-15 Toronto victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Official Canadian Football League statistics, released Tuesday night, showed Raimey leading the EFC's rushing department ahead of Dennis Duncan of Montreal Alouettes and Vic Washington of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Raimey, 28, has carried the ball 63 times for 458 yards, 25 yards ahead of Duncan, while Washington has picked up 425 yards along the ground.

Coffey, who amassed 70 points in the Ticats' five-game unbeaten streak, saw his scoring lead dwindle to six points as Ottawa's kicking specialist Don Sutherin booted 10 points in the Riders' 47-22 win over Montreal.

Sutherin now has 64 points.

Hamilton, idle during the last week, remained the only unbeaten team in the CFL with four victories and a tie. Toronto and Ottawa hold down first place with five victories and a loss for 10 points, one ahead of the Ticats.

TOMMY JOE COFFEY

Margene Adkins of Ottawa took over the lead in pass receptions with 37 for 606 yards, also tops in the EFC. Bobby Taylor moved into second place as the Argo flanker increased his total catches to 36 and dropped Coffey, the previous week's leader, to third spot with 22.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson continues as the league's top passer, completing 85 of 159 for 1,709 yards. But he's being pressed by Tom Wilkinson of Toronto with 81 completions in 136 attempts and a .596 completion percentage.

Quarterbacks Joe Zuger of Hamilton and Sonny Wade of Montreal continue to rank one two in the punting department while Mike Eben of the Argos and Hamilton's Ed Buchanan held to their respective leads in the punt and kickoff returns.

Two Rounds

Chuvalo KO's Jamaican Champ

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Jamaican champion Stanford Harris at 2:09 of the second round Monday night in a scheduled 12-round exhibition match.

The match, before a near-capacity crowd of about 4,000, was a fast-moving affair until late in the second round when Harris got his hands up high and Chuvalo came through with a crushing left and right to the head.

Harris, from Kingston, Jamaica, weighed 226 pounds and Chuvalo 219.

The match was an important one for Chuvalo, who hopes to pound his way back into world heavyweight recognition, after being dropped from the list of the world's top 10. He had been inactive for six months.

In his last fight, Chuvalo was defeated by Buster Mathis of Grand Rapids, Mich. His career stretches back to the early 1950s when he knocked out three fighters in a one-night tournament.

Tuna Takers Start Hunt for 800-Pounders

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — The preliminaries are over, and fishing began in earnest early today as six teams from as many countries vied for the International Tuna Match trophy up for grabs for the 30th time since the event started.

Each team has been allotted three boats. Some are to fish off nearby Cape St. Mary at the mouth of the Bay of Fundy, while others will sail from Wedgeport, about 10 miles from this southwestern Nova Scotia port.

Mexico, the defending champion, is back in full force in an attempt to keep the title, but the team faces stiff opposition from Canada, the United States and the Caribbean.

Up to seven members are allowed on each team, but only six may fish at any one time.

Italy and Spain are also entered but will fish with only three men each—the minimum allowed by contest rules.

Spain—returning for the first time in 12 years—had expected to field a six-man team but four members were forced to cancel for personal reasons. The visiting sportsmen "borrowed" veteran deep-sea fisherman Alfred Trask of Yarmouth to complete their contingent.

A substitute team member has at least once proven his worth in the match's 20-year history. In 1947, Murray Holden of Shelburne, N.S., was loaned to Cuba and boated a record-breaking 871-pound bluefin to win the cup for the crew. Holden's record still stands as the largest fish taken in the world series of big game angling.

Hockey Peace Talks Faltering

CALGARY (CP) — Peace talks between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Western Hockey League are not going smoothly.

Scotty Munro of Calgary, a member of the WCHL's board of governors, said Sunday night certain CAHA members won't agree to two of the 12 points the WCHL set for its return to the CAHA.

The WCHL, a junior circuit with teams in Winnipeg, Flin Flon, Brandon, Estevan, Saskatoon, Swift Current, Edmonton and Calgary, broke away from the CAHA last year in a dispute over junior age limits.

Munro said in an interview one of the points demanded by the WCHL "was the right for our body to place a club anywhere in Western Canada."

"Well they won't go along with his," Munro said.

GEORGETOWN, Ont. (CP) — Education should supercede a career in professional sports says Jean Beliveau, captain of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. He said at the inaugural Little NHL Hockey Hall of Fame dinner here Monday night that he often wished he had continued his education. Earlier, during a news conference, Beliveau said he expected the chief threats to the defending champion Canadiens during the 1969-70 season would be New York Rangers and Boston Bruins.

Turk Takes Aces Because of Poile

QUEBEC (CP) — Turk Broda says he probably would have returned to coach a junior club at Moncton this year had he not had offers to coach a professional hockey team.

Broda, 50, former goaltender for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, said he received a couple of offers from professional hockey teams and chose Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League because he wanted to work for Bud Poile.

Broda signed a contract Sunday to coach the Aces, succeeding V. Stasiuk who was appointed coach of Philadelphia Flyers of the NHL. Quebec is Philadelphia's top farm club. Poile is general manager of the Flyers.

Roughriders Take Grain In Exchange for Tickets

TORONTO (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders are instigating a program to bring partial relief to the Western Canada wheat farmer.

Ken Preston, Riders general manager, said here Monday if the idea materializes farmers will be able to exchange a bag of grain for a $2 ticket to an interlocking Canadian Football League game at Taylor Field Oct. 12 against Ottawa Rough Riders.

"We haven't got details worked out completely," said Preston. "It's sort of in the formation stage.

"It's just an idea we had to give some farmers a break.

"One bag of grain—what would that be—a bushel and a half? One bag would get him a $2 ticket; two bags, two $2 tickets. Of course we'd limit any one person to two tickets on this deal."

Efforts to recoup the financial losses through a deal with the grain exchange have run into red-tape flaws, says Preston, so the Riders are looking for a grain merchant to handle the bartered grain.

Campbell's Triple Puts Point Anne Out

An 11th - inning triple by Ellis Juniors' r i g h tfielder John Campbell was the pin that burst the 1969 Point Anne Commercial League bubble.

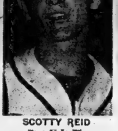
Campbell's swat broke up the rain-dampened Alemite game which the Juniors went on to win 5-3 and take their best-of-seven semi-final series 4-3.

The Cementmen, down three games to none at one point in the series, served notice early last night that they wanted a berth in the league finals against City Hotel.

Consecutive hits by leadoff man Larry Fraser, backstop Claude Carr, and outfielder Jim Horwood gave Point Anne a 2-0, first-inning lead.

After three scoreless innings the Juniors squared things on singles by Dale Duvall and John Campbell and a Point Anne error, only to hand the Cementmen a 3-2 lead on infield errors in the bottom of the inning.

Dale Duvall's single s e n t Paul Goodfellow home with the tying run for the Juniors in the top of the sixth, to set the stage for four and a half innings of damp, scoreless ball.



Point Anne had a runner on third with only one out in the bottom of the tenth, but the 10-hitter, fanning five a n d walking one.

Campbell's triple off Hunter sent Duvall home with t he fourth Juniors' run with Campbell then scoring on an infield error.

The Juniors meet City Hotel Wednesday night at the Alemite at 8 p.m. in the f i r s t game of a best-of-seven series to decide the Commercial League championship.

Sunday Night Games

Junior B's Won't Compete with NFL

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Junior B hockey has enough attendance problems without trying to compete for attention with the National Football League.

That's the reasoning behind a switch in Sunday game times from afternoon to 7:30 in the evening by the Morning Realty B's, who last night were entered as one of the six teams in the Eastern Ontario Junior B group.

Friday dates and their 9 p.m. game times will remain the same for the Morrisons, who are out to mature some of the playing talent they had last year and better their last-place finish in the standings.

The Morrisons first game of the 30-game schedule will be on Oct. 31 road trip to Kingston, with the home opener coming Sunday, Oct. 26 with Cobourg in town.

Trenton's Golden Hawks open Oct. 19 in Peterborough and play their first home game Friday, Oct. 24 with the same Don Byes.

Managers Jim "Snipe" Matthews and Jack Bonn are working out details for a Trenton-Belleville exhibition game some time in October. The arch-rivals clash in a scheduled Boxing Day game Dec. 26 in Trenton.

Trenton's home games will again be played Friday nights at 8:30, in addition to several 8 p.m. Sunday fixtures.

The featured Trenton-Belleville confrontation of the winter comes Friday night, Dec. 5, when a couple of thousand youngsters will again jam the Memorial Arena for "P o n y Night."

Representatives from the same 62-69 teams (Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Kingston, Peterborough and O s h a w a) last night agreed to leave the 30-game schedule unchanged, which will see the season ending around Feb. 22.

Other votes determined that: a neutral referee and two local linesmen will again officiate all league games, as opposed to the two - referee system; there will again be no overtime in regular season games; a points tie for a playoff spot will be decided by a sudden-death game between the teams involved.

The Morrisons and the other five teams will also be allowed to carry 15 players and two goaltenders in competition within their own group, but must revert to the 14 and 2 established by the CAHA if advancing in play beyond the eastern six-team loop.

Hockey School Registers Full House

Belleville's new h o c k e y school will be a full house . . . almost.

Registration for the Oct. 6-18 Recreation - Arena Committee - sponsored program drew 119 "students" only one less than school organizers said was the maximum number of students that could be accommodated.

In addition, there were six registrations for tentatively planned sessions of hockey instruction for girls 12-18.

The hockey school, for city boys aged 7-13, is designed to give each participant about 15 hours of tutoring in such fundamentals as skating, passing, and shooting, including a program of off-ice instruction in the form of films, chalk-talks, or question - and - answer periods.

The school will be held evenings from 5:30 - 8:30.

British Government Sport Body Taking Swipes at Sham Amateurism

LONDON (CP) — Britain has confronted the sporting world with a black forecast: If the barriers between amateur and professional sport aren't torn down soon, the shaky structure of international sport, including the Olympic Games, will collapse within 10 or 15 years.

The government-appointed Sports Council, led by Sports Minister Denis Howell, has challenged the world to modify the segregation of sport first instituted by Britain a century ago.

In a report, it states that under-the-counter professionalism is already damaging the principle of amateur sport, giving those nations which bend the regulations an unfair advantage in international competition.

The experts cite Communist countries where "amateur" athletes are drafted into the armed services or given a university place so they can train f u l l - t i m e for major events like the Olympics.

Says Howell: "I saw so many 'professionals' competing in the Mexico Olympics that it is no use trying to protect the ethos of amateurism, otherwise the whole integrity of sport will be undermined."

He f o r e s e e s the restive mood among countries which feel cheated out of medals leading to a serious split.

As a first step, the council does not seek to abolish all restrictions, only those which are proving unjust or unworkable.

A m o n g its recommendations:

—Professionals in one sport should be allowed to compete as amateurs in another, allowing, say, a pro hockey player to participate as an amateur ice skater in the Olympics.

—Pros and amateurs should be allowed in train and play together, except in specifically designated amateur competitions.

—Athletes not making a living from sport should be permitted to compensate for earnings lost during training or competition appearances by being paid for coaching, broadcasting and writing commissions.

Howell suggests that since Britain was responsible for the current division, it should take a lead in reuniting sport.

"S p o r t s organizations in Britain should move towards the elimination of the terms amateur and professional in their regulations," he says.

In recent years, Britain has pioneered open cricket and more recently open tennis, a move which has enhanced the annual Wimbledon meet's reputation by a t t r a c t i n g the cream of the world's players.

The proposals got a lukewarm reception from some British sports administrators who fear that Britain will face isolation from other countries if it tries to go it alone.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, r e c e n t l y reaffirmed his staunch opposition to any idea of abandoning amateurism. That policy is likely to stand while the 82-year-old veteran Olympic boss remains in control.

Nevertheless, Howell warns that failure to heed the danger signs could lead to disaster. Unless action is taken, he predicts that "the Olympic movement will disintegrate three games from now."

City Bow Club Still on Target

Belleville Archery C l u b members are getting their last arrows in before the temperatures drive them indoors.

Sunday, the local club staged their fifth annual Arrowhead Shoot, attracting about 60 archers, including Canada s champion Don J a c k s o n of Lindsay who took top men's freestyle honors.

Belleville's Carol Armstrong, former two-time national champion — captured the women's freestyle trophy for the day's shooting.

Another city club member— Lloyd Hogan — won intermediate boys' freestyle honors while Ottawa's John Burkett was the best bare bow.

Bare bow class w i n n e r s were Terry Jones, Roger Goodin and Belleville's Brad Barnes, current Ontario indoor bare bow champion.

Hardware Gains Tie In 7th-inning Rally

The lights went out on the Intelligencer City in the Departmental Softball L e a g u e last night.

The Printers blew a 5-1 lead with one out in the seventh and final inning, as International Harness Recreation Club salvaged a 5-4 tie during the dim hours of dusk.

A sharp four-strikeout six-hitter by Ron Culloden went for nought as his mates booted the ball around the infield after pulling off a rare triple play in the fourth inning to get out of a bases-loaded jam.

The tie was the second in the best-of-seven consolation series in which each team has won two games. Final game is scheduled for Wednesday night at 6 p.m. at Prince Charles School.

Ken Osborne gave up nine hits on the IHRC side, including doubler by Culloden and Merv Thompson. Bill Mitchell s triple, and singles by Rick Hay, John Edwards, Ron Broadbridge, Pat Brown and Maurice Switzer.

Thatcher Bob Chaffell's double was the only extra-base safety off Culloden who was touched for singles by Tom Cain, Don Brown, Ken Osborne and Harold Redquest.

The safest and surest shot when the ball rests just off the green in not too-heavy grass is the so-called "TEXAS wedge." This is merely the putter, used in preference over a chipping iron because most golfers can control it more easily.

Use your usual putting grip and stance—the choice is up to you. About the only change would be to position your hands slightly ahead of the ball at address. This is so you are the ball a downward "bump," which will lift it off the ground and get it started on its journey. If you play this shot with your hands even with the ball, or behind, you just might leave the putt short as the grass would catch it right away and slow it down.

United They Stand . . .

Belleville United have earned a berth in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League Trenton final with a 3-1 win over CFB Trenton.

First blood went to United on Allan Brown's goal 15 minutes into the wind-blown game. CFB Trenton tied the game by bouncing one in off a United defender in a goal-mouth scramble five minutes later.

A 40 - yard drifter by Rod Coyne gave Belleville the lead and stood as the win 10 minutes into the second half, with Brown's second goal with 20 minutes remaining beating the CFB goaltender cleanly from 20 yards.

United now goes into the Trenton Cup final against either Belleville Rover or Whitby Travellers of Trenton.

Welfare Failure Demands New Approach: Stanfield

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask. (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, on a tour of communities in Saskatchewan and Alberta, called Monday for new approaches to welfare programs in Canada.

Mr. Stanfield told a public meeting here that one part of a new approach to social welfare could be a guaranteed annual minimum income for all citizens.

He said current approaches have failed in many areas even though about $3,500,000,000 is spent annually in Canada on welfare programs.

Speaking to about 200 persons, Mr. Stanfield said the party intends to discuss the minimum annual income proposal at its national policy conference next month at Niagara Falls, Ont.

A minimum income plan could narrow the gap between Canadians in need and other citizens, he said. The central element in such a program must be the provision of incentives.

This would involve some type of scheme to make it profitable for persons on welfare to work.

Mr. Stanfield said his proposal was only a basis for discussion.

"It is not the final word, and it is not the official policy of the party."

The Opposition leader said he wants a wide and full debate on the matter before the next general election. In Edmonton, at the start of his four-day western tour, he said he believed the proposal would generate differences within the party.

Mr. Stanfield, who travels today to Regina, is seeking recommendations to put before the Conservative caucus in Ottawa.

Monday he discussed agricultural problems with residents of Bonnyville, Alta., and listened to the problems of Indian people at Frog Lake, Alta., 125 miles east of Edmonton.

Farm worries, including huge unsold grain stocks, dwindling sales on the world market and rising production costs, have been prime topics wherever he has gone.

Pair Sentenced to Life

OTTAWA (CP) — David Edward Dwyer, 22, of Windsor, and David John Brault, 23, of Ottawa, were sentenced to life imprisonment Monday after pleading guilty to charges of non-capital murder in the slaying of two motorists near here last November.

Mr. Justice George Addy of the Supreme Court of Ontario sentenced Dwyer and Brault after they admitted killing Gerald MacDonald, 31, of Ottawa, and Kenneth Valley, 42, of St. Clair Shores, Mich., in an incident near Carp, Ont., about 25 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Money May Be Short But It Changes Hands

OTTAWA (CP) — Whatever else may have been happening to the economy at mid-year, money was changing hands at a furious rate.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday that $63,382,361,000 changed hands in cheques passing through Canada's 51 clearing houses during June. This was 22.6 per cent more than in June last year.

June clearings brought the total for the first half of 1969 to $355,792,891,000, up 16.1 per cent from the first six months of 1968.

Cheque clearings are an indication of the pace of business, but the totals reported by the clearing houses do not represent the total turnover of money by cheque.

The $63,382,361,000 in June was the first time cheque clearings exceeded $60,000,000,000 in a month. For the second successive month the total represented more than all the money in current and personal chequing accounts in the chartered banks. Government deposits in the banks are not counted.

The figures are also expressed in the current purchasing value of the dollars involved. They reflect, in part, the 5.3-per-cent increase in consumer prices between June, 1968, and June, 1969, and an increase of almost that much in wholesale prices.

Earlier DBS reports showed the actual volume of business done in the production of goods and services, shorn of the price increases, was down fractionally in April, May and June.

Strikes and lockouts were mainly to blame for slicing sixtenths of one per cent off the country's real domestic product from the first quarter of the year.

Negative Income Tax Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative research paper made public Monday proposes a negative income tax to implement a guaranteed minimum income.

The negative income tax would cost $1,638,500,000 annually, but much of this could be offset by savings from reducing other welfare payments, the paper says.

"There can be neither independence of mind nor freedom of choice for men and women who are forced to devote their lives merely to staying alive," the researchers say. "About one-fifth of the present Canadian people seem destined to remain in that situation without some workable system of minimum annual income or its equivalent."

Edwin R. Black, director of the Conservative research office, says in an introductory note the research study does not represent the policy of either the party or its leader, Robert Stanfield.

The paper says present welfare payments, including such programs as old age pensions and family allowances, amount to $2,500,000,000 a year and do not provide an incentive to work.

A sample outlined in the study would assure a family of four $2,000 a year with no other income. With $1,000 earnings, the grant would be $1,940, for a total income of $2,940.

If a family of four had earnings of $3,000 a year, the grant would be $190. At $4,000 the family would begin to pay income tax.

Quebec Adds to Incentives

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government Monday announced a three-year $50,000,000 financial assistance program as incentive for engineering and chemical firms in the Montreal region.

Jean-Paul Beaudry, industry and commerce minister, told a news conference the government hopes the program will attract about $250,000,000 in investment capital.

The program is aimed at filling a gap created by provincial and federal government action to aid economically underdeveloped regions.

Companies must establish plants or enlarge facilities generally in an area within a 75-mile radius of Montreal to qualify under terms of the program. The area is left out of the previous provincial and federal development plans.

The principal industries eligible for assistance of up to $5,000,000 are those involved in electronics and electronic management, chemicals, industrial machinery and aerospace products.

Credit Union Funds Climb

TORONTO (CP) — The assets of Ontario's 1,523 credit unions and caisses populaires climbed by 18.9 per cent—7 per cent less than the national average in the province which submitted reports to the government, plus an estimate for the one-third, accounting for 16.9 per cent of the asset value, which did not submit reports.

Arctic Tanker Slices Through Four Foot Ice

WINTER HARBOUR, N.W.T. (CP) — Two senior officials of the Canadian transport department said Monday they are impressed with the performance so far of the tanker Manhattan in its attempt to navigate the Northwest Passage to Alaska.

The big American ship sliced through ice-covered Viscount Melville Sound Sunday evening and early Monday at a respectable eight knots. The ice was an average four feet thick.

The ship dropped anchor for six hours Monday to allow an ice party to leave the ship for scientific forays before moving on towards Winter Harbor about 130 miles away. Winter Harbour is about 200 miles west of the Magnetic North Pole.

Both Captain Tom Pullen, the senior Canadian government representative aboard the super tanker, and Admiral Tony Storrs, director of marine operations for the transport department, agreed the Manhattan had done al that was expected of it in the voyage so far.

But they added that the big test was still ahead of the tanker after it reaches Winter Harbour and proceeds through either Mclure Strait or Prince of Wales Strait. Beyond that awaits a week or more in the permanent ice pack in the Beaufort Sea.

Captain Pullen said that the Manhattan reached a speed of 15 knots in ice earlier in Lancaster Sound. If he had attempted to do the same while in command of an icebreaker, "I would expect to be relieved of my duties."

The Manhattan, with a special bow strengthened against the ice, is attempting to prove that heavy tankers can move oil from Alaska down to the eastern U.S. through the Northwest Passage.

Admiral Storrs said that, Impressive as has been the voyage to this point, it has not added much to solving the problems facing Canadians moving resources from Baffin Island and Melville Island.

A huge iron ore deposit, reputed to be the richest in the world, lies untapped at Mary River near Baffin Bay. A big drawback in working the find is the short shipping season.

Admiral Storrs said Canadian icebreakers over the last three years had extended the known shipping season to more than six weeks and the Manhattan passed this point a few days ago with no trouble.

Foul Play Ruled Out In Dr. Pike Death

JERUSALEM (AP) — Dr. James A. Pike, the former Episcopal bishop of California, could have died from a fall, thirst, heat, exhaustion, a heart attack or a combination of factors, police sources said Monday.

The assessment was based on a report by pathologists at Tel Aviv's Institute of Forensic Medicine. Details were not disclosed, but a police source said: "It could have been the head injury, or maybe a heart attack, or thirst, or heat or just exhaustion—but probably a combination of all these things.

"There is no way of telling how the wilderness can drive a man to death."

Israeli authorities said the pathologists' report indicated that 56-year-old Pike apparently died within hours of being parted from his wife after their automobile got stuck in the desert near the Dead Sea a week ago.

Police ruled out any possibility of foul play.

Czech Writers Dissolve Union

PRAGUE (Reuters) — The active presidium of the liberal-leaning Czech Journalists' Union quit Monday and the Prague Journalists' Association was dissolved.

The moves followed discussions between the union and a Communist party delegation Monday morning, the official news agency CTK reported.

The Czech Journalists' Union has come under heavy attack from pro-Moscow elements for its liberal views and opposition to reimposition of censorship after the Warsaw pact invasion nearly 13 months ago.

The union represents an estimated 3,000 journalists prominent in publicizing the reformist policies of liberal leader Alexander Dubcek before his fall from power.

CTK said the Czech union and the Prague association will be placed under control of a 30-man commission.

The agency did not name the members of the commission but it was assumed they would be conservatives, possibly including Oldrich Svestka, editor of the weekly magazine Tribuna, who recently headed a campaign against liberal leanings in Czechoslovak publications.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My family we go from one extreme to the other. We have a daughter who had most of the symptoms of hypothyroidism you mentioned one day in your column.

What a transformation! We took her to our doctor who tested her blood and found she was definitely below normal. He has put her on two grains of thyroid a day, and she feels like a new person. Her grades are better at school, she is more alive and alert.

Now here's the other extreme. My wife has become extremely nervous. A neighbor with a similar problem has discovered that she has an overactive thyroid. She is getting medicine and in a few weeks is going in for a thyroid operation. What are the symptoms of an overactive thyroid? Perhaps my wife has it. — Mr. D.

COMMENT: I am happy that your daughter feels better. But as in her case, better let your doctor make the diagnosis in your wife, rather than depend upon any symptoms I may mention here.

What I say in the column is to make you aware of possible trouble then have it checked out in your doctor's office. Well, here goes. I hope it leads to improvement, as in your daughter's case.

In hyperthyroidism the overactivity of the gland manifests itself in various ways. Nervousness is one. There may be a tremor of the fingers. Fatigue is common. Occasional bouts of unexplained diarrhoea. Eyes may or may not bulge. Pulse is fast. Sometimes irregular. There may be an enlargement in the neck; sometimes easily visible, at other times has to be sought for. There you have some of the symptoms. Mr. U. Better let your doctor evaluate them.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is there another way to stop smoking than by exerting will power? I have been smoking for over 30 years. — Mr. S.

COMMENT: There may be another way — but nothing beats will power.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Isn't some tension necessary for good health? — Mrs. P.

COMMENT: There is a basic tension in all of us, essential to keep alive. For example, constant "muscle tone" is but one evidence of normal tension. If there wasn't tension in our muscles our spinal column would crumple.

I agree tension is necessary for good health. But it's excessive tension which is bad. This is what we try to combat with tranquilizers and scores of other methods.

For Mr. Y.: Leg cramps at night aren't necessarily due to lack of exercise. Sometimes there are simple cramps due to no particular cause. In the elderly, the trouble may follow involvement in the arteries and when. Excessive smoking will cause leg cramps in people who are especially sensitive to tobacco.

For Mrs. T.: One element of proof we have that obesity is bad for the health is life insurance company statistics on hundreds of thousands of people. Invariably, the fatter you are, the more likely are you to get some earlier medical complication. For example dying earlier than your normal-weighted neighbor.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've led an easy physical existence and when rheumatic heart disease for over 30 years. At the age of 55 do you think it's necessary for me to take up exercise? — Mr. N.

COMMENT: I'll say no and disagree with many jogger-oriented medical men who would say yes.

Column Advice Designed Only as Aid to Diagnosis

Organist Will Take Up Duties

NAPANEE — Tom Dawson recently of Kenora, will take up his duties as organist and choir director in Grace United Church September 14. He succeeds Mrs. Grant Sexsmith, who resigned the end of June.

Mr. Dawson comes to Grace church with high qualifications, and many years of experience. He is a licentiate of the London (England) College of Music, and is a member of the Canadian College of Organists and of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association.

For 11 years he was organist and choir director in Knox United Church in Kenora. Previous to that, he had held a similar position in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Fort Angeles, Washington, for 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson are living at 214 East St., where Mr. Dawson will set up his studio for students in piano.

Chrysler Has Five Series

For 1970, Chrysler has 15 models in five series — Newport, Newport Custom, 300 and New Yorker hardtop and sedan models and Town and Country station wagons. The cars have been given a 1.3-inch wider track for better handling and a more attractive rear end appearance. Belted fiberglass tires are standard on all models. Above is a Newport custom four-door hardtop.

Trailers Not Allowed In Centennial Park

No trailers will be permitted to park in Centennial Park until such time as the proposed trailer camp is set up and proper facilities are provided. A motion to that effect was passed by the parks board last year, and was referred to, at the August meeting. Several requests have been turned down.

The board refused, not only because it felt that facilities should first be installed, but also because of zoning bylaws.

The only exception is in the case of tourists with trailers who may, on request, be given permission to stay there overnight.

At the close of the meeting members were taken by William Hipp, chairman of the board, to see what progress had been made on the 30-foot dock which the board is having installed using its own funds.

Not knowing that the parks board was already carrying out plans to build the dock, which it had made last fall, when meeting in August the council had approved a plan to ask the Napanee Region Conservation Authority for assistance to build a dock at Centennial Park. Speaking Tuesday, Mr. Higgins approved the plan, with the second dock to parallel the one now partly built, and a part at the end which would make a partial enclosure of the water lying between, providing a sheltered area. However, he pointed out that the town would first have to purchase the water lot on which this dock would be constructed, as the town owns only to the water's edge. The parks board had secured permission from the owner to construct its own dock.

Ameliasburg

AMELIASBURG DISTRICT—Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tyler, Rodney and Joyce of Toronto spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tyler and a week at a cottage on Stenson Block.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold O'Hara, Mr. and Mrs. Dean O'Hara and Kimberly and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hayes spent Saturday at Coe Hill.

Mrs. George Webb and Mrs. Lorne Robbins, Trenton spent Tuesday with their mother, Mrs. Paul Tyler who broke her leg on Monday.

Information Director Reports Busy Year

TWEED — Directors of the Tweed Chamber of Commerce looked both backwards and forwards at a recent meeting at the Hotel Tweedsmuir, Tweed.

Looking backwards, the directors reviewed the summer activities, which included the operation of the tourist information booth in North Hastings's Smallest Jailhouse: The director in charge of the information booth, Clyde Bell, was asked to see if anything new could be done to improve the operation of the booth in 1970.

President David Morton asked the directors to assist in removing the tourist signs, placing these in storage at the information booth for next year.

In his report to the meeting, Clyde Bell said the directors that there were 64 pages of signatures in this year's register at the tourist information booth, as compared with 51 pages in the 1968 register. Taking the total number of persons registered in parties, this represented about 2400 as compared with 2000 a year ago.

Looking forward, the directors discussed the holding of the annual Santa Claus Parade. A committee made up of Terry LeSage, Vera Moffat and Ken Rashotte was appointed to give this matter further consideration. They will report to the next directors' meeting to be held at the Hotel Tweedsmuir, Wednesday, October 1.

Plans were completed for a dinner meeting to be held Tuesday evening, September 30. A committee of Barry Hunter and Don LeSage was named to arrange for a speaker.

The dinner will be held at the Tweedsmuir Hotel.

A request was received from the Tweed Agricultural Society asking that the merchants of Tweed consider the possibility of closing their stores for a period of two hours during the afternoon of Saturday, October 4, to give the employees an opportunity to attend the annual fall fair. The C of C directors asked the secretary to advise the Fair Board that their request would be called to the attention of the local merchants.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to planning the 1970 Winter Carnival, with dates set for February 13, 14 and 15. Reeve Barbara Allen noted that the Carnival would be held on St. Valentine's Day and suggested that this fact be used as a theme throughout the Carnival. Committee chairmen were appointed to make initial arrangements for the carnival.

Several of the directors expressed the hope that a parking area could be maintained in Tweed throughout the winter, where out-of-town visitors could park their cars and snowmobile trailers, and also that marked snowmobile trails could originate from this parking area. All this information to be included in the proposed leaflet, which will advise visitors of hotel and motel accommodations in the area, as well as restaurants and service facilities. The brochure is to be ready for distribution by December 1, 1969.

Not Getting Into College
Isn't The End Of The World

In fact, it might be the beginning of your world. A bright new and very rewarding world. The world of computer programming.

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them well, too.

No, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school. A school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centres and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you during the day, evening — even Saturdays.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step to your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you — if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose?

Brazil Junta Cracks Down On All Left-wing Subversives

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — The three-man military junta ruling Brazil today mounted an all-out drive to wipe out left-wing subversives—including the group that last week kidnapped U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick and forced the government to send 15 political prisoners to freedom in Mexico.

The junta's moves could provoke trouble among Brazilian military leaders at a time when the country faces mounting political violence on the right and the left and a delicate constitutional situation.

The three ruling generals are running the country while President Arthur da Costa e Silva recovers from a stroke suffered Aug. 31. Since they took power nothing more has been heard of Costa E Silva's reported plans to partially restore the national legislature, dismissed in December, 1968.

Reliable sources today said one move planned by the junta was appointment of special new military courts to deal with left-wing subversion—a step that might provoke a clash with high-ranking officers running the military tribunals already responsible for internal security.

The junta issued two decrees Monday night in the wake of the Elbrick kidnapping drama.

The first decree announced that the junta assumed powers to banish all undesirables from Brazil. The second formally banished the 15 political prisoners flown to Mexico City in exchange for the safe return of Elbrick.

A government spokesman who announced the orders said a third decree authorizing tougher measures to combat subversion would be announced today. He gave no details.

The decrees came at the end of a day in which the government announced that security forces took over a two-storey house in Rio where Elbrick was held captive and also made several arrests.

Unconfirmed reports said police began rounding up suspects as soon as the ambassador was released Sunday and that 17 persons had been arrested.

Proof or Consequences

Police Burden 'Heavy Enough'

EDMONTON (CP) — Carrying a heavy burden of proof could break the back of law enforcement and society will have to pay the consequences, the chairman of the Canadian police chiefs' law amendment committee said Monday.

Chief Arthur Cookson of Regina, speaking in an interview, disagreed with a statement by federal Justice Minister John Turner that police should carry the heaviest burden of proof in law enforcement.

"Just how heavy must it have to get?" said Chief Cookson following a private meeting of the law amendment committee of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police at the association convention.

He said claims that tougher criminal law will result in police enarchy and "jack boots in the streets" are not the truth.

"If a law is no good, then it should be thrown out, but the role of police is to observe the law, and police forces across Canada are dedicated to upholding the law and they will enforce it."

Organized crime is making itself felt in Western Canada and police are watching it carefully, said Mr. Cookson. It appeared about two years ago, he added, under the guise of legitimate businesses such as real estate and the oil industries.

Chief Cookson said he favors taking wiretapping out of the hands of private gamblers and other individuals and placing it under federal control.

Justice Minister Turner has said all private wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping devices will be illegal after Parliament deals with a bill this fall. The bill would permit use of the devices by police under a licensing system.

Earlier Chief Fred Sloane of Edmonton, chairman of the association's training and selection committee, said police forces must consider hiring persons at higher levels of pay and responsibility.

Mr. Sloane said police forces need new programs, higher entrance requirements and specialized training, but economics and pay scales are limiting factors.

Meanwhile, a Quebec industrial security officer said that crime in industry is becoming a major problem and security and law enforcement agencies are not equipped to cope with it.

Joseph A. Dorsell of Point Claire, Que., chief of Noranda Mines Ltd. security force, was speaking in an interview at the convention.

Parole Said So Successful Practice Should Be Extended

EDMONTON (CP) — George Street, chairman of the national parole board, said today the use of parole has been so successful in the rehabilitation of criminals that its use should be extended.

"In fact, everyone should come out of prison under some form of control and this is what is being proposed and will be implemented as soon as we have the necessary staff to supervise them," Mr. Street told the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

"I think the key to success in the treatment of criminals rests in a fair, firm and authoritative but release control."

The parole board chairman said parole is not a matter of clemency or leniency and is not granted on humanitarian or compassionate grounds.

"It is simply a matter of giving a criminal a chance if he seems to deserve it and of helping those who want to help themselves."

At the same time, Mr. Street said, persons on parole have to be convinced that they must accept their responsibilities and obey the law or their parole will be revoked and they will be returned to prison.

"Some well-meaning, well-informed people think that all criminals are mentally sick and should be treated as such," he said.

This was pure nonsense. Most crime was caused by a lack of proper training and by poor environment.

A text of Mr. Street's remarks was given to reporters before delivery.

Giant Unions Suggesting Merger

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees, Canada's second-biggest labor union, asked its executive Monday to talk merger with the third-biggest union—the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

CUPE, representing 130,000 hospital, hydro, municipal, school board and other employees, already shares the Ottawa headquarters of PSAC, the bargaining agent for 120,000 federal government employees.

The only bigger union in Canada is the United Steelworkers of America with more than 140,000 members.

About 660 delegates at CUPE's fourth biennial convention gave unanimous approval to a resolution instructing the executive to begin discussions with PSAC "with a view to creating one union for all public service employees."

Bill Doherty, national vice-president of PSAC, told delegates he could not say how PSAC would react, but agreed the two unions "better get down to the job of working together."

He urged co-operation in the face of the toughening position of the federal governments, as exemplified by Prime Minister Trudeau's statement last month that the federal public service would be used to break a pattern of wage restraint.

Monday afternoon, the convention broke into almost an hour of applause when angry delegates forced President Sam Little to promise a vote on a resolution supporting the independent Canadian Concrete Forming Workers Union in its Toronto-area jurisdictional fight with U.S.-based unions.

The squabble came in the middle of a day full of challenges to Mr. Little, mainly from Toronto members of CUPE. Wallace Higgins, president of Toronto Local 79, will oppose Mr. Little for the presidential post during the four-day convention.

Mr. Little was voted down by the delegates when he ruled out further discussion on a charge by Don Roach of Toronto that resolutions supporting the independent Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport Workers had disappeared after that.

Mr. Little promised an investigation but this did not satisfy the delegates, who voted overwhelmingly to force him to agree that the resolution would be introduced for discussion today.

"You're insulting our intelligence," one delegate said. "Put the question to us. We are the members and we'll decide. The delegates make the decisions, not the union bosses."

Mr. Roach's resolution asks CUPE to go on record as supporting the independent concrete formers in their fight to choose their own union and condemns the "coercive strong-arm tactics of the international unions."

Memory Is A Great Gift

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Everybody bemoans the swift passing of time. Some of Shakespeare's most mournful sonnets were written on this theme: man's life is ravenously devoured by the tiger-jaws of Time.

Most of us, however, fail to be sufficiently grateful for an almost unnoticed compensation — the great gift of memory. We take it for granted that we should have a rich and powerful memory of the past; it never occurs to us that, of all creatures, we are the most blessed in this respect.

Man has been called a "time-binding animal," which means that all human history would be impossible if the race did not possess the memory to transmit knowledge through the generations.

Apart from this unique endowment (which has permitted us to make the earth our own), there is the deeply personal gratification of living in the past.

Life passes swiftly, but it is perpetually renewed in the mind. We can conjure up memories of past delights. In a few minutes, we can live over many years, and re-taste the sweet savor of friendship or love or friendship or fun.

Equally important, we can track backward and live in the minds of great men. For those who use reading creatively, Aristotle still walks in the groves of Academe. Dr. Johnson still sits in Mrs. Thrale's parlor, Napoleon still commands the field at Austerlitz, Darwin still sails on the Beagle.

In the mind of a cultivated person, life stretches back thousands of years, and his friends are not limited to the handful of living men and women around him, but extend throughout the company of heroes and saints and prophets and artists who have ever lived only in body.

There will always be a bleakness and a bitterness in the lives of people who are greedy of physical time, who are resentful of the rapid encroachments of age.

They are incapable of communion with history; they lack a sense of the past, and therefore they can find no serenity in the future.

Life will always be too short for the person who does not see beyond his nose. To use God's magnificent gift of memory to its fullest is the only way to accept the ravages of time with pleasure and with grace.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 10

Your birthday today: Your concerns this coming year turn to making more profitable use of existing conditions and opportunities. Any reasonable program should improve your earnings markedly. Romantic interests become more important and offer attractive. Today's natives often have writing and acting talents or some special way of attracting public attention to a cause.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Use style in conduct today; tell your favorite jokes with a new twist. Follow up any offer of financial opportunity or backing. Round out an active day's work with a quiet party for younger people this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your original plans prove much more sense and get better co-operation from all sides. Creative ventures are strongly favored. Put in a full day; get as much accomplished as you can while this influence prevails.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Home and family life will likely be satisfying at present. Check to see what older people are doing and whether you can help them.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Plan speculative or contingent ventures, but do nothing about them today. Fit into action your personal economy program; cut down home and working place expenses.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You may be beguiled with a charming companion today. At this time, however, keep matters simple and to the point. You may have that serious talk with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There is more success in quiet confidential actions today. You are at your home high and can make a better deal for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Start early and put in a solid day of consistent, but moderate, effort. Results are very promising. Gather friends and relatives this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Painstaking, conservative effort now will set your affairs onto the right tracks. Watch details as you go. During all this welter, allow some time to help out mate or partners.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Startling news is the most likely opener for the day. From there on out it's a challenge to keep things calm, peaceful, and in balance. Find solitude this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): It is important today to keep notes and records of whatever happens. Younger people are to be sustained in their search for social maturity. Check your wardrobe; think about additions or replacements of anything that shows wear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your day should be transitional but you can take care of postponed chores. Settle joint funds into secure investments. Enjoy a quiet evening with an old friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Teamwork and travel, especially if connected with any outdoor program, are both favored and likely to produce good results today. Take your loved ones on some adventure.

Mystery Train Linked with Oil Leases

EDMONTON (CP) — Rumors were as numerous as dandelions in a neglected lawn, but the activities of occupants of a train plying between here and Calgary remained a mystery Monday night.

Tight security measures built an aura of intrigue around what is going on aboard the train as news reporters and photographers were kept well away when it pulled into either city.

CNR officials wouldn't or couldn't comment about the train's occupants and their business.

The most popular rumor was that the 14-car train had been chartered by United States oil executives—at about $10,000 a day—who were drafting final bids for the largest sale of oil rights in history.

The sale, at noon Wednesday in Anchorage, Alaska, will put between $600,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 in the Alaska's treasury from the sale of 468,000 acres of land in the Prudhoe Bay area.

CNR officials said the train was chartered by a tour company for a group of businessmen who wanted privacy and the tight security was aimed at ensuring that CNR's part of the contract was fulfilled.

Carl O. Nickle of Calgary, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, said he understands there "are 14 businessmen meeting on the train."

He said there is tremendous secrecy in the oil business when lease bids are involved.

Alberta government officials said that with the large amount of money involved—a bid must be accompanied by 20 per cent cash—concentration on the work at hand is imperative.

Meanwhile, the train continued to run the 225 miles between the two cities as it has since Friday. CNR officials said nobody will be allowed off until Wednesday—lending further credence to the oil-executive rumor.

Donald Purves, vice-president of the CNR mountain region, said in Vancouver:

"They didn't want to go to a hotel; they wanted to get away. There is nothing macabre or extraordinary about it in any way. It's very simple — they want privacy. I guess their wish to avoid publicity backfired on them."

The train's activities were first publicized Sunday by Edmonton radio station CHED on the basis of information received from a CNR source.

After the train's run to Calgary, a reporter from radio station CKXL went to the marshalling yards to get a story. Dale O'Hara said that at the yard he was talking to a CNR security officer when a man on the train took pictures of him.

In an interview, he said: "I called out to the guy on the train, what would happen if I just happened to wander over and try to climb aboard, would I get shot?

"The guy said 'probably,' and he didn't smile when he said it."

Reporters were told they were'n't welcome in the local marshalling yard where the train was stopped; photographers were removed from a garage roof where they were trying to gain a vantage point for photographs; bright lights were aimed at photographers to prevent them from getting pictures; a car swerved near photographers and reporters after a picture had been taken using a flash.

Payoff $200,000 In Kidnap Case

Men Escape Police Net

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Nelles, 28-year-old daughter of a wealthy Toronto trucking executive, has been identified as the victim of a $200,000 kidnapping.

"I will confirm that my wife was kidnapped Sunday night," said Henry Radcliffe Nelles, Toronto brokerage employee, in a terse statement to reporters at his father-in-law's mansion this morning.

Meeting reporters at the front gate of the Old Yonge Street mansion, Mr. Nelles said reporters could not question him or attempt to obtain further information from him because it "might be detrimental to the police investigation."

But he did give a brief description of the events that began with the kidnapping Sunday night of his wife from his home in Claremont, 26 miles northeast of Toronto, and ended with her recovery Tuesday afternoon in the Muskoka resort district.

He said the kidnappers came to their home—a converted one-room schoolhouse—and bound, gagged and blindfolded both him and his wife. They left him in the house, but took his wife away.

"Then we were given a complicated set of instructions which we followed."

He said the $200,000 ransom was raised Monday and that he followed the kidnappers' instruction for delivery of the money. He did not elaborate and would not answer questions from reporters.

But he said after dropping the money at an appointed spot in the resort country northwest of Orillia, he was given instructions on how to find his wife. He picked her up two hours later.

"She had not been harmed" he said. "She confirmed to me that she had been well taken care of."

Mr. Nelles appeared tired and drawn as he greeted reporters for the short interview. Reporters were not even given a glimpse of the interior of the huge home owned by Mrs. Nelles' father, trucking executive Marshall Davis.

Mr. Nelles' short interview helped fill some of the holes in the story which came to light only after Mrs. Nelles was found safe in the Footes Bay area of the Muskokas 107 miles north of Toronto.

Mrs. Nelles did not appear this morning.

After she was picked up at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday she stayed in a Footes Bay motel with her husband and father until 10 p.m. Then they were whisked away in police cruisers back to Toronto.

Junta Gets Tough

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — Brazilian guerrillas operated under threat of execution beginning today, as military rulers stepped up their campaign to smash urban guerrilla activity.

The ruling three-man military junta Tuesday night amended the constitution to permit death sentences for "adverse psychological, revolutionary or subversive warfare."

It was the second tough measure taken by the government since the kidnapping Thursday of U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick and its warning that it would preserve order "at all costs."

The junta took powers Monday to banish from the country anyone found guilty of subversion, and then promptly banished the 15 political prisoners exchanged for Elbrick's safe return.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto manufacturer Roy Hill, who made a fortune selling notebooks and paper to school children, put $1,000,000 back into the educational system Tuesday night by establishing a fellowship program for innovative teachers across Canada. The Hilroy fellowships, worth between $800 and $1,500 each, will be given to teachers who are developing new teaching methods.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Foreign statesmen headed home from Hanoi today after funeral services for President Ho Chi Minh that gave the West little hint about the future policies of his country. Observers believed future Hanoi policy would, in the long run, be decided by rivalry between pro-Russian and pro-Chinese groups in the North Vietnamese leadership.

Israeli Jets Hit Suez Spots

From AP—Reuters

Israeli jets pounded Egyptian army vehicles at Ras Abu Dweis and Ras Za'Afrana in Egypt today at the same points across the Gulf of Suez hit by Israeli armored columns the day before, the Israeli Army announced in Tel Aviv.

The terse announcement said Israel planes hit Egyptian Army vehicles at both points along the gulf [illegible] miles south of Port Suez.

The jets struck in the morning and all returned safely to base, an Israeli spokesman said.

But an Egyptian spokesman said Egyptian anti-aircraft fire shot down one of the raiding Israeli planes.

Tuesday's raid by Israeli armored forces, backed by jets and naval vessels, was the largest amphibious operation into Egypt since the six-day war of 1967.

Wreckage Lies In Indiana Field

Residents Watch in Terror As Jet Plunges from Sky

Indianapolis, Ind. (AP) — Collection of bodies and debris continued today in a farm field where the broken parts of a colliding DC-9 airliner and a light plane plunged from the sky, killing 83 persons.

Eyewitnesses said the single-engined craft carrying a soloing student pilot, 32-year-old Robert Carey, knocked the tail off the Allegheny Airlines jetliner as the larger plane approached the Weir-Cook Municipal Airport Tuesday.

All 78 passengers and the crew of four on the jetliner, as well as Carey, an Indianapolis plumber and father of six, were killed.

Carey, who had been flying for three years and was due to get his pilot's licence next week, was not required to have an instructor with him because he had logged the required amount of hours to fly solo.

The collision was the third worst involving two planes in the United States.

The greatest U.S. disaster involving two planes occurred in December, 1960, when a United Airlines plane crashed into a Trans World Airlines plane over New York City, killing 134 persons, including six on the ground.

The collision Tuesday was the third fatal crash involving an Allegheny Airlines plane in the last nine months.

"It was near perfect weather," said John Shaffer, one of a team of 16 investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration.

"It's almost inconceivable that the two planes were at the same spot at the same time."

The aerial collision occurred near London, a community of 300 about 10 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

Most of the wreckage of the DC-9 landed in a soybean field 100 yards from a mobile home park where many of the 150 residents watched with terror as the severed fuselage of the jet whistled toward them.

Bodies, wreckage and luggage fell from the sky.

About 500 policemen and a 16-man team of federal investigators combed the field today for remnants of the disaster.

Airport controllers said the jet disappeared from a radar screen as it dropped to 2,500 from 6,000 feet in its landing approach.

Carey had taken off from nearby McCordsville on a 38-mile training flight to Columbus, Ind.

The wreckage of Carey's Piper Cherokee and the jetliner tail section were found a mile north of the place where most of the larger plane's wreckage struck the earth.

Peace Line in Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — The British Army today started drawing a frontier between the main Protestant and Roman Catholic districts of the Northern Ireland capital after a tough declaration by Premier James Chichester-Clark that the reigning anarchy cannot continue.

The immediate effect of his impassioned speech, coupled with the first real rain in months, was to clear the streets. For the first time since late August riots Belfast was entirely quiet early today.

Precisely how the army will divide the Protestant Shankill and Catholic Falls Road areas with their "peace line" has yet to be seen.

Military sources ruled out any permanent barrier remotely resembling the Berlin Wall.

But from a statement by Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, commanding officer of the 8,000 troops in Ulster, it was clear the new divide will be more than the temporary barbed wire barriers used before by the army and probably will involve sandbag emplacements.

One or two of the hundreds of makeshift barricades erected by opposing factions throughout Belfast were removed Tuesday night in response to Chichester-Clark's appeal. One or two new ones were erected.

Chichester-Clark's warning, on Television, was unequivocal: The barriers must be taken down—or the army will pull them down by force.

"Much the best way for these barricades to be brought down is willingly and voluntarily by those who erected them," he said.

"But come down they must, because law and order must now be assured again."

Leaders inside the Falls Road area answered Chichester-Clark with the message: "We shall fight." Paddy Devlin, who represents the area as an Labor member of the Ulster Parliament, said he thought the people of the area would physically defend their barricades, even against the army.

An army statement said demolition work would begin this morning and a spokesman said, depending on the resistance met, it could take between three days and two weeks.

Guerilla Kidnapping Spreads to Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO (Reuters) — Uruguyan Banker Caetano Pellegrini was still missing today nearly 24 hours after he was kidnapped by seven heavily-armed guerrillas, one of them a woman.

Police Tuesday night found Pellegrini's car, in which he was driven away by his captors, but no clues to his whereabouts.

The guerrillas, known as Tupamaros, have been responsible for several recent acts of sabotage in Uruguay. They distributed leaflets saying they had organized the kidnapping, a daring daylight snatch outside the offices of two newspapers of which Pellegrini is managing editor.

Italian-born Pellegrini, 62, whose father was finance minister to Benito Mussolini, the Italian dictator, is a supporter of Uruguay's Bank Association and had been involved in abortive negotiations aimed at settling a nine-week strike by 9,000 bank clerks.

During the weekend a clandestine broadcast by the Tupamaros, first urban guerrilla group to spring up in South America, said the time had come for them to take action in the dispute.

Uruguayans, living under a virtual state of seige since mid-June, had only official statements from the interior ministry Tuesday to inform them of the kidnapping. Newspapers and radio stations are prohibited from mentioning strikes, robberies or acts of terrorism, or even the word Tupamaros.

NATO Down to 3,500

Military Chop to Concentrate All Canadian Forces at Lahr

LAHR, West Germany (CP) — NATO military chiefs are strenuously objecting to Canada's plan to chop Canadian military forces in Europe to some 3,500 men from the present 10,000.

Officers at this Canadian nuclear-equipped air base in the southwest corner of Germany say these objections will be overruled by Ottawa. They say the total Canadian military effort will be concentrated around Lahr with an end to the Canadian nuclear role.

The number of CF-104 jet squadrons in Europe will be slashed to two from six and both these squadrons will be reconnaissance units.

The four present nuclear strike squadrons will be disbanded.

The Canadian Brigade near Soest in the northern Ruhr Valley will be moved to the Lahr area and in effect will become a reserve unit. It will be stripped of its armor because the Canadian government considers the present Centurion tanks too old to replace.

NATO is reported so concerned about Canadian plans that the supreme commander, General Goodpaster, recently visited Lahr to gather information for a submission to Ottawa on the subject.

It is believed the first time that a NATO supreme commander has visited a Canadian base in Europe in the 20 years of the alliance.

The Canadian government is said to feel that the present six CF-104 squadrons are too vulnerable to maintain. This was graphically illustrated Tuesday when 36 nuclear strike CF-104s were seen parked in wingtip-to-wingtip formation so that one well-placed bomb could knock them all out.

The Canadian Air Force has lost 41 CF-104s in Europe since 1960. A total of 15 pilots have been killed.

Many Canadian officers object to Ottawa's plans for the air division and infantry brigade. They say they object particularly to making the brigade a virtual reserve unit far from its present front-line position near the borders of Communist East Germany.

However, there was no airfield available to the Canadians in the Ruhr Valley so that the air division could be moved north.

There are expected to be considerable logistic and administrative savings in the move.

Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, has described the Canadian government's NATO plans as "a cowardly policy of scuttle and run."

Urban Renewal

Council Waits For Report Before Action

City council will take no immediate action to suspend the downtown urban renewal study currently being carried out by Toronto town planners Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon.

Before any action is taken council will wait until it has received the planners' preliminary report expected in the mail by Sept. 17.

"We will wait until we see what we have in the report," stated Mayor J. Russell Scott this week.

Earlier Mayor Scott had said there was a possibility that the city might have to cancel the study since yesterday had cut back federal financial assistance for urban renewal programs.

The cost of the study being done in downtown Belleville and in Foster Ward is over $80,000 of which the city pays $23,000. The two senior governments pay 75 per cent of the study costs.

Allen Brass, town planner with Procter and Redfern, met with city officials last week to outline the progress of the urban renewal study and later said their costs to date amounted to $40,000.

The city's share of this cost would be just over $10,000.

At last week's meeting city officials learned that completed construction arising out of the urban renewal study could be five to 10 years away.

Industry Needs Gas Says Joyce

Natural gas is important in attracting industry, a city spokesman said yesterday during an official opening of the new Lakeland Natural Gas building on Sidney Street.

Industrial Commission Chairman Gerald Joyce, representing the mayor at the opening, also said that 90 per cent of Belleville's industry used natural gas and that all of its new industries were going to require it.

City officials turned up in a group for the official opening and were on hand to congratulate Lakeland's management. The groups included members of city council and of city offices such as the police and fire departments.

Alderman Joyce assisted F. J. Yeoman, vice-president and general manager of Northern and Central Gas Corporation Ltd., in Orangeville, in cutting the traditional tape.

Alderman Joyce noted that Lakeland services about 3,500 homes in Belleville.

The new building went into use at the end of July this year after Lakeland moved from 133 Front Street where it located in late 1958.

The new headquarters is described by staff as bigger and more modern, better suited to serve its customers in Belleville and Trenton.

Ameliasburg Cottage Development Still Growing

AMELIASBURG — Summer cottage developments in this township are still expanding.

A plan to increase the size of the R. S. Hiscock cottage sub-division at Smoke's Point was studied by council meeting last night. The request for approval for 28 additional lots was forwarded to the community planning branch of the Ontario Municipal Board.

Acceptance of the proposal would mean a total 105 lots under development along the south shore of Weller's Bay.

Council also processed a plan for a small summer cottage development proposed by Delbert Bush for the north shore of Consecon Lake, east of the CNR railway tracks. Permission is being sought by the owner to subdivide waterfront property into nine cottage lots.

The consideration of a mobile village application by Ken Maxfield was postponed to a special meeting at a date to be announced later this week. Council awaits the arrival of information on regulations for villages operated in other municipalities.

Council was notified Murray Steel of Belleville was starting construction o. the firehall on the Redmersville Road and the completion date had been set for the end of September. Councillor Arnold Wetherall chairman of the training program for volunteer firemen reported 18 applicants had received full instructions and passed their tests. A second class is to be trained in this current program.

Museum curator Harry Bisden reported the township's historical collection started in Centennial year had attracted 2,000 visitors so far this year. The museum board presently pledged notice that two buses boards from historic groups in Belleville had requested permission to tour the collection and museum premises during the middle of October.

Building permits issued for construction starts in August represented $39,000 in new dwellings and additions.

Road superintendent B.111 Knox reported he was satisfied with the progress of his department with the various ditching and culvert installations proceeding on schedule.

Chief In Association

John R. Brant of the Tyendinaga reserve is local representative on the executive of the Union of Ontario Indians and is vice-president of that organization.

Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga is vice-president of the newly-formed Iroquois and Allied Indian Association, not of the union, as reported in yesterday's Intelligencer story on the new association.

Those Who Don't Give A Single Hoot Still Make Noise

Belleville motorists making persistent unnecessary traffic noises could be in for closer police scrutiny in future.

This has been indicated at city council following complaints of an East Bridge Street resident on increasing noise in the city.

In a letter to city council, former mayor Jane Forrester complained of unnecessary noise resulting from speeding, screeching tires, faulty mufflers, souped-up motors and roaring motorcycles.

City buses and cleaning equipment are equally guilty of adding to the general clatter, she said.

And she also took a swing at noisy wedding parties.

"Are motor horns a necessary adjunct to the so-called course of true love and must the general citizenry continue to be subjected to the recurring din of exhibitionist 'wedding parties'?" she asked.

Alderman Douglas Boyle agreed the noise problem was increasing. He said that Pinnacle Street was being turned into a raceway.

He appreciated, however, the police difficulty in enforcing an anti-noise bylaw.

Alderman Paul Russell said Mrs. Forrester's complaint had not been the only one received.

Council was told the city now has an anti-noise bylaw. But, as one councillor observed: "Maybe it needs amending."

Mayor J. Russell Scott said the matter was under investigation by police. He quoted Police Chief Douglas Crosbie as being prepared to seek suspension of driving licences for a second offence.

Awards To Intelligencer

The Intelligencer this received two more circulation promotion awards from the Canadian Circulation Managers Association at a recent CCMA convention held in Ottawa.

The awards were presented to William LeSurf, The Intelligencer's circulation manager and brings to six the total number of circulation promotion awards won by The Intelligencer during the past year.

The CCMA awards were presented The Intelligencer for: (1) Continuing and permanent circulation dealing with carrier public relations on training and (2) Sales and promotion covering all types of campaigns including carrier contests and direct mail.

$1,200,000 Extension

Trenton Hospital Wing Ready Soon

TRENTON — The latest Trenton Memorial Hospital expansion, costing approximately $1,200,000, is virtually complete.

Official opening ceremonies scheduled for about October 1.

The extension, third in the history of the hospital and designated as "C" Wing, will increase hospital bed capacity to 184 — not including bassinette facilities for new infant care.

As a direct result of the extension, several new patient-care services are to be added. A number of existing services will be enlarged, thus keeping active original hospital policy of the hospital to support first class medical services to Trenton and surrounding communities.

With the opening of the new extension, the total staff on the hospital payroll is expected to increase by 50 to around 230, making the hospital one of the largest employers of personnel in the area.

A MEMBER OF THE UNITED COMMUNITY SERVICES

Ward Cautioned On Rezoning Bid

Members of the Foster Ward Ratepayers' Association will take up a petition asking that their waterfront home area be re-zoned to certain residential specifications. But at least one city alderman feels they are making a mistake.

The decision to organize the petition seeking a change from the present industrial zoning to R-2 residential was made at a meeting of the ratepayers last night.

But, Alderman Arthur Keegan, the unofficial mayor of Foster Ward, feels the request for R-2 re-zoning is a mistake.

"What is needed is a blanket residential re-zoning states the alderman. "This R-2 zoning allows only for single family residences. With the present shortage of housing accommodation in the city what is needed is zoning which would allow tri-plexes or six-plexes."

New sanitary sewers in the area would be completely adequate to handle the increased population density.

"Before any petition is taken up they should wait until the city receives the urban renewal study report," says Alderman Keegan.

"In that way we would know what professional planners feel should go in Foster Ward."

UELs Get Bequest

The Bay of Quinte Branch of the United Empire Loyalists report a $200 bequest from a late life member, Mrs. Mabel Gatzet of Napanee.

The money, included in the correspondence dealt with at the last meeting held in Adolphustown was deposited in the organization's special savings account.

Two Remanded In Consecon Holdup Case

PICTON — Two Brantford area youths, charged with armed robbery of a Consecon bank, were remanded today in Picton provincial court until Sept. 17.

Dennis Butcher, 18, Brantford, and Mark Anthony Kowall, 19, of Paris, have requested legal aid.

Judge T. Y. Wills of Belleville remanded the pair because, he said, there were too many cases already on today's docket and their case would require long deliberations.

The youths were charged with armed robbery following a holdup at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Consecon May 26. The holdup triggered a massive three-day search in Prince Edward County.

They have been in Prince Edward County jail since Saturday after being returned from Vancouver by provincial police.

Contract Is Awarded For County Road Work

The Drury Construction Company Ltd. of Arthur, Ontario, has been awarded a contract for $278,588 for the reconstruction of the Hastings county road from Marlbank to Highway 41, a distance of 3.7 miles.

The road extends through portions of Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties. It is being reconstructed as a development. The project with the Department of Highways contributing 100 per cent of construction costs.

Acquisition of land for widening the right-of-way and erection of new fences will be done by the respective counties as a regular road expenditure receiving 50 per cent subsidy from the province.

The road project is in the ridings of Clarke T. Rollins, MPP Hastings and Public Works Minister, and R. Simonett, MPP for Frontenac - Addington. It is hoped the contract can be completed before the end of this year.

This Mammoth Is No Pipe Dream

AMELIASBURG — The county road between Redmersville and Ameliasburg is the site of the biggest road improvement undertaking engineered in the township in many years.

Three smaller culverts installed a year ago failed to carry away excess water from a swamp south of the Douglas Redner place in the spring.

Recommended as an addition to prevent future flooding at that point the mammoth pipe was placed in position last weekend.

The oversized drain sections, assembled on location, are nine feet high, 12 feet wide and 110 feet in length. A total of 5,000 bolts were used to fasten it together.

Considered a giant among culverts it weighed 20 tons, and the biggest crane from Wilson's Concrete in Belleville was mobilized to set it in place.

School Enrolment Shows Increase In Hastings

Enrolment in Hastings county schools has increased by five per cent this year over last year's total.

Figures are not yet final, as more students, especially on the secondary school level, continue to register until the end of September.

However, the board was told Monday night that 23,818 students were enrolled by the end of the first week of school.

So far, we have 150 students more than we estimated," superintendent D. C. Stirling told the board.

Registration in the elementary schools was higher than estimated, but registration was lower than expected in secondary schools.

The closing of an air base in Europe brought an unexpected influx of students to Trenton, Mr. Stirling said, but' accommodation had been found for them.

With the exception' of Trenton, enrolment has been lower in urban areas this year, and higher than expected in rural areas.

Official enrolment figures for grant purposes will be available after Sept. 30.

Portables Installation Now Is Picking Up

Installation of portable classrooms in schools throughout the county delayed by shortages of material and workmen, is now going forward.

The progress report on the portables has been given to trustees of the Hastings County board of education early this week.

Installation, provided by the supplier of the portables as part of the purchase cost, had been slowed down due to a shortage of labor.

The two portables each slated for Moira and Centennial secondary schools in Belleville will be ready for use by the end of this week, as will the one at Tyendinaga Township School on the Shannonville Gravel Road.

Portables at Frankford Marsh Hill and Stirling will be in use by the end of the month and those in Trenton and at Bird's Creek will be ready at the end of the first week in October.

Response Is Heavy To Teacher Course

A winter course for elementary school teachers will be conducted by the Hastings County Board of Education in Madoc this year.

A survey of teachers revealed that the majority were interested in taking an elementary science course. It will be held in Madoc Public School every Wednesday night during the winter months.

Four instructors from the department of education have been obtained to teach the course and enrolment has now climbed to 94.

"We wanted to include separate school teachers," superintendent of academic services L. F. Reid told the board at its last meeting. "But, enrolment was so large we had to serve our own people first and cut off further registration."

Teachers enrolled in the course bear the entire expense,

Light Fingers Big Muscles!

TWEED (Special) — The summer-time picnic season is about over for another year, but apparently some light fingered person is already looking forward to next year.

Yesterday provincial police reported the disappearance of a roadside picnic table from Highway 37 near Reslin. The table was valued at about $25.

Cannifton Women Hoaxed

Police today are still investigating a monthly-executed robbery of two elderly Cannifton women.

An OPP spokesman said three men were involved in the incident Monday.

Posing as roofing contractors they went to the residence of the two women — unnamed by police — on the pretext of examining the roof of their home.

Two of the men enticed the women outside to outline how the roof should be completed. The third man remained inside the home and emptied a purse of $62.

The men then departed and the theft was not discovered until later.

Check Quantity Stolen

Thieves Raid Tweed Liquor Store

TWEED (Special) — Thieves last night broke into the Tweed Liquor Store and made off with an undetermined quantity of liquor.

Entry to the building was gained by smashing a large west window. Today store officials were unable to state the quantity of liquor stolen until inventory is taken.

The break-in took place some time during the night and was discovered this morning when employees reported for work.

Tweed Police Chief Robert Roy and provincial police from Madoc this morning were checking the premises for fingerprints and other evidence while store employees carried out an inventory check.

This is the second time that entry has been forced at the liquor store. About four years ago would-be thieves left without any liquor after a break-in.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Dave Weadley, a city police detective, returned to his unmarked police car with a prisoner in custody and found one of the city's "meter maids" writing out a parking ticket. Despite Weadley's explanation that he was on police business and his handcuffed prisoner as evidence, the meter maid gave him a ticket.

Hungerford Township Council

TWEED — The Hungerford Township Council met recently with all members present.

The Riot Act

Last weekend in Picton will be remembered as the time they read the Riot Act. While it clearly was necessary, in the wake of threats that members of a motorcycle club intended to help local youths "wreck the midway," such a drastic step was out of character with the usually tranquil atmosphere of Prince Edward's county town.

There had been a fight near one of the midway concessions which resulted in a Picton youth being taken to hospital.

Whatever the disturbance, calm evidently was restored quickly by local and provincial police and on Sunday morning the Midway people vacated the fairgrounds.

There was one ominous portent early Sunday morning when six members of the Satan's Choice motorcycle club rode through Picton. However, police said they seemed uninterested in the disturbance a few hours earlier. Members of this gang are native more to centres like Kingston and Kitchener, but they have made occasional forays into Belleville. Picton is also a little too close for comfort. These young men cannot be expected for example to have regard for, let alone much knowledge of the events of 30 years ago when the Battle of Britain was fought and ensured the freedom we enjoy today.

It is a pity that such freedom has led to the establishment of such gangs and the wearing of Nazi medals, swastikas and other junk the significance of which they do not understand but which give offence to countless people who understand only too well. The less we see of such dubious manifestations of the youth of our day, in Picton or anywhere else, the better.

Value of Discipline

Ballet requires great discipline. Both mind and body must be capable of a high degree of responsiveness to perform to the exacting physical standards of the art.

One who possesses such talent and believes also in discipline in all realms of daily life is Pamela Ann Eldred, 21-year-old lead dancer of the Detroit City Ballet and the new Miss America.

Miss Eldred showed herself to have a keen mind when she answered questions at a news conference. "I'm a firm believer in authority," she said. I have a mind of my own, but why should I defy my elders just for the sake of defying them, if I know they're right?"

The young blonde from Michigan expressed similar faith in "our officials" believing they will solve the problems of the day, including the Vietnam war in which her 25-year-old brother served. Did she agree with a Women's Liberation Front protest that the pageant "exploits" women. Prevented by officials from answering the question which they said was "irrelevant," Miss Eldred again displayed her maturity. "I feel as though they are better and wiser than I am," she then said, referring to the officials at her side. "Who can object to this?"

Whether or not such a pageant exploits women, it does afford opportunities for travel and education that they would not have otherwise. It also reveals there are still young people who subscribe to old-fashioned virtues which actually are not so much old-fashioned as they are guidelines for all seasons. They have to do with positive thought and discipline without which society stands only to lose.

Show Biz

The Don Messer show lives on — but at a price. Dropped by the CBC after ten years on national television, the Downeast Halifax-based program will be seen this winter over 21 independent stations across Canada.

According to reports from Hamilton, where the Messer group is taping 26 shows, the strain was beginning to tell at Show No. 19. Taping a full season's performances is certainly less ideal — from the participants' standpoint at least — than doing them live one by one. It is not surprising then that the performers looked tired.

It must be difficult moreover for the group to maintain the same enthusiasm as they displayed over the national network.

Yet the Don Messer Jubilee is continuing, in the best traditions of show business. It is significant too that in addition to the 21 Canadian stations, television outlets in Billings, Montana, and Seattle, Washington, have also signed to carry the show.

Brazilian Precedent

Envoy Snatching Could Become as Common as Hijackings

By BOB CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The kidnapping of the U.S. ambassador to Brazil has brought with it the fear that ambassador-snatching as a form of diplomacy by blackmail might become almost as common as hijacking aircraft.

The incident which rocked the foundations of orthodox diplomacy and the international conventions that protect those who ply the art followed two similar confrontations in the U.S. in widely-separated areas.

While the Brazilian government was negotiating the safe return of Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick in exchange for the release of 15 left-leaning political prisoners, the U.S. was considering somewhat similar cases involving North Korea and a band of Arab commandos.

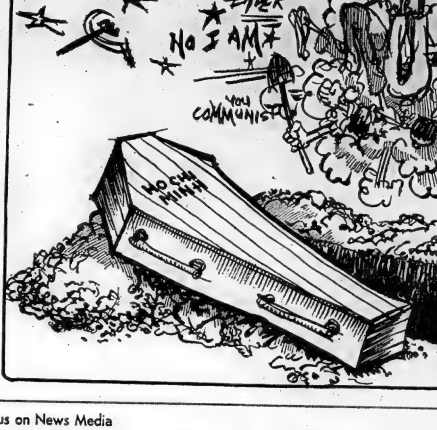
North Korea, holding three crew members aboard a U.S. army helicopter forced down Aug. 17, was rejecting an "apology" for what was termed an accidental violation of the North Korean-South Korean armistice line and instead demanding an admission of a "criminal act."

Washington had made confessions of "espionage" in winning release of the crew of the intelligence ship Pueblo but later disavowed the admissions.

More spectacular was the commando hijacking of the Trans World Airlines jet to Syria Aug. 29.

The U.S. and Israel demands for release of the remaining two Israeli passengers aboard have been rejected—apparently in retaliation for the recent U.S. sale of Phantom jet fighters to Israel. It's also possible the two could be used as hostages to be offered in return for Arabs held in Israel.

The Arab hijacking of the TWA jet was something more simply a re-enactment of the many such diversions of planes to Cuba.



In the case of the plane taken to Syria, there was the element of ransom in addition to using the plane to get to the hijackers' destination—as was the case with Cuba.

Whatever the motives in the Brazilian affair, such outrages against the rights of all diplomats as first codified at the Congress of Vienna of 1815 has raised grave concern.

The idea that whenever a rebel group anywhere in the world wants something, all it has to do is run off with the nearest U.S. ambassador and hold him to ransom presents a grim picture.

State department officials have made it clear they intend to step up security precautions, particularly in Latin American countries, where guerrilla activity of late has accelerated.

But over-protection could work in opposition to the diplomat's prime function to mingle, observe and report what is going on in the country to which he is accredited.

Focus on News Media

Is There A Credibility Gap?

Brockville Recorder and Times

It was the late Will Rogers who said, "all I know is what I read in the papers." He made the statement many years ago when radio was in its infancy and TV hadn't made the scene, but his words still express something true. Except for those events in which we are direct participants about all we know of what's happening in the world is what we read or hear or see by virtue of the various media that come under the head of journalism.

Today we are bombarded from all sides not only by genuine news but by material that is really manufactured to plead special interests, or sell products. A healthy cynicism should be a part of every reader's or listener's or viewer's equipment but cynicism is turning to disbelief.

The International Press Institute recently reported that distrust of news media was growing and constitutes more of a challenge than the technical and economic problems besetting the industry. The Institute, an organization of newspaper editors from 83 countries, notes as a disquieting development" the feeling that the news media incites the violence they report. This feeling is held because of isolated instances where TV people have been accused of rigging up scenes for public affairs programs. The feeling, however, isn't limited to TV. It extends to newspaper and radio too but because TV is the new medium of communication it is coming in for the greater share of the blame.

A top television official told the Institute that a new "love-hate relationship" has developed between television and its basic audience. People are watching more and liking it less and are transferring their revulsion at events to the medium that they are reading, listening to or watching. The fundamental freedom of the press is at stake in this development and government intervention, implied or actual, is the result. There was the example only a week ago where a Canadian TV producer said he felt all media should be controlled but he didn't elaborate. The Canadian Senate is preparing a probe of newspapers this Fall and this may not be a bad thing, providing it extends to all media eventually.

Before giving up on the Fourth Estate, however, readers should ask themselves how many political scandals have been unearthed by politicians or in how many ills are revealed by the bureaucrats and how many by dedicated reporters and editors.

A free press has served the free world well but it hasn't been able to do so by attempting to win a popularity contest. Newspapers will inevitably offend some people some of the time. When it ceases to do this, then it will indeed deserve the distrust and contempt of the public.

Collingwood Area Development

Owen Sound Sun-Times

A forecast that the population of Collingwood will double between now and 1988, bringing the population of that Georgian Bay town to about 18,500, will bring satisfaction to residents of that community.

Collingwood has enjoyed excellent industrial growth in recent years and many additional jobs have been created. The population of the town has not increased greatly, however, because of lack of sufficient housing and, possibly, because many industrial workers have been content to commute in their new automobiles from outside the town.

The forecast by Project Planning Associates Ltd. of Toronto is based on continuance of industrial expansion which has resulted in nine new industries locating in Collingwood in the past three years. Large scale housing development must accompany such industrial growth.

Growth in and near Collingwood must also result in long-range planning by the Ontario Department of Highways. At present there is no way to drive easily and quickly across the southern shore of Georgian Bay. Year-round vacation attractions bring thousands of people into the area each weekend, and cottage development along the highway east and west of Collingwood continues in growth.

The result has been a slowdown in the movement of highway traffic for many miles each side of Collingwood. Posted speed limits are below those normally found on highways in Ontario.

Development of Collingwood as an industrial centre, and of the surrounding area as a winter and summer resort attraction, seems likely to continue. The situation on the present highway can only become worse as the years go by.

A completely new highway, to be free of any commercial or cottage development, is the eventual answer, but the topography of the area, dominated by the Blue Mountains, will make the solution an easy one to develop.

A recent study by the Department of Highways indicated that motor traffic to the Midland and Owen Sound areas will increase by 100 per cent in the next 10 to 15 years. Some of that traffic will also move towards the Collingwood area, and a new highway, or improvements in the present one, will be essential.

Whitman Born 150 Years Ago

UNESCO Features

An exhibition to mark the 150th anniversary of the birth of Walt Whitman opened recently at the Library of Congress in Washington, DC., and will remain until the end of the year. Whitman was born on May 31, 1819.

The exhibition is drawn from the famous Whitman collection made by Charles E. Feinberg of Detroit, recently acquired by the Library. Exhibits include the only known manuscript page of Leaves of Grass, the volume first published in 1855 which brought Whitman lasting fame, the poet's walking stick, watch and pen, as well as many letters, notebooks and first editions of most of his books.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Expulsion of Acadian French settlers from what now is Nova Scotia and New Brunswick began 214 years ago today—in 1755. In 1713 it was decided that all settlers should either take oath of allegiance to the English crown or move to another part of North America within a year, but this was not enforced. But in 1755 the Acadians were rounded up and put aboard ships, often without money and without warning to authorities at their destination.

1846—Elias Howe patented the sewing machine.

1917—Maine rejected woman suffrage by a large majority.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—Americans took Luxembourg, Hasselt and Verviers linking with British 2nd Army along Albert Canal; 5,000 Allied bombers struck from Channel ports in France, Germany and Austria; RAF bombed Berlin by night; Americans fired five shots on German soil near Aachen.

Noise And Civil Rights

Owen Sound Sun - Times

A great deal is said about civil rights in recent years. Generally the term is used to refer to the rights of minority groups on a basis of race, creed and color.

But there are other civil rights. And several of them are being abused and even threatened. There is the right of people to live peacefully, free from unnecessary and unreasonable noise. There is their right to have their neighbors keep their homes, particularly their front yards in a condition which does not bring a general deterioration in property value, constitute an unsightly view.

There are many infringements on civil rights in the noise field. There are those exceptionally noisy gasoline powered motors; motorcycles, lawn mowers, power saws. The former generally can be used moderately quietly. Many Canadians rev their motors constantly to get what they apparently think is a sound of power. And, while police check squealing tires, undue noise in motor cars, except those used according to police court reports, they appear to ignore motorcyclists on the matter of noise control. One cyclist at nearby Saulte Beach appeared to be practising racing tactics, replete with noise, on first avenue south, with a police cruiser parked nearby. One evening he raced up and down the two block or so distance three times, despite the fact that there are traffic crossings to the beach community used by children and others.

Downtown Washrooms

Editor,
The Intelligencer

During the summer, renovations or whatever, have closed the public washrooms under city hall.

This has been an inconvenience to those of us who are market vendors and the public in general.

Most of the time there is no work being carried on there, don't think it is too much to ask that these services be provided when vendors pay a fee to rent market space.

Granted, people misuse such public facilities, however, the time involved in this project is a bit ridiculous.

Kidnap Ransome Paid

Meanwhile a province-wide search—centred in the bike-dotted Muskoka—continued backing up traffic on major routes such as Highway 69 that leads into Toronto from the north.

Tuesday night the traffic jams were huge and at one check point, more than 1,000 cars stretched bumper to bumper for almost three miles on Highway 400.

The scene was similar although not quite as congested on the less-travelled highways dotted with checkpoints.

One motorist complained that he had been checked five times by grim police on a 100 - mile drive between Bala and Toronto.

But the policemen, tired and shivering after occasional rains didn't flinch at the response from the irate motorists and went ahead with their standard questions again and again.

One officer from the Barrie detachment insisted that no one could have evaded the intricately-planned net. But others guardedly speculated that it might have happened.

The area is pitted with the lakes and the men with the money—believed carried in three brief cases and a duffle bag—could have made their getaway by boat or float-equipped aircraft.

It was learned Tuesday that Mr. Nelles left the ransom money in two attache cases on a silvered one-half mile east of the junction of Highways 69 and 103, one mile west of Fooles Bay.

The ransom consisted of $20, $50 and $100 bills. There were 8,000 twenties, 1,000 fifties and 500 hundreds. It was reported that police had recorded serial numbers of all the bills, but police would not confirm today.

It was also learned today that Mrs. Nelles' uncle, Nelson Davis, raised the ransom from the Canadian Imperial Bank of which he is a director.

Police would give no details of the money transfer, but there were reports that Mr Nelles, 29, a researcher with McLeod Young and Weir stockbroker in Toronto, was equipped with a hidden microphone so police could follow him closely as he delivered the valises.

But the mike failed and by the time the police cruisers closed in the kidnappers had grabbed the bags and fled by car, eluding two police planes circling the general area.

Isolated Home

Mary Nelles Fell in Love with Schoolhouse

CLAREMONT, Ont. (CP) — Mary Davis Nelles fell in love at first sight with a one-room schoolhouse near this sleepy village 26 miles northeast of Toronto.

A bride of just six months, she and her husband, Henry Radcliffe Nelles, decided to buy it and convert it into a home. It was nothing like the huge, two-storey house in Toronto where her father, Marshall Davis, lived, but the newlyweds decided it was just what they wanted.

"They sort of fell right in love with it," explained Mrs. Ross Heron Tuesday night. The Herons sold it to the Nelles earlier this year.

She said the Nelles worked hard with the help of local people to convert the old schoolhouse and moved in after returning from a European honeymoon.

But there—in their dream house early Monday morning their nightmare began when Mrs. Nelles was kidnapped and her husband bound and tied.

The school was a solid red brick building with a white bell tower and shaded by towering maple trees. It had been built in 1945 and closed in 1965 when the province phased out many rural schools.

The school board sold the building to Ross Heron for $13,000.

But the usually serene atmosphere of the building and property was not evident Tuesday night. The rolling countryside was illuminated through the night by police searchlights and photographers' flashing lights.

Police patrolled the perimeter of the property awaiting the arrival this morning of experts who checked the house and grounds for clues to the kidnappers.

Most persons in the community of 800 were unaware of the kidnapping until reporters descended on the community Tuesday night.

The Nelles' closest neighbor lived almost half a mile away.

Until she resigned to get married in July, Mrs. Nelles was assistant director of Bayview Glen nursery school in Toronto.

School director Doreen Hopkins said Mrs. Nelles graduated from St. Olaf's College in Minnesota.

"Mary has always been interested in children," said Mrs. Hopkins.

Nelson Davis Take Charge Guy

TORONTO (CP) — Nelson Davis is known to his friends as a take-charge man. And the kidnapping of his niece, Mary Nelles, proved it.

Mr. Davis, a director of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and on the board of at least 40 other companies, guided his family's moves in the 18 hour drama that finally saw the 26-year-old woman released unharmed Tuesday afternoon.

It was he who raised the $200,000 ransom from the Canadian Imperial and it was done openly to reassure the kidnappers in case they were tapping the telephones in his 40-room mansion in North Toronto.

But he had to conceal the fact he was co-operating with police, so he never telephoned them. Instead, messages were relayed through Sam Shefsky, a well-known Toronto sports enthusiast and a close friend whose frequent visits to the house Monday and Tuesday seemed normal.

Although he is a wealthy man, Mr. Davis has always tried to avoid the glare of publicity.

As the kidnapping story broke Tuesday, he tried harder than ever to stay out of the spotlight.

"I have made it a point to keep my name and my picture out of the papers all my life, and I have no intention of changing it now," he told reporters.

An avid golf player, Mr. Davis once had his own course in North Toronto, but sold it to International Business Machines Corp.

His brother Marshall, Mrs. Nelles's father, is shown in the Director of Directors as president, vice-president or director of 37 companies, all but two of them companies in which Nelson Davis has a senior position.

One of the few times before the kidnapping that a member of the family has been in the news was in 1965 when Marshall Davis was elected president of the Ontario Automobile Transport Association.

Dear Hilda

One of the nice things about our gigantic "Thank You" sale is the large number of customers who, in fact, are thanking us. By letters and phone calls and conversations with store personnel, many customers are saying thanks for all the changes and improvements we have made in the past year. That gives us all a pretty good feeling!

Actually, we couldn't have done it without your loyalty, understanding and co-operation. And now, when we realize that we also have a measure of your appreciation, we are determined to try all the harder to please you more and more.

Loblaw customers can look forward to a great year of budget-stretching shopping—with plenty of "thank you" bargains ahead for all of you.

Perfect Plan For Bank Swindle Developed One Loophole

TORONTO (CP) — Ronald Stuart Montgomery, Toronto bank accountant who thought he had a perfect plan to defraud his employers of $500,000, pleaded guilty Tuesday to attempted fraud. He was remanded to Sept. 16 for sentence.

Montgomery, 23, was employed as an accountant at a suburban branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Court was told he had signing authority for money drafts.

On March 13, Montgomery transferred a draft for $500,037 he had opened with the First National City Bank of New York with instructions to change it to Brazilian funds and switch it to another account he had opened with a bank in Rio de Janeiro.

Police testified Montgomery juggled the draft so the copy at the branch where he worked showed an amount of $27. Then Montgomery asked the New York bank for a copy of the draft.

Det. Sgt. Harold Jukes testified the New York branch thought this an unusual request and informed the Commerce in New York and the draft was stopped.

Montgomery was suspended from his job while officials investigated, but he flew to New York March 31 and then on to Rio.

Interpol was called into the case and they apprehended him in Brazil.

Orchids Are Centre of Display

Orchids, Corsage Flowers

One of World's Rarest Flowers, The Orchid - - Expensive But Popular

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

There are some flowers you just can't buy from the corner flower store.

And even if you could, they would probably cost you five or ten dollars apiece. Ridiculous, you say. Inflation has gone too far.

Actually, when it comes to orchids — one of the rarest and most beautiful flowers in the world — maybe inflation doesn't go far enough.

Popular in bridal bouquets and corsages, orchids have remained constant in their "higher - than - average" price bracket. And people have come to accept the fact.

Everyone will agree they have been paying a little more for orchids ever since they can remember, and simply chalking it up as another piece of evidence in the case against inflation.

The high cost of everything today surprises no one, and another item on a constantly growing list of higher - prices things to buy becomes accepted without too much questioning.

Well then, what is so special about orchids that they cost so much.

There are several answers, all of which point up the fact that these rare and delicate flowers are difficult to grow commercially, and costly to import into the country from various points outside.

Ask any orchid grower to explain the many obstacles he faces in growing these flowers.

Although the seeds of this plant are numerous, they are extremely small and quite sensitive during their early development, and can be easily killed by changes in their physical environment.

This fact has forced commercial orchid growers to employ methods used by bacteriologists in the raising of the seeds.

It takes at least two years to grow an orchid. Add to that an intense amount of care and attention and you might be successful.

Growers are further handicapped by the fact that orchids cannot be grown together with any other flowers — they must be raised in special, but separate greenhouses.

In Canada, there are only three growers who raise orchids for commercial sale. Therefore, in meeting the demand, these flowers must be flown in from points as far away as Hawaii, Florida and even Australia. Then, they are air-expressed to individual florist shops.

During shipment, each orchid has an individual water vial, and is shipped in a sealed, air-tight carton.

Even after the flowers arrive at the florists, they must continue to be refrigerated and their water vials constantly refilled.

Added to all these careful preparations, each orchid sold must be flawless in every way or else it is not saleable.

What all this adds up to — the careful preparations, and the special care — is what the public is paying for — perfection.

25th Anniversary

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hagerman, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Hagerman and family entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bateman, at a turkey dinner recently, in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman reside at R. R. 1, Tweed. The celebrating couple were presented with a money tree by the guests present. A week later, the members of their family, along with Mrs. W. E. Bateman and family, again surprised the couple with flowers, gifts and money in honor of their anniversary.

WEDDING

ARSENAULT — SWITZER

The wedding took place recently at Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, when Sheila Marie Switzer and Joseph Cedric Arsenault were united in marriage by the Rev. Father Deweyer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Switzer of Marysville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Arsenault of Prince Edward Island.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white satin and carried a cascade of carnations centred by a mauve orchid. The bride was attended by her sister Miss Brenda Switzer of Belleville as maid of honor and her bridesmaid was Miss Shirley Turncliff also of Belleville. Both wore identical gowns of pale mauve and carried bouquets of yellow mums.

Attending the groom was his brother Mr. Melvin Arsenault of Toronto. Ushers were Albert Arsenault, Locust Hill and Dale Switzer, Belleville, brothers of the bride and groom.

The wedding dinner was served at the Township Hall, Melrose, followed by a reception on the lawn of the bride's parents' home. Immediately following the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to the East Coast, to visit friends and relatives of the groom in N.B. and Nova Scotia; also the groom's parents in P.E.I. On arrival in P.E.I. a reception was held for the couple and relatives and friends of the groom attended.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Vegetables Versatile

Our wonderful Canadian vegetables can be the most important and beautiful items on your dinner plates. Be a vegetable pro — make the best of the best vegetables in the world. Mary Moore gives you a tested recipe for Stuffed Green Peppers today.

By MARY MOORE

Because I like them I served Stuffed Green Peppers to my guests. It was not only a good and filling meal but it was pretty.

Our wonderful Canadian vegetables are at their very best and good cooks should take advantage of their low cost, high nutrition and colorful appearance.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS
(Serves 6)

6 green peppers cut in halves, lengthwise

FILLING:

⅓ cup raw long grain rice
½ tsp. salt
2 cups boiling water
1 lb. ground chuck beef
½ lb. ground fresh pork
¼ cup cold water
1 egg
1 tbsp. finely chopped mild onion
1 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
¾ tsp. salt (second amount)
1 tsp. sugar

SAUCE:

One 7½-oz. can tomato sauce
½ cup water
1-16 tsp. rosemary (optional)

In a heavy pan add boiling water to rice and ½ tsp. salt and bring to boil. Cover and turn off heat for 5 min. Turn heat on to simmer and cook 30 min. longer.

Meanwhile wash then cut peppers in halves lengthwise and remove stem, seeds and ribs. Rinse and drain upside down.

In large bowl mix meats, cold water, egg, onion, Worcestershire Sauce, ¾ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. sugar. As soon as rice is tender stir it into meat mixture. Fill pepper halves brimful with meat mixture. Arrange in single layer in large shallow pan. (If necessary use two pans, preferably ones that may be carried to the table. Mix together sauce ingredients and spoon approximately 2 tbsps. sauce over each filled pepper half. Cover tightly with foil or lid and bake 1¼ hrs. at 350 deg. Fahr.

Host should spoon some pan sauce over each serving.

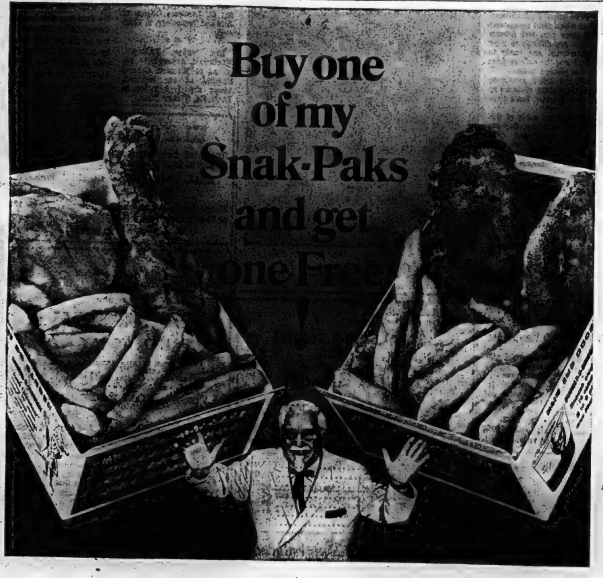
These along with rosebud beets and a salad made a popular and economical main course. Another recipe to add to your bulging hamburg file.

Dart Captains Elected by ANAF Women

On Monday the ANAF Women held a sports meeting in their clubrooms on the third floor at 187 Front St.

There was an election of dart captains who drew from the remaining names for their players for this year.

The results of the election and draw, with the team names are as follows: The SD's, Jean Gannon, captain; Shirley Welch, sub-captain; Betty Grass, Mary Fairborn and Edna Hobbs; The Mods, Mary Northey, captain; Alice Storms Jr., sub-captain; Marion Dracup, Joan Seames and Queenie Lancaster; The Quickies, June Newlands, captain; Peg Ronsky, sub-captain, Marg Campbell; Bessie Buckley and Janet MacDonald; The Jets, Gladys Fitzgerald, captain; Doris Topp, sub-captain; Mabel Galbraith and Doreen McCoy.



Cribbage is to be discussed at a later date. The rules were read with a few amendments added to those existing now.

The meeting was adjourned and an enjoyable evening followed with some of the girls playing darts.

DR. W. D. SPRAGUE AND MRS. SPRAGUE

Sprague – Stokes

The recent wedding was solemnized in Wesley United Church, St. John's, Newfoundland, when Signa Geraldine Stokes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Felton Stokes of St. John's, Newfoundland was united in marriage to Dr. William David Sprague of Halifax, Nova Scotia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Sprague of Belleville.

Rev. R. G. R. Webber officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Herbert LeGrow who also accompanied Mrs. Norman Stokes and Miss Norma Stokes in an appropriate nuptial duet.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white crepe dress in Empire style enhanced with deep guipure lace trim around the hemline, train and short sleeves. Her shoulder length tulle veil was caught to a headdress of guipure lace daisies encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids interspersed with stephanotis.

Maid of honor Judith Peach of St. John's, Newfoundland, wore an empire style gown of pale pink accordion pleated chiffon with the long ruffled sleeves and high ruffled neckline outlined with satin ribbon, as was the waist with a sash of the same shade. She wore a pale pink mohair hat with matching ribbon trim and carried a wreath of pink and white carnations mingled with fern.

Mrs. John Breen and Mrs. Paul O'Brien and nieces of the bride the Misses Sandra and Ruth Stokes and Miss Sharron Parsons were identically attired in the maid of honor.

Stewart G. Sprague attended his brother, while the ushers for the ceremony were Dr. George Whitman of Westville, Nova Scotia, Dr. Graham Young and David Heffernan of St. John's, Newfoundland, and the bride's brothers Leslie N. Stokes and Edward Stokes, also of St. John's.

For the wedding reception at the Old Colony Club in St. John's, the bride's mother welcomed the guests wearing a full length gown of turquoise crepe with matching jacket and hat of the same shade. White accessories and a corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother wore a full length sleeveless gown of chartreuse chiffon in empire style highlighted with a white and silver beaded scoop neckline. This was enhanced with a full length matching coat of chartreuse chiffon accented with a high neckline and long bead trim sleeves. She wore white accessories, with chartreuse flowers in her hair, completed by a corsage of white carnations.

Leaving on the wedding trip to the British Isles and the European continent, the bride changed to an aqua wool dress with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

On return Dr. Sprague and Mrs. Sprague will reside at 5782 Kencrest Avenue, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Successful Living

A Few Recommendations on Posture to Gain Pep

By DORIS CLARK

How is your posture? The Yoga enthusiasts put a lot of store by posture. If you slouch and slump because you are tired, you could be tired because you slouch and slump.

Here's how to get better body control;

1. Lift your chest. This raises the ribs, leaves more breathing room.

2. Don't sprout wings. Keep shoulder blades flat and close to the spine — but not pushed together.

3. Pull in your chin. Don't stick it out — which could cause dowager's hump.

4. Stand tall. Raise the crown of your head as though reaching up. Done properly, the whole body falls in line like a puppet on strings. I like to practise standing and walking as if I were carrying a heavy book on my head.

5. Keep moving. Walk, swim, skate, play ball — exercise. When you make a bed, do a good long stretch. Your body needs movement to keep it in good running order — as it were.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 32, and have three boys and one girl. My husband leaves the upbringing to me.

Being as we are very wealthy, I worry, am I giving them too much? How will I teach them not to be fools with their money? Sometimes I worry about them so much. I think I'll have a heart attack. — No Self-Confidence.

Dear No: It's a good question; one which is being handled in many different ways, in this land of plenty.

If young people are given every last thing they can think to ask for, they lose any sense of true values. They begin to believe that money "grows on trees", or reasonable facsimile.

No reason why Pop should abdicate his responsibility about this. Corner him for a conference, and settle on a reasonable allowance. When you have set the amount, make it clear to your young spenders that there won't be any more until next allowance time.

* * *

Dear Doris: I had to get work out of town on account of a strike, and that's when the trouble started. When I was away my wife went out drinking with a friend of the family, and she had an affair with him.

Now she is getting worse. She works as a waitress and meets many men. She goes away for weekends, and when I ask where she's been she says it's none of my business. I love my wife but apparently she doesn't love me.

We have both seen a doctor. He tells me her troubles go back to her childhood days. — Nervous Wreck

Dear Wreck: Don't ask me to diagnose an unbalanced attitude which has its roots in childhood, from this distance. She needs personal, professional help.

I do know this: You are not called on to keep living with a woman who is constantly unfaithful. For your own mental and emotional health, consider some other arrangement.

Family Doctor Says To Stop Worrying

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You keep advising people to seek psychiatric help. Will you please be more explicit? How does a person go about finding a psychiatrist he can afford? You often say, "Your family doctor can advise you." Mine can't. I told him I was falling apart even though the tests showed no organic illness. When he said, "There's nothing wrong with you, "I answered, "Something must be wrong. Maybe I need a psychiatrist." His reply was, "Everybody has problems of one kind or other. Stop worrying and you will be all right."

ANN LANDERS

Frequently you suggest a mental health clinic for those who can't afford private therapy. Where are these clinics? How does one find them? You do a world of good, Ann. Please do a little more by answering my questions. — COUNTING ON YOU.

DEAR COUNTING: The physician who told you to "stop worrying" should go back to medical school. At long last they are teaching doctors how to deal with patients whose emotional problems are making them physically ill. Instructing a patient to "stop worrying" makes about as much sense as telling him to stop sweating.

Here is the procedure for those who want the names of Psychiatric Clinics. Look in the phone book under County Hospital. Or telephone the Community Fund Agency in your city. (In some cities it is called The United Fund.) Larger cities have a Community Referral Service which can direct you. (In Chicago the Community Referral is superb. Telephone RA 6-0363.)

Free clinics are usually found at universities. A phone call to the university will tell you what services are available. People who live in small towns should telephone the County Medical Society in the nearest large city.

Anyone who wishes detailed information should write to the National Association for Mental Health in New York. The address is 10 Columbus Circle, New York, N.Y. 10019. Those who wish private psychiatric care should ask their physicians. And I hope in heaven they receive a better answer than you did.

Blitz Worries PCs

Anglican Archdeacon Strong NDP Challenger in Byelection

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Kenneth Bolton, 63-year-old Anglican archdeacon who is the NDP candidate in the Sept. 18 Middlesex South provincial byelection, is emerging as the challenger to Conservative Waldell Allen for the traditionally-Tory southwestern Ontario seat.

The Ontario NDP has poured 350 workers—more than are working for either of the other two parties—into the riding. It has been held for 28 years by Progressive Conservatives and was left vacant last spring by the death of Nell Ode.

"It's the NDP we've got to stop in this election," says Bill Schwab, Conservative campaign manager.

"The Liberals have splits in their ranks and their candidate, David McDonald, is not well known. The Grits will run third."

The Liberals don't agree. Party workers figure Mr. McDonald's youth—he's a 31-year-old Glencoe fertilizer manufacturer—will offset the edge given his better-known opponents.

John Harding, the Liberal campaign manager, and NDP Leader Donald MacDonald are agreed that the byelection will prove a political blow for Premier John Robarts. His government holds a comfortable 68 seats in the legislature compared to the Liberals' 28 and NDP's 20, but the two men say their canvassers have uncovered deep-felt unhappiness with the regional government and education-tax policies of the Tory government.

However, Mr. Harding does not agree with Mr. MacDonald that the discontented vote will go NDP.

"If Conservative supporters change their vote, they're much more likely to go Liberal than socialist," he claims. "We're particularly sure we'll pick up the votes in the rural areas, where 60 per cent of the voters live."

Just how much of Middlesex South actually is rural may be the deciding issue in this byelection, and the key to possible NDP gains.

The riding is an anvil-shaped slab of rich farm country which in the 10 years prior to redistribution turned in fairly static votes of about 9,000 for the PCs, 6,200 for the Liberals and 1,500 for the NDP.

But redistribution in 1966 brought the urban voters of southeast London into the riding. In the election of 1967, the NDP took 33 of the 46 London polls by a small majority of 500 votes over Mr. Olde.

That boosted the vote to 4,654 for the NDP to Mr. Olde's winning 8,423 and the Liberal candidate's 5,865.

"Clearly the votes are coming in our direction," says Mr. MacDonald.

He and NDP campaign manager Bill Lloyd figure that recent urban sprawl, particularly in the Strathroy region, has turned the riding into a mainly-urban one that will be more inclined to vote NDP.

The Conservatives are turning on the heat to beat the challenge in London, where Mr. Bolton is better known than Mr. Allen. Mr. Allen, a 47-year-old Lambeth farmer and auctioneer, is popular in the rural areas where he stumps the fairs with a family piano, banjo and accordion act.

In only two days last week, four cabinet ministers visited London, where Mr. Allen's campaign has the active assistance of Revenue Minister John White and where the party plans three canvasses.

The strong NDP campaign also features the blitz technique, but the canvassers plan to do better than the Conservative effort by visiting every home in the riding, no matter how rural and far-cast.

Bill Lloyd says his NDP workers are concentrating on a person-to-person approach and discussing issues such as Ontario's entry into the federal medical care insurance plan, taxes and the cost of living.

MPPs from the 20-member NDP caucus are campaigning vigorously for Mr. Bolton. Jack Stokes (Thunder Bay) has been working with the Oneida, Muncey and Chippewa Indians of the riding, who hold 1,000 votes. He thinks they have not been canvassed by the opposition.

But the hard work of the NDP could also work against their candidate. The voters of Middlesex South, particularly in the rural areas, could become resentful of the more persistent, very serious NDP campaigners, many of whom are "outsiders."

This could pay off for the Liberals, whose leader, Robert Nixon, has frequently joined Mr. McDonald at local barbecues or in his "Hi neighbour" campaign through city streets.

Or it could swell the Tory vote. Mr. White admits frankly that the Conservatives are avoiding discussion of the controversial regional government, medical insurance and education tax issues to concentrate on the Robarts' government's long-term record of encouraging prosperity.

They are also stressing Mr. Allen's personal popularity and the fact that his father, Harry Allen, was the federal MP for the riding for 17 years while Mr. Bolton and his son have both been defeated as candidates in federal and provincial contests.

"We're the winners in this area and we Tories intend to stay that way," says Mr. Schwab.

Shulman Charges Toronto Hiding Hospital Conditions

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman charged Tuesday that the Ontario government has posted notices in mental institutions warning employees they can be jailed if they break their provincial oath of secrecy. This was done, he said, because he has informers placed in the institutions.

"The only purpose of an oath of secrecy in a mental institution is to conceal the horrible conditions from the public," he said.

Dr. Shulman was in London to speak on behalf of Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, the NDP candidate in the Sept. 18 byelection in Middlesex South.

The NDP member for Toronto-Parkdale said Health Minister Thomas Wells "sickens me" as did former minister Maitland Dymond, because the province is not spending enough money on mental institutions and it hides what is going on inside.

Chiefs Bemoan Lawlessness; Understand Criticism: Politician

EDMONTON (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith told Canada's top police officers Tuesday that it is up to them to go part way in meeting the problem of public criticism of their law enforcement efforts.

Mr. McIlraith, speaking to 300 delegates at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, said law enforcement agencies must make an effort to understand the reasons for public criticism, even when that criticism seems unjustified.

By understanding the reasons behind citizens' allegations, police can remedy their own mistakes "and thus lessen the possibility that these groups will produce people who wilfully ignore the law," Mr. McIlraith said.

He spoke after Chris Einfield of East Kildonan, Man., president of the Police Chiefs Association, told delegates that public morality has degenerated to the animal level in Canada and many people are unwilling to assist police.

Chief Einfield said the public is demanding rude stage shows, nudity, salacious movies and "junk sold under the guise of best-sellers which is accessible to any 12-year-old."

Increased permissiveness, he said, is only a synonym for lawlessness.

Mr. McIlraith told delegates that they could rest assured they had the full support of legislators in Canada and "I believe that when properly enlisted, the support of the community will also be solidly behind the police. . . ."

The solicitor-general said that in today's world it is vital that police have access to sophisticated law enforcement techniques like computer storage of information.

Mr. McIlraith also said more extensive use of parole in Canada had released 3,700 prisoners last year compared with 1,800 in 1964. The rate of return of released prisoners had not increased significantly as some persons had predicted, he said.

Mr. Justice S. V. Legg of the Alberta district court told delegates that he favors a complete review of parole and sentencing in Canada.

Rehabilitation is the best method of controlling crime rates, so there must be some liaison between courts, and parole officials, he said in a panel discussion.

Changes must come from courts, parole officials or both, he said.

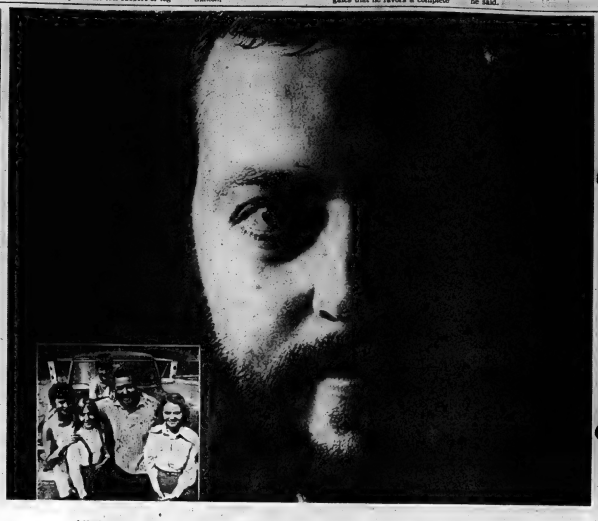
Sergeant Cash Dismissed

TORONTO (CP) — Sergeant Cash, the pseudo Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman who has been advertising Canada Dry products in the United States, has been withdrawn at the insistence of the management of the Canadian subsidiary.

"We didn't appreciate a symbol such as the RCMP being held up to possible ridicule," said Norman Boswell, president of Canada Dry Ltd. Toronto. "Our reaction was shared by Canadians and the series is now going to be withdrawn."



Poison Beans On Sale

OTTAWA (CP) — Poisonous jequirity beans have been discovered in widespread areas of Canada, and Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford Tuesday issued a new warning against them.

The beans, often used in necklaces, bracelets and other decorations, were discovered in Canada several years ago when action was taken to take them off the market. Legislation passed by Parliament last June makes it illegal to import or sell the shiny beans.

The red beans, with a black dot covering one-third of the end, are about a quarter-inch long, and appear as though they have been dipped in enamel. If chewed, the bean can be fatal.

The minister termed the discovery "very alarming."

"Two teen-aged daughters and a boy, 10, cost a lot to keep going. My wife's budget stays healthier because she gets cosmetics and drug needs at Towers Drug Department".

"Helen, that's my wife, says that she couldn't make ends meet without the Towers Drug Department. The girls go through so much make-up, I'm telling you, we'd be eating a lot more hamburger if it weren't for those low, Towers Drug Department prices."

Lower prices on quality goods has always been a Towers policy. Towers Drug Department reflects this policy in all the drug items your family uses. From cosmetics to prescriptions, you'll be pleased with the prices at Towers Drug Department.

Wheat Sale Ideas Given

REGINA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, who has listened to a barrage of farmers' complaints in his tour of northern Saskatchewan and Alberta, Tuesday began hearing about policies his party could adopt to help meet the difficulties.

At a party conference on western agriculture here, Mr. Stanfield was told that the Conservative party has only two alternatives to consider in planning a meaningful policy to sell Canadian wheat on the international market.

Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker government, told the conference the party can set a policy aimed at allowing the large wheat pools and grain-handling companies to sell wheat abroad, or it can consider allowing the Canadian wheat board to become a selling agency itself rather than having to turn over sales to international brokers.

Mr. Hamilton said he would prefer the first alternative because a sales organization operated by the wheat board would mean "10,000 civil servants all over the world to sell wheat."

The conference also heard suggestions for the establishment of a national body to regulate and handle the sale of feed grains on the domestic and international markets.

Another suggestion was the abolition of storage charges, paid by farmers to elevator companies.

This, the conference was told, would provide grain companies with an incentive to sell stored wheat in order to increase their revenue from handling charges.

Mr. Stanfield was to attend more conference sessions today before leaving for Winnipeg.

farmers are participating in the conference discussions aimed at hammering out recommendations on agricultural policy for the Progressive Conservative national policy conference Oct. 9 to 13 at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Cadillac Style Refined

The 1970 Cadillac has been further refined in appearance as a result of styling innovations and enhancements in the interior design. Body changes include a redesigned grille and front end, providing a lower and wider look without altering basic Cadillac styling. Cornering lamps at the front ensure greater visibility and safety. The Cadillac Eldorado model will feature the world's largest passenger production engine — 8.2 litres (over 500 cubic inches.) The Cadillac Fleetwood Eldorado is shown above.

Vancouver Finally Gets Shot at NHL... After Entry Ante Up to $6,500,000!

MONTREAL (CP) — Vancouver, waiting nearly five years for a team in the National Hockey League, gets its chance to bid for a franchise this week, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday.

Campbell said final applications by groups wanting franchises for the 1970-71 season may be tendered this week and Vancouver has the "first right of refusal."

"We agreed in June, 1968, that Vancouver would have the first opportunity and that is what we are doing now," he said.

"If they qualify and fulfill the conditions as laid down for expansion they will be accepted."

Campbell said he will call a news conference, probably today or Thursday, to outline the latest steps to further expansion that will enlarge the league to 14 teams from the current 12 while retaining the two-division concept.

Others expected to apply for franchises are Cleveland, Baltimore and Buffalo, all cities with teams now in the American Hockey League.

Of reports that any new club will have to pay close to $6,500,000 for a franchise, Campbell said:

"I can't deny that it is the full price, but there are other considerations."

During the last expansion, applicants from Los Angeles, Oakland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Minnesota were assessed $2,000,000 for their franchises and 20 players to stock their teams.

Before the 1967 expansion, the league had been a six-team group.

Vancouver's application for a franchise at that time was turned down in favor of St. Louis.

But since 1966, Vancouver has built a major league arena to seat 16,000 fans, a prime requisite for a franchise.

Major obstacle to this second expansion has been realignment of divisions.

In the first expansion, the established teams—Montreal, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, New York and Boston—remained a unit as the Eastern Division, while the new teams formed the Western Division.

A second expansion would require a shift of at least one and perhaps two teams. There has been speculation that Vancouver and Baltimore would replace Chicago in the Eastern Division with the Black Hawks moving into the West.

Campbell had no comment on this, saying the matter is still under consideration by the league.

He said that altogether five franchise applications are expected, but he was not at liberty to name them.

Manitou Trailing American Challenger

Canadian Yacht Lags on Long Leg

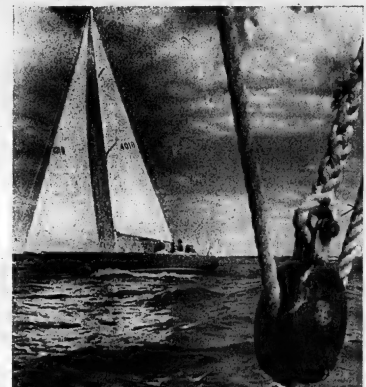
TORONTO (CP) — United States challenger Niagara was four minutes and 20 seconds ahead of the Canadian contender Manitou soon after daybreak today as the Canada's Cup yachts continued a battle that began on the drawing boards almost a year ago.

But Manitou, which was 14 minutes behind at Whitby, 21 miles east of here, after crossing Lake Ontario early today, was closing the gap as the two yachts sailed before a brisk 10-knot north-northwest breeze.

They rounded the half-way buoy, seven miles out in the lake from here, and started back on the second triangular course to Port Breese, N.Y., in two-foot waves. During the night the yachts encountered seas of five feet.

When the vessels reached Port Breese after sailing 67 miles from Toronto, they were one minute, five seconds apart. Manitou fell behind on the 34 nautical miles to Whitby but began to make it up on the 21 miles to Toronto.

The 200-mile race, which began at noon Tuesday, was expected to be completed in less than 48 hours.



At stake is the world renowned reputation of Sparkman and Stephens of New York City, who designed Niagara, and the Toronto firm of George Cuthbertson and George Cassian, the designers of Manitou.

Both yachts are in the Cruising Club of America Class 37, which gives them cruising waterlines of 37 feet, and both were designed and built for this particular series.

Manitou had slipped 150 yards behind Niagara as the yachts headed into the windward leg after completing the opening 67-mile lap on a downwind course from Toronto to Point Breese, N.Y. at nightfall Tuesday.

Progressive reports were not available during the hours of darkness between 8 p.m. EDT and 6 a.m. today.

Niagara, owned by an 18-man syndicate from the Cleveland Yacht Club, lost the first two races over 21-mile courses Sunday and Monday. She must win the marathon in order to force an extra encounter Saturday over the 21-mile course.

Clear Sailing

The Canadian yacht Manitou races on to win her second race in the Canada Cup series in Toronto Monday. The 20,000-pound Manitou, her 780-square-feet of sail wind-swollen, raced through the choppy waters of Lake Ontario to defeat the American contender Niagara. (CP Wirephoto)

GENEVA (CP-Reuters) — Canada's national hockey team trounced Switzerland 10-0 Tuesday night in an exhibition game before 6,200 fans.

Bob Berry and Steve King each had two goals for the Canadians, who recently ended a series of matches in the Soviet Union. Canada led 5-0 after the first period, stretching it to 7-0 after two.

Other scorers were Guy Lapointe, Larry Wright, Andre Hinse, Bob Murdoch, Chuck Lefley and Bob Charlebois.

No Women!: Portugese Bullfighter

LISBON (AP) — The president of the Union of Portuguese Bullfighters resigned Tuesday in protest against the permission granted to an American lady bullfighter to appear in a corrida here.

Manuel Conde, one of the country's most famous bullfighters, said he had nothing personal against Edith Evans, a 25-year-old bullfighter from San Antonio, Tex.

"I simply resent her invasion in a domain which traditionally was reserved to men," he said.

The lanky blonde American girl claimed she was entitled to fight because she was a licensed professional bullfighter belonging to the Mexican union.

Miss Evans, who in three years of fighting killed more than 110 bulls, is scheduled to perform in Lisbon later this week.

Her specialty is fighting bulls on horse back. Bulls are not killed in the ring in Portugal, but are disposed of after the corrida.

Forget the Trophy!

Harold Pascoe has more important things to think about than the South Hastings Baseball League championship trophy. The young Read pitcher had a better reward for leading his mates to a 7-6 win over Shannonville last night at the Belleville Fairgrounds. (Story on Page 20.)

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle of Australia won the men's doubles title in the United States open tennis championship Tuesday, beating Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. and Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico in the final, 2-6, 7-5, 13-11, 6-3. The winners shared $3,000, the losers $2,000.

DOVER, England (AP) — Alisa Vidakovic, 25-year-old Yugoslav swimming instructor and mother of a five-year-old boy, swam the English channel from Cap Gris Nez, France, Tuesday in 13 hours, 20 minutes, Mrs. Vidakovic's time for the crossing was relatively slow, compared to the record of nine hours, 39 minutes, set by Iada McGill of Australia in 1967.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Quarterback Frank Ryan, who guided the Cleveland Browns to their last National Football League Championship in 1964, is a free agent today. The Browns announced Tuesday night that Ryan and running back Charley Harraway have been placed on waivers to cut the squad to the 44-player limit.

Starts Against Saskies

Als Will Sink or Swim with Sonny.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes are going to sink or swim with rookie quarterback Sonny Wade.

Head coach Kay Dalton said he will start the rookie against Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Canadian Football League game at the Autostade tonight, despite the fact the Alouettes lost 47-22 to Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday with Wade at quarterback.

for a disastrous three quarters.

Veteran quarterback Carroll Williams led the Alouettes to their only victory in five exhibition games this year when Montreal defeated the Roughriders 27-21.

"But you can't keep changing from game to game," Dalton said. "We have to try to establish some stability, some definite path to follow. The kid has all the qualities we want in a quarterback. He stands right in there so you know he has the potential. Now we have to work to develop it, to bring it out."

Dalton said Mike D'Amata, recently cut from New York Jets of the American Football League, will be used as a defensive back for tonight's game.

The Alouettes will be looking for their first victory in six starts this season while the Roughriders will be trying to solidify their hold on first place in the Western Conference.

The Alouettes have only two ties in their six games and are almost out of the Eastern Football Conference playoff picture. They trail Ottawa and Toronto Argonauts by eight points and third-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats by seven.

Tiger-Cat Win Means Top Spot

WINNIPEG (CP) — With an improved but perhaps "confused" offence, Hamilton Tiger-Cats are hoping to keep their undefeated record intact tonight in an interlocking Canadian Football League game with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Hamilton is one point behind Ottwa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts, tied for top spot in the Eastern Football Conference.

A victory would put Hamilton into the lead. For the Bombers, a win would strengthen their hold on third place in the Western Conference, moving them within one point of second-place Calgary Stampeders.

Tiger-Cat coach Joe Restic said Tuesday his team's "offence was strange last year, but I think we've improved a lot, except we're still confused." The eastern squad uses a lot of motion in its offensive plays.

Restic said the Tiger-Cats have worked harder in preparation for the game against the Bombers than for their Labor Day victory over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Standby defensive back Jerry Lawson went on the missing list without explanation and Restic likely will use Ed Turek to plug the gap originally created when John Williams was injured.

Another recent player switch for Restic is the use of middle linebacker Bill Overton, a pick-up last week from Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, to replace Ernie Clark who was cut from the squad.

Read – South Hastings Baseball League Champions – 1969

Read Completes Rebound To South Hastings Title

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

No, that wasn't a World Series' game that bottle-necked the Belleville Fair grounds' parking lot last night.

That was an exuberant grandstand full of South Hastings Baseball League supporters watching Read complete a game and series comeback to edge Shannonville Hawks 7-6 in the deciding game of the league championship.

Rebounding was not a new 'chore for Read, who trailed 2-0 after the first two games in the best-of-seven playoff final, and fought back to even it 3-3, with two games tied.

Read trailed most of the way in last night's game, played before more than 600 chilled, but spirited spectators.

Consecutive singles by right-fielder Steve White, shortstop Carm Milligan, and veteran catcher-coach Gerry Brennan after leadoff man Pete Enright had on by an error gave Read three runs and a 4-4 lead in the bottom of the seventh.

To that point, Shannonville's Larry Lewis had limited Read to two runs on six scattered hits.

Read got to "Square" again in the eighth, stretching their lead to 7-4 on Enright's double, and singles by Wayne Pascoe and White.

A ninth-inning Shannonville rally netted two runs on singles by Wayne Sager and Bill Barberstock, and an error by the jittery Read infield, but Harold Pascoe brought Read the Lee Grills and "Buck" Pascoe Trophies by getting Dave Lewis to pop up for the third out.

Pascoe struck out five and walked one in earning the win.

His biggest trouble came from the meat of the Shannonville batting order: Bill Barberstock (four-for-four and a walk), catcher Bud Hill, (double, two singles), and Wayne Sager (double, single).

Leadoff man Pete Enright paced the Read attack with a brace of doubles and a single. Steve White hit a two-bagger and singled home the winning run in the eighth inning, while Carm Milligan contributed three singles.

Read's upset came after Shannonville had dominated regular - schedule play to coast to their third - straight South Hastings League pennant. Read had to fight for a second-place finish by playing off with Cannifton.

Juniors Challenge Mo-Hawks!

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Hopes were high for a stronger Junior B candidate from Belleville this winter, but who expected the Morrison Realtors to challenge the Senior A Mo-Hawks?

Morrisons' coach Floyd Crawford and manager Jim "Snipe" Matthews issued the challenge via the Intelligencer today, and, although it pertains to ice, the proposed confrontation will be on asphalt.

Messrs. Crawford and Matthews challenged their Mo-Hawk counterparts — coach Davey Jones and manager Robert Temple — to match blisters with them in the Sept. 20 round-the-bay walkathon to launch the fund drive for the Quinte Community Recreation Centre-arena.

Coach Crawford said the format for the proposed duel could be worked out to the mutual satisfaction of the two factions.

"A stopwatch would be needed in the event of a tie over the 30-mile route.

Whoever came out on top, the walkathon fund for a second city arena would be the only winner, Crawford stressed.

Crawford -- already sponsored to the tune of some $4 per mile in the walkathon — declined to say if any limit would be put on the match race.

No Respect For City

Ellis Juniors are out to show City Hotel that they have absolutely no respect for their elders.

The Commercial Softball League's new junior-age entry and the Hotelmen — including many long-standing Commercial League veterans in their lineup — clash at the Alemite tonight at 8 p.m. in the first game of the league's best - of - seven final playoff series.

City carried their berth by ousting defending league champion Stinson's Construction in a six-game semi-final, while the Juniors needed seven games to dispose of the 1969 pennant-winners, Point Anne Cementmen.

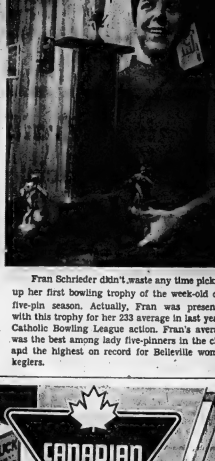
Second game in the series is an 8 o'clock Thursday night Alemite fixture with the two finalists then getting a respite until Monday.

Bowlers Can't Wait

Somebody forgot to tell Bob Sills that high scores don't come until a little later in the bowling season.

The Men's Commercial League kegler rolled a 397 in his league's opening action last night, and was just one of a number of scores that had Belleville Bowl-O-Drome manager Bill Bateman scratching his head.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Bateman. "It's highly unusual to get scores like this in the first week of the season."



Unusual or not, there were a lot of pins falling at the Bowl-O-Drome.

Gord Lucas rolled a 365 and Francis Sagriff a 352 in the Men's Commercial loop, while Gary MacDonald was compiling an 886 triple.

Mark Storms Jr. hit for singles of 343 and 310.

In addition to being opening week for many of the city's bowling leagues, the Sept. 7-13 period has also been designated as National Bowling Week.

An estimated 1,200,000 devotees of five, ten, duck, or candlepins from 5 to 86 are now striking and sparing across Canada.

Fran Schrieder didn't waste any time picking up her first bowling trophy of the week-old city five-pin season. Actually, Fran was presented with this trophy for her 233 average in last year's Catholic Bowling League action. Fran's average was the best among lady five-pinners in the city, and the highest on record for Belleville women keglers.

Turbos Win Opener

A bursting attack brought the CN Combines the first run in the first game of their best-of-seven Departmental Softball League final playoff series last night.

It must have aggravated the CN Turbos, who scored five runs in the next three en route to a 5-2 win, and 1-0 series lead.

Rod Bennett gave up 11 hits in picking up the win, but the Turbos' hurler restricted the Combines to singles, including three by Schrieder, and two each by Junior Day and Marshall. Bennett struck out seven and walked one.

Day was the loser, allowing nine hits, fanning seven and issuing three walks.

Phambo led the Turbos at the plate with a double and single with Perry Soule and Bob each picking up a brace of safeties.

Second game of the series is scheduled for the CNR field Thursday night at 6 p.m.

Who Needs Nine Players?

Playing shorthanded in any sport is often costly, but the Dairy Queen's entry in the Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League found it downright fortunate.

The Dairy Queens used only eight players to best Dixie Lee 15-12 for their second straight win in the best-of-five league semi-final series.

Winning pitcher Barb Breadner helped her own cause by smacking a pair of doubles, while Elayne Brooks, Joyce Seniuk and Beverly Gilkes contributed triples.

Dixie Lee hit three homers in defeat, with Ann Emerson shouldering the loss.

Kidd Calls Canada 'Wasteland for Physical Culture'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is "a wasteland for physical culture" where commercialism dominates sport, Bruce Kidd, former top-flight Toronto runner, says in a position paper for the fall's New Democratic Party convention.

It says the most significant reason Canadians are poor sports participants probably is the commercialism "that rules the system."

Kidd says that while the National Hockey League controls North American Hockey, it has shown little concern for Canadian interests.

Ten of the 12 NHL teams were in the U.S. and the two in Canada were "more concerned with profits than furtherance of Canadian interests."

Through its control of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, it had kept Canada's national teams weak to the point where Canada lost eight straight to Russia on home ice last season.

The federal health and welfare department had brought hockey interests together this year to form Hockey Canada Corp. to buttress the national team.

However, this appeared to further dependence of the national team on the NHL.

Kidd says the corporation's first step was to hire a general manager and coach who had spent his life "in the commercial system." The second step was to lobby with the International Amateur Ice Hockey Federation to allow professionals to play in international tournaments.

"When the IAIF becomes completely open to professional competition, then the NHL dominance will be complete and Hockey Canada will simply contract with the NHL for the national team.

"I expect the price will be a good one."

Shea Stadium Cries 'Goodbye Leo' As Mets Whittle Away Cubs' Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spitball charges, chants of "Goodbye Leo", a whining single by a kid who wants to stay in the big leagues and a victory for Montreal Expos were all part of National League baseball action Tuesday.

En route to the outfield in the second inning, Cincinnati's Pete Rose complained to umpire Andy Olsen that Gaylord Perry was throwing spitballs. Out of the game went Rose, seven innings later down west the Reds, 7-4, to San Francisco, and back into first in the NL Western Division west the Giants.

Manager Leo Durocher sat in a Shea Stadium dugout, listened to chants of "Goodbye Leo, Goodbye Leo, we're glad to see you go" and watched his Chicago Cubs lose to New York 7-1.

The loss cut the Cubs' Eastern Division lead to one-half game and actually dropped them a game behind the Mets in the loss column.

"I hope these hits I'm getting mean I can stay up here a while," said Ralph Garr after his record-tying pinch single in the 10th inning gave Atlanta a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles and moved the Braves past the Dodgers into third in the Western Division, 1½ games back of San Francisco and a game behind Cincinnati.

Bob Bailey drove in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Coco Laboy hit a two-run homer to back up Steve Renko's five-hit pitching as the Expos downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2.

In other NL action, Houston Astros trounced San Diego Padres 9-2 to move to within three games of the top in the West and St. Louis Cardinals took Philadelphia Phillies 6-2.

Willie McCovey's 42nd homer, with Willie Mays on in the seventh, snapped a 1-1 tie, and the Giants added four more runs on two doubles, a walk and three singles to replace the Reds in first place.

"All I said was 'Why don't you do your job and check the ball when a complaint is made'," Rose said of the comment that led to his early exit. But Perry still was around at the end as he boosted his record to 17-12.

The Mets, who have won two fewer games and lost one less than the Cubs, gave Tom Seaver, 21-7, two runs in the first inning. Seaver went on to pitch a five-hitter, and the Mets went on to batter Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., 19-13, for five more runs, two coming on Donn Clendenon's homer and one on Art Shamsky's homer.

The defeat gave the Cubs their longest losing streak of the season, six straight.

Gary's hit drove in Sonny Jackson, who was hit by a pitch and sacrifice to second, and made Phil Niekro the Braves' first 20-game winner since they moved to Atlanta. He has lost 12.

Cuellar's 21st Win Makes Magic Number 6

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Mike Cuellar is rapidly turning coach Billy Hunter into a prophet.

Cuellar, Baltimore Orioles' 21-game winner, ran his record to 11-1 since the all-star game by holding Washington Senators to six hits Tuesday in the opener of an American League twi-night doubleheader.

The Orioles took the opener 6-1 and the nightcap 3-2 and reduced their magic number for clinching the AL Eastern Division to six over Detroit's defending world champion Tigers.

"Mike, after the all-star break, it'll be your turn," coach Hunter told Cuellar earlier this season when the Cuban left-hander was bemoaning his poor won-loss record. "From there, on, you'll be 11-5."

Elsewhere Minnesota Twins outslugged California Angels 11-7 and boosted their Western Division lead to 9½ games over Oakland Athletics who lost to Kansas City Royals 2-1, Boston Red Sox topped Cleveland Indians 3-1 and Detroit blanked New York Yankees 2-0.

Cuellar, acquired in an inter-league trade with Houston Astros last winter, was only 10-8 at the all-star break.

Tuesday, Cuellar had a one-hitter for seven innings and lost his shutout in the ninth when Frank Howard slammed his 45th homer.

Brooks Robinson drove in two runs in each game for the Orioles and a fourth-inning single by Mark Belanger sent home the winning run in the nightcap.

Frank Bertaina, sent to the minors by the Senators earlier this season and then acquired by Baltimore, put down a bases-loaded Washington threat in the sixth.

Minnesota erupted for seven runs in the sixth inning, including five after California shortstop Jim Fregosi bobbled a third-out grounder, and went on to hammer the Angels.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting—Jim Wynn, Astros, drove in four runs with his 30th homer and a sacrifice fly in Houston's 9-3 rout of San Diego Padres.

Pitching—Phil Niekro limited Los Angeles Dodgers to six hits in Atlanta's 3-1, 10-inning triumph and became the first pitcher to win 20 games since the Braves moved to Atlanta.

Durocher Blasts Jenkins

CHICAGO (CP-AP) — Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native who is currently the leading pitcher on the pennant-hungry Chicago Cubs, has been blasted by manager Leo Durocher for failing to give his all.

The blast by Durocher, which implied that Jenkins was lax in Saturday's 13-4 loss to Pittsburgh Pirates, took 24 hours to leak through the closed doors of Leo's clubhouse.

Jenkins, top pitcher on the Cubs with a 19-12 record, was the starter against Pittsburgh and he came apart after a fly ball fell in the outfield.

"After Don Young let that ball drop Saturday," Jenkins said, "I made some remarks about it when I got to the dugout. I admit those things disturb me and I pop off about it."

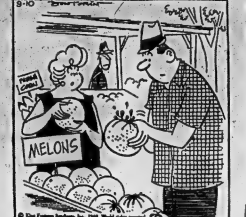
From Jack Fraser—a great two-pant suit. A great, great, great, two-pant suit.

$89

Your neighbourhood Jack Fraser store is now offering, at $89, the Fraserdale—a two-pant suit which features the quality of construction, styling and fabric normally found in one-pant suits costing much more.

The fabric of the Fraserdale is woven from pure wool. (There is still nothing to rival wool when it comes to fine suiting materials.) The construction features heavy hymo inner lining, hand-stitching around lapels and other benefits characteristic of top-quality garments. The styling shows the Edwardian influence, but is restrained, as befits a businessman's suit. The waist is nipped in a little. The jacket skirt is slightly flared, while shoulders and lapels are moderately widened.



When you buy your Fraserdale, you get a written guarantee that you won't see it offered next week, next month, or next year at a sale price. At $89 it's designed to give you a better value than you'll find in any other suit, even during so-called "sale events".
